Somehow she emerged from the house and made her way home. She felt that everything was gone, and it did not make any difference now what became of her. She might as well please her father and mother and do what she could to make their lives easier. She broke into the quiet living room at home as though she were crazy.

"Mother," she said, "you may tell Martin Mears that I will marry him."

"When?" gasped the startled mother.

"Tomorrow." And it was done.

Five years passed, and Brenda was the mother of two children. They were girls, with all of her blond beauty. Martin had been a devoted husband. He had put Brenda's brother Digby in the way of earning well, and all the comfort which the family had anticipated from the marriage had been realized.

One day Brenda was in her storeroom, when in moving a small box of her husband's, which he always kept locked, it fell to the floor. The lock broke, and a package of unopened letters dropped out. Brenda's blood froze in her veins as she looked at them. They were addressed to her in the handwriting of John Masters. She tore them open feverishly and read them—letters full of love at first, of agonized doubt and fear later, then of despair. One letter had been written after her marriage. "Oh, how could you leave me, my darling? Could you not wait for me? Have I not done all that I could for you? You have stripped life forever of all brightness for me. Oh, if I could only know what has come between us!"

She wept in great gusts of passion as she read on. And her husband had kept these letters from her. She hated him.

When he came to his dinner the letters lay beside his plate. He recognized them instantly. One of the children was taking its noonday nap. He sent the other to be fed by the negro woman in the kitchen. Brenda was sitting in her place colorless and her eyes fixed on him and burning with reproach. He gazed at her a moment. Then he dropped upon the floor and groveled at her feet, and she spoke for the first time.

"How could you, Martin; how could you?"

"Oh, I know it wasn't right, Brenda!" he said hoarsely, "but I loved you so! You don't know how I loved you! Nobody ever loved anybody so. I had to have you, and so I got Digby to get the letters, and I paid him not to let you have them. Oh, it wasn't right! But it was the only way that I saw to get you. And haven't I been good to you, Brenda? Haven't I done everything for you?"

She rose and left him. His touch seemed to poison her.

A week followed of horrible, silent suffering for them both. Then came a scene which she had pictured to herself for many years. Even since her marriage she could not help sometimes imagining it, though she had tried to be a good and faithful wife to the one who, as she now knew, had robbed her of the only man whom she had ever loved.

John Masters came back to Bermuda. She knew nothing of it until he appeared before her, though her husband had piloted in the steamer which had brought the exile into harbor on the previous day and had seen him among the passengers. He came to Brenda's home in the sweet twilight of a May evening. She was playing with her children under the blooming oleanders.

He entered the gate almost like an old man, though he was scarcely thirty. His face was strongly marked and his hair was streaked with gray. She had grown more beautiful than ever with motherhood. He turned pale as she came forward and took his hand. There were no formalities between them. She spoke as though they had been parted only a short time.

"I never got your letters until last week, John," she said simply. "I am married, as you know. These are my children, but I married in a fit of wounded pride and despair because I did not hear from you. I know now that I have always loved you just the same, though I am prepared to live on with my husband and to try to be a good wife to him and a faithful mother to my children. Come and tell me about yourself."

She led him to the vine wreathed porch, and they sat down together on the bench. The evening wore on. The negro nurse put the children to bed. Still the long separated man and woman talked on. Then Martin Mears came home. Brenda did not look toward him, and the stern expression upon the face of John Masters forbade any speech between him and the man who had so wronged him. Humbly Martin Mears crept past them and went in.

The window of his room opened upon the porch. He threw himself down in his clothes upon the bed. The hours flew, and still John Masters and Brenda talked on, unmindful of life or death or the lapse of time, while the miserable husband listened.

"I cannot imagine why you want to know."

He heard a description of what the true lover of his wife had suffered. He heard her tell John Masters how she had watched and waited for a letter, then how she had married, but how an awful mystery had hung over her through it all and had made her different from her old self and like a person in a dream. Martin Mears groaned to himself. It was all true. She had been kind to him, but it was the kindness of one who knows not what she does.

Suddenly a light began to shoot up from the east.

"Is there a fire, Brenda?" asked John Masters.

She looked steadily for a moment toward the new light.

"The sun is rising, John," she said. "We have talked all night, though it has seemed but an hour. It is the last day for us. You must go, and you must never come back. We must never see each other again."

She broke into a piteous sob. Martin Mears heard the man sob, too, as he tried to still her.

"Don't, Brenda!" he pleaded. "It is harder for me than for you. Remember that. I would love to gather you in my arms and comfort you. I could do that in the old days, but not now. You are another man's wife. It is true that he is a villain, but you are still bound to him. Our only solace must be that we have always been true, and I shall be yours until I die."

The man's self control and high principle astounded the listening husband.

"He knows that I hear all that he says," he muttered to himself, "but he knows, too, that whatever he might do I could not say anything." He writhed upon his bed in an agony of remorse.

He rose presently and passed them, jostling them rudely as they stood, pale and wretched, at the gate in the dawn.

During that day he fell over the side of his pilot boat—that was what the seamen said, and, indeed, the ocean was very rough—and was drowned.

John Masters went back to America the following week, but a year later he returned and claimed his bride.

He Took a Rest.

As it is undoubtedly true that one man's meat may be another man's poison, so it happens sometimes that what seems like work to one person is regarded as recreation by another.

"Had a good lecture on Alasky, didn't we, Eb?" asked one of Mr. Dodd's neighbors, meeting him the day of the lecture. "To sit there peaceful as pie for two hours, hearing him reel off the information and seeing those pictures cast on the screen, was a grand rest for me, beat out with cranberrying as I be."

"It was a good enough talk," admitted Mr. Dodd, in a grudging tone, "but it didn't rest me any to speak of. Between having to set stock still without a chance to get in a word for two mortal hours and crane my neck looking at those views, I was pretty well wore when I got home. But I took the lantern out into the wood shed, and by the time I'd split up a week's kindlings I felt kind o' rested an' calmed down."—Youth's Companion.

Hustling Zebediah.

By LUCY STEWART.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcells

"Sboo, ma, how you talk!"

"And you've got to help me."

The cows had been milked, the hogs fed, and Jabez Strong, farmer, had taken his seat beside his wife on the veranda. He didn't ask what it was she would not stand, for the matter had been the subject of numerous conversations before. He had always assumed a neutral position and argued that things would come out all right if left alone, but now he realized that a crisis had arrived.

"If she had a mother it would be different," continued the good wife as she fanned away the mosquitoes with a folded paper, "but she hasn't one. She's only got a father, and he's the biggest old poke in six counties. Jest the last thing Melvina Williams said to me on her dying bed was to be a mother to Emeline, and now I'm going to be or know the reason why. I'm going to call her over here tomorrow for a talk, and I'm going to have a talk with Zebediah. It hain't right, and you can't make it right."

"It might if Emeline had a mother, but she hain't got. I've let it go on and on, thinking mebbe I hadn't better say nothing, but I shan't let it go another day. I may want you to help me. If I do, you've got to pitch right in."

Across the highway from Farmer Strong's was the farmhouse of Farmer Williams. The two families had been neighbors for fifteen years. Farmer Williams was a good man, but it was also true that he was a "poke." That is, he worked from morning till night, and then after reading his county paper for half an hour he wound up the clock and went to bed. When his wife had died, she left a daughter Emeline, eighteen years old. That was two years before the opening of this story. Just about that time Zebediah Henderson had been taken on as a hired man. Zeb was twenty-three years old and well thought of, but he was slow and conservative by nature.

Some hired men would have fallen in love with Emeline inside of a week, for she was a bright, attractive country maiden, but Zeb waited three months. It came to be a case of love on both sides, and three months later he proposed and was accepted. It stopped short at that, so far as Zeb was concerned. He meant to marry some day, but that day was indefinite. Farmer Williams came to know of the engagement, but he had no opinion to express. He went on with his plowing and eating boiled dinners and left matters to fate.

It was this state of affairs that had provoked the indignation of Mrs. Strong. She didn't think it right on the part of Zebediah to keep Emeline "on the hooks," as she expressed it. While all other young men were driven away by knowledge of the engagement, Zebediah continued to "poke around" as if he had fifty years to get married in. On one or two occasions, when he had come over to borrow a hoe or sit on the veranda and discuss crops with her husband, she had spoken her mind pretty plainly. She had hinted that she knew of farmers' sons who were looking about for wives and that there were more windmill and wire fence men coming along than she could shake a stick at, but Zebediah was unmoved. She had made Emeline own up to the engagement, and she had advised her not to make a long engagement of it, but when the girl blushingly asked her what she could do Mrs. Strong had no plan at hand and didn't know where she was to get one.

Fortune favors the conspirator as well as the brave. Two or three days after her talk with her husband on the veranda Mrs. Strong's brother came on a visit from Illinois. He was a jovial, hustling young man. If he hadn't had a sweetheart back home he would have fallen in love with Emeline Williams. It was while he was praising her that Mrs. Strong got her plan. It was as simple as sliding down a cellar door. She crowed and giggled over it for half an hour and was still crowing and giggling when the girl from across the road came over to borrow a drawing of tea. Mrs. Strong brought out the tea and then motioned her pretty neighbor to take a chair and began:

"Emeline Williams, you have no mother."

"No?"

"Your mother asked me to be a mother to you after she was gone."

"I know it, and you've been awful good to me."

"Emeline, it's a dreadful thing for a girl to be in love and have no mother and an old poke of a father, and I can't stand it any longer. I've got to be your mother and advise with you."

"But father is kind and good, and Zeb is—is"—

"Zeb is what? Been engaged for a year and a half, and he hain't asked you to set the day yet. He may go another year and a half. He may go five years. You can't tell nothing about such a critter. He'll keep poking along till he's bit by a rattlesnake or falls off the roof of a barn. I'm going to talk to you jest as if you were my daughter. Something's got to be done."

"But you can, and you're going to. That's where you need a mother; that's where a mother's plans come in. If I had five daughters I'll bet I'd marry the last one of 'em off in two years. Now, Emeline Williams, stop twiddling your thumbs and blushing and hitching around and listen to me."

And inside of ten minutes she had developed her plan and guaranteed its successful working. There were objections, but she overruled them. There were protestations, but she silenced them. Half an hour after the girl had run back home with her tea the plan had been communicated to Bert, Mrs. Strong's brother, and entered upon in the heartiest manner. He had been introduced to the Williams household, and, following out the plan, he crossed the road and spent four hours talking to Emeline on the veranda. Zebediah saw them from the cornfield. During the first hour he was easy in his mind. During the second he wondered a bit. Before the third was ended he was feeling the gnawing pangs. He came up to supper sullen and morose, and now and then during the evening he flung out something about "that squirt from Illinois."

Bert came the next day and the next. He also came in the evening. He almost ignored Zeb, while he made every effort to entertain Emeline. He even aroused her father from his wonted lethargy. Zeb wanted to do some kicking, but fear of the law restrained him. He wanted to talk to the girl and tell her what was what, but pride forbade. He was mad and jealous, but there seemed nothing for him to do. He lay in his bed one night thinking things over and gritting his teeth and wondering why girls made fools of themselves, when Farmer Strong roused him up and told him he'd better go to the barn and see if the horses were all right. Farmer Strong thought he had seen some one prowling around. A trip to the barn showed that the gray horse and top buggy were missing. When the Williams household was alarmed, the discovery was made that Miss Emeline was not in her room. Her wardrobe had been overhauled, and she had evidently fled. The discovery was not a minute old when Mrs. Strong came over to report that her brother was missing.

"By gum, but it's an elopement!" exclaimed Zebediah as he made for the barn. "It's an elopement, and I'll kill that squirt from Illinois if I have to follow him to Africa!"

There was another horse in the barn, and, waiting only long enough to slip on a bridle, Zeb mounted and was off for the nearest village. As he went clattering through the midnight darkness he saw red. In his heart he was a murderer ten times over. He did not have to go to the village. Three miles from home he met a boy driving the old gray mare homeward. He had been paid half a dollar by the "squirt" to do so after the young man had taken the train. The boy was positive that there was no one with him. The old mare was put on the gallop for home, and the farmhouse was reached to find the father and daughter at the gate. Emeline had explained that she had sat up late fixing over a dress and had finally gone up to the garret to hunt for some pieces of cloth. Elope? She had never even dreamed of it. In love with the young man from the west? She couldn't say she even liked him.

At this point Mrs. Strong came into the discussion to say that her brother was very erratic and sometimes did strange things and that when he took sudden resolves to go home he sometimes borrowed even a horse and buggy without consulting the owner. She hadn't heard him say he was going home, but he didn't always let her into his confidence. Zeb heard her out and then climbed into the buggy.

"Where are you going?" asked the farmer.

"After Jim Smith, the justice."

"What for?"

And there was, and though the groom was grouchy for awhile he soon got over it and acknowledged that he was glad of it—that is, he was glad he had married five or six years sooner than he had intended to, but if the "squirt" ever returned to that neighborhood let him look out for a broken neck.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE COOLER SEX.

Bound by the chain of custom
And nurtured in her school,
Man looks about him and observes
His sister free and cool;
For in a shirt waist costume
She glides about the place,
While he must sweiter in a vest
Or else be in disgrace.

She wears the gauzy garment
The livelong summer through,
With holes for ventilation
Where men may peekaboo.
Of course I don't imagine
That she need such things fear:
The men are all too bashful,
Or too polite, I hear.

Built on the lines of beauty
And sense and higher art,
The shirt waist can to woman
An added grace impart;
And man looks on impatient
And wishes all the while
He had the nerve to wear it,
Regardless of the style.

Man boasts that he has conquered
The beasts of lesser wit,
And made the elements sit up
And notice him a bit;
But when it comes to dressing
For comfort and for ease,
He has to yield the honor
To woman, if you please.

Thoroughly Feminine.

"I suppose your wife likes to have the last word, like all women?"

"Does she? Say, that woman would talk back to a phonograph."

To Capitalize the Habit.

"What is he going to call his new paper?"

"He thinks some of naming it the 'Umbrella.'"

"Weather news organ?"

"Not specially; but he thinks if he names it the Umbrella everybody would take it."

Had a Precedent.

"What does he find in them to talk about?"

"Sermons in stones, I guess."

A Card Shark.

"Really, I do not know which card to play."

"When in doubt, you know, play trumps."

"Yes, that's so. Which is trumps, aces or ten spots?"

Save Yourself.

When a motor car is moting
Down the busy boulevard,
That's the time to be a-noting
How the grass grows in the yard;
Clear the track and keep a-running,
Save yourself, and then look out;
Oh, the lady looks too cunning
In her little runabout.

When a chauffeur starts to chauffing
Down a quiet country road,
It's no time for lazy loafing
For an elephant or toad;
It is time to seek for shelter,
To vamoose, light out, skiddoo,
When the chauffeur, better skelter,
Lets his speed belt out a few.

Interested.

"He has a genius for trouble."

"Indeed, how strange!"

"Oh, I don't know; he's a lawyer."

Cash Deal His Experience.

"Hear about the ice cream trust?"

"No, I didn't. There is no such good luck for me."

Hopeful is the touch of a friend.

Our faults are our own. Nobody covets or copies them.

TO PACK A TRUNK.

In the first place have the trunk where it can be easily removed by the expressman.

Underwear, shoes and stockings and other things which do not rumple easily should be placed first and articles requiring more care afterward.

Take each piece of clothing separately, lay it down and fold it neatly and as tightly as possible, avoiding lumps and wrinkles.

Lay the sleeves flat and fold the gowns just the length of trunk. Silk frocks and others of which you wish to take special care would better go in the bottom tray, folded lengthwise and then through the center. Place properly all plaits, folds and ornaments and put a newspaper neatly over all to protect them from the dust and rubbing.

Before locking the trunk sit down and take a mental survey of the things you have put into it.

You may find that something has been forgotten or that you have packed the bottles which are likely to break, or that your purse or ticket has been put in.

Wait until the last moment before turning the key and then put the latter at once into the pocket of the bag you will carry, thus avoiding all possibility of leaving it behind.

HOUSEKEEPING HINTS.

Needles and pins will never rust in a cushion filled with coffee grounds. Pour the coffee from the grounds and rinse them in cold water. Let them dry thoroughly before using.

The bent point of a sewing machine needle may be sharpened on a whetstone and need not be discarded.

Put a small bag of talcum powder in a box with a cover and keep in the workbox to rub on the fingers when they perspire.

When you have occasion to use plaster of paris, wet it with vinegar instead of water, then it will be like putty and can be smoothed better, as it will not "set" for half an hour, while plaster wet with water hardens at once.

To string very fine beads, cut one strand of silk thread a little longer than the rest. Wax and twist firmly. This can be threaded through fine beads without using a needle.

Care of Eyeglasses.

It is unfortunately a very common practice with wearers of glasses to remove them from the eyes, breathe on them and then wipe them with a clean handkerchief. This is a most slovenly habit, and not only that, but it will have a tendency to make the glass grimy and consequently injurious to the eyes. Glasses should be washed as often as is necessary in water as hot as would be used for table glass. A little ammonia may be added to this water and the lens should be very carefully wiped on a soft cotton or linen fabric. Thus treated they will be kept perfectly clean. They should never be put in the pocket without a case, for if the frame becomes even slightly bent the lens will not be true and the eyes may suffer from their use.

To Flavor Steak.

A French cook rubs her broiler lightly with the cut side of a clove of garlic before putting the steak on it for broiling. When she pan boils the steak she flavors the frying pan in the same way.

Another invention of the French housewife is cold chicken cut into thin slices, dipped into a fritter batter and fried in deep fat. They are served very hot.

TELEGRAPH STRIKE.

President Gompers Has Hopes of An Early Settlement.

Washington, Aug. 20.—President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday reported to the executive council of the Federation that he, John Mitchell of Indianapolis, and Daniel J. Keefe of Detroit, had been entrusted by united labor with an attempt to bring about "an honorable adjustment of the telegraphers' strike at an opportune time."

Mr. Gompers was asked when he thought that time would arrive, and replied that he could not say; that it might be "in an hour, a week, or a month, or perhaps not at all."

New York, Aug. 20.—Both the officials of the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph Companies reported their statement that there was nothing to arbitrate when the despatch from Washington regarding the designation of President Gompers and Vice-Presidents Mitchell and Keefe, by the American Federation of Labor was shown them.

E. J. Nally, vice-president and general manager of the Postal Telegraph Cable Co., yesterday gave out the following:

"Reports from all points east, west, north and south, indicate that we start this morning under almost normal conditions, with improved traffic and increased force; not a single place in the company's system this morning where we are not giving good service, and where we are not prepared to give prompt handling to any business the public may file with us. So far as the Postal Telegraph Cable Co. is concerned, the strike is over."

Ultimatum to C. P. R.

An ultimatum was delivered to the company yesterday afternoon that unless the company agreed not to have its operators work with the strike areas in the United States the men would stop work to-day.

ENGINE'S WILD RUN.

Backed Up at Sixty Miles an Hour After Collision.

Brantford, Aug. 20.—A peculiar accident occurred on the Tillsonburg division of the Grand Trunk yesterday. At Mount Pleasant an engine and freight collided in a head-on crash about 8 o'clock. The engineer on the west-bound, in order to avert disaster, if possible, reversed the engine, but neglected to shut off the throttle. The crew then jumped and escaped injury.

The engine crashed into the freight and following the impact of the shock began to back up with increasing speed, until, when it reached Brantford, a distance of five miles, it was tearing along the track at the rate of 60 miles an hour.

In West Brantford the engine became unmanned, jumped the tracks, ripping up the ties for some distance in attempting to round the curve.

Shells Explode, Three Hurt.

New York, Aug. 20.—The accidental explosion of three 10-pound shells in the ordnance storehouse of Fort Totten, at Willet's Point, at the junction of the East River and Long Island Sound yesterday, severely injured three artillerymen who were unloading shells.

W. M. Blank, a private of the 101st Co., Coast Artillery, was burned and torn from head to foot by the explosion, and is expected to die of his wounds. Private Sneuzer, also of the 101st Co., and Private Alphia of the 82nd Co., Coast Artillery, were injured, but less seriously, and are expected to recover.

Agitation In China.

Berlin, Aug. 20.—A special despatch from Shanghai, published yesterday, says that the situation in China, especially in the Yangtse Valley, continues unsatisfactory.

It is impossible, the message adds, to say whether a general outbreak is impending, but the revolutionary movement gains strength daily, and the secret organizations are growing visibly. The Chinese officials say that thousands of revolutionists are concealed in the foreign quarters of the cities, thus placing themselves outside the jurisdiction of the Chinese courts.

Bullet Through Heart.

Lindsay, Aug. 20.—Alex. Grant, who resides near Maniia, is dead as a result of an accident. He was cleaning a revolver in the stable of his father's farm when it was in some way discharged, the bullet penetrating his heart.

Injured by Dynamite.

Belleville, Aug. 20.—Arthur Price, a six-year-old lad living near this city, found a stick of dynamite and pounded it with a stone. He lost two fingers, an eye and was horribly cut about the face, but will recover.

Father and Son Killed.

Merrickville, Aug. 20—Two Italians, father and son, in the employ of the Orillia Construction Co. here, were killed yesterday by a premature explosion of dynamite.

ALLEGED COAL COMBINE.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—A movement has been engineered to have the coal merchants of Ottawa indicted before the grand jury at the Fall Assizes.

Coal has risen during the last two weeks from $7.25 to $7.75 per ton, and a "coal combine" is alleged. The matter is now in legal hands and advice is awaited as to whether the advance made unanimously by the dealers comes within the scope of the classes of the criminal code prohibiting combinations in restraint of trade.

If the legal opinion is that the law covers the case an indictment will be laid, but if there is any doubt on the matter it is proposed that a movement shall be inaugurated for the signing of a mammoth petition to Chief Justice Falconbridge, who will preside at the Fall Assizes, to ask him to mention, in his address to the grand jury, the undue increase in the price of a necessity of life in this latitude.

It is understood by those who are "engineering" the movement that the traffic managers of the railways are ready to testify that there has been no increase in freight rates; in fact, the opposite is the case.

INSPECTOR BLOWN UP.

Hermon Webber Shot Ten Feet Into Air at the Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 20.—At 9 o'clock yesterday morning, Robert Little, superintendent of the waterworks, and Herman Webber, sewer and plumbing inspector, with an Italian laborer, went into a manhole of the trunk sewer at the corner of Simcoe street and Victoria avenue to make an examination.

When at the bottom of the manhole, one of the trio lighted a match and an explosion from gas occurred, blowing Webber out through the manhole and 10 feet into the air. He was badly injured, one arm being broken and face and hands scorched. Mr. Little escaped with a few scorches, and the Italian was badly burned and bruised. The presence of gas in the sewer was unexpected, and not supposed to be regular sewer gas but has filled into the sewers from natural gas leakages.

KILLED THE SLANDERER.

Chicago Woman Shot Man Who Destroyed Her Home Life.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Because she believes he had caused her husband to leave her and broken up her home by circulating malicious stories, Mrs. Baergei Ansolino shot and killed Felipe Ferreo Sunday in an alley in the rear of her home.

Mrs. Ansolino escaped and has not been arrested. According to the stories told by neighbors, the woman acted in defence of her reputation, and it is their belief that she will not be punished.

CAPT. CALDER'S RAID.

Is Now Confirmed In Despatch to the Government.

London, Aug. 20.—The Foreign Office yesterday received confirmation of the raid made by Capt. Calder, at the head of a small frontier force, from British Guiana, into Venezuelan territory, and the seizure of a small quantity of balata (gum), alleged to have been collected in British territory. The action is attributed to the oversealousness of the frontier officers, and the Government will take steps to settle the matter diplomatically.

Haywood a "Comrade."

Stuttgart, Aug. 20.—Herr Babil, during the course of his references, at the opening of the International Socialist Congress here Sunday, to the Haywood murder trial at Boise, Idaho, which he stated "ended with the brilliant acquittal of our comrade," said:

"This trial has shown all the world that in the United States liberty, law and justice exist only on paper. It it to be hoped that these incidents will stir up the American workingman so that, like the English comrades, they will soon have a good number of representatives to Washington."

A series of immense mass meetings held Sunday afternoon were attended by 40,000 to 50,000 persons.

Tablet Unveiled.

Salisbury, Eng., Aug. 20.—In the ancient and beautiful Salisbury Cathedral Ambassador Whitelaw Reid yesterday afternoon unveiled a handsome tablet in memory of those killed in the terrible accident a year ago when, by the derailing of the American Line boat, 28 persons, mostly Americans, lost their lives.

ASIAN INVASION OF B. C.

Too Many Japs and Chinese Pouring Into Canada.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—According to reports to the Department, 657 Japanese arrived in Canada during the month of July, to stay, and 201 passed through to United States points. One hundred and thirty-three Chinese came in the same period, 44 of whom were exempt from the tax on celestials. R. G. Macpherson, M. P., wired to the Department and said that unless the Government stepped in and stopped these aliens a crisis will arise in British Columbia.

Architects In Session.

Montreal, Aug. 20.—The Institute of Architects of Canada opened its first annual meeting here yesterday morning, and will continue in session until the 24th.

Fell 2,000 Feet.

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 20.—The fate of three German tourists who have been missing on the Jungfrau since last Thursday was cleared up yesterday, when guides discovered their dead bodies on a glacier below Retthal-Sattal. They had fallen, together, a distance of 2,000 feet.

Would Exclude Jews.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—The union of Russian people recently sent an address to Emperor Nicholas, demanding the entire exclusion of Jews from the Douma in order to obtain a genuine Russian Douma. His Majesty wrote upon the margin of the document, "Read with pleasure."

WOULDN'T CHANGE RELIGION.

Girl Shot by Man Whom She Refused to Marry.

New York, Aug. 20.—The two years' courtship of 18-year-old Ellen Fiaka and Joseph Pallog, aged 21 years, ended tragically last night. The girl is a Catholic, while her lover is not, and after a protracted struggle with her conscience, she decided finally that she could not marry out of her church. The renunciation was made in the presence of her family, and a moment later Pallog had shot the girl in the breast and put a bullet into his own body.

Preferred the Baby's Voice.

A New York scientist, the father of a large and growing family, has his troubles. One evening his youngest was holding forth in her best style. The mother could do nothing with the child, so the man of science went to the rescue.

"I think I can quiet little Flora," he said. "There's no use humming to her in that silly way. What she wants is real music. The fact that I used to sing in the glee club at Yale and sing well, too, may make a difference."

Accordingly, the professor took the child and, striding up and down the room, sang in his best manner. He had not finished the second verse of his song when a ring was heard. The door was opened, and there stood a girl of fourteen, who said:

"I'm one of the family that's just moved into the flat next to yours. There's a sick person with us, and he says, if it's all the same to you, would you mind letting the baby cry instead of singing to it?"—Success.

A Considerate Musician.

Many stories are told of the jealousy and ill feeling [illegible] is refreshing to note that at least one genius did not fail in good natured appreciation of a fellow-artist. It is related how Rossini, walking one day on the boulevard with the musician Braga, was greeted by Meyerbeer, who anxiously inquired after the health of his dear Rossini.

After a few minutes' conversation Meyerbeer passed on, and Braga asked the great composer how it happened that he had suddenly become so unwell.

Smilingly Rossini reassured his friend. "Oh, I couldn't be better. I merely wanted to please Meyerbeer. He would so like to see me go to smash!"

LARGE METEOR FELL INTO WATER

Fiery Mass Dropped From Clouds Into the Sea.

RESIDENTS BADLY SCARED

Caused Huge Waves to Roll—Fishermen's Huts Washed Away — Fish Killed by Hundreds—Thought It Portended End of the World—Long Island People Greatly Excited — Much Damage.

New York, Aug. 20.—At 6 o'clock Sunday evening an immense meteor, apparently about 75 feet in circumference, fell into the sea, about a mile off the Amaganzett, L. I., life-saving station. First a roar was heard, and an instant later a great stream of fire seemed to come down from the clouds and plunge into the sea in the wake of the meteor. The meteor fell into the water with a noise as of a mighty boiler letting off steam.

Great waves rolled in upon the beach. Part of the bathing pavilion was washed away, and along with it several fishermen's huts. Much damage was done to property abutting the waterfront. Some persons thought the strange incident marked the end of the world. Even the old fishermen, used as they are to facing death at sea, were terrified, and not for an hour or more did the excitement quiet down.

Capt. George Green, who was in command of a vessel in the harbor of St. Pierre, when Mount Pelee blew its head off and destroyed that city, was sitting on the waterfront when the meteor fell. He declared nothing had ever frightened him so much except the Mount Pelee disaster.

The meteor apparently fell vertically. From the time the noise was first heard until it plunged into the sea was probably three-quarters of a minute. After the disturbance had subsided hundreds of dead fish were found on the shore. These were gathered up by boys and peddled by them.

Like an Earthquake.

Middlebury, Vt., Aug. 20.—Prof. Sheldon of the Brooklyn Politicnic Institute went to Bristol Notch yesterday to investigate the fall of an unusually large meteor, which was observed by many people throughout Addison Sunday morning. Those who saw it fall say it was of unusual brilliancy and size. The effect of its fall was like that of an earthquake, the country within several miles of the scene of its landing experiencing shocks, which caused damage to many houses.

Old Walls Fall.

Kingston, Aug. 20.—The walls of the old stone mill at Kingston Mills, over a century old, fell on Saturday. A year ago a crack appeared, and grew wider as the months went by, and the wall fell with a final crash on Saturday. Half the building is gone.

The mill was used by the Government for the accommodation of the U. E. Loyalists. The mill in those days was used by farmers who drove one hundred miles.

Man and Horses Burn.

Massilon, Ohio, Aug. 20.—A livery stable and two residences were burned yesterday. Lawrence Line, a hostler, was burned to death and 62 horses, including two race horses, were destroyed.

MOORS WERE ROUTED IN BATTLE

Sudden Attack Upon General Drude's Camp on Sunday.

FOUR HOURS' FIERCE FIGHT

French Officer Wounded—Moroccans Suffer Heavy Losses—Machine Guns Do Deadly Work — Many Horses Killed—Spahis Finally Routed the Moors—Mulai Hafi Proclaimed Sultan—Caid's Fate.

Paris, Aug. 20.—A telegram received here from Vice-Admiral Philbert declares that the Moroccans apparently suffered heavy losses during the engagement of Sunday, when the camp of Gen. Drude was attacked.

Advices received from Morocco City declares that Mulai Hafi, brother of the Sultan, has been proclaimed Sultan by the neighboring tribes.

The Government has not received any confirmation of the report that the Sultan of Morocco intends to protest to the powers against France's action at Casablanca.

Will Produce Disaster.

Tangier, Aug. 20.—War Minister Cabbas is reserved regarding the Casablanca situation. In an interview yesterday he limited himself to declaring that a continuation of the present anarchy was a most dangerous excitation, which inevitably would produce disaster. The Minister added that he counted upon the loyalty of France and the prudence of the Moroccan Government to restore order, and was collaborating with the French and Spanish officers for the rapid organization of the international police.

Gerald Lowther, the British Minister here, has received no communication from Caid Sir Harry MacLean or his captor, the bandit, Raisuli, for five days. It is only known here that Sir Harry was alive Aug. 12.

Moors Repulse Spahis.

Casablanca, Morocco, Aug. 20.—A large force of Moors suddenly descended on the French camp on Sunday, but were driven off after a sharp conflict. The tribesmen advanced to within eight hundred yards of the city, when Gen. Drude sent against them under cover of the guns of the warships, a detachment of fifty Algerian Spahis (Arab horsemen in the French service).

The Moors permitted this small body of cavalry to advance for a half mile unmolested, when they suddenly ambushed them and in a wild charge got right among the spahis.

The French officer in command of the spahis and several of his men were wounded, but the officer rallied his force and slowly retired, fighting until a large body of spahis from the towns succored their comrades and routed the Moors.

The fighting covered a front of about 16 miles and lasted from 7 to 11 a. m. The French field guns with machine guns acted with deadly effect in repelling the attack of the Moors, and shells from the cruiser Gloire also rendered efficient service. The spahis and sharpshooters each lost one man killed and had several wounded, including Capt. Cond of the spahis. About a dozen horses were killed.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 20.—The German cruiser Fylgia, with Prince Wilhelm aboard, reached the Jamestown Exposition ground yesterday.

WARM ROAST FOR BANK SYSTEM

Canadian Life Underwriters Hold Annual Convention.

INSURANCE BILL CRITICISED

W. J. Bell of Guelph Draws Startling Contrast — Banking System Needs Amendment — President Handles Draft Measure Rather Roughly —Life Insurance Business Has Increased — 700 Present.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—About 700 delegates assembled at convocation hall yesterday afternoon at the first annual convention of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada. Many delegates and guests, all prominent insurance men, were present from the United States.

The annual address was delivered by President G. H. Allen of Montreal, who spoke in part as follows:

"I am impelled to say something to you as to the investigation by royal commission, which has had the one happy result of bringing us so close together.

"The details of the report of the commission and the draft bill have been so fully canvassed in the insurance press that I will not allude to them. Suffice it to say that, in spite of the thinly-disguised and even open hostility of the daily press, you, gentlemen, went undaunted into the fight for your companies and the right, with the result that over 200,000 additional people in this country were, through your efforts, convinced of the inestimable benefits of life insurance in 1906. That, gentlemen, is our answer to the royal commission."

Mr. Allen proceeded to deal with the insurance bill, clause by clause, severely criticizing some of them.

"It would be disloyal to the common sense of the Canadian electorate to imagine for one moment that such a clause could become law," he said, in reference to that prohibiting rebate.

B. Hal Brown, general manager of the London and Lancashire Life, spoke on motives and ideals. They must be high and good or the insurance man could not succeed.

A. S. McGregor of London defended the dignity of life insurance, and A. H. Vipond defended the man in the field. He denounced "switching" policies. Let the agent get new insurance. The agents were thought too persistent, but more than once a widow had complained to an agent after her husband's death:

"You should have been more persistent and my husband would not have died without insurance and left his family unprovided."

W. J. Bell of Guelph created a mild sensation by contrasting the banks and the insurance companies. He felt that the Banking Act stood in need of amendment far more than did the Insurance Act. Twelve banks, or 25 per cent., had failed since 1890, some of them as the result of criminality. No insurance company had failed in the meantime, and no insurance manager had gone to the penitentiary. The banks could invest where they pleased, and they were not inspected, but the insurance companies were compelled by the Government to invest in certain securities, and the Insurance Department saw to it that the assets were always on hand to protect the policyholder.

FLEAS SPREAD DISEASE.

Bubonic Plague Germ Traced to Parasites Infesting Rats.

Simla, Aug. 20.—The Indian Government announces that the plague commission, which has just finished the first stage of its enquiry, decided that the bubonic plague is spread by rats, that the vehicle of the contagion is the rat flea, and that the life of the plague germ in the soil, floors and walls is of short duration.

The Government recommends the destruction of rats, the improvement of the construction of houses and the reduction of the food supplies of rats by the protection of grain stores.

PRESENT FOR THE KING.

Transvaal Government Will Purchase $1,000,000 Diamond.

Pretoria, Transvaal, Aug. 20.—In accordance with the resolution introduced by Premier Botha, the Transvaal Assembly yesterday authorized the Government to purchase the Cullinane diamond, the largest in the world, valued at $1,000,000, as a present to King Edward in token of the loyalty and appreciation of the people of the Transvaal for the bestowal of a constitution on the colony.

Praises Rockefeller.

New York, Aug. 20.—According to a despatch to The Tribune, from Cleveland, John D. Rockefeller was invited to contribute $1,000,000 to the cause of evangelism on Sunday. Shortly after hearing the invitation made from the pulpit of the Euclid avenue Baptist Church by the Rev. Courtland Myers of New York, Mr. Rockefeller gripped the preacher's hand cordially and invited him to Forest Hill to dinner.

Mr. Myers, in his sermon, attacked newspapers, charging them with responsibility for the impression that present day conditions, economic as well as sociological, are rapidly nearing a crisis which might cause revolution.

Incidentally he praised Mr. Rockefeller's recent utterance, which he pleaded for "fair play" for big corporations.

Mr. Myers added his own appeal for a square deal, and predicted that "the present attitude of misrepresentation, misunderstanding and criticism cannot long be endured."

Run to Death by Bloodhounds.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 20.—A tramp who assaulted Alma Whitehead, the 19-year-old daughter of Rev. J. M. Whitehead of Turnersville, Pa., on Saturday night, was run down by bloodhounds from Warren, Ohio, and captured shortly after midnight on Sunday in a swamp near Wick, Ashtabula County. He was taken to the Meadville, Pa., jail.

MISSING SCHOONER SAFE.

Fleetwing Was Delayed by West Winds For Many Days.

Belleville, Aug. 20.—Word reached this city late Sunday night that the schooner Fleetwing, which has been missing since Aug. 12, had arrived safe and sound with all hands at South Bay, the port for which she started from Charlotte on the 6th instant. She was caught by west winds and driven to the eastern end of the lake, and for many days was unable to get out.

Fined for Cruelty.

St. Catharines, Aug. 20.—A farmer named Frank Die was fined $2 and costs by Magistrate Comfort yesterday morning for unmercifully beating Roy Courage, an 11-year-old home boy whom he had taken to work for him on his farm. The lad, who is an intelligent, bright-looking little chap, declared on the witness stand that his employer beat him and kicked him, and also choked him, simply because he did not go fast enough. The lad, it turned out, had run away from two institutions in Toronto, and for this reason the magistrate showed leniency.

Bradt Is Fined.

St. Catharines, Aug. 20.—Ald. L. C. Bradt, who was the cause of a civic investigation some months ago, was yesterday morning fined $5 or ten days in jail, for assaulting Mrs. Edwin Moore.

Bradt is a florist and was at the city market on Saturday, when Mrs. Moore and himself became involved in a dispute, and an assault resulted.

Some time ago Mrs. Moore's husband and Bradt's daughter left the city together, and since then nothing has been heard of them.

N. B. Makes Big Loan.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 20.—Premier Robinson, who is in the city, made an important announcement concerning the financial affairs of the province. The Government has been able to arrange a loan from the Bank of Montreal for £300,000, at a rate of interest which figures out a little less than 5 per cent.

Auto Smashed by Train.

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 20.—An auto driven by R. W. Simpson of the I.C.R. general offices was last evening struck by a special bearing Earl Grey and his party to Point Du Chene, to catch a steamer for Prince Edward Island. The car was smashed to bits and the occupants had a narrow escape from death.

Steel-Coal Trial Over.

Sydney, N. S., Aug. 20.—The Steel-Coal trial, which has been the big event of the past two weeks in Sydney, was brought to a close at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Judge Longley's decision will probably be given within a month.

NEW FIFTEEN MILE BOAT BEING CONSTRUCTED FOR USE OF TRENT CANAL

Government to Place a $16,000 Steamer on Waters for Inspection and Towing Purposes—Now Being Built.

A SPLENDID STEAMER

The Superintendent of the Trent Canal in abort six weeks will have at his disposal for inspection purposes and for general work on the canal, a new steamer, 80 feet long and with a 17-foot beam, a steamer which will be fitted with accommodation to permit of a trip from one end of the canal to the other and live on the boat all the time. She will be known as the "Bessie Butler," and the contract for her construction was let to the Polson Iron Works, Toronto. Yesterday two car-loads of her material arrived in the city and were switched on the Government siding west of the lift lock, where the parts will be assembled and the steamer launched. The work on the steamer was all done in Toronto, where she was put together in the shipyards of the Shipbuilding Company, and, after being taken apart was prepared for shipment. The parts are all marked and will be put together in less than six weeks, with the staff of men sent here by the Toronto concern.

The steamer will have an oak hull, with steel ribs and will be built substantially enough to be used for towing purposes. She will be equipped with compound engines and power for them will be supplied by Scotch boilers. The cost of the steamer will be about $16,000 and complete with furnishings, etc., probably $2,000 more.

She will have a speed of fifteen miles an hour. The necessity for a steamer of this character is being felt, with the opening up of the new stretches of the Canal, and when the terminal sections are complete it will require about eight days to make a trip from the Lake Ontario to the Georgian Bay end of the waterway. Accommodation will be provided on the new boat for a week's trip, the interior equipment including state rooms, baths, dining room and kitchen and sleeping quarters for the crew. She will also be electric lighted and will be equipped with a strong search light, which will enable her to navigate any part of the canal at night.

It is the present intention to have the steamer ready for launching in less than six weeks and after she has taken the water several weeks will be required for the completion of the work.

The boat will be ready for use this fall, and she will be placed in commission as soon as she has been completed.

WEDDING BELLS

MCFADDEN-BEGLEY

At 8 o'clock mass in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning was celebrated a very interesting ceremony in the marriage of Miss Mary Philomena, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Begley, to Mr. Hugh Francis McFadden of Lindsay. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McColl in the presence of a number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The wedding march was played by Miss M. Doherty. The bride, who was attired in a neat travelling costume, was assisted by her cousin, Miss Mary Begley of Lindsay, both carrying beautiful bouquets. Mr. James Gilloghy of Lindsay ably filled the duties of best man.

At the conclusion of the wedding mass the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. T. J. Begley, Victoria avenue, where a dainty wedding breakfast was partaken of. The popularity of the bride was attested by the beautiful wedding presents received.

WAS BORN HERE 76 YEARS AGO

Old Resident of Peterborough is in the City To-day

Mr. Wm. Choate, cousin of Mr. A. F. Choate of Warsaw, is in the city to-day. Mr. Choate, who now resides near Chicago, in the State of Illinois, was born in Peterborough 76 years ago, and is therefore one of a very few people born in Peterborough so long ago who still survive. The old house in which Mr. Choate lived, near Spalding's Bay, is still in existence and is used by one of the canoe companies as a store-house. Mr. Choate who has been visiting his cousin at Warsaw, will spend a few days at Stony Lake before returning to his home.

TWO IMPORTANT CASES TO-MORROW

The charge against Mr. W. H. Darcy, of selling liquor to Indians will be taken up by Magistrate Edmison to-morrow, beginning at 11 o'clock. This promises to be an interesting case as a number of prominent local citizens will bear witness.

At the conclusion of the liquor case the quintette of Indians will appear on the charge of causing distrubances on the steamer Esturion on Monday, Aug. 12th.

BISHOP OF SAULT STE. MARIE DIOCESE AND HIS TROUBLES

HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP SCOLLARD
Whose newly appointed priest is not satisfactory to parish

Bishop Scollard's Appointee Unsatisfactory To Parish

A DISRUPTION IS FEARED

The following translation of a despatch from Blind River, Algoma District, will be of interest to Peterborough readers as alleging a serious trouble which Right Rev. Bishop Scollard, so well known in Peterborough, is encountering in the ecclesiastic administration of the affairs of his diocese:—

Blind River, Aug. 20.—Regrettable difficulties have cropped up here among the French-Canadian Catholic population. It is not impossible that we shall see in our midst a repetition of the incidents which have lately taken place amongst our co-religionists and compatriots in New England, where certain parishes have refused to bow to the decision of their bishop, in imposing upon them a pastor not of their blood.

Here, at Blind River, the French-Canadians claim to compose 90 per cent. of the population. On the strength of this condition, they have decided to refuse, categorically, the services of a priest of another nationality, whom Mgr. Scollard is about to nominate. This prelate, who is above all, as everybody knows, is a sincere friend of the French-Canadians. The serious events with which he now finds himself face to face in the heart of his diocese, to whose care the sovereign pontiff has recently confided it, cannot fail to profoundly afflict his apostolic soul. The resolution of our compatriots seems to be inflexible; nothing at the present time, at least, avails to bring them to submit to the decision of the Ordinary. They demand one of their own race to direct their conscience and to speak to them from the pulpit in their mother tongue.

Serious troubles are expected. The situation becomes, so to say, more grave from hour to hour.

Played With Dynamite; Fingers Are Blown Off

AN UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT

Examiner Special.

Belleville, August 21. — Playing with a stick of dynamite resulted seriously for a six year old son of Mr. Arthur Price. The lad picked up a piece of dynamite stick, and in his innocence commenced to break it up with a stone. The result was that an explosion occurred with dire results. The top of the boy's thumb and the tips of two fingers of the right hand were blown off, his face and chest were badly lacerated, and the left eye injured to such an extent that it is feared that the eyesight is destroyed. As soon as possible after the unfortunate affair the boy was brought to the city to receive medical treatment. Some other children who were near by at the time were fortunate enough to escape injury.

Downeyville Farmer Met With A Serious Loss

A SPECTACULAR BLAZE

Lindsay, Aug. 20.—A destructive fire occurred two miles north of Downeyville, when the splendid barn and outbuildings owned by Mr. Pat. Meehan were destroyed by fire. Forty-five tons of hay, five or six hogs, valuable agricultural implements, harness, etc., and a windmill, were also burned. Although the loss is practically covered by insurance, it will be a severe set-back for Mr. Meehan.

The fire may have been of incendiary origin. Billows of fire shot up into the sky, casting a bright reflection for miles. The gearing of the windmill broke and it swung into the breeze and whirled around at a rapid pace, fanning the flames. Four or five hundred people gathered from miles around, but nothing could be done owing to the stark the fire had. The dwelling was saved with the utmost difficulty. The loss to Mr. Meehan will be a crippling one, his total hay crop being destroyed, and no building being available for storing the harvest yet in the fields.

Mr. Pat. Hickey, wine clerk at the King Edward Hotel, town, was present at the fire, and stated this morning that it was one of the worst seen in Victoria County for years. "The barn," he said, "was 45x86 feet in dimensions, and was a splendid structure—one of the finest in the county, in fact."

THURSDAY AFTERNOON TRIP
The Steamer Otonabee will leave Wolfe Street Wharf at 1.30 p. m. to-morrow (Thursday) for points down the river, returning at 9:30. Tickets 50 cents.

NO MINISTER WAS REFERRED TO

Rev. Mr. Potter Misquoted in Toronto Journals

In connection with the report of the sermon preached by Rev. J. G. Potter on Sunday night, in the Toronto papers, by a most unaccountable mistake, Mr. Potter has been credited with saying that a minister of another church in Peterborough had been seen drinking in an hotel bar.

The pastor of St. Andrew's is naturally indignant over the way in which his remarks have been misquoted. To the Examiner last night he said that he had uttered no word or expression that would convey the idea that any minister of a Presbyterian or any other church in Peterborough, assistant, or otherwise, was connected with his remarks.

What was meant was that church members often set a bad example, especially at summer resorts, where they conducted themselves in a way that would not do at home.

Instant Relief from Headache

"Hurry Zutoo Tablets. Everybody wants them. They give almost instant relief from headache. All who use them tell me the same story."

The above message was received from a well known merchant of Grantley, Ont.

Flattering to Zutoo Tablets, is it not? And yet, if you have tried these tablets, you know that the words of that message are true.

If you have not tried them, you have yet to experience how quickly they will cure any kind of headache, and how bright and well they will always leave you feeling.

THE ACT WORKS WELL

While it cannot be claimed that the Lemieux Act has any magical power in adjusting labour differences and settling strikes, it has had a good record, and a recent instance illustrates this. The trouble between the Grand Trunk Railway Company and its engineers is another example. The report of the Board of Conciliation and Investigation, states that a final settlement of the dispute was reached, and an agreement made, to have a currency of three years, by which the engineers receive a substantial increase of wages. This is the second important dispute between the Grand Trunk Railway and its employees, that has been settled under the above Act. The importance of this service is shown by the fact that it has averted a serious railway strike, which would have certainly resulted in large loss, and very great inconvenience to the public, and loss to the engineers, as well as the railway. The excellence of the working of the Act is all the more worthy of attention, because, when the Bill was before Parliament, those interested on behalf of the railway employees, urgently claimed that the passing, and administration of the Act, would work serious injustice to railway men. It is practically demonstrated that there are better ways for employees to secure redress of grievances, and restoration of their rights, than by strikes, and that lock outs are not the best way for employers to deal with employees. Nine times out of ten, conciliation is better than conflict.

BRITISH POLITICS

The attack of Lord Rosebery in the House of Lords represented the unique spectacle of a former Liberal premier roundly lecturing a Liberal Government, may be assumed by some as an indication that the latter is losing ground and strength in the country. The bye-elections do not show that the Campbell-Bannerman Government is in danger. As a rule, these elections, that is, where the Liberal vote has not been split by a labour candidate, have been in favour of the Government. For instance, in Northwest Staffordshire bye-election, the Liberal candidate was returned by an enormous majority of the whole vote cast—a majority of 2,340, which is 240 greater than the Liberal majority in this constituency in the general elections less than two years ago, which placed the Campbell-Bannerman Government in power. This latter constituency had an unbroken Conservative record from 1886 to 1906, and the fact that such a constituency, not far from the Birmingham sphere of influence, should have given such an overwhelming Liberal majority is, to say the least, significant. It is a straw to show that the wind is not blowing in the direction of Conservativism and protection. There does not seem to be any popular leaning in these directions; in fact, the statement is made that the Liberal Government is criticised, not because it is too Liberal, but because it is not radical enough. In fact, it would seem that His Majesty's loyal Opposition in Great Britain is largely in the same condition of aptitude as the corresponding Opposition in Canada.

LICENSE LAW ENFORCEMENT

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review contends that the section of the Liquor License Act licensing bar-tenders, whatever may have been the intention of those responsible for it, is capable of being used to prevent, rather than facilitate, the enforcement of the law. In short, the responsibility for violating the law is now, in some instances, placed upon the bar-tender, when it ought to rest with the landlord.

The Pioneer, the organ of the temperance people, and at the same time the apologist of the Whitney Government now sees the point in this way:

"Under law, as it formerly stood, the license-holder was personally responsible for all that was done in his house. If he hired another man to sell liquor unlawfully, he had to bear the heavy penalty for the offence to which he was a party. Now, the poor tool may be used as a scapegoat, and a comparatively light fine makes the license-holder exempt from punishment. The system is a distinct encouragement to law-breaking, and a shield for the trickster, who, under the former plan, would have to take the consequences of the crime which he permitted, including the risk of losing his license."

In the attempt of the Whitney Government to ride two horses at once in dealing with the license question—to please the traffic and not antagonize the temperance element—much has been done to prevent effective enforcement of the law. The two-fifth clause, thrust into the local option law, was certainly not in the interests of temperance reform, and it cannot be said that the provision relieving a license-holder from responsibility and saddling it upon an employee—the bar-tender — with the ostensible object of facilitating the enforcement of the law, is compensatory, but actually hostile to effective enforcement of the law.

EDITORIAL NOTES

This is an age of investigation. The insurance companies are not selfish, and now they express their willingness to have the banks investigated. Speakers at the convention of the Underwriters' Association, declare that the Banking Act needs amendment far more than insurance legislation.

Sydney and the "Soo" will not long retain their position of splendid isolation as the only steel rails producers in Canada. A western despatch informs us that a works to manufacture steel rails—finding its supply in the Kootenay mines—will be in operation in Alberta within two years.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper was brought from the west to demonstrate what a solid front the Conservative party presents with Mr. Borden flanked on one side by Sir Hibbert, and on the other by Mr. McLean, both ready to fight for his shoes, and Mr. Foster drawn up in the rear as reserve ready, secundum more, to use the knife when occasion offers.

The Cox family finds the apparently natural outlet for its financial and executive talents in the insurance business. The head of the family and the sons, have long occupied prominent and eminent positions in life insurance enterprises. It is, therefore, no surprise, but still a matter of congratulation, that the youngest member of the family has been given the position of president of the Underwriters' Association.

The New York stock market is in a troubled condition, and stocks are not thriving. Perhaps if the stocks were left to themselves a while there would be an improvement. Stocks may be like a field sown to grain, which cannot be expected to do well if the soil is perpetually dug up, and harrowed, or like Peterborough streets, which cannot be expected to be in first-class condition if they are perpetually ripped up, and seamed with excavations, and pitted with holes.

The Montreal Gazette complains because the Dominion Government is advertising the competition for designs for the Baldwin-Lafontaine memorial only in Liberal newspapers. The Ottawa Free Press invites the Gazette to be good enough to state when the Conservatives from 1878 to 1896 inserted any advertising of the kind in the Liberal press, or point to a single instance where the Whitney Government of Ontario is advertising in any Liberal newspapers.

The Ottawa Citizen attributes the success of Canadian volunteer marksmen, over their visiting comrades in arms, to the greater proportionate attention paid by the Canadians to marksmanship, rather than drill. While drill is necessary, in order to bring a fighting force into the firing line in good order, and to the best advantage, a military force attains the fullest measure of its effectiveness by good shooting. The amiable object of troops in the field is to kill as many of their brothers, as possible, and this can only be done to the best advantage by placing bullets where the enemy is — burning powder and plowing up the ground, or piercing the blue empyrean with bullets, is not good form for a soldier. In fighting, to vary Hamlet, "the aim's the thing."

TRIBUTE TO DR. DRUMMOND

The "Poet of the Habitant" was the title of the second of a series of lecture-recitals given by the Rev. Gerald McShane, of Montreal, at the conclusion of the fourth week of lectures conducted by the Catholic Summer School of America, at Cliff Haven, New York.

We have shown Drummond said Father McShane, to be the maker of his country by his services as a diplomat. Perhaps he has contributed more efficiently to the well-being of the nation by recalling as an apostle and true reformer the habits and honesty and frugal life of the first settlers in Canada and the country folks. Drummond, like Kipling, seems to have sounded the alarm. "Lest we forget, lest we forget."

He has been to Canada what Seumas MacManus is to Ireland, what Theodore Botrel is to Brittany, France, the poet of the peasantry, the bard of our homes, vividly picturing in his charming little pastorals the home-life of the Quebec country-side, families full of goodness, mirth, humour and contentment.

Drummond thoroughly identified himself with the very soul of his heroes. He went among the country folk, not as a critic, but as a sympathetic admirer of the gay and simple life. Unlike those tourists who after a short stay in a neighbouring hotel, have have given us caricatures of an ignorant, uncouth people, Drummond lived among the peasants until he had learned to love them, to interpret their life aright, to put himself in their places, and look upon life as they do.

The Habitant, though content and self-sufficient in his obscure surroundings, feels a sense of admiration and hero-worship for his countrymen who have distinguished themselves before the world.

In the poem, "When Alban: Gang," it was shown that the habitant is proud of the diva, the sweet Chambly girl; and his Laurier, famous on two continents, he claims, whether his political colour be red or blue.

"Mon Frere Camille," the would-be hero and Americanized Canuck, was well rendered by Father McShane, and showed the humourous side of the Habitant, as also a collection of witty stories.

The rendering of some pretty folk-songs and chocuses helped to give the audience a vivid idea of the "pleasurement" of a "grande soiree" around the mirthful fireside of a peasant of French Canada.

A number of Canadians attended the recital, and spoke enthusiastically of the warm reception given to the poems of Drummond by the American audience that filled the Cliff Haven auditorium.

This was particularly evidenced at the close of the entertainment, when the audience rose and sang as one man the characteristic verses of the "Wreck of the Julie Plante," under the leadership of the reverend lecturer.

CATARRH OF STOMACH RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

MDE. JOSEPH BEAUDOIN.

Mde. Joseph Beaudoin, 39 Rue St. Olivier, Quebec, P. Q., Can., writes:

"Peruna is wonderful for indigestion. I eat whatever I want and no longer feel any oppression.

"Having had dyspepsia for a long time and having tried various other remedies, I decided to try Peruna and with the fourth bottle of it I was perfectly cured.

"For this reason I recommend it to all those who are suffering with that terrible malady, dyspepsia.

"I hope that all who are afflicted in this way will take Peruna as I did."

The experience of Mde. Beaudoin ought to be sufficient proof to any one of the value of Peruna in cases of catarrhal dyspepsia. If you suffer from stomach catarrh in any of its various forms, give Peruna a fair trial, avoiding in the meantime all such indiscretions in diet as would tend to retard a cure, and you will soon be rewarded by a normal appetite and healthy digestion.

COLD WEATHER FOR THIS WEEK

Weather Man Promises That During Next Few Days Hot Weather Will be at a Premium

FINE BUT NOT WARM

Heat and rain are to be absentees in the weather line here for the next three days, if the Toronto Observatory is to be believed.

A high pressure area is over the middle western states, says the weather man, and till this moves past us there is not much chance of getting rain. The probabilities are for at least three fine days, and there is likely to be no heat to speak of till the end of the week.

"Are they still shivering out west?"

"No; a warmer spell is indicated for the west for the next few days. With 36 degrees at Calgary, it was cool enough last night, however."

Chicago Was Soaked

"Can't you give you enough rain to keep the lawns watered till the reservoir gets a chance to catch up on its height?"

"Well showers were pretty numerous in the Lake Region Monday night, but they were not heavy."

"Rain was heavy on Monday night as far east as Lake Superior," added the weather man, "but east of there it thinned out; Chicago had a little over an inch of rain in a thunderstorm."

THE CHEESE MARKET IS SLOW

English Trade is Heavy—Sellers Do Not Feel Like Accepting the Offers

Montreal, August 21.—The cheese market so far this week, has been decidedly slow, and in response to offers made last night bids to-day are 1s to 1s 6d less, but sellers at the moment do not feel like accepting, though if the trade does not improve the chances are these offers will be taken up before the end of the week.

The English make still continues heavy, which is the principal factor in the situation, and is also the cause of thee present weakness in this market.

The asking prices on spot to-day are: Townships, 11 1-8 to 11 1-4c; Quebecs, 11c to 11 1-8c; Ontarios, 11 3-8 to 11 1-2c.

The local receipts were 6009 boxes, against 12,979 for the same day last year.

BOARD APPOINTED NEW RECORDING STEWARD

Mr. M. Carton Resigns From Mark Street Quarterly Board

The Quarterly Official Board of the Mark street eMthodist church met last night and transacted considerable business.

Mr. M. Carton, who was the past Recording Steward, resigned his position and Mr. Albert Throop was appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Carton explained that his resignation was due to having so much work on hand which kept him away from the city very often.

There were 12 members present altogether and it was decided to fix the appropriation for minister's salary at the new minimum.

Uric Acid Stones in the Kidneys

CAUSED EXCRUCIATING PAIN—CURE EFFECTED SIX YEARS AGO BY

The passing of stones or gravel, as the uric acid formation is called, from the kidneys through the ureters to the bladder probably produces the most terrible pain that human being was ever called upon to bear.

Mrs. Walter Hornbrook, Coddy's, Queen's county, N.B., writes:—"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease, which the doctor described as the uric acid stones passing from the kidneys to the bladder, I heard of similar cases being cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and sent for some. Altogether I used seven boxes and was completely cured. That was six years ago, and I have never had a pain in my kidneys since. We are never without Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house."

Mr. Daniel Brown, English River, Ont., writes:—"For three years I suffered with urinary troubles, partaking of the nature of stones in the bladder or gravel, and the pain which I endured can scarcely be described. I was unable to do any work, and frequently discharged blood. Though I spent hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills I received no relief, and at last decided that I would never be able to work again.

"While in this condition I was advised to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and though I had no faith in them or or in anything else, I decided to give them a fair trial. After using one box I felt a decided change for the better, and after taking five boxes I feel like a new man. I am entirely out of pain, and have no more discharge of blood. I can honestly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to any fellow-sufferer, and will cheerfully verify this statement to anyone writing me."

There could scarcely be a more severe test of any treatment for the Kidneys and when Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prove successful in such cases as this they can surely be depended upon in less severe kidney ailments. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

BANANA FAMINE IN THE CITY

Dealers Are Trying in Vain to Figure a Profit on the Fruit

The despised banana, the common ordinary yellow-skin, that is really a plantain, is so scarce in Peterborough to-day that retailers of the fruit are trying in vain to figure a profit on it. In fact a banana famine is threatened, and this at a time when all other fruits promise to be scarce. Only one-half the usual quantity is coming into the city.

"I am sick of handling bananas," complained a dealer this morning; "people think we are robbing them if we charge more than 15 cents a dozen. Yet we pay 12 1-2 cents, and when you allow for loss in handling there is quite as likely to be a loss as a profit."

To add to the troubles of the fruit men an unusually large number of water melons have "gone bad" this year. This is the tail end of the melon season and a certain amount of loss is always expected. This amount, however, has been much greater than usual.

"All fruit is unusually scarce," remarked one of the dealers this morning. "With the banana scarcity we have a crop of pears less than one-third what it ordinarily is, and peaches are similarly fixed."

THE MASK OF HEALTH

Few People Are Really as Well as They Look—Cause and Remedy

Many people in Peterborough, both men and women, who believe themselves to be in perfect health, are often in the greatest danger.

The most uncommon cause of ill-health is indigestion, with a myriad of symptoms, such as headache, sleeplessness, specks before the eyes, pains in the back and side, distress after eating, etc.

In the last few years the success of physicians everywhere with Mi-o-na stomach tablets has made them known far and wide as the acknowledged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases. They strengthen the digestive organs so that in a few days the stomach is in such shape that it takes care itself of all the food that is eaten without pain or distress.

Mr. Madill gives an absolute unqualified guarantee that your money will be refunded unless Mi-o-na cures. He takes the whole risk, and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures you.

WANT NO LADIES IN THE HOUSE

New Zealand Decides That Women Cannot Sit in Upper House in That Country

In view of the statements made by Mr. Alan Studholme, M.P.P., of Hamilton, in an interview with the Examiner on Saturday, in reference to women voters, in New Zealand, the following despatch from Wellington, will be read with interest here:

(Wellington, N. Z. — August 20. — The women politicians, whose cause was championed by the House of Representatives of New Zealand, received scant consideration from the Legislative Council, which to-day, without a division, rejected the bill providing for the election of an upper house by the House of Representatives, according to one of the clauses of which women electors were to be eligible as members of the upper house.

A BIG EXCURSION HERE TO-DAY

Belleville Holloway Street Methodist Sunday School Annual Outing

One of the biggest excursions of the season made Peterborough its objective point to-day under the auspices of the Holloway Street Methodist Sunday School, Belleville. Over six hundred people were on the special G.T.R. train, which reached here about 11 o'clock. On the arrival of the train, a number of the excursionists were taken over the lift lock on the steamer Otonabee, which was chartered for the occasion. The boat made a second trip this afternoon, which was also well patronized. A number of the excursionists visited Jackson Park and other places of interest, and everyone seemed to be enjoying their stay in Peterborough. The excursionists return by special train at 6 o'clock.

Three Plans Submitted For Library Alteration

Discussed at Joint Meeting Last Night---Library Board Want New Institution Free and Maintained by the City---This Question to be Next Considered---Cost of Changes Estimated at $10,000

The first active step in the remodelling of the building on Simcoe street, recently donated by Mr. Richard Hall, on behalf of the Nicholls estate, for a public library, was taken last night, at the joint meeting of the Property Committee and the Library Board.

Three plans were submitted by architects for the alteration of the building front, and for the interior changes. These were discussed at length by the joint committee, together with Mr. Hall, who was also present, but nothing definite was decided upon.

The question as to whether the new library, when erected, should be free to all, and maintained solely by the city, was first discussed. The Library Board and Mr. Hall seemed desirous that the library should be maintained by the city, but the members of the Property Committee were not prepared to state whether the council would, or would not, be willing to agree to such an arrangement, so that that matter was dropped for the time being.

The estimated cost of the alterations was submitted by two architects, who figured that to change the building to a library, would consume about $10,000.

Those present were Mayor McWilliams, Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Property Committee, Ald. Elliott and Morgan; Messrs. William Pringle, Jas. English, T. A. S. Hay, Dr. Burnham and Mr. Richard Hall.

The Mayor in opening, explained that the meeting was called for the purpose of having the co-operation of the present Public Library Board. The Property Committee, he stated, had secured plans to put the new library in shape, and that without the co-operation of the present Library Board, nothing further could be done.

Mr. Hall stated that all he wished the council to do was to place on the store a front that would be an attractive one for a library building, and that the interior be suitably arranged, to meet the necessary requirements.

Mr. English stated that the present board was desirous that the Library be free to the public and, in that case, the city, he said, would have to maintain it. Mr. Hall had informed him that that was one of the conditions under which he, on behalf of the Nicholls estate, gave the building to the city.

If the library is supported by the city it will necessarily be free to the citizens, who will then only have to make a slight deposit to become a member and utilize the books.

The Mayor explained that the fee, if any were charged, would first have to be considered. At present the yearly ticket costs $1.50, and if a small fee were charged, when the new building was in use, the cost of maintenance by the city would be greatly lessened. The Council, he said, would first have to decide whether it would be advisable or not to spend $3,000 annually for library purposes without submitting the proposition to the people.

Ald. Elliott stated that he did not think that the Public Library and Mechanics' Institute should be separated, but considered that they should be amalgamated under one supervision.

The committee and Board then opened the three plans, discussing each in turn. The three architects had many similar ideas. In plan A, which was the first opened, it was proposed by the architect to place the main entrance on the west side of the building. To the right of the entrance and on the ground floor he proposed to place the general reading-room. The librarian's office was marked to the rear of the general reading-room and near the hall. In the northeast corner is located the stack room, which, according to plan A, will not be open to the public. A reference room for large books, etc., is marked in the northwest corner.

Plan B showed the main entrance also in the west side of the building. It also cut down the three storeys into two, making the first two from the ground into one. The ground floor of the interior of B showed the ladies' reading-room immediately to the right of the entrance and in the front of the building. The general reading and reference room was proposed also in the front and in the eastern section. This plan showed the librarian's office straight down the hallway on the west side and near the rear end, and the stack room in the northeast corner. Space was also left for a cataloguing and soiling room to the back of the general reading-room. The other floor, according to plan B, provided for a children's reading-room in the front, a picture gallery, newspaper room, conversation rooms, etc.

The front of the building, according to plan C, will be arranged with the entrance in the same place as that of the previous two, with three large double windows on Simcoe street. The second storey contains eight small windows, and the top storey is left as it is at present. Two designs for the interior were submitted with plan C. The first showed the ground floor similar to plan B, with the exceptions that the librarian's room was in the northwest corner, and that the ladies' reading-room was eliminated. The second floor provided for a ladies' room, boys' room, reference library, smoking room and board room. The second design provided for a reference library in front of the ground floor, and librarian's room and stack room at the rear. On the second floor the general reading-room is located, the full width of the building and in the front. A boys' reading-room, ladies' reading-room and a smoking room were also provided for on the second flat.

THEY SOMETIMES TELL THE TRUTH

About Their Church Members and Clergymen Get Themselves Into Trouble

The Toronto Star says: A Peterborough parson charges church members with leading double lives. Usually our clergy are well behaved and temperate in their language, but, ever and anon, one of them gets desperate and blurts out the truth.

Music and Drama

A WIFE'S SECRET

The Grand Opera House was opened for the season last night when Spencer & Aborn's production of the great emotional drama "A Wife's Secret," was presented before an audience that, considering the earliness of the season, was decidedly large. The opening attraction was a meritorious performance and was apparently much appreciated by the audience. The play is called on the bills a drama of heart interest and such it proved to be, the situation being decidedly dramatic and effective.

The action centres on the fact that Mona Madison, the wife of a rector, has concealed from her husband that her father, a drunken criminal, is still alive while Madison is under the impression that he is dead.

As a result of this she is ordered out of Madison's house and the estrangement between the two is made worse by the machinations of Madison's sister, a canting hypocrite. Some strong scenes figure in the action one especially exciting scene being that in the belfry of the church where Mona's life is threatened by George Warren, a villian, who seeks to destroy her honour and she is saved by her husband. A reconciliation is finally brought about by the child of the two.

Miss Grace Bayley gave a capable interpretation of the role of the rector's wife. Much comedy was furnished by Josie Sisson, as Aunt Dinsey, a negro servant; Tommy Toner, as a bowery news boy, and Sam Thrall as Jerry Higgins, one of the finest.

Some splendid specialties were introduced; Tommy Toner made a decided hit by his songs, "Every Little Bit Added to What You Have Makes Just a Little Bit More," and "Insanity." Sam Thrall's singing of the new song "My Irish Rosie" was well received and his monalogue contained some really funny stories. Josie Sisson sang several coon songs in splendid fashion.

Altogether the production was a most satisfactory one and should be greeted by capacity houses on its fourth season.

100,000 VISITORS AT SHRINE

Great Rush to Ste. Anne de Beaupre This Season—Afflicted From All Parts of America There to be Healed

THE RAILWAY FACILITIES

The annual pilgrimage to Loureds, France, numbered 300,000 persons. It is calculated that when this season ends there will have been one hundred thousand persons carried to the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre by the Canadian Pacific Railway and affiliated lines.

Twelve years ago the travel to the shrine was largely local. The shrine was there, but it was not greatly talked about. The devout or the curious had to drive down to it in order. There were no railways between Quebec and the sacred shrine.

With the operation of the electric railway the numbers increased, but it was the Canadian Pacific Railway which gave the shrine its present widespread vogue. It began to organize excursions from Minnesota, Michigan, Dakota, and the West and Southwest generally, by arrangement with connecting lines.

These appealed not only to the sick, but to the well, for the rates were low, the stop-over privileges were ample, and thousands of hard-worked people embrace the rare opportunity of taking a holiday.

The sick and diseased were of course, attracted, and this summer it has been a common sight to witness ailing creatures all the way from Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.

They have been in charge of parents or friends, or, in the rare case, have undertaken the journey alone. Faith has sustained them. They have suffered the fatigues of travel, the want of sleep, the jolting of the train, and the agony of many transfers.

At Quebec they were transferred to the electric cars, which are now owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway, and brought directly to the shrine.

The sick and deformed are brought into the church, where they pray and kiss the sacred relic, which lies in a glass-covered box.

Last year 80,000 pilgrims were handled by the company. This year the record will be 100,000.

OBITUARY.

MRS. McFAUL

The last issue of the Owen Sound Sun has the following reference to the death of a native and former resident of Peterborough county, and a lady who was known to many Peterborough persons:—

Her many friends were shocked last week to learn of the death of Mrs. W. J. McFaul, Jackson street hill, which occurred last Tuesday. Deceased had been in poor health for a long time, and a week previous was taken down with a slight attack of pneumonia. She suffered from a weak heart and to this may be attributed the cause of her death. Mrs. McFaul was born in Peterborough County and came with her parents to Holland township, when 18 years of age, removing four years later to Arran township. She was married forty-eight years ago, and resided in that township until about five years ago when she removed with her husband. Besides her husband the following family survive:—A W McFaul, of W A McClean & Co., and Mrs. Jas. Park, Tara, and Misses Carrie and Lily McFaul to mourn the loss of a loving wife and devoted mother. Four brothers, Messrs. John McFadden, Arkwright; Robert McFadden, Oil Springs; James McFadden, Glenellah, Man.; and David McFadden, Niche, N.D.; and three sisters, Mrs. James Fotlis, Kingston; Mrs. M. Hurst, Tara; and Mrs. John Scott, Hallock, Minn., also survive. The deceased was in her 67th year. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon to Greenwood cemetery and the services were conducted by Rev. J T G Mellis, pastor of the First Methodist church. The pall bearers were Messrs. J O Miller, Richard James, W C Roadhouse, Wm. Grant, Nelson Stephen and Wm. Evans.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the deseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube, when this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. SATISFACTORY IN THIS COUNTY

Mr. Dawson Kennedy's Crop Report From Peterborough County is Encouraging

In the Weekly Sun, crop reports are published from different sections of Ontario, and from Peterborough county the following report is furnished by Mr. Dawson Kennedy:—On the whole, crop conditions in this section are very satisfactory, and farmers, generally, are content and hopeful. Considerable fall wheat was plowed up, and other grains sown with it, but that which was not winter killed was a splendid crop, though somewhat light in straw. Peas are rather over the average, some fields of barley are above the average, but the straw light. Oats is a disappointing crop. Some farmers say they have equal to last year in this crop, but, taking the county as a whole, the yield will be 25 per cent. short of 1906. The sample, however, will be excellent give in late sown fields. Roots are doing extra well. Hay was not more than half a crop, but has been well saved. Fodder corn is doing well, and this, with millet and roots, will solve the feed question so far as we are concerned.

POST CARD CORRESPONDENCE.

In this column will be published communications upon post cards only. It will remain open for the use of readers, who are invited to contribute suggestions, inquiries or replies. Anything of a scurrilous personal nature will be prohibited.

Editor Post-Card Column.

Sir,—In the Toronto World of yesterday's issue I saw an article evidently emanating from Peterborough which said that Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, had, in a recent sermon, made certain remarks that are liable to be misinterpreted by readers all over the Province, but more particularly in this city and district. The reverend gentleman is alleged to have said, or insinuated, that Sunday excursions by steamboat are a common occurrence on these waters. Now, I do not deny that occasionally some gentleman owning a steam launch or yacht may sometimes ask a few friends to spend an hour or two on the water in his launch. I do, however, protest most vehemently against such an imputation as cast by this gentleman being used, unless specifically. The Otonabee Navigation Company, which has large interests in the summer trade on the Trent Canal waters, has never nor never will allow any of its steamers to be used for Sunday excursions.

Peterborough People Have Narrow Escape

Were on Toronto Flyer Which Ran Over a Cow—Engine and Baggage Car Lifted From Track.

THREE CATTLE KILLED

A herd of cows on the track near Agincourt last night was almost the means of wrecking the fast Toronto flyer upon which were a number of Peterborough passengers who are today congratulating themselves on their narrow escape. The train had just left Agincourt and was going at a very rapid rate when Engin-driver Pratt, of Lindsay, noticed a herd of four cows a short distance in front. Realizing the danger that might occur if the engine were to run on top of the animals, he immediately put on the air brakes and the fast moving iron horse slowed down.

The train, however, was travelling at too rapid a rate to be brought to a standstill in such a short space of time and the engine crashed into the four cattle. Three of them were lifted high into the air and buried many feet from the track. Two of these were killed. The fourth fell on the ties and the engine ran over it killing it instantly.

The engine was lifted off the track a few inches, but fortunately it alighted again on the rails. Before the engineer could bring the train to a standstill the baggage car was also lifted several inches into the air. Conductor Haskill stated that he was in the baggage car at the time and noticed that the air brakes had scarcely been put on before he felt the car rise from the track. He half expected that it would be thrown off the rails, but fortunately this did not occur. The train arrived here some minutes late.

King Edward School To Be Ready For Opening

Chairman of Supervision Committee of Board of Education States That It Will Be Open With Other Schools.

AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY

Mr. W. Pringle, chairman of the Supervision Committee of the Board of Education, informed the Examiner to-day that the fears expressed by some that the new King Edward School would not be ready to open after the holidays were groundless, since preparations were now in progress to complete the building and its equipment in ample time to permit of its being ready for occupancy on Sept. 3rd, when the other schools of the city open for the fall term.

It is simply impossible to get along without that school, stated Mr. Pringle, in discussing the matter today. With the Menzies School closed the accommodation in the other schools, outside of the King Edward School is totally inadequate to the needs of the school population of the city, and if the new school were not ready it would mean that a considerable portion of the children would be unable to go to school at all.

In view of this fact, therefore, the Board of Education has determined to have the new building ready for occupancy. It is true that the sewer is not in working condition, and it is impossible to secure any definite information as to the outcome of the present difficulty in connection with its construction, but the Board of Education cannot wait until the Council attends to that matter before opening the school.

FISH AFFECTED BY SOME FOREIGN SUBSTANCE

Were Easily Captured by Small Boys in Creek at Charlotte Street

Fishing in the creek under the bridge on Charlotte street was excellent for the small boy last night, and several of the finny tribe were gathered in with nothing but the hands, as they came floating down stream. As a result, a number of spectators lined the temporary foot bridge and looked on with interest. The fish were apparently suffering from some invisible substance they obtained in the water, and as soon as they came near the bridge, were seen to act as if in trouble. Many of them were half dead, while others would jump several inches out of the stream as if to obtain a breath of fresh air.

The boys succeeded in catching a couple of dozen perch, some of them being of fairly good size. They were taken farther down stream and thrown into pure water.

ENORMOUS BUSINESS OF "OLD LADY OF THREADNEEDEE STREET"

On his recent trip to the old country, Mr. Robert Fair was an interested visitor to the Bank of England, where he spent some time visiting the different departments. As he was coming out an official gave him a statement which shows the enormous volume of business handled by that institution. It is as follows:

"The stock of paid notes for five years is about 91 millions in number; they fill 16,000 boxes, which, if placed side by side, would extend to a distance of nearly three miles. If these notes were placed in a pile they would reach a height of 7 miles; or joined end to end would form a ribbon 11,847 miles long. Their original value was over 1,388,486,400 pounds sterling, and their weight nearly 93 pounds."

To Canadians the volume of this business will be better understood when it is stated that it represents in Canadian money $6,942,382,000.00.

BAN PLACED ON SHIRT SLEEVES AT SUMMER RESORT DANCES

Will the men at the summer resorts in this vicinity have to follow the dictates of those who have decreed that shirt sleeves will not be tolerated at the dances held in the pavilions? A despatch from Kingston to-day says:

The hot weather has had the effect of causing summer visitors at various resorts in Prince Edward County to attend dances without coats. This has now been tabooed at the Wellman House in Wellington. The proclamation is posted that men in shirt sleeves will hereafter not be permitted to participate in dances.

"HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE THE ICE MAN"? RUIN AHEAD

Rhinlander, Wis., Aug. 21.—J. M. Darrow, connected with the paper mills here, claims to have discovered in a waste product of the mills a preparation that will preserve ice indefinitely. The compound, it is said, can be manufactured at a cost of 47 cents for 1,000 gallons. Housekeepers, with this preparation in hand, it is asserted, can buy a cake of ice, coat it, and have no need to trouble the iceman again all summer.

The Presbyterian Managers' Conduct Above Reproach

Rev. J. G. Potter, in Letter, Says He He Has No Complaint to Make of Actions of Members of His Church.

MAKES AN EXPLANATION

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir, — I regret very much that in your issue of Monday you did not do me the justice to refer in any way to the character or subject matter of the service or sermon. I am too busy to write out a synopsis of my sermon for the papers, even if I were given to that sort of notoriety. What you have said in your own paper, and in your reports to papers outside the city, I know you have said without any desire to injure anybody, and you have had no desire to do any harm; but it is always well, if pulpit and press will have their due weight and proper influence that accuracy and the right view point be maintained. In the first place there was no reference to a manager or church officer of any local church, and I was particularly clear regarding my own church officers.

2ndly. The use of the reference at all was hypothetical, and only illustrative of many conditions of present social relations.

3rdly. No charge was made to drinking whisky with Indians. That has yet to be proven. I was not there, and did not see any misconduct.

4thly. There was no reference, whatever, to church members being on an excursion down the river a few Sundays ago. An excursion was run two Sundays ago, but outside of a violation of law in the running of it, I have no knowledge as to the conduct of the excursionists, and on Sunday last made no reference to such.

5thly. There was no denunciation of the action of members of my own denomination. In fact I am very proud of my own Church, and I am certain that Presbyterians generally make a strong effort to be loyal, law-abiding citizens. It is with the strongest emphasis, therefore, that I state that in all the definite and special references and illustrations used, not one referred to a Presbyterian. The general terms, "professing Christian" and "church member" were used, and it goes without saying that there are many Presbyterians who do not live up to all their privileges; but in the references I made I had not any knowledge of any misdemeanour on the part of any of our people.

It is needless to say that the wild statements in the Ontario dailies are altogether erroneous, but, Mr. Editorm the hot weather will soon be over, and we will have to forgive the men who seek in these holiday times to present articles that will stir the torpid sense of their readers. Meanwhile ministers and all Christian workers, will have to bear the brunt of the firing line, and never be "off guard," so that in time of action the influence of a true and noble manhood may be always great and strong.

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES G. POTTER.

Note. — The Examiner readily, and willingly, gives space to Rev. Mr. Potter's revised version of his remarks on Sunday evening last. What the Examiner published was what was understood and reported as being a fair summary of the statements made by Rev. Mr. Potter. The Examiner, however, readily, and willingly, denies the statement, in effect, that the Examiner supplied reports to the Toronto papers. Newspapers do not escape, any more, perhaps, than the pulpit, the effects of hot weather.

There's Danger in Every Cold

Once you come to realising the danger of neglecting coughs and colds you will not run the risk of depending on any cough mixture the druggist may choose to hand you out and will insist on getting a medicine with a reputation such as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Croup, bronchitis, asthma and coughs and colds are promptly and thoroughly cured by this treatment.

The Montreal Street Railway Company has acquired the right to haul and deliver freight cars in the city limits.

OBITUARY

HENRY ERNEST ROBINSON

After an illness of several months, the death occurred this afternoon of Henry Ernest Robinson, at the age of thirty-seven years. The deceased was a brother of Dr. F. L. Robinson of this city, and had lived here for a number of years, during his residence making a large circle of friends who will regret his untimely death.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his mother, Mrs. T. Fitzgerald, 225 Charlotte street, on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and will be private. Interment will take place in Little Lake Cemetery.

NO DANGER FROM LOW WATER

Canal Superintendent Denies Report That Water in Chemong Lake is 18 Inches Lower Than It Should Be

NO ALARM IS FELT

The stacmentts made to the effect that the water in Chemong Lake has dropped eighteen inches are characterized by Mr. J. H. McClellan, the Superintendent of the Canal as unwarranted by the facts. He stated to-day to the Examiner that as a matter of fact the water in Chemong Lake is higher now than it was at this time last year, and it is higher at the Buckhorn dam, which regulates the water in this lake, than it was a few weeks ago. The water at the dam at Young's Point, which regulates the water on Stony Lake is not as high by a few inches as it was a year ago, but it is higher than a week ago, and is rising each day.

Mr McClennan states that there is an abundance of water in the back lakes and that there should be no misapprehension on the score of low water in the lakes this season. He asserts that there will be plenty of water for purposes of navigation, which is, of course, the first concern of the Government, and as well, for power purposes and for the use of lumbermen.

The water at Balsam Lake is sufficiently high and at all the other lakes along the route of the canal to re-assure those interested that there is no danger of a condition of affairs exisiting which need give occasion for alarm.

LIKE A WET BLANKET.

Borden's First Meeting Did Not Inspire Much Enthusiasm.

Halifax, Aug. 21.—Before an audience of about one thousand, including many ladies and a large sprinkling of Liberals, Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, inaugurated his much-heralded campaign tour in the Empire Rink, Halifax, last night. Without disparagement of Mr. Borden or the slightest unfairness it may be premised that the Liberal party have every reason to be satisfied with the outcome of the meeting. From a political point of view nothing could have more effectively shown that Mr. Borden is incapable of inspiring enthusiasm among even his Nova Scotia followers. The leader was given a hearty welcome, and a brass band rendering inspiring music when he rose to speak, but thereafter the meeting was cold. The nearest approach to enthusiasm was when Sir Charles Tupper's name was mentioned, and it was seen that the Conservatives recalled the political fire and courage of their old war horse. Mr. Borden's disparagement of the all-red line proposition felt like a wet blanket on a Halifax audience. The feature of the meeting was the declaration of Dr. Weldon, who was defeated by Mr. Fielding in Shelburne and Queen's, and who during that campaign severely criticized Mr. Bordon on public platforms, that the old Conservative Government should have been driven out of power, as they had gone to the C. P. R. corporation for boodle. This was distinctly unpalatable to the old Conservatives like Senator McKeen, who was chairman.

MOB LEADER SHOT DEAD.

Wiarton Woman Kills Man Who Wanted Her to Leave Town.

Wiarton, Aug. 21.—Philip Gilbert, a bachelor, aged 45, was shot and killed, supposedly by Agnes Thomas, alias Mrs. Reid, at 10 o'clock last night.

In company with a girl called "Stella," the woman is now under arrest for the shooting.

She was conducting a house of ill-repute on the northeast hill, above the town. Gilbert, it is said, organized a crowd of about 25 men and they started for the house to order them out of the neighborhood.

The women refused to go. An attempt to tear down a fence was made and a second afterwards a shot rang out and Gilbert fell dead with a bullet through his heart.

Both women were placed under arrest. Agnes Thomas had a 32-calibre revolver. She hails from London.

GIRL THIEF'S RUSE.

Masquerades as Man But Is Discovered on Being Searched.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—For the past nine months a young English woman has been masquerading in Ottawa as a man and evidently a member of a gang of light-fingered gentry.

"He" called on arrival at the Y. M. C. A. in search of work, and after being employed in the scullery of a gentleman's house obtained a position as a clerk in a leading drygoods store. Articles began to be missed, and eventually the young man was asked to enter the manager's office.

In searching "his" person the identity of "his" sex was discovered, and enough evidence was secured to convict, but the proprietor, for business reasons, refused to prosecute. "James Thompson," therefore, from being a captured man, is now a free woman, and has made herself scarce.

Bigamist Goes to Jail.

Whitby, Aug. 21.—George Hicks, the Pickering Township bigamist, is now in jail, having been sentenced yesterday afternoon to two months by Police Magistrate Harper.

Hicks' first wife, now living in Detroit, was brought over by the crown to prove that she had seen and spoken to her husband within seven years. The defence was that Hicks had been informed or thought he had that if he lived apart from his wife for seven years he could marry again. This was claimed to be reason for acquittal.

GREAT SLAUGHTER OF ARABS

Machine Guns Mowed Them Down by Hundreds — Kabyles Preparing to Attack Casablanca — Sultan Appoints Delegation to Obviate Holy War — Sultan's Brother Proclaimed—Morocco Excited.

Tangier, Aug. 21.—Five hundred shereefs and troops, the best of the Sultan's army which usually are under the command of Caid Sir Harry MacLean have arrived here. It was originally the intention to send them to Casablanca to co-operate with the French-Spanish forces, but Marine Minister Gabbas now talks of sending them to Mazagan.

Abbel-Krim Ben Sliman, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, in a letter to the French charge d'affaires, has reiterated the Moroccan Government's condolences as a result of the assassinations at Casablanca, and added an expression of the hope that the relations between Morocco and France would remain friendly.

The Spanish charge d'affaires is reported to be much disturbed by the attitude of Gen. Olalla during Sunday's fighting at Casablanca, when the Spanish commander, acting under a misunderstanding of his instructions, only used his troops in defending Casablanca, not taking part in the fighting outside the walls.

Paris, Aug. 21.—The correspondent of The Matin at Casablanca speaks in loud praise of the 75-millimetre gun, fourteen rounds of which he says, put 1,500 Arabs to flight. In attacking the centre of the camp on the right the Arab horsemen galloped to within four hundred yards of the French positions, where two rapid-fire guns had been mounted on the roof of a farm building. These guns opened each with 500 shots per minute, swept the ground with a rain of lead and covered it with the dead and dying.

The spahis, the correspondent continues, were a brave sight as they rode back into camp. Men and horses were covered with blood. The faces of the men were blackened with powder.

The attacking tribes Sunday were the Zenata and Ziada, who are newcomers and were fighting for the first time.

Still Planning.

It is announced that a number of Kabyles are marching from Mazagan to Casablanca with the intention of delivering a formidable attack shortly.

The Tangier correspondent of The Matin telegraphs that, with the object of getting rid of the fanatical members of the Ulems, who favor a holy war, the Sultan has appointed them to a delegation that is to come to Tangier to discuss measures of pacification.

The French Government has received confirmation from Fez of the report that the Sultan has declared his intention to send a deputation of notable Moors to Tangier, but neither the object of their mission nor date of departure is known. The announcement is regarded as a "bluff" on the part of the Sultan to appease the anti-foreign sentiment of the fanatics. It was made during the excitement caused by the ceremonies commemorating the birth of the prophet, and even if the deputation comes to Tangier, it is considered doubtful whether it will be received by the diplomatic corps.

Colony at Fez Leaves.

The Government has also been advised that the members of the French colony at Fez, fearing an explosion of fanaticism, especially against the French, are leaving for Tangier today. It is presumed that the French consul and the French military mission will not accompany them. The Moroccan Government has agreed to furnish an escort to the French, and the shereefs have agreed to assist in protecting them, but, nevertheless, the five-day trip to the coast is considered dangerous. The Government has received confirmation of the report that Mulai Hafig, the Sultan's brother, has been proclaimed Sultan. The news is creating excitement, especially in the neighborhood of Morocco City.

W. Duncan's running horse Marius Carius, ridden by Jack Gibson, made a remarkably good showing in the five-eighths of a mile running race at the Toronto Driving Club's meeting at Dufferin Park yesterday. The local runner took second money in a field of eight. He was the only outside horse entered. Kemp's Glen Lonely was the winner.

Dr. Johnston's mare, Hazel Belle, was sixth in a field of eight in the 2.22 pace and 2.17 trot, which was won by Viola, owned by John Moore of Oshawa.

THE LINDSAY TEAM HERE TO-MORROW

Good Practice for the Big Game With Cobourg Saturday

The sole topic of conversation among local fans now is the big ball game between Peterborough and Cobourg at Riverside Park on Saturday. The fact that Cobourg is scouring the country for players is causing the greatest excitement and it is felt here that the Lake Shoe team will have to have the best in the country to beat the locals at the rate they are travelling now. The team is practising faithfully and will be in the best of shape for a hard contest. All three pitchers are in good shape, and with the fast infield behind them any one of the trio should be able to pull out a victory. The game is called for 3.30 sharp at Riverside Park.

To-morrow afternoon, the Thursday half holiday crowd will be given an opportunity to see a good game when a picked Lindsay team will meet Peterborough at 3 o'clock at Riverside Park. Quinlan will pitch for Peterborough and Dicky May will be on the slab for the Lindsay team. The two had a hard battle at Lindsay last week. Peterborough winning out in the last innings.

CAMPING WITH AN AUTOMOBILE

An Interesting Article From Current Number of Outdoor Publication "Rod and Gun"

With a long and varied list of contents, the August number of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor at Woodstock, Ont., is more than usually welcome. Camping with an automobile gives an account of the efforts ever being made to bring into closer contact the startling contrasts of civilization, as compared with the peaceful calm of the backwoods. Now that a sportsman can go in for comfort from his own door to the solitude of the health-giving northern woods the exodus may be expected to increase to the advantage of those who are able to thus enjoy their vacation, and to the education in the art of the new mode of locomotion of those quiet dwellers in the woods. Mr. J. C. Campbell gives his diary of a successful trip of a party of hunters in the north of British Columbia. When the adventures and experiences of this party are read, every sportsman will feel a desire to visit that part of Canada for himself and see with his own eyes something of the wonderful scenes in mountain, valley, lake and river British Columbia has to show, to say nothing of the equally wonderful sporting facilities in both game and fish open to sportsmen in the Province. There is plenty about fishing, and shooting is not forgotten, while an account of the virgin ascent of Mount Begbie is excellent reading. A settler's view of the dog hunting controversy should not by any means be overlooked; while New Brunswick is to be congratulated on the formation of a Protective Association under such auspices as promise a current of usefulness unsurpassed throughout Canada.

STEAMER STONEY LAKE DEFEATS A FAST MOTOR BOAT

Exciting Race on Monday Up Clear Lake — The Event of the Week.

ST. GEORGE'S TEA TO-NIGHT

Examiner Special.

Stony Lake, August 21. — The important event at the lake this week was the speed contest between the big steamer Stoney Lake, and the fast motor boat recently imported by Professor Dodsworth, of Pittsburg, who has a cottage near Boschink. The motor waited at Young's Point until the steamer came up on the evening of Monday and both started for the north alongside of each other.

Previous to this occasion the motor had defeated the large boats on Stony Lake, but had never before had a five mile race such as Clear Lake allows. The two travelled along side by side for many rods, but the Stoney Lake soon steamed away from its small but swift opponent. On reaching shallow water at the head of Clear Lake, the steamer was fully 200 yards ahead. Engineer Gilman let it out to the second last notch, and for five miles she travelled at the rate of 17 knots an hour, demonstrating superiority in speed over every craft on the lake.

Everything points to a very successful tea at St. George's church, McCracken's Landing, this evening. The event is an annual one and always succeeds in attracting a large percentage of the lake population.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

New York, Aug. 21.—Professionalism was accountable for ninety per cent of the trading to-day. The market opened weak, influenced by the rather inadequate response given in London to the rally of yesterday here. In addition London sent over selling orders all through the list to the extent of 15,000 shares and in the course of their execution leading stocks showed losses of a point or more from yesterday's closing.

Short covering was next in order as the bears were unable to force any great amount of new liquidation and the list easily recovered the lost ground when the market became dull and sagged off to even lower figures than at first, being influenced by the fears of another advance in the Bank of England rate to-morrow.

Most of the selling seemed to come from the bears and buying to cover short contracts was responsible for a half-hearted rally in the afternoon. The closing was steady and quiet.

Wheat advanced 3 cents per bus. on reported hard freezing in Manitoba and higher foreign cables. Corn was up 2 cents and Sept. oats sold at 30 cents, an advance of nearly 3 cents.

The steamer Nevada cleared from Kingston yesterday for Cleveland to enter dry-dock. She went under her own steam, with two pumps, ready for business. The work of unloading the cargo of damaged grain was rushed along, quite a large staff of men being employed on the job. Marine men say that it will cost $25,000 to repair the Nevada, which is in a bad condition.

THE Penn Esther RANGE

burns either wood or coal with equal facility. The change in the Penn Esther from coal to wood may be made in thirty seconds. The only alteration necessary to burn wood consists in removing the lining of one end of the fire box and inserting a perforated, cast iron wood-grate, which is supplied free with all Penn Esther Ranges. When this end lining is removed, the Penn Esther will burn a stick of wood 24 inches long. The advantages of this are obvious in country sections where wood is extensively used for fuel.

FINED TWO DOLLARS FOR ASSAULT

Magistrate Edmison Imposes Above Fine on Wm. Griffin This Morning

When young men quarrel in Norwood they apparently enter the battle with a vim. Yesterday County Magistrate Edmison went to the eastern village to preside over an assault case in which two youths, Fred Woods and Jas. Morrow, were implicated. On arriving there he found that Woods had been so badly beaten that he was confined to his bed. It is stated that in the fight Woods had his collar bone broken and two ribs badly smashed.

The other fellow, who apparently was not the instigator of the assault, was quite well, and prepared to stand his trial. The Magistrate, however, in view of the serious illness of Woods, declined to proceed with the case, adjourning it for four weeks from yesterday.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Additional local interest will be taken in the production here to-morrow night of "A Message from Mars" by reason of the fact that the part of the messenger is being played by a former Peterborough boy, Mr. Walter Cluxton. This comedy was the opening attraction for the Russell Theatre in Ottawa on Monday and Tuesday, and is highly spoken of. The Free Press, referring to the work of Mr. Cluxton, says:

"Walter H. Cluxton, as the planetary messenger, played a strong part in a manner which thoroughly proved his capabilities."

The plan for to-morrow night is selling well, and the prospects are that there will be a full house.

PERFECTION IN THE BLEND

A Combination of Ontario and Manitoba Wheat Makes a Perfect Flour

Modern farming has become a business proposition, and men engage in agriculture, because it returns annual profits on the money and labour invested. The soil is the paymaster, and the variety, quantity and quality of goods produced, determines the success of the men engaged in the agricultural business.

But the market must be considered and demand must be created, and catered to, if business is to advance. Unfortunately for Ontario farmers, the demand for what ought to be the most valuable product of their fields has declined. Western millers have introduced a flour, which, though lacking in flavour, contains more strength or "gluten," than that which is milled from the more finely flavoured Ontario wheat. Ontario consumers, by the extensive advertising of the alleged superiority of western flour, were soon convinced that flavour must be sacrificed to strength, so the home market was largely lost, and farmers began to notice the increased cost of feed, and the low price to be obtained for their wheat.

By a series of chemical analyses and experiments which have been extended over a decade, it has been demonstrated that by the addition of a small proportion of western wheat, Ontario blended flour contains the necessary gluten to successfully compete with its western rival and still retain the flavour which is peculiar to Ontario grain. Bread made from blended flour soon found a ready sale in Toronto, and within a year or two after the introduction of blended flours on the market the Maritime Provinces have shown such preference for these Ontario-milled flours, that certain milling firms have doubled their plants in the last six months.

It has been already pointed out that the farmer as a business man, must consider the market and the inexorable law of supply and demand. Now Ontario ought to deserve the first attention, and the home market of the province should feel the effect of the demand for Ontario blended flour.

But the farmer is both a producer and a consumer, and as such has a double interest in helping to create a demand for Ontario-grown wheat. When the individual farmer realises that the purchase of the new flour means better bread on his table, better prices for his wheat, and an ultimate substantial decrease in the cost of bran and shorts, the battle to regain the Ontario market for an Ontario product will be as good as won.

PLUCKED CROP IS NOT UNUSUAL

Taking Province as a Whole Students Who Failed is Not Particularly Large

"The failures this year have been very little more numerous than in other years."

This was the statement made by the Registrar of the Education Department, Toronto, when asked by a reporter of the News, regarding the impression generally entertained that the percentage of failures in connection with the junior leaving and matriculation examinations this year had been exceptionally large.

"The usual percentage," said Mr. Houston, "is about fifty. I don't think that it will go much over that this year."

The exact percentage of failures will not be definitely known until the Minister of Education's report is prepared, which will not be for some time.

JUST TROUSER TALK

For economy's sake, if for no other reason, every man should have a pair or two of extra Trousers. Besides relieving the monotony of a man's attire, they serve as a saving to the continuous wear of a pair that matches his best suit, giving them in this way as long a life as the Coat and Vest.

SUMMER and OUTING TROUSERS

In Flannels, Homespuns, Light Tweeds and White Ducks, etc., with or without cuffs, belt bands of same material—$1.25 for 90c., $3.50 for $2.48, $4.00 for $2.90.

BUSINESS MEN'S TROUSERS

In Striped Worsteds (Medium and Fancy), Plain and Striped Tweeds, etc., artistically cut, and as good as any man can make at $2.48, 2.90 and 3.90.

WORKING MEN'S TROUSERS

In strong, durable Fabrics stoutly sewed — buttons put on to stay — and cut on easy and comfortable lines at $1.25, 1.50, 1.90 and 2.48.

For this week you will get more for your Trouser Money than you have been in the habit of getting.

Stony Lake Guide Will Go To Buffalo For Mock Trial

Interesting Event Arranged by Four Officials From the Bison City, to Take Place During Old Home Week—Judge, Detective, Lawyer and Policeman Interested.

STAYING AT MOUNT JULIAN

A mock trial is an event not often carried out in a real court of justice, where the judge is a man appointed by the Government, and where the detective, lawyer and police constable are men really occupying those positions. But such an event has been planned by four Buffalonians who are now summering at Mount Julian, Stony Lake, enjoying the pleasures and pastimes which picturesque Kawarthadom affords. The quartette is, perhaps, one of the jolliest that could possibly have crossed the border from Uncle Sam's domains, and since their arrival at Mount Julian have provided for the guests no mean amount of jollification. They apparently take life just as it comes, and are glad of it. One is a prominent member of the bench—Judge Naish—the others being a detective, a constable, and a lawyer who acts on behalf of Buffalo City in regard to claims made against it.

They are continually planning and carrying out novel schemes, to the delight of the tourists in that part of Burleigh. But the most picturesque and alluring of all their exploits is one to be sprung upon a Buffalo police court during the "Old Home" week, set for the seven days beginning with September 1, when Buffalonians from all parts of the North American continent will gather home.

The men are prominent in the piscatorial pursuits in Stony Lake and have a guide to whom they have taken a particular fancy. It is he who has been selected to play the important role in the mock trial, and around him the success or the failure of the plans revolves.

During the "Old Home" week the guide suddenly appears on one of the crowded streets in Buffalo, having been provided with a ticket from Peterborough by the officials. He indulges too freely in non-temperate drinks, according to the proposed plan, and thinks he is on the rocks of Burleigh, with the wide latitude afforded there. He is closely watched by the detective, who finally orders the policeman to arrest him, and he is taken to the dark cells of the jail. He secures as his counsel to defend him, the lawyer, and he goes before the judge to stand trial for breaking several plate glass windows and for causing a big disturbance on the Buffalo street. The judge listens to the stories of his depredations in the foreign city from the mouths of the sleuth and the police officer, and the guide stands a-trembling before the bar of justice, listening to the soothing words of the magistrate. But finally, through the pleadings of the lawyer, the fisherman is given his freedom, and is shown the city of Buffalo by his late employers of Mount Julian.

WOMAM JILTED HIM AND NOW HE SUES THE RAILWAY FOR $200

St. Louis, August 22.—Because he was jilted, suit has been entered against the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad, by Chester Copneck, who wants $200 damages. He alleges that on an excursion to Hamilton, he was pulled out of his seat, and roughly treated by an employee. He was accompanied by the woman to whom he was then engaged, and she was so angry because he did not resent the indignity, that she jilted him.

Peterborough Farmer A Claimant To Suit Over A Big Fortune

Mr. Thos. Derry, of This County, One of the Heirs to Fortune Left by Murdered Diamond King.

AN INTERESTING CASE

A fight for a million is being waged by Mr. C. G. Derry, a commercial traveller for Berry Bros., of Detroit, and his son, Mr. D M Derry, in the employ of Micklethorough, Muldrew & Co., 60 Front street west, who lives at 41 Woodlawn avenue. With about a hundred others they claim to be the rightful heirs of Edward Derry, a one time Milwaukee man, who became a diamond king in South Africa, and was afterwards murdered. His estate has been valued at $5,000,000, and for years efforts have been made by the British Government to find the rightful heirs to this fortune. One of the claimants is a Wisconsin woman, Mrs. Ruth Derry Vance and her claim is protested, among others, by Mr. Derry and his son of Toronto. Mr. Thomas Derry, a Peterborough farmer, is also said to claim to be a lawful heir.

Edward Derry, whose millions are now being sought by the many claimants, was murdered by an Englishman, who sought to get possession of a large diamond found by the former. The diamond was afterwards found where it was dropped during the fight.

A HALIBURTON BRIDE CLUBBED INTO INSENSIBILITY, ASSAULTED AND ROBBED

Woman Who Was Married But Few Weeks Ago, Assaulted During Absence of Her Husband From Home.

A DASTARDLY ATTACK

Examiner Special.

Minden, Aug. 22.—From reports which have recently been received here it is learned that Mrs. W B Shewfelt, of Blind River, Ont., daughter of Mr. C. H. Crofts, of Ingoldsby, whose marriage took place only a few weeks ago, was brutally assaulted and robbed, at her home last week. It seems that she was alone over night and was aroused by someone entering the house through the window. The plucky little woman was game and immediately arose got the gun and leveled it at the intruder; but thinking that it might possible be her husband who was aiming at in mistake, lowered the rifle when he rushed upon her and choked her till the blood ran from her mouth; then, with a sandbag or something similar pounded her to a state of insensibility, robbed the house of money and other valuables and took his departure. Mrs. Shewfelt recovered consciousness but had to remain alone till morning when she succeeded in calling a passerby who reported the matter and the husband was sent for twenty-five miles away. Needless to say, Mrs. Shewfelt (formerly Miss K. Crofts) is quite weak from the nervous shock and injuries received. She thinks she could not identify the robber. Her brother, Mr. Alfred Crofts, upon hearing the news, immediately started to visit her.

LADIES DESTROYED THE FLOWERS

And the Owner of the Garden is Annoyed at Three Girls

Young ladies who destroy flower gardens, will, in future, have to pay the penalty for their action, which is criminal. The Examiner is informed to-day that a lady last night had a beautiful flower garden practically destroyed by three young ladies who entered the lawn and not only picked the flowers, but destroyed the vines and plants. The lady whose property was thus destroyed is naturally much annoyed and states that while she does not intend to make a complaint to the police this time, a repetition of the act will result in police court proceedings.

Tenders Called For Addition To St. Joseph's Hospital

New Surgical Ward Will Be Erected, Extending Present Building Fifty Feet to the North.

A MODERN HOSPITAL

Tenders are being called for the erection of an addition to St. Joseph's Hospital, East City. The addition will be used as a surgical ward and will be built directly to the north of the present structure. It will be about fifty feet by forty, and will be four stories high, the same as the present building, to which it will conform in architectural style.

The new ward will be fitted with the most modern equipment and appliances, and will be first-class in every respect. On the ground floor, above the basement, the operating room, which will extend across the north end of the building, will be located. There will be ample lighting facilities in the room, which will have tile floors and walls, and will be fully equipped with all the latest improvements known to medical science for the successful conduct of surgical cases.

On this floor there will be nurses room, doctors' room, anasthatic room, etc. On the floor above there will be six private wards for surgical cases and a nurses' room. An Otis-Ferguson Elevator will be installed in the building, connecting the basement and all the floors up to the fourth storey.

Tenders will be received for the erection of this addition up to a date in September and it is the intention of those in charge to have the building erected and complete as soon as possible, though, of course it is impossible at the present time to state when it will be ready for use. With this addition to the size and to the equipment, St. Joseph's Hospital will be one of the most thoroughly modern in the province.

Mr. J. E. Belcher is the architect for the addition, and is calling for the tenders. Plans of the new structure are at his office.

Mysterious Death of Horse At Driving Park

STRUCL HEAD ON POST

The death of a horse belonging to Mr. R J Wolstenholme under some what peculiar circumstances this morning at the Driving Park may result in an action to recover the value of the animal. It appears, according to the story as related to the Examiner by Mr. Wolstenholme that about three o'clock this morning he was awakened by a telephone call, and "Doc." McGee asked for a horse to drive to Nassau, stating that he would be back about six o'clock. He came to the stable before the horse was ready for him, and, accompanied by another man took the rig, agreeing to pay $1 for the hire. About six o'clock Mr. Wolstenholme was again wakened and Mr. McGee was outside, having returned, as it was supposed, with the horse. He informed Mr. Wolstenholme, however, that he had bad news for him, and stated that the horse was dead at the Driving Park. The liveryman called for Dr. Blanchard and together they went to the Driving Park, where they found the horse lying dead. An examination was made and Dr. Blanchard came to the conclusion that the horse had been killed by having been struck on the head by a post. It is supposed that in the darkness or semi-darkness the driver had not noticed a short post near the track, and that the horse had stumbled and fell, striking his head against it. Dr. Johnston, who came later made an examination, and his conclusion was that an artery had been severed and had caused death.

The horse was valued at $175 and Mr. Wolstenholme stated that while he did not expect to receive the full value of the animal he wanted to be reimbursed.

In explanation of his presence at the driving park, the driver stated that he had gone there upon returning from Nassau [illegible] said

NOBODY NO TIME

It is a bad thing to neglect one's wife, but it is a worse thing to neglect one's hair. That is where the Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and Scalp Cleaner comes in. Use it and see no better on earth no time. McDermid and Jury, Special Agents. Demonstration at our store all this week.

NOBODY WORKS

But the Seven Sutherland Sister's Hair Grower, and it works wonders when your head is bald or nearly so. It works out the germs that cause the baldness and cures them. McDermid and Jury, Special Agents. Demonstration this week.

SURPRISE YOUR HAIR

There are many Hair Preparations with many promises of satisfactory results, but only one with assurance of results, Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and Scalp Cleaner, the greatest tonic on earth—ask your druggist. McDermid and Jury, Special Agents. Demonstration this week.

ANCIENT FASHIONS

One of the ancient fashions was a stately crown of grey hair, but it is no longer so, and those who are so unfortunate as to possess this remnant of the fashions of earlier days resort to wigs, to hide the ravages of years, but this is not satisfactory, yet do not despair for the Seven Sutherland Sisters Colorator has brought joy to many a despairing women who has lost hope of ever regaining her lost youth. Messrs. McDermid and Jury, Special Agents. Demonstration this week.

FINE PROGRAMME FOR TO-NIGHT'S CONCERT

Salvation Army Band Will Play in Victoria Park

The Salvation Army Band will give their usual weekly concert to-night in Victoria Park, and there will doubtless be a very large audience on hand to hear the musicians who, on their tour, just finished, in Eastern Ontario, won many honours for themselves and for the city. Following is the programme for to-night:

March—Band—"Tredezar."
Selection—Band — "The Old, Old Story."
March and Selection—Band—"Spanish Chart."
Trombone Solo—Bandsman Moyses—"The Cross is Not Greater than His Grace"—Band accompaniment.
March—Band—"Prize March No. 3."
Selection — Band — "The Old Times."
Instrumental Quintette — "He Is Risen."—By two cornets and three trombones.
Hymn — Band — "Lead, Kindly Light."
March—Band—"Prize March No. 2," "God Save the King."

A Rare Gem
Deserves an appropriate setting. Our Rings are works of art, every one of them, and the finest materials are none to good to be used in their manufacture.
A very pretty one we have in mind is a Turquoise with six white Pearls, making a lovely combination for $16 00, but it is only one of our large selection.

MR. BORDENS POLICY

Mr. R. L. Borden, leader designate of the Conservative party in Canada, opened his transcontinental campaign at Halifax, in a fine speech, composed principally of words, in which he aims to set forth the platform and policy of his party, for the coming general election campaign. Reduced to summary, his platform, or, rather, policy, is as follows:

Preferential trade within the British Empire.

The manufacturing of Canadian raw material on Canadian soil.

Industry, both urban and rural, to be promoted on behalf of the Canadian people.

Transportation facilities to be furnished with a view to the reduction of rates.

Waterways to be completed, that the route to the sea may be provided.

Agricultural interests to be attended to, and cold storage to be supplied.

The civil service to be made non-partizan, and the political factor to be removed.

Immigration to be restricted, that the population of Canada may be of the desirable class.

An independent commission to manage the Intercolonial Railway, and to make it a paying enterprise.

Telegraphs and telephones to be under government management, as in Great Britain.

The public lands to be administered for the people, and not for the grafters.

Grafting to be put down, and the dishonest man to be punished.

Clean elections; corruptionists to be imprisoned, and ballot box stuffers to be similarly dealt with.

Election petitions to be tried immediately after the contest, and a public prosecutor to take action against the briber.

Parliament to be rid of corrupt men, and the Senate to be made useful and independent.

Provincial rights to be observed and the provincial lands to go to the provinces to be administered for their people.

Here is a platform of several planks, with hardly a new and striking one among them. With a few exceptions it is all old, and has been in use and application ever since the country was given responsible government, and upon which there is no ground for party difference, or popular difference of opinion. The only items approximating newness are those relating to the management of government railways; but not a word of government ownership of railways, of which we have heard so much from Mr. Borden last election. With exceptions, Mr. Borden's "new" policy is as old as responsible government, and as harmless as the platform of the Mock Parliament of a rural debating society. It has been noted that Mr. Borden's policy doesn't offer a foot of even standing room for Labour. There is no mention of anything looking to the promotion and protection of the interests of a class that constitutes the vast majority of the people of Canada. In this Mr. Borden is consistent, as the leader of the Conservative party, which in eighteen years of office and opportunity, did not enact a single statute in the interests of Labour, except that of establishing Labour Day.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is stated that Mr. Borden, in the course of his tour, will include Peterborough in his calling list. Whatever may be the material of Mr. Borden's speech to be delivered here, it will be dignified in character and pleasant to hear, as a specimen of public speaking. Its manner, if not its matter, will be good.

One plank in Mr. Borden's newly-erected platform will rouse the bitter hostility of the Whitney Government, which will not help Mr. Borden in capturing the Province in he persists in such political heresy. Mr. Borden declares in favour of the "civil service being made non-partizan and the political factor removed." The Whitney Government holds, or entrused, Ontario by a large majority, and its solid influence may be expected to be thrown against Mr. Borden. The Ignoble policy is its right arm, and the partizan distribution of offices the sword it wields. If Mr. Borden intends to purify politics he must begin with his own party, in the matter of civil service reform.

PRESERVING CANADA'S PULP-WOOD

The movement long advocated by the "Pulp and Paper Magazine," and now accelerated by the campaign of the Toronto "Globe," to restrict the exportation of Canadian pulp-wood, so that this great resource will not be mainly expended in the aggrandizement of commercial competitors, has made great headway. Almost all the important newspapers in the Dominion have placed their influence in the scale to obtain what is, after all, not so much a commercial advantage as a necessity for our future national well-being. The point is simply this: One of the greatest necessaries of civilization has been ruthlessly squandered in the past, both in Canada and the United States. Canada has relatively much more of it still left to her than the United States, chiefly because the squandering began later. Now both countries see that something has to be done, and done at once. There is no question of hitting a rival, or of retaliation, in this matter; it is simply one of making the most advantage of what is left to us. If the balance of pulp-wood wealth remains in favour of this country, so much the better; to conserve it, now we know its true value, is but barest wisdom for an enlightened country.

And that is just what is happening. The people of Canada are learning the true value of the pulp-wood, which is still so abundant in many of our forest section. And, gradually but surely, people of all Provinces and of all shades of politics, are making up their minds that its unrestricted exportation must be put a stop to.

Almost every mail brings us some fresh evidence of this growing opinion. A correspondent in Nova Scotia, interested in the manufacture of ground wood and paper, writes us as follows:—

"At one time I was against an export duty on wood, believing it was not fair to those communities far removed from pulp mills, and where there was no power available for driving mills. The export trade seemed to be the only use they could put these woods to, but lately I have changed my mind, for the larger interests of the pulp and paper industry overshadowed the benefit of shipping woods, and something should be done to prohibit the shipping of wood."

The prevailing opinion is that the Dominion Government should place an export duty on pulp-wood going out of the country to be manufactured into pulp, which is taking place on an ever-increasing scale in the Provinces of Quebec and New Brunswick. But some very good judges go a step further. For instance, W. H. Rowley, president of the E. B. Eddy Co., Hull, according to the report of an interview with him appearing in the "Globe," comes out very flatfootedly in favour of the absolute prohibition of its export altogether. J. R. Booth holds the same opinion.

Hear what a purely disinterested onlooker has to say about it. R. W. Parks, a member of the Imperial Parliament, and a very pronounced free trader as far as his own country is concerned, said the other day when on a visit to this country: "But were I a Canadian, I would be a protectionist. It is essential to foster local industries. I would use all my influence; were I a member of the Canadian Parliament, to prevent the export of raw materials, such as pulp-wood, taken to the United States to be made into paper, and then re-imported into Canada."

There are many indications that the anxiety of the American paper manufacturers about pulp-wood is fast changing to alarm. This month we heard of a man who operates a paper mill near Harper's Ferry, Virginia, having to close down, owing to not being able to get any more wood, and visiting Canada in the hope of supplying his needs. As we understand it, he did not succeed in doing so. And now again there comes a report, in connection with the large new paper mill merger in the Western States, that one of its main objects is to ensure a large reserve of raw material, for which they are sending to Canada! So it will be seen there is no mistake in the face of the growing shortage in supplies. Shall Canada give away her own stock, and then be bankrupt in her own business?

"Canada may almost any day impose such a duty on them (pulp logs) if only for self-protection—the Province of Ontario has already done so (sic.) An immediate result of it, no much good American money not only in Canadian spruce lands, but in paper mills there; the United States would lose all the benefit of this capital, and the consumers of paper here would have to pay duties on the imported article. If we defer the closing of a fair trade-reciprocity treaty with the Dominion much longer, the Kanucks may easily and speedily be put into a mood that would lead them to take a sharp advantage of our spruce and paper necessities."—Pulp and Paper Magazine.

TRAIN-SERVICE FOR THE EXHIBITION

C. P. R. Will Run Two Extra Trains Each Way During Toronto Fair This Year

The railway companies are apparently anticipating an extra rush to Toronto during the Exhibition in that city. Special train services are being arranged by the C.P.R. from this city. Going west there will be five trains daily, except Sunday. The early morning train will be run in two sections, the second section leaving this city at 5.46, thirty minutes after the regular, and the same will be the case with the afternoon express, the second section being due to leave here at 5.18. Returning the same arrangements will prevail. Trains will leave Toronto for Peterborough at 8.50 and 9.20 a.m., and at 6.00, 10.00 and 10.30 p.m. The train leaving at six is the regular local, though the time for its departure from Toronto is set back an hour during the weeks of the Exhibition and commencing on Tuesday next, there arrangements will prevail.

MR. BAYNES-REID'S NEW CHURCH

Anglican Rector, Well Known Here to Open Church in Toronto To-night

The opening service of the new mission of St John's Church, Norway, which has been erected at the corner of Ashdale avenue and Gerrard street, Toronto, at a cost of $1,800, will be held to-night. The rector, Mr. Baynes-Reid, who is well known in Peterborough, will be assisted by a number of clergymen in the neighbourhood.

The new mission is in a district which is part of Ashbridge, and other estates. It was recently opened up, and there are now hundreds of houses, where a few months ago there were only a few dozen.

Rev. Robt. Gray is the curate, and services will be held in the mission every Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide is in Giving it a Thorough Trial

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigours may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla, from whence the hair gets its life.

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure, and free from oil or grease.

PLAIN TALK FROM THE DOCTOR

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder troubles, stated that to the following prescription is due a great deal of his success:

One ounce fluid extract dandelion;
One ounce compound salatone;
Four ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Mix and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist those organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbago, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal action. The ingredients, which are purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can be procured from any good druggist and mixed at home at very little cost.

This advice will undoubtedly be much appreciated by many readers.

"CITIZEN" AND "EYE WITNESS" ON THE "MANAGER" INCIDENT

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I have read the remarks alleged to have been made by the Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church, as reported in the Examiner of Monday and practically repeated in the Globe of Tuesday morning. Without entering into any discussion as to the merits or demerits of accusations of a general character being made from the pulpit, it strikes me that the statements were of a very unfortunate nature and had a tendency to do harm rather than good. I do not desire to make any comparisons but I believe there are as many members of St. Andrew's congregation who are disposed to take a drink as there are in any other congregation in the city. The reverend gentleman might as well have addressed his remarks to his own flock as to single out a member of any other church. Now I think that the general tenor of Mr. Potter's accusations was a slur on the members of our churches throughout the city, and I do not think he should be allowed to stop where he did. He should be asked to give the names publicly, just as he made the accusations. It is not an unusual occurrence to see a member of a church taking a drink, and occasionally taking it at a bar, and if it is the duty of the church to enter into the private life of the members of the various congregations then the names should be mentioned so that the public may know who is being referred to.

There is another matter to which I might refer, and that is the habit of your own journal and of the press generally in omitting from the police court the names of those who are brought before the Court. If the publishers of the paper were before the magistrate their names would not be excluded. They would be printed. Then why should a hotel keeper who is fined, ask, and be granted, the privilege of having his name withheld from print? It is the publicity that these people fear and not the fine. Then let us have the publicity. When I see the omission of a name in a newspaper it makes me the more inquisitive to find out who it is who has the "pull." The newspapers in Peterborough will do themselves credit if they will unite in deciding that no name shall be omitted from the police court proceedings, and the Rev. Mr. Potter will add to his reputation for courage if he will give the names of those whom he is accusing and not deal in glittering generalities.

Yours truly,
"CITIZEN."

Peterborough, Aug. 21st, 1907

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Rev. Mr. Potter has got into a anguish vessel of hot water by his somewhat intemperate attack on the members of other congregations. I do not blame him for trying to gloss over what he so thoughtlessly said—he made use of the word "manager," for I heard him. The Psalmist, David, apologized for having said in his haste, "All men are liars." Rev. Mr. Potter ought to apologize for condemning men — of course, "not of my congregation" for "boozing" at a hotel bar. He should name names and be prepared to prove his assertions. In accusing a "manager" of [another Presbyterian church—this is the only church that has managers as officials—he leaves their friends to select the guilty men, with the result that all managers of two city Presbyterian churches—"not of his congregation"—with one exception, stands the risk of being unjustly accused. "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone." The "manager, not of my congregation," in drinking, possibly pop or Vichy or Sanitaria water at a bar, set a horrible example to weak-kneed and weak-willed members of "congregations not my own." Now, taking a drink at a bar, of pop or even of honest whisky, "for,"—as St. Paul would put it—"the stomach's sake," is not setting half as bad an example as a minister employing his pulpit in the unbridled utterance of indiscriminate slanders. A parson may very justly preach against sin, but he is not justified in slandering the sinner, unless he is prepared to take the position of Nathan, the prophet, who could say to David, "Thou art the man." Giving unfettered way to the tongue is setting a worse example than drinking at a bar. Let pulpiteers, who use language with more intemperance than the "manager, not of my congregation," who took a single drink of, possibly, pop, at a hotel bar—read the third chapter of the general Epistle of James, in which he lectures his congregation—not from the pulpit, but in a letter, about the evil use of the tongue: "Even so the tongue is a little member and boasteth great things. Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth"—it "kindleth" a harmless bottle of pop into a flame of denominational discord. Temperance in the use of the tongue is as necessary as temperance in the use of drink.

Yours sincerely,
EYE-WITNESS.

Dollar Peaches This Year; A Poor Outlook Is Ahead

Crop of Peaches in the Grimsby District is Only 40 Per Cent—Cold Weather Reported to be the Cause.

GRAPES TO BE PLENTIFUL

Grimsby, Aug. 21. — Housekeepers who have been expecting to make up for the scarcity of strawberries and raspberries by preserving an extra supply of peaches, are going to be disappointed. There may not be dollar wheat in the west, but there will be dollar peaches in the Niagara Peninsula.

From extensive inquiries through the fruit belts from Stoney Creek to Niagara-on-the-Lake, the best information that can be gained is that the peach crop will this year be from one-third to one-half a normal crop. Perhaps 40 per cent., would be a high average of the estimates given the writer.

The early and late Crawfords—the peach that made Niagara famous — are almost a complete failure. They will not average a tenth of a crop. The Elberta, which is a second - grade peach, lately introduced because of its superior shipping qualities, which fit it for the Northwest trade, is a good crop almost all over the district, but the Elberta does not constitute more than 20 per cent., of the total crop. Other varieties are half a crop or less, so that altogether perhaps 40 per cent. will be a liberal estimate.

The earlier reports sent out of an average crop were too optimistic, based on the number of fruit buds. However, owing to the late cold spring and the absence of bees at the right time to fertilize the blossoms the fruit did not "set," and consequently men who were counting on thousands of baskets will be glad to get that many hundreds.

Of all varieties of fruit grapes alone promise a full crop, but growers confidently expect that the prices for these will be high, because of the scarcity of other fruit. The growers state that no grapes will be sold this year lower than $50 per ton.

The scarcity of all kinds of fruit this year has about finished the commission agent, so far as this district is concerned. Practically no fruit has this year been shipped on commission, but buyers from Montreal and Toronto, and local firms have bought and paid for fruit on the station platform or in the orchard. This is what the grower wants, because shipping fruit on commission was always a gamble and conduced to low prices and careless handling.

Eczema's Itch is Never Ending
EXCEPT BY ACTIVE AND PERSISTENT TREATMENT WITH THE GREAT ECZEMA CURE.

Even with careful treatment, eczema is obstinate in yielding to curative measures, but the regular and persistant use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most certain means known of overcoming this torturing disease.

Internal treatments for eczema have long since been discarded, except the use of medicines to regulate the bowels and enrich the blood, while local applications are used to relieve the itching and heal the sores.

It is the remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the cure of eczema which has given it world-wide recognition as the standard ointment for itching skin diseases.

Mrs. Robert Clendenning, Welland Station, Ont., writes:—

"For three years my daughter, Fanny, was afflicted with eczema in an intense and persistent form, and for nine days she was totally blind. The burning, itching and disfigurement were horrible, her entire face being completely raw for months, and the distress so great that she could not sleep.

"The best efforts of two eminent physicians failed to even mitigate her awful suffering. One day when I was low-spirited over my daughter's condition Dr. Chase's Ointment was recommended to me and to our surprise Fanny was helped with the first box and she has since been entirely cured by this treatment.

"Her face is now as smooth as a baby's and she is in splendid health. The credit for this cure is entirely due to Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I cheerfully give you permission to state my daughter's case, hoping that it will lead many others to secure the same good results."

There are a score of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment, with its extraordinary soothing, healing properties, is useful in every home; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A most successful meeting of Queen Alexandra Circle No. 136, A. O. F., was held last night in S.O.E. Hall. Mrs. Stevens presided in the absence of Sub-Chief Companion Mrs. Heal, who is a delegate to the High Circle, in session at London. No less than eleven new members were initiated into the Circle, including several members of Court Stanley. A pleasant feature was the return, after two years' absence, of Companion George Record, who has been travelling in the West, and was pleased to meet with companions again and was delighted to see so many new members, and the interest they were taking in the circle. Speeches were made by Companions T. Hendry, R. J. McWilliam S. Adlum and J. O. Moss. After the business was over, light refreshments were served and a social time spent.

The Doctor's First Question

Almost the first question a doctor puts to his patient is in reference to the action of the bowels. By keeping the bowels regular you avoid the serious derangements of the liver and kidneys and can defy colds and contagious diseases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure prompt movements of the bowels, and by their action on the liver thoroughly cure constipation.

DANGEROUS HOLE AT THE STREET CORNER

Corner of Bethune and Simcoe Streets Needs Roadmaster's Attention

The attention of the Examiner has been called to a spot on Simcoe street where it is intersected by Bethune street which is rather dangerous for horses. Apparently in laying the gas pipe the filling in of the trench was not done properly and a hole has been worn through. Mr. Nottingham, the gate keeper at the G.T.R. crossing, has kindly placed a stick in the hole to prevent drivers from injuring their horses, but, nevertheless many come dangerously close to the opening. It is a spot which needs the attention of the street commissioner at once or a bill for damages may be handed in to the city.

South End Baptists Want To Move Church

Ask Permission From the Board of Works to Put It at End of Stewart Street---Board Transacted Routine Business Last Night

The first meeting of the Board of Works for some time, was held last night when a number of matters of importance were taken up and disposed of with considerable despatch. Among other things was a request from the Park street Baptist church, for permission to place their present church building at the end of Stewart street, while the new structure is being erected on the present site.

There were present, Ald. Duncan, chairman; the Mayor, Ald. McIntyre, Johnston and Wilson.

A communication was read from Mr. Adam Hall, asking permission to cut down five trees on London street, and one on Rubidge street. The request was referred to the city engineer with power to act.

Thomas C. Gillespie wrote the Board asking permission to move the Park street Baptist church to the end of Stewart street for a period not exceeding six months.

The city engineer pointed out that the bylaw covering the moving of houses provided for the payment of one dollar for each day on which it is on the road. He said that there is a little street running from Park street to Stewart street upon which the church might be put, or else move it to the north end of the lot.

It was decided to ask the management of the Park street Baptist church to send a committee to meet the Board of Works in reference to the moving of the church.

Mr. Arthur McClellan waited upon the Board in the interests of the Ontario Coal Company, asking that a drain be built from their yards at the corner of Wolfe and Aylmer street. He complained that water from the hydrant used by Mr. Thos. Rehill flooded their yard. The company also wished to have an approach built into their yards.

The engineer was instructed to report on the matter, and the committee will also visit the premises before taking any action.

A communication was read from Mr. George Schneider, asking for a siding on Dalhousie street at the north east corner of George street. No action was taken.

A communication from Mr. J. J. Turner, complaining of the flooding of the opera house cellar as the result of heavy rain, was read. The city engineer recommended that an overflow pipe be constructed into the river, or else to extend the Water street sewer to Sherbrooke street and then to George street.

The Board of Health are however endeavouring to have the sewer in question constructed.

Mr. Turner will be notified that until a sewer is constructed on Water street, from King street to Sherbrooke street, it will be impossible to do anything in the matter.

Cold Tea As A Remedy For Typhoid Fever Sufferers

HAS CURED NUMBERS

Cold tea, as a cure for typhoid fever, looks like a pretty simple remedy, but there is at least one man who has faith in it. In view of the fact that there have been an unusually large number of cases of fever recorded in the city during the last few weeks, the information contained in the following article in the New York World, will be of interest:

People riding home in the Bronx on the Third avenue elevated, never dream, as their train draws up with the customary bump and snort at One hundred and Tenty-ninth street that the quiet-looking gentleman, pacing up and down the platform, with his eyes watching out for trouble, is a humanitarian — a benevolent angel disguised in the uniform of one of the Interborough's special officers. But such is the case.

Last week when the Mayor of Trenton was worried almost out of his official dignity by the spread of typhoid fever in his part of the state, he received a special delivery letter, and inside was a slip of paper, marked "Sure Cure for Typhoid Fever!" Of course he opened it with trembling fingers, as was meet. Inside was the single sentence, "Drink cold tea, and you won't have typhoid fever."

Signed to the letter was the name, Peter Buhr, No. 1666 Second avenue, New York.

"Yes, I sent the recipe to the Mayor of Trenton," said Peter Buhr, gateman at the One hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, "and if he uses it he will find that it is a good thing. Years ago, when I was a little fellow in Austria, I got the receipt from an old English army doctor, who had fought through the Crimean war. Down there the soldiers died like flies on the cold side of a barn door, and the doctors discovered that tea was the only thing that would help them. Whoever drank tea would live to fight again. It was a sure preventive. I have cured many people with this remedy. A few years ago when I was a policeman stationed at Chatham sq., my brother's children were taken ill at Los Angeles, Cal., where I still own some lots of land, and I wrote to them to drink cold tea. They took my advice and were saved."

2,000 NEW YORKERS TO SELL THEIR AUTOMOBILES; HARD TIMES

New York, Aug. 21.—More than 2,000 New Yorkers, some of them making as millionaires, says The World to-day, have sold their automobiles within the last few weeks. Almost as many more, it is estimated by the trade, have cancelled orders for new machines. These automobiles represent a total cost of $15,000,000; they are now probably worth $7,000,000. The rich man's panic in Wall street has made all the trouble, an automobile dealer is quoted as saying, as he exhibited several letters and telegrams cancelling orders for machines.

Every dealer in high-priced machines, American or imported, has stories to tell of orders cancelled by New Yorkers who, until recently, were generally supposed to be rich enough to afford any luxury. Some of the stories are pathetic.

The average rich New Yorker has an expensive family, and his expenditures are on a large scale. Any curtailment of income cuts off the luxuries, because he lives up to his income. So the automobile had to be sacrificed.

MUST THE DOG TAGS BE WORN DURING THE WHOLE YEAR?

Is the law in respect to the tagging of dogs being observed? A citizen informed the Examiner to-day that he did not believe it was. There were, he stated hundreds of dogs running around the city without tags, and while it was possible that the owners of some of these tagless canines had purchased the necessary piece of metal, it was his opinion that many had not. The law, it appears states that the tag must be worn on the dog, and it this is the case he wants to know why so many animals are allowed to roam the streets tagless.

A case was referred to in Toronto, where the owner of a dog was brought into court charged with keeping it without paying the tax. In spite of the assertion that a tag had been bought in the spring, the owner was fined $1. The gentleman citing this case thought a similar line of action might be followed with profit in Peterborough.

PETERBOROUGH PUBLIC LIBRARY SUPERIOR TO THAT IN WINNIPEG

A tribute to the excellence of the Peterborough Public Library has been paid by Mr. Barton Earle, who recently returned from Winnipeg, where, of course, he paid a visit to the Public Library. Mr. Earle stated that, while the building in Winnipeg was much larger and better in every way than the building in which the library in Peterborough was housed, so far as the library itself was concerned, this city was considerably ahead of the western city. The books were of a uniformly better quality, better kept, and the selection was more desirable than in the Winnipeg library.

The unattractive surroundings, so far as the building is concerned, have possibly thrown discredit, to a certain extent, upon the Public Library here, and in view of this fact it will be gratifying to its friends to learn that the library itself—the books—compares so favourably with those in other and larger cities. When the books are placed in a better building, possibly the library will be more fully appreciated by the citizens generally.

Irishmen Respected In Campbellford District

"The Rambler," in Interesting Letter, Tells of a Visit to That Town — Catholic Church is Strong.

A PROSPEROUS COMMUNITY

Mr. Mungovan, a clever writer in the Catholic Register, and well-known to Peterborough people, has been visiting in Campbellford, and this week's issue of the Register contains an interesting letter written from that town. He says:

Quite recently I dropped down upon the county of Northumberland and renewed acquaintances first formed more than forty years ago, and which are well matured through occasional visits made from time to time, in subsequent years. This time my first point of attack was the flourishing village, or rather town, of Campbellford, and from here I carried my designs into various parts of the prosperous country surrounding it. Campbellford is beautifully situated on both banks of the River Trent, which here furnishes a water power scarcely surpassed in any other part of our wide Dominion, and as it is surrounded with a fertile and well-developed agricultural country, with no competing point of any importance within a less distance than 25 miles, we may readily assume that with its ratio of progress in recent years, a great fture is assured for it. One thing marks an epoch in the history of Campbellford, and that rests in the vigorous steps which have been taken by a progressive Government to complete the eastern section of the Trent Valley Canal from the village of Hastings to the point where the River Trent discharges its waters into the Bay of Quinte. East Northumberland, all along the course indicated, is washed by this inland highway of commerce, and as it involves an immense outlay in the construction of the canal itself, as well as in that of a large number of locks and bridges, I am not surprised that all along the route, hopes run high and countenances are wreathed in sunny smiles.

What about the Irishman, and how does he stand here? Well, Irishmen who were settled around here when Campbellford was born and baptized, and who participated in all the ceremonies attending the important event, are still here, and have proved themselves to be prosperous and law-abiding citizens. East of the Trent River on the occasion of my first visit, I encountered some excellent men engaged in the laudable work of tilling the soil, and pushing back the forest, bearing such unmistakably Celtic names as those of Keleher, Boland, Brehany, Surry, Neulon, Harkin, Galvin, White, etc. Most of those were natives of the province of Connaught, but as it cannot be expected that a Connaughtman can live for ever, any more than another man, most of the old generation whom I met have passed away to that bourne from whence no man, not even a Conaughtman, has ever been known to return, leaving behind him the fruits of honest industry as well as the memory of good deeds. Descendants of those men, I am pleased to say, can be still met with in good numbers. West of Campbellford and the River Trent, I remember on the occasion of my first raid, to have disturbed the peace and harmony of many an Irish home ruled by men bearing the names of Irish Kings, and Irish warriors, such as O'Sullivan, O'Connor, O'Gorman, O'Donovan, O'Reilly, O'Neill, Driscoll, Keating, Collins, Convey, Doyle, etc. The name of Bibby has no terrific sound nor revolutionary flavour about it, but it is a name that was borne by several excellent men around here, and it is a name by which Mr. Samuel Bibby, one of the most progressive, as he is one of the most respected, men in the whole county of Northumberland, is known here; whilst in Campbellford itself, the Irishman has a pretty fair footing and if I say that he has put on airs, I do not speak in a sense derogatory to his national character but through a desire to show to the world that he can use the fruits of his toil as they are used by sensible people.

What about the Church? Is it the Catholic Church that is meant? Well that is my own meaning when I say "The Church." The Church in Campbellford is very different to-day from what it was when I first beheld a straggling village on the east and west banks of the raging Trent; and to show the extent of that difference I will go back to the period of our first acquaintance. At that time the Rev. John Quirk, who resided in Hastings, attended to four churches, two of them each alternate Sunday. Norwood was grouped with Hastings, as was Warkworth with Campbellford. To-day the wide territory over which a single priest exercised spiritual jurisdiction, is panelled up into four parishes, each with a resident clergyman, one residing at Burnley, one at Campbellford, one at Norwood, and the fourth at Hastings.

SHIRT-SLEEVE DANCING: SHALL IT BE ALLOWED?

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I propose to form a society for the purpose of purchasing coats for the use of the men who attend the dances at Stony Lake in their shirt sleeves. Who will help me in this worthy cause?

Yours, etc.,
MAUD.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—We go to the summer resorts to get away from the starched shirts and frills of society, and now because we happen to feel like dancing in our shirt sleeves, someone raises a wail, and a shocked mock modesty suggests that in future a rule forbidding the appearance of men at dances in the summer resort pavilions be enforced unless in prescribed attire.

If we have to conduct ourselves at the lakes the same as we do at home, why not stay at home and save the money?

Who ever heard of such an absurd notion as wearing coats at a little informal dance at Juniper Island, for instance on a hot summer's night? We might as well close up our summer resorts and get back to the cities and stay there if we have to stand by all the crazy ideas that old fogies feel like imposing upon us.

Yours truly,
"COMMON SENSE."

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—I wish to add a word in support of the condemnation of the custom of men appearing at summer resort functions, such as dances and concerts, in navvy attire—in shirt sleeves. The law of custom is as binding as the law of the land, and often more tyrannical. If a man, in his characteristic selfishness, feels justified in showing us the practical disrespect of appearing among us half dressed—if a man can come into a lake resort hotel dressed in his shirt sleeves—and some with shirts not to be accused of too recent intimacy with the washerwoman—think why might not a woman study her comfort by appearing in her petticoat and corset cover? It would not be considered good form for a man, in case the weather was hot, to take off his coat in church or at the dinner table. Men have not only to consult their selfish comfort; they must pay some attention to decency. Lack of respect shown to ladies by unbecoming dress is the first step to lack of respect in other directions. Let all things be done decently and in order.

Yours truly,
A MERE WOMAN

WEDDING BELLS.

GAIN-DEAN

Friends in Peterborough of Mr Jos Gain, who during the past six months has spent considerable time in the city on business, will be interested in the following report of the wedding of his brother, which took place in Toronto yesterday:

At 1 o'clock yesterday the marriage was solemnized of Miss Daisy Dean, daughter of Mrs William Dean, to Mr. C. Nelson Gain of Wallcomfac, N Y. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Wesley Dean of the Fred Victor Mission, uncle of the bride, at the family residence on Harvard avenue, Parkdale, under a wedding bell of white asters and ferns. The wedding march was played by Miss Edith Dean.

The bride, who was led in and given away by her brother, Mr. Fred Dean, wore a graceful Empire gown of white silk lace, mounted over chiffon and taffeta. Her long tulle veil was crowned with a wreath of lilies of the valley and she carried a bouquet of white roses. Her sister, Miss Mildred Dean, attended as bridesmaid, wearing cream lace and taffeta and carrying pink roses. Mr. T. Harrison Gain was best man, and a little niece and nephew of the bride were flower girl and ring-bearer. The former wore a dainty gown of white point d'esprit and lace and carried a basket of pink and white sweet peas, and the page was in a white sailor suit.

After the ceremony a reception was held and wedding breakfast served, and later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Gain left to spend their honeymoon in Muskoka, the bride travelling in navy blue broadcloth, smartly tailored, and grey hat with feathers. The groom's gift to the bride was a spray of pearls, and to the bridesmaid a pearl brooch, and to the best man a gold fob.

MARTIN-ORME PIANOS

The cases of Martin-Orme Pianos are finished very carefully. The varnish is allowed to dry thoroughly between each coat, so that when the final finish is put on it is very lasting and beautiful.

Surely it is worth your while to find out more about this instrument when we are willing to send free a beautiful booklet voicing the opinions of Canada's prominent musicians regarding the Martin-Orme.

Payments arranged to suit you.

A WOMAN'S BLACK DOG LOCKED IN POLICE CELL

Made Itself at Home in Corridors of the Station and Was Run In

Probably never before in the history of the police court has a dog been placed in a police court cell until this morning. The animal followed a woman to court and became so restless that she could keep no track of it. P. C. McDonald opened a cell door and the little black dog was placed inside. Its bowlings, however, were unbearable in the corridors of the court and again the padlock was loosed to give the canine his freedom without standing his trial for disorderly conduct.

WOMEN CONSPICOUS AT COURT

One Guilty of Being Drunk in Public Place—Came in on Belleville Excursion

OTHER FEMININE CASES

There were women and women at the police court this morning. In fact the court might appropriately have been called a feminine one, had it not been for a charge against a lone representative of the masculine sex, introduced by way of parenthesis.

The charges preferred against the women, one of which was well substantiated, were not of the character to invite repetition by other members of the fair sex. The court room, too, was fairly well filled by an interested crowd of spectators, composed wholly of youths and older men. The fact that women were the centre of attraction had, presumably, been spread around the street corners, among the people, and all who could spare the time, without serious loss to their bank accounts, were there.

The first case that came under acting magistrate Adams' notice, was that of Mary Irwin, a woman advanced in years a good deal beyond her teens. She was charged with being drunk in a public place, and happened to be the same individual who had attracted the attention of some three hundred persons on Simcoe street yesterday evening. Her countenance showed suspicions of a night of debauch, and her tresses were conspicuous by their absence. Upon the magistrate's inquiry she didn't know whether she was drunk or not, bu merely stated she had taken "a glass" yesterday afternoon. Her home was in Prince Edward county, she said, but she had once spent 14 years in Peterborough. She came in with the Methodist excursion from Belleville, and promised to leave immediately if she were given her freedom. On these conditions being carried out the charge against her was dismissed.

Robert Smith was charged with being drunk and disorderly in a public place on the 12th day of August. In the absence of witnesses he was remanded until to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

A Dog Problem

Mrs. Thomas Connor was charged with being the owner of a dog for the keeping of which had had paid no tax. She pleaded not guilty, saying that she had no representative of the canine family around the house, and never had.

Mrs. Guerin, a neighbour, testified that Mrs. Connor had a dog, but that she had not seen it since the day before yesterday. She was certain, however, that the dog was there as it had followed her children into the house on several occasions. Mrs. Burns —mother of Mrs. Guerin—also testified that she had seen the dog on Sunday evening, and she was absolutely positive that it had been there on that occasion.

Mrs. Connor then proceeded to explain that a dog had followed her son home over a week ago, which had remained around the house, contrary to her will. She had told the boy to return it to the south end. He had finally done so and restored it to its owner, Mr. Cranfield of Rubidge street. This case was also enlarged until to-morrow.

Mrs. Guerin had also laid a charge against Mrs. Connor for using insulting language towards her. Mrs. Connor pleaded not guilty, stating that she was quite prepared to take an oath that she had never used insulting language towards her neighbour. An enlargement till to-morrow morning was also made with this case.

Victoria Road Now On The Trent Waterway

Tug "Bob Hall" Saluted Residents of That Village Yesterday for First Time — Dredge Made Channel.

PEOPLE ARE PLEASED

The residents of Victoria Road on the Grass River are much elated over the fact that they are now connected with the Trent Canal system, and that boats of seven-foot draught can navigate up from where the Grass River enters the canal near Portage road, to the dam which is almost in the centre of the village

For some time past the residents of Victoria Road have been agitating for this water connection, but they did not think their hopes would be realized so soon, until yesterday they heard the loud whistle of the Government tug "Bob Hall" as it saluted the inhabitants of the peaceful little village

There was great rejoicing, and the people of Victoria Road now are assured of means of water transportation direct from their front doors to all points on the canal

The dredge "Simcoe," which has been at work making a turning basin near Portage Road, dredged out a bar at the mouth of the Grass River, and when the Government boat navigated over this hitherto unnavigable portion it experienced no difficulty in making the remainder of the trip to Victoria Road In fact, there is an eight-foot channel for the entire four miles up to the village

Victoria Road is an important settlement and is the centre of considerable business activity With water connection established with the outside world, so to speak, the residents of the village are becoming very optimistic.

Conservative Leader To Address Meeting

Mr. R. L. Borden Will Speak in Grand Opera House on Wednesday, Sept. 11th.

Mr. R. L. Borden, the leader of the Conservative party in the Dominion Parliament, will be in Peterborough, and address a mass meeting, which will be held for the East and West Ridings of Peterborough, in the Grand Opera House, on Wednesday, September 11th. This city will, therefore, be included in the tour arranged by Mr. Borden. At a joint meeting of the executives of the Young Conservative Club, and the West Peterborough Conservative Association, held night, these arrangements were mmmade.

On his visit to Peterborough, Mr. Borden will be accompanied by T. Chase Casgrain, ex-M.P., of Montreal, Claude McDonnell, Toronto; W. B. Northurp, M. P., Belleville; W. H. Bennett, M. P., Midland; and T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., West Peterborough.

A committee was appointed last night to complete the arrangements for the meeting.

The steamer Oglesby, from Cleveland to Buffalo, loaded with iron ore, ran ashore at Point Abino early the other morning. The fog or smoke was very heavy. Her cargo when the water raises it is thought when the water raises it is thought that she will be released without any great damage.

CANAL AUDITOR IN THE CITY

On Official Business in Connection With Department of Railways and Canals

Mr. Motherwell, auditor of the Department of Railways and Canals, is in the city to-day on official business in connection with the department. At noon he left with Superintendent McClellan for Lindsay, where they will take one of the fleet of canal steamers and go over the upper sections of the waterway.

FISH ARE SCARCE; PRICE IS UP

Unwelcome Intelligence for Housewives Who Are Economically Inclined —Living is Higher

A local provision dealer informed the Examiner to-day that fish of all kinds are very scarce, and in consequence the prices are much higher. There is a general scarcity of fresh fish in the market this week, due in a great measure to the recent storms along the Atlantic coast. These storms have interfered very severely with the fishing operations, and it is now difficult to get supplies at any price, and the cod and haddock prices have gone up to a very high level.

Practically the same conditions prevail on the Pacific coast, where the halibut are taken. Storms have interfered with the operations at nearly all the Pacific points. It is believed that the weather conditions will not be favourable for the next two weeks, and that prices will go still higher. Lake fish are scarce, and the supply is not equal to the demand.

Business in the fish line is generally rather slow, as usual, at this time of the year, though there is a small demand for salt salmon, as well as prepared and skinless fish. By the end of the month the demand will be much larger.

SEWER FOR THE NORMAL SCHOOL

Board of Works Decided Last Night to Build One on Benson Street

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night, the question of supplying the Normal School with a sewer service was taken up, and there was considerable discussion as to the best method of carrying it out At length it was moved by Ald. Wilson, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the engineer be instructed to proceed with the construction of the sewer on Benson street, at such a depth as to provide for drainage at the corner of Munday avenue.

CAUGHT A 'LUNGE WITH ROD AND LINE

Mr. Eric Marsden Made a Good Catch Yesterday

Mr. Eric Marsden, a new-comer to Peterborough from the Old Country, met with considerable luck in fishing down the river. Mr. Marsden, who was accompanied by Messrs. Greenslade and F. C. Freeland, was fishing near Hall's Bridge, and hooked a six and a half pound lunge on a small rod, and succeeded in landing the fish after a hard struggle. During the day, several bass and one eel were victims of Mr. Marsden's skill with the rod and line.

INTEMPERATE WOMAN FELL BY THE WAYSIDE

Appealed For God's Mercy as She Was Carried Away

A middle aged woman who had apparently not followed as well as she might have done in the path of temperance was the cause of a great deal of excitement yesterday afternoon on Simcoe street, west of George. Attention was first attracted towards her when she fell on the pavement and was unable to again balance herself on her feet. She was assisted to the Cavanaugh hotel yeards, followed by about 300 persons. Her moans began to bleed there and her wailing could be heard several rods away. Her final prayer as she was carried to the inner recesses of the sheds, away from the curious eyes of the crowd, was the convert's first appeal, "God have mercy on me."

DID AN ACCIDENT CAUSE DEATH

Self-Defence May Be Pleaded in Wiarton Tragedy.

WOMEN ATTACKED BY MOB

Revolver Fired to Frighten Crowd Away.—A Stone Struck the Woman's Arm Causing the Bullet to Hit Gilbert.—Verdict of Jury at the Inquest.—Feeling Runs High Against the Two Women.

Wiarton, Aug. 22.—This city is still in a state of great excitement on account of the shooting and killing of Philip Gilbert by Agnes Thomas, alias Mrs. Reid, a woman of ill-fame, at 10 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The woman, together with a girl named "Stella," who occupied the tent of ill-fame on the outskirts of this city, which was attacked by Gilbert and a crowd he had organized, are being held by the police.

If a charge of self-defence can be substituted by Agnes Thomas, or if it cannot be proven that she fired the shot, the two women will go free and the taking of the life of one of this town's most prominent citizens will go unavenged.

Either one of these pleas may be entered by the prisoner. It is said that Gilbert, who is a moral man and instigated the raid on the tent, struck the Thomas woman after the two females had been rotten-egged and the tent torn down from above them. It is reported that the shot, which entered Gilbert's heart and killed him instantly, was fired immediately after the blow which felled the woman to the ground.

A 32-calibre revolver was taken from the Thomas woman on her arrest, which immediately followed the fatal shooting.

Her companion in crime, the girl named Stella, was taken into custody and found unarmed.

The women are not strangers in Wiarton nor indeed in the vicinity. Two years ago they pitched their tent at Four-Mile Point, and the Township of Keppel tolerated their presence there a long time. In fact, when they were routed out of the township it was by intimidation from Wiarton, which had no jurisdiction in the matter.

Last Friday they returned to town and pitched their tent in the outskirts of the north ward, and life in that section had become intolerable to the residents and they decided to take the law in their own hands, which was, under all the circumstances, thoroughly justifiable, but which was unfortunately carried out with fatal results.

Just how many were in the raid is not known. It is claimed the women were both drunk at the time. Philip Gilbert was English by birth and was a constable for years in South Africa. He had lived about 20 years in Wiarton. Gilbert was an honest and law-abiding citizen and his sad death is sincerely regretted by everyone who knew him.

Immediately after the shooting the mayor swore in about thirty special constables, as he thought there might be men in the tent. The arrest was then made.

It is said that Agnes Thomas came out and warned the men that she would shoot, and shot into the air, and that her arm was hit by a club, and one of the shots intended for the air accidentally hit poor Gilbert and went through his heart.

The coroner's inquest last night resulted in the following verdict being given:

We, the jury, find that Philip Gilbert came to his death from a bullet from a pistol fired while in the hands of Agnes Thomas.

Stella Lamont goes free. The hearing of the Thomas woman will be held at 10 o'clock this morning.

Cleaning 'Frisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—Mayor Taylor began his promised cleansing of the municipal departments by sending a notification of their removal from office to four police commissioners. The communication scored the commission for failure to remove Chief of Police Dinan, who, Mayor Taylor declared, is incompetent and lacking in character. The commissioners, after a secret conference, announced that they would not recognize any power except the court.

Pope Considers Japs.

Rome, Aug. 22.—The press declares that as a result of the Japanese mission to the Vatican, Japan will send an accredited minister to the Holy See and that the Pope will appoint a permanent apostolic delegate to Japan. The pontiff has accepted from a Japanese of high position the gift of a building site in Tokio upon which there will be constructed a Benedictine church and monastery.

THE TROOPS ARRIVE IN MOROCCO

French Reinforce Army by One Thousand at Casablanca.

TRIBESMEN AGAIN DEFEATED

Situation Extremely Grave—Army of Fanatics Ready to Besiege the City—Several Villages Burned—Europeans Are Fleeing—Shell Fire Kept Up—Try to Take Town Under Cover of Darkness.

Paris, Aug. 22.—The Government has sent instructions to Oran, Algeria, to send 1,000 men to reinforce the present French force at Casablanca.

Casablanca, Aug. 22.—The arrival yesterday before this town of three new columns of warring tribesmen, who have joined the army of the fanatics besieging Casablanca has rendered more serious the problem undertaken by France and Spain to "restore order." The new arrivals constitute an imposing opposition to the French force now wearied with their long vigil.

Tanger, Aug. 22.—The Sultan's troops are reported to have again defeated a great force of the Kmass tribesmen, in whose territory Caid Sir Harry MacLean has been held captive. Many of the Moors were killed and several of their villages were burned.

Whenever the men on board the cruiser Gloire off Casablanca sight groups of Arabs they open upon them with shell fire, and during all Tuesday night there was a constant rattle of rifle fire from the French sharpshooters directed again Arabs who were trying to steal in toward the town under cover of darkness.

ALLEGED SERIOUS FRAUDS.

Detroit Business Man Accused of Working Flim-Flam Game.

Windsor, Aug. 22.—A sensation was created here yesterday when it became known that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Edgar A. Davis, a prominent member of Windsor's summer colony, on a charge of larceny by conversion.

Davis, who occupied a prominent position in the Wolverine Fish Co. of Detroit, is charged by Gibson Williams, a wealthy stock broker of Buffalo, with having "flim-flammed" him out of $7,500 on a mythical deal.

The information against Davis was laid before Justice Jeffries of Detroit yesterday morning, and alleges, among other things, that Davis, acting in the capacity of a promoter, induced him to become a party to a deal for the purchase of the Johnson Chemical Co. of Detroit. O. E. Fleming, a local politician, was to put $2,500 in the deal, Williams $7,500, and Davis the balance. Checks were sent to Davis by Williams and Fleming aggregating $10,000, but it now develops that but $6,000 of this money was paid over to the owners of the chemical company.

Davis is out of the city, it is said, at his residence here, and no arrest has yet been made.

ANOTHER FIND AT COBALT.

Camp Agog With Story of Rich Gold Discovery.

Cobalt, Aug. 22.—The camp is agog with the report of a very rich gold find near Night Hawk Lake, a large sheet of water west and slightly south of Abitibi Lake. It is stated that two Swedes have found a vein of gold-bearing rock 130 feet across, and have already traced it two miles. Lurid stories are told of its wealth. McDougall's Chute will be the starting point from which the stream of prospectors will set out for the new field, it being about 18 miles from their objective point. The small settlement there is almost deserted, the inhabitants having migrated to the new goldfields bag and baggage. Prospecting syndicates all along the line are sending out men to investigate.

IRISH TENANTS' BILL.

House of Commons Reject Changes Made by Lords.

London, Aug. 22.—With the Irish Nationalists wide awake and nearly everybody else asleep, after a night-long session, the House of Commons at 5.30 yesterday morning commenced the consideration of the House of Lords amendment to the evicted tenants' bill.

Practically all the changes introduced in the bill by the Upper House were rejected, and at 7.45 a.m. the weary legislators went home after appointing a committee to confer with the Lords and attempt to arrange the differences.

Wore Only a Mask.

Belleville, Aug. 22.—The residents of the western section of this city are on the lookout for a man who, it is alleged, chased a young woman Tuesday evening. The man, it is said, had a black mask on, but was otherwise in a complete state of nudity.

King Meets French Premier.

Marienbad, Bohemia, Aug. 22.—M. Clemenceau, the French Premier who is taking the cure at Karlsbad, lunched with King Edward here yesterday afternoon.

SQUAW ADMITS SHE KILLED BRAVE

Assaulted She Turned and Choked Her Assailant.

INDIAN WOMAN ARRESTED

Result of Row Over Whiskey—Woman Tells Story of the Crime—Says Her Husband Threatened to Kill Her—The Body Was Buried In a Badger Hole—Squaw Is Held on the Charge of Murder.

Shoal Lake, Man., Aug. 22.—The arresting of a squaw, charged with murder, and the finding of the body of John Assinwassis of Rolling River, has cleared up the peculiar disappearance of that Indian about a month ago. The squaw is on trial here for the murder of her husband.

Between three and four weeks ago Assinwassis disappeared. Indian Agent Wheatley asked for an investigation. A mound about two miles northeast of the town was found. Scraping the earth away they came upon the body of the Indian, which had been buried in a badger hole.

The squaw made a confession, stating that her husband had been drinking and brought home two large bottles of whisky, which she had hidden from him. He threatened to kill her if she did not give up the hidden whisky. He chased her, and she laid down her child, threw him down and choked him. She did not intend to kill him, but he died shortly after.

Early in the morning she dragged his body to a big knoll nearby and wrapped him in his blanket and buried him, putting his drinking cup under his arm.

CHARTERED BANKS OF CANADA.

Call Loans Greatly Increased — Deposits Also Show Gains.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—The statement of the chartered banks of Canada for July is of unusual interest by reason of the exceptional conditions prevailing in the financial world at the present time.

The call loans of $58,208,627 in Canada represent a decrease of $9,767,550, compared with July of last year, but the call loans on stocks and bonds outside Canada of $60,609,114 represent a gain of $6,347,898.

The current loans in Canada of $581,327,878 show a gain of $80,393,943, and the current loans outside of Canada of $23,723,807, a decrease of $10,656,381.

The deposits, on the other hand, amounting in all to $647,894,555, show gains all along the line.

The deposits payable on demand in Canada, of $166,352,146, a gain of $1,274,356; the deposits payable after notice in Canada of $423,121,376, a gain of $44,090,875; the deposits elsewhere than in Canada of $58,421,023, an increase of $7,594,571.

NEUTRALITY OF NORWAY.

Russia and Germany Agree to Consider It So.

London, Aug. 22.—It was learned in diplomatic circles yesterday that one of the principal questions discussed by Emperor William and Emperor Nicholas during their meeting at Swinemunde was the neutrality of Norway.

An agreement was reached under which Germany and Russia undertake to regard Norway as neutral territory. This is in accordance with the desires of Great Britain, which has been supporting Norway's endeavors to secure guarantees in this direction.

The Emperor also intimated that Germany would not seek to thwart the policy of Russia in carrying out her accords with France and Great Britain.

Grasshopper Plague.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Pontiac County is suffering from a serious plague of grasshoppers in Clarendown Township. Near Yarm, a ten-mile strip of crops is utterly ruined.

One farmer had to stay his reaper as the grasshoppers got into the machinery of the binder and clogged it.

Steeplejack Falls 400 Feet.

London, Aug. 22.—John Goldie, a famous steeplejack, met death by a fall from the Townend chimney, said to be the highest in the world. The chimney is 448 feet high.

A CRIME THAT IS NOT PUNISHABLE.

How many people reading this article have gone into a drug store and asked for some well known and highly tried medicine and some unscrupulous druggist has said, "Yes! we have that, but have you ever tried this remedy, it is just as good and costs less." Any druggist doing this has not the interest of your health at heart, but the interest of his pocket, as he can make more profit out of the cheap substitute.

For the protection and benefit of the public, we wish to say that DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY has been used in thousands of homes for the past sixty-two years and has never failed to give prompt relief and cure in all cases of Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Stomach Cramps, Summer Complaint, Sea Sickness, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus and all Fluxes of the Bowels. When you buy DR. FOWLER'S, you are not experimenting with a new and untried remedy, but are getting one that has stood the test of time.

Miss Lettie Reid, Vivian, Ont., writes: "Last year I suffered untold agony from cramps in the stomach and did not know what to do until a friend suggested I should try DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY and as I was glad to try anything I purchased a bottle.

"When I had taken four doses I found relief and since then I never fail to keep a bottle in the house."

Four Indians Convicted For Committing Assault

Frederick Wright, Mate on Steamer Esturion, the Complainant---David Jocobs Fined $2---Judgment Reserved In Case of Other Three---Other Cases Thursday Afternoon

The county police court was well-filled with an interested audience this morning to listen to a charge of assault preferred against four Indians, who were among the passengers on the steamer Esturion, on her return voyage from the Stony Lake regatta, on the date of August 12th.

Frederick Wright, mate on the steamer, was the complainant in the case and it was he who apparently formed the chief object of the red men's wrath. A large number of Indians were present in the court room, and silently watched the proceedings. Johnston, Knott, Jonas and David Jacobs, were the four men implicated in the assault, and they were all convicted, but judgment was reserved until to-morrow in the first three cases. David Jacobs was considered the least offensive, and was fined $2 for his waywardness.

The first case was that of assault upon Frederick Wright, mate, alleged to have been committed on the steamer Esturion, by the four Indians, Jonas Jacobs, Isaac Johnston, Alex. Knott and David Jacobs. Through Mr. O'Connell, their counsel, they pleaded not guilty, and Mr. Wright was placed in the box. He testified that he had piloted the boat through to Lovesick lock, when the captain told him to go down and get his supper. He saw some of the Indians in the bow of the boat on the lower deck, and heard some pretty bad language. He told Johnston to stop it, but the latter stated that they had the boat hired and they were going to run it. Johnston called him some very bad names, and grabbed him by the shoulder. Just then David Jacobs grabbed witness by throat, and he was struck in the eyes, which were badly blackened. The blood streamed from his nose, and in the mix up his shirt was t[illegible] It believed that he would have been thrown into the lake if it had not been for Mr. Jopling. Finally he fought his way out of the crowd of red men, but some of his actions now appear to be only a dream, so badly had he been used. The row, he stated, to Mr. O'Connell, prevented him from getting his supper. He had told Isaac Johnston, when he first came down stairs, to keep order or he would have to pay a fine for his unruly actions. The Indian told him that he didn't care about fines. While he was engaged in the fight, Albert Nicholls came down to his assistance.

This concluded his evidence and on the request of Mr. O'Connell some twenty boys and a number of Indian maidens were told to leave the court room.

The second witness was Jas. Jopling, who stated that he saw Isaac Johnston and the mate in a controversy. Shortly afterwards a number of the Indians and Wright got in a mix-up. At one time the mate and an Indian came very near to falling down into the fire hold. The language used, he said was obscene. He saw several blows struck, but could not ascertain exactly who struck Wright, although the four Indians, Johnston, Knott and the two Jacobs were all in the fracas.

Thomas Cullen testified that he was on the steamer when the row occurred. He saw the two Jacobs boys catch hold of Wright, whose shirt was torn from his back.

Attorney's Evidence

Crown Attorney Wood also gave evidence of the fracas He heard a number of the Indians singing songs and making merry He next heard loud talking and heard one of the Jacobs boys say to Mr Wright that the boat was chartered and that (the mate) had nothing to say about it. Soon after, five or six Indians including the four, attacked Wright, and he took the small[illegible] of them and carried him back into the corner The scene, Mr. Wood said, was beyond description, and the language was abominable

After the row was settled, an Indian came up to him, saying that he had interfered, and several others gathered around him in a threatening manner

"It was the worst fight I ever saw in my life," said Mr Wood, as he resumed his seat

The Defence

The first witness for the defence was Alexander Knott, who stated to Mr O'Connell that there were seven Indian men on the boat, including Johnston He had taken some whisky, he said, and was under the influence of the stimulant when the fight was on He heard some impolite expressions used by some white boys in Indian language towards some of the Indian girls and women

To Mr Wood, witness said that his nose bled, but that it just started Mr Wood asked him if he had not told Constable Moore that he didn't remember anything after the fight began Knott stated that he had told him that, but that he was only lying to him He got some whisky at Burleigh from a white man, but he did not know who he was He paid a dollar to the white man, who went into the bar for it He denied that he told Constable Moore he got the liquor at Darcy's

David Jacobs testified that he had had a couple of drinks—four in number—but was not under the influence of liquor He heard the bad expressions to the girls, and saw his brother tear Wright's shirt

To Mr Wood he stated that he obtained two glasses of lager in the bar at the Burleigh hotel on his way back from Stony Lake He saw Johnston strike at Wright, but he tried to separate them

Mrs Isaac Johnston, wife of one of the prisoners, was the next witness She did not see the fight till the finish, and coaxed her husband to keep away from the mix-up

This completed the evidence, and Mr O'Connell afterwards made a passionate appeal on behalf of the Indians, whom, he claimed, were treated more as infants in this country than as men entitled to the same respect as any other citizen of the Dominion He laid great stress on the excitement which would necessarily be caused by the boys using obscene language towards the Indians' wives and sweethearts They were words, he said, which would bring a blush of shame to the countenance of any husband, brother or lover, should he hear them spoken to a lady beside him

The magistrate, after more discussion, convicted David Wright of assault and fined him $2 without costs, and reserved judgment on the other three until to-morrow

Court was then adjourned until 2 30 this afternoon

BIGGEST CROWD OF THE SEASON

Will See Saturday's Ball Game With Cobourg

From present indications, the biggest crowd ever seen at a ball game in Peterborough will be on hand for the Midland League fixture between Cobourg and the locals at Riverside Park on Saturday. Both Cobourg and Port Hope will be represented by large delegations, and the greatest interest will prevail.

The Peterborough team will be in the best of shape for the contest, and if victory doesn't perch on their banner there will be something decidedly wrong. They will be in the game from start to finish, and the team that beats them will have to play the fastest kind of ball

There is no doubt that Cobourg will be greatly strengthened for the game. They are sparing no expense to get together a team that will be able to beat Peterborough. Whether they have been gold-bricked or not will be seen Saturday.

The game will be called at 3.30 o'clock sharp.

VICTORIAS TO HAVE A STRONG TEAM

President of North End Athletic Club in City To-day

President Hamilton, of the North End Athletic Club of Toronto, was in the city to-day, and is the authority for the statement that the Victorias, who are associated with the North End Club, will have a very strong team in the senior series of th O R F U this year. The Vics will have the best line-up that ever represented them, and it would not surprise them much, according to their president, if they captured the honours.

By the way, it would be a good thing for the game if Peterborough or the Vics were to win the championship this season.

BASEBALL

The team to play Peterborough tomorrow will be—Workman and O'Keefe, battery; Mellharge, 1b; Killen, 2b; Menzies, ss, tam, ss; Cain, 3b; Coley, rf; Burgess, cf; Perkins, lf. Manager E. Wetherup will accompany the boys.—Lindsay Post.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

New York, Aug 22.—It is evidently continued absence of liquidation rather than any concrete development that influenced a local buying movement in the first hour. It was not confined to any two or three issues, but included pretty much the whole active list. Trading was the most brisk in Union Pacific, Atchison, Reading, St. Paul, Steel Common and Hill stocks, all of which moved up easy. There are symptoms of improving sentiment. It is more the disposition of men of influential opinion to treat unfavourable news, such as points to reaction in business as having been discounted in security prices. Brokers report an extraordinary borrowing demand for Steel Common. It appears that a good many people have sold that stock short as a hedge against long committments elsewhere in the market. If the large short interest starts to cover it might find stocks to be temporarily very scarce, and a considerable upturn would be the result. The market was quiet at the last hour and inclined to sell off a little.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for sthee strong and alert — for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health and for this reason and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

Breathe Hyomei and Relief and Cure Will be Guaranteed

If you have catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, difficulty in breathing, raising of mucous discharge from the nose, tickling or dropping from the back of the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hy-o-mei at once.

Hy-o-mei is made from nature's soothing oils and balsams and contains the germ killing properties of the pine woods. Its medication is taken in with the air you breathe, so that it reaches the most remote part of the respiratory organs, killing all catarrhal germs, and soothing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00, and Mr. Madill, the druggist, gives his personal guarantee with each package that money will be refunded unless the treatment does all that is claimed for it.

LATEST TICKS FRESH FROM THE WIRES

Frost Last Night In The West And More Coming To-night; Kills Wheat

[J. R. Heintz & Co. Special.]

Chicago, Aug. 23.—The entire Northwest is said to have suffered from a heavy frost last night, and in the Dakotas it is said to have been the worst since 1883. Wheat has been seriously damaged. Just how much at is yet impossible to say, but reports say ten per cent. so far. The weather bureau forecasts more frost in the entire Northwest to-night. Minneapolis says the damage to wheat in Devil's Lake country is 50 per cent.

There was turmoil in the grain pits to-day. Wheat jumped up over two cents per bushel, but the sensation of the day was in the corn pit, where futures shot up nearly three cents per bushel. Oats, too, were violently active, with the September option up to 51 1-2 cents and May about 50 cents, advances of two cents from yesterday.

NOTE.—The first reports of a calamity are generally found to be exaggerations. It is hoped that the above comes within this rule.

POPULAR TEACHER RESIGNS FROM CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOL; TAKES A TORONTO POSITION

Mr. T. J. Wallace Will be Assistant Principal of New Queen Alexandra School in the Queen City.

A POPULAR TEACHER

Another change will be made in the teaching staff of the city's schools after the vacation. This change will be necessitated by the resignation of Mr. T. J. Wallace, who will go to Toronto to assume the position of assistant head teacher in the new Queen Alexandra School. He will assume his duties on the school opening, on September 3rd.

Mr. Wallace has been in Peterborough three years and three months, coming here from Keene, and during the time that he has been here he has taken charge of the entrance class, with much success. Prior to coming to Peterborough Mr. Wallace was principal of the school in Keene for six years, where, as in Peterborough, he was very popular.

His departure from Peterborough will be regretted alike by his fellow-teachers and pupils. He is an enthusiast in his work, which fact probably accounts for much of his success. To few teachers is given the ability to maintain their popularity with the pupils and at the same time exhibit a firmness which is essential to the success of any teacher. These qualities, however, Mr. Wallace happily combines.

Outside of his school associations, too, Mr. Wallace will be missed in the city. He is secretary and one of the most enthusiastic members of the Peterborough Historical Society; President of the Eko Camp Club, and the life of any gathering held under its auspices; is vice-President of the Quaker Football Club and he is an enthusiastic curler.

It was perhaps in his efforts in promoting athletics in schools that Mr. Wallace gained the most widespread popularity among the scholars. He was instrumental in forming the school baseball league, and the team of which he was manager won the championship flag three years in successions.

In his work in Toronto an opportunity of continuing this work will be afforded, and this feature will prove attractive to him in his new duties. There will be 400 boys connected with the school, and their athletic training will be an especial charge of Mr. Wallace.

In military affairs, too, Mr. Wallace will be missed. He has, since he has been in Peterborough held a commission as lieutenant in the 57th Regiment, and in this, as in his other activities he was enthusiastic and thorough.

Destructive Fire Reported From Harvey Township

A disastrous and mysterious fire occurred in Harvey township on Tuesday evening which burned to the ground the large frame barn belonging to Mr. Mooney, about five miles from Buckhorn and which destroyed grain, live stock and implements belonging to Mr. Thos. Freeburn, the tenant. The blaze started shortly after midnight from an unknown cause and had gained such rapid headway before observed that it was impossible to save the contents of the barn.

In addition to the building, a valuable horse, a quantity of hay and oats, hogs, buggy, a waggon and a number of farm implements were also consumed. The loss will be great. It is not known whether there is any insurance on the barn or not.

A theory, as to the origin of the fire, is that a lighted match was dropped by some person while stabling the horse as on Tuesday night most of the young people in that vicinity were enjoying themselves at a dance.

Fined For Selling Liquor TO An Indian

The important case before His Worship Magistrate Edmison in County Police Court yesterday afternoon was the charge of selling intoxicating liquor to Indians, preferred against Mr. W. H. Davey, of Burliegh Falls. The evidence was concluded shortly after 4 o'clock but the Magistrate decided to defer judgment until this morning, when the proprietor of the hotel was fohnd guilty under the Indian Act and fined $50 and costs. The magistrate stated that although the sale took place in his absence and without his knowledge an infraction of the law was committed as the liquor was sold to David Jacobs by the brother of the proprietor who, although not an employee, was occasionly allowed to tend bar and do other work around the premises. The fine imposed was the minimum for the offense.

"JACK-THE-PEEPER" AT WORK IN THE CITY; WOMEN ARE ALARMED AT HIS HABITS

He Combines Apple Stealing With Window Peeping — Vigorous Methods May be Adopted by Husbands.

WANT PRACTICE STOPPED

"Jack, the Peeper," has made his appearance in Peterborough, and residents of the northwestern portion of the city, have made complaints that during the last few nights they have been disturbed by a man, and sometimes two men, who in the evenings frequent the lawns, and peep into the windows of houses in that section of the city. Last night they varied their window-peeping by stealing apples, and an orchard on Bethune street was relieved of a bag of ripe harvest apples. There were two men on this job, and after filling the bag with apples they spent some time making an investigation of the nearest house through the windows.

In a number of cases where ladies have been alone in the house at night, they have been badly frightened by the operations of this character, and if the husbands of some of them find him at his despicable habits it is probable that he will have to spend a few days in the hospital. The residents of that section of the city are considerably exercised over the matter, and it is said that steps will be taken to adopt vigorous methods should the guilty party be caught in the act.

A Peterborough Man Discovers Gold Mine

Mr. J. L. Garvin Finds a Rich Mineral Property in New Ontario, North of Latchford.

LOOKS LIKE GOOD THING

The discovery of a rich gold-bearing property in New Ontario, beyond Cobalt, by a former Peterborough man, Mr. J. L. Garvin, is recorded in the Ottawa Journal, which, on Wednesday, said in reference to it:

Between 60 and 80 miles from Latchford, Ont., up the Montreal River, a few miles north and south of the Hudson Bay post, Fort Matachewan, the east and west branches of the river, after flowing many miles northwood, make two immense bends as they turn into the main river flowing eastward. These bends are known in that region as the North Bend and the South Bend.

Near the apex of the latter, a couple of miles west of Willison township, in the latter half of June last, Mr. W. H. Fletcher, representing Salkeld & Co., of Cobalt, Ont., and Mr. Jos. L. Garvin, B.A., of Ottawa, representing himself, Judge A. Constantineau of Ottawa, and Mr. J. W. Garvin, B.A., of Peterborough and Ottawa, who were prospecting opposite Willison township in the Temagami Reserve, discovered numerous large gold quartz veins, and since then they and their assistants have staked out fifteen valuable claims. The quartz is of the milk quartz variety and shows free milling gold on the surface. The first discovery was made by Mr. W. H. Fletcher, and the second and third by Mr. Jos. L. Garvin, and the fourth by Mr. Jules Mourey, of Argenteuil county, Que., who accompanied Mr. Garvin.

Mr. Fletcher is an experienced and expert gold miner and is of the opinion that the gold discovery made by him and Mr. Garvin is one of the most important made in Canada, and he is also of the opinion that it is one of the few big discoveries made on the American continent.

Mr. Fletcher's opinion has just been confirmed by Mr. J. T. Carmody, a well known mining engineer of Cobalt, who has had experience in the gold mines of Arizona, Australia and South Africa. Mr. Carmody has just inspected and reported on the claims in the interests of one of the large financial institutions of Canada.

One of the veins when stripped, measured 35 feet in width, and the others from four to eight feet.

Mr. Garvin, who has just returned from South Bend, states that four of the five discoveries made by him, and his assistants, and which were staked out by him, show on the surface of the veins free gold visible to the naked eye.

LAST GLIMPSE O THE COMET

To-morrow Morning the Last Opportunity for Some Weeks Will be Afforded—Goes Behind the Sun

NOT DANIELS' COME

To-morrow morning will be about the last time that those who are interested in astronomy will have an opportunity of seeing Daniel's Comet for at least a month or six weeks. The comet is getting close to the sun and it will not be visible again until it passes around that body, when a period of visibility will be resumed. A number of persons, it appears, have confused this comet with Donati's Comet, which, of course, is an error. It is now quite close to Jupiter and this morning was in right ascension seven hours and forty-five minutes with declination of plus sixteen degrees and fifteen minutes. Rev. A. E. Wilson, who has been in Springville visiting with his brother, Mr. F. E. Wilson and Rev. Dr. Davis, were up bright and early this morning getting a look at the comet before it passed behind the sun. The moon was bright at that hour and it was impossible to get as good a view as would otherwise have been recorded. There is only one more chance to-morrow morning, for more than a month.

RESIST BEGINNINGS

Attention has often been invited in these columns to the danger, it not fact, of Canada being contaminated by the influence of undesirable conditions which obtain among our neighbours to the south of us. We have, apparently, absorbed some of these, and made them our own. For a long time Canadians had an unquestioned claim to being ranked as a law-abiding people. Mob law, violence and outrages were unknown. But of late there has been an undesirable frequency of instances of mobs taking the law into their own hands and becoming the most mischievious breakers of the law. A Toronto journal says: "In Toronto attacks on the police"—the representatives of law and order—"are becoming alarmingly common." On July 12th in the city of "Toronto the good," the police were defied, street railway traffic was stopped and the cars pelted with stones. In Quebec, not long since, the hoodlum element formed itself into a mob and pelted Mr. Bourassa with rotten eggs. Mr. Bourassa was breaking no law; he was simply exercising the inalienable British right of free speech, which is as much a distinguishing essence of our liberty as mob law is a disgraceful violation of, and antagonism to, it. In some parts of the United States there is often an excuse, if not justification, for the mob taking the law into its own hands. But there is no such excuse in this country. Here the law is fairly administered. Even in our mining camps, in their crudest condition, the first thing to be established—along with the saloon and the missionary—is the machinery of the law. Sometimes their may be an apparent failure of justice, but this does not justify recourse to mob law, which hardly ever does justice—merely commits an outrage. The recent regrettable incident at Wiarton is a case in point. It appears that two women of alleged evil reputation, set up a tent on the outskirts of the village and established a resort of ill-repute. If this was the case, there was a remedy in law. All that was necessary was to show that it was a nuisance and the thing was done. If it were a nuisance it could easily be proven to be a nuisance. If it could not easily have been proven to be a nuisance it was not much of a nuisance. In view of the fact of the law being able to abate or remove the nuisance there was no excuse for the action of the mob. A mob of disguised roughs committed a brutal assault upon two women, who, even if they were not models of virtue, were only weak and defenceless women. If one of them equalized her strength with a man by the supplement of a revolver she was not so much to blame. She had reason to fear that her life was at stake and the law of self-defence justifies extreme measures. That the ringleader of the mob, as seems to be the case, was shot and killed, whether by accident or otherwise, also seems to be a just retribution. He was breaking the law and committing an outrageous assault. He simply fell a victim to the application of the law of self-defence. He was breaking the law and leading, according to the statements made, in an attack that might have resulted in the death of one of both of the two women; for an infuriated mob does not reason, and might not have hesitated in accomplishing its purpose at any cost. There is no desire to defend the women concerned, in so far as they may have been bad characters; but they were in the right in resisting the administration of a lynch law. Lynch law must not get a footing in Canada. We must stoutly resist the beginnings of it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Borden demands a better mode of selecting members of the Senate. Of course their selection by a Conservative Government would be all the improvement necessary.

Judge Deroche has ordered struck off the voters' list the 310 names illegally put on the town's assessment roll by order of G. W. Ostrom, Town Clerk, of Trenton, after its completion by the judge. Mr. Abbott, who appeared for the Tories at the revision, tried to prevent it by arguing that as they were on the printed list they could not now be cut off. That gives, says the Hamilton Times, a hint of the purpose of the illegal act, and it might well add that it gives a hint of the application of the plank of Mr. Borden's platform calling for clean election methods.

The Bell Telephone Company has begun the work of placing underground conduits for its wires on certain streets. The Bell Company may claim that it can beat the Machine Company, at talking. That may be a mere difference of opinion; but what we are interested in is whether the Bell Company can beat the Machine Company in acting, or even equal them. Will it instal its conduits and complete its work, and leave the street surface in as little disturbed condition as did the Machine Telephone people? This company set a standard, and furnished a splendid model as to how to rip up and replace streets in splendid style, that might be well followed by the city officials, and all other diggers up of our streets for divers purposes.

A FOOLISH ATTACK

Hamilton Times.

The Pioneer, which poses as the organ of the prohibitionists of the Province, seems to think it a part of its duty to act as stool pigeon for the Whitneyites to beguile the temperance vote. It recently made a bitter and uncalled for attack on Mr. George P. Graham, leader of the Opposition, because his paper severely criticized the Ontario Government for its inequitable administration of the license laws, and the employment of spies and whiskey informers to pursue those whom the Government seeks to bring within its penal clauses. In Monday's Recorder appears the following with reference to the Pioneer's attack:—

It talks about Mr. Graham's "political blunders," but the truth that its soul is sorely vexed and greatly worried by the fear that it may be true, what the independent and Liberal papers are saying—that the leader of the Opposition is not contributing heavily to the error column.

The Recorder has committed the sin of condemning the plan adopted by the Ontario Government of enforcing the license law in some places. Men have been engaged as spies, and the Recorder knows that hotel men have been coaxed to violate the law in order that cases could be made against them. Men who were never fined in their lives for violation of the license law, say they have had to resist great pressure brought by Government employees to induce them to break through this life-long principle. If the Pioneer and its coterie are so in love with the present Government that they are willing to go to the length of defending this kind of thing, the word temperance should have no place in their code of morals. Temperance and real temperance people stand for decency and justice in all things, and it is a good thing for the cause that all its supporters are not so bitterly blinded by a desire to help any political party, that they will rush to apologies for conduct that is contrary to all sense of ordinary decency between man and man.

The Recorder believes in a thorough enforcement of the law, as other laws are enforced; but it also believes that this law can be enforced strictly without resort to some of the methods which have been adopted under the present Government.

The Recorder believes it is safe in saying, too, that when some of the matters complained of are made clear to the Provincial Secretary, he will call a sharp halt.

The Pioneer will then have time to reflect on the unwisdom of trying to defend the indefensible, even to assist a friend.

We do not think any reasonable man will object to the Recorder's criticism. We do not think the decent men, of the temperance element or any other, will defend the system of enforcing the law in some spots and allowing it to be violated in others. We think the sense of the public is opposed to employing tools to spy upon and tempt men to break the law. We pay officials to see the law enforced, and until it is shown that they honestly try to discharge their duty and fail, we should not resort whiskey informers and the objectionable practices which usually mark their operations. The Pioneer will find that public feeling is with Mr. Graham in this matter.

THRESHING HAS BEGUN IN SOUTH MONAGHAN

Grains of Wheat Are as Large as Usual —Pea Crop Excellent

Mr. John Riddell reports that the farmers of south Monaghan have begun to thresh their grain and as far as wheat is concerned the samples are exceptionally good. The yield although not quite so large as usual is excellent under the circumstances and the farmers are satisfied.

The oat crop is light in many places, but the pea crop so far as the number of pods and the grain is concerned exceeds that of the past year.

POST CARD CORRESPONDENCE.

In this column will be published communications upon post cards only. It will remain open for the use of readers, who are invited to contribute suggestions, inquiries or replies. Anything of a scurrilous personal nature will be prohibited.

Editor Post-Card Column.

Sir,—It's about time that the hypocrisy of "prominent" members and "pious" swaggerers in church affairs got theirs. Some men seem to think that they can drink, tell dirty stories and be popular with everybody by "just jollying things along, you know." I don't mind them drinking, and I needn't listen to their dirty stories, but there's no getting away from their damnable hypocrisy. It is time a higher standard was set, and what is more lived up to. The Almighty must smile at this class of jolliers, and even at the churches, sometimes.

BONA FIDES.

Editor Post-Card Column.

The suggestion has been made, and I think it is a good one, to make application to Carnegie for a grant to erect a public library in the city. All that the city would have to do to secure, say $30,000, would be to provide a site, which could be procured at a cost of a few thousand dollars, and it would not be necessary to spend $10,000 or $12,000 to fit up the building on Simcoe street for library purposes. If the proposal to ask a grant from Mr. Carnegie were carried out, the $30,000, would be spent among the workingmen of the city, who would thus derive the benefits from its expenditure.

I think the suggestion is worthy of some consideration.

READER.

Editor Post-Card Column.

Dear Sir, — I notice a letter in yesterday's issue of your paper, regarding the St. Andrew's "manager" incident, with one part of which I agree—I mean the letter, not the incident. I refer to the disapproval of the practice of newspapers withholding the names of persons appearing in the police court. "Citizen" is right, in demanding that the name be given, but with an inconsistency quite human he, himself, breaks his wholesome rule by signing himself "Citizen," and not very bravely, withholding his own name. To follow his example, the newspapers might record that "Pro bono publico" was fined $1 for being drunk in a public place; "Vox populi" was charged with using insulting language, and discharged with a warning; "Citizen" was fined $2 for inconsistency, and neglecting to sign his name; "Taxpayer" was fined $2.85 for failing to buy a dog tag, etc., etc.

Yours, inconsistently,

CITIZEN.

RACE DOWN THE TOBOGGAN SLIDE

A number of young people of the city with some visitors had a very enjoyable picnic at Jackson Park yesterday. Among the pastimes indulged in was a foot race down the toboggan slide which proved an intensely exciting feature and was captured by Mr. H. Hefferman after a hard race. He was awarded the prize—an enormous piece of cake. Among the out of town visitors present were Miss O'Brien, of Parry Sound, and Mr. J. L. Torpey, of Toronto.

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From this Sad and Costly Experience.

Mrs. Robt. Glenn

It is a sad but true fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those many white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, pelvic catarrh, dizziness, flatulency, displacements or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the trouble may make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

The following letter should bring hope to suffering women. Mrs. Robert Glenn, of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need my recommendation, but I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in its favor. I suffered untold agonies from serious female troubles for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation, but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same. Pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes."

Just as surely as Mrs. Glenn was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure other women who suffer from female troubles, inflammation, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are ill to write her for free advice. She is a daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Ennismore Man Is To Repeat Challenge

Mr. Wm. Curtin Will Agree to Cut 40 Cords of Wood in 5 Hours to Silence the Doubters.

HE IS MUCH IN EARNEST

On Saturday last Mr. Wm. Curtin, of Ennismore, dropped into the office of the Lindsay Watchman-Warder, where the following conversation took place:

"I don't want to let that wood-cutting record drop," he said, "and I want to give Mr. Walker lots of time to get his mind and his money ready."

Mr. Curtin is the gentleman who cut forty cords of cedar in five hours at Mr. Cecil Reed's, near the Maple Leaf Cheese Factory, Emily, about the first of March this year. The trick was done on a swinging saw outfit owned by Mr. Curtin. The feat was published, and drew forth from Mr. P. G. Walker, Indian River, a long letter in a Peterborough paper. Mr. Walker questioned the truth of Mr. Curtin's claim, and in fact, practically denied that such a feat was possible.

Just about this time, Mr. Curtin met with an unfortunate accident. While sharpening a saw, the filings were blown by a gust of wind into Mr. Curtin's eyes, and the injuries resulted in Mr. Curtin having to go to the hospital. The letter of Mr. Walker, accordingly, was not answered, as it would otherwise have been.

Now, however, Mr. Curtin is out of the hospital, and though his eyes are not strong again yet, he is full of pluck and fight, and wants to hear from Mr. Walker of Indian River, now.

Mr. Curtin believes he has made a record hard to beat, and he says that it can be proven. He says that Mr. Reed of the Maple Leaf factory, and others, can corroborate what he says: that the wood was four foot wood, that here were 40 full cords, and that the work was all done in five consecutive hours of the one day.

And Mr. Curtin goes further. He says that Mr. Reed will have the same amount of wood to cut this coming spring, and that he has the work to do, and that he can do the trick again in the same record time.

Mr. Curtin gives a challenge, and is of opinion that the length of time Mr. Walker may have been at the wood-cutting business may not mean that he is too old to learn.

"I don't want to waste time," says Mr. Curtin, "but I have $50 to say that I can do the feat again, if Mr. Walker can talk in the same strain.

At this time of the year Mr. Walker should have the time — and the money—to think over the matter, and if he wants to lose fifty greenbacks, according to Mr. Curtin, now is his chance.

What has Mr. Walker, of Indian River, to say?

"Yellow" Journalism, Or "Green" Journalism, Which?

What the Belleville Intelligencer Has to Say of Reports of Sermons Preached by Rev. J. G. Potter on Sunday.

TAKES BACK STATEMENT

The Belleville Intelligencer accuses the Examiner of being "yellow" in connection with its report of the sermon preached by Rev. J. G. Potter last Sunday night. If publishing as careful and as correct a report of his utterances as was possible under the circumstances, constitutes "yellow journalism," then this paper must plead guilty.

It may, however, be open to question, which is the worse offence, the alleged "yellow" tinge of the Examiner, or the "green" journalism, which seems to be characteristic of the Intelligencer, at least in this instance. That paper has evidently allowed itself to be loaded up with explanations, which are themselves susceptible of explanation.

In spite of all that has been said in the matter, there are plenty of members of Mr. Potter's own church who were present and heard the sermon, who have said, and will say, that the word "manager" was made use of in the connection referred to in the Examiner; and who further state that the report as published in the Examiner, and from which the outside reports were evidently reproduced, was as nearly correct as possible.

In addition a brother minister in Mr. Potter's own denomination, who happened to be present at the service, made the statement that outside of the assertion that the sermon "created a sensation" (which is a matter of opinion) the report of Mr. Potter's remarks was according to his understanding and interpretation of them.

However, the Intelligencer wants to take back what it said, (scalped from the Examiner,) and this is the way it does it:

"It appears that Rev. Mr. Potter of Peterborough, has been the victim of 'yellow journalism.' It was alleged in press reports sent out from Strattonville, that the reverend gentleman in a sermon, accused Peterborough church members of living double lives, and also accused a fellow minister of drinking at a hotel bar. All this Mr. Potter now strenuously denies. What he did, and all he did, he says, was to urge consistency on the part of church members; all he said was hypothetical, and referred in no way to any particular church or creed.

"Rev. Mr. Potter's explanation puts an entirely new face on the matter, and, as the Intelligencer was one of the papers that published the despatch in question it cheerfully publishes his demurrer.

"It seems a pity that some newspaper correspondents will, for the sake of sensation, transgress the bounds of common decency. But some 'space' writers have no conscience, Bellevillians know this."

Put New Blood Into the Arterics

AND THE FEELING OF WEAKNESS AND FATIGUE WILL GIVE WAY TO HEALTH AND VIGOR

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

At this time of year nothing is of such great value to the human system as new rich red blood. Feelings of languor and depression, headaches, sleeplessness, irritability, impaired digestion, nervousness — these all tell of thin, watery blood and a run down system.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is above all else a blood building restorative which puts new blood into the arteries and by so doing lays the foundation for health and vigour.

It sharpens up the appetite, and strengthens the nerves, which control the flow of digestive fluids, forms new firm flesh and tissues, and gives vigour to thee vital organs of the body.

Mr. Fred H. Gould, Purdy, Hastings Co., Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervous headaches, which at times were very painful and caused much suffering. It has been thoroughly cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I can recommend this treatment most highly and believe that as a general system builder it has no equal.

Mrs. W. Chappel, Barrie, Ont., writes, "I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a means of building up the nervous system and of improving the health generally and I have also found it a good remedy for female troubles.

"We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for all kinds of sores and cuts and think it is a splendid ointment."

You can be sure that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing you good because each dose goes to the formation of a certain amount of pure, rich, red, blood. It cures by the building up process, and its cures are, therefore, thorough and lasting; 50 cents a box; 6 for $2.50, at all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PORCUPINE KILLED AT JACKSON PARK

Made Its Way Into Pleasure Resort Yesterday and Was Captured

It is not often that the fretful porcupine finds its ways to the edge of the city limits, but last night was an exception. One of these peculiar animals by some unknown course walked into Jackson Park yesterday and, as is quite natural, was discovered by some small boy who quickly had an army of fellow-mates to assist in its capture. The procupine was soon killed and almost every youth in the park carried away more than his share of quills.

A RUSH OF TOURISTS TO BUCKHORN

Number Unprecedented in the Past—About the Sunday Services

The pretty little village of Buckhorn, which is easily reached from Lakefield, has this summer attracted a great crowd of tourists, from all parts of Canada and the United States. The fishing there is exceptionally good, and it is a convenient centre from which to visit other places of interest. The new dam and new bridge, which are now in course of construction, will very much enhance the beauty and utility of this popular summer resort. The famous Windsor House is crowded with visitors to its utmost capacity and so also is the well known Buckhorn House.

Services are held under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church in a hall until the new Presbyterian Church can be erected, for which a handsome sum has been subscribed and a suitable site already purchased. Mr. William M. Potter, brother of the Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of St. Andrew's, Peterborough, ministers to the tourists and to the residents, and also holds services at Lakehurst and Rockcroft, where there are already comfortable Presbyterian churches. The speedy erection of a Presbyterian church at Buckhorn, would be a great desideratum. There are also many tourists who do not forget their religious duties, even when they go away on their holidays, and who do not fail to observe the Lord's Day.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the deceased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. when this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. WILL ESTABLISH A BRANCH IN LINDSAY

Mr. Louis Yeotis Will Open Business in the Scugog Town

Mr. Louis Yeotis, of the firm of Yeotis Brothers, is in Lindsay to-day for the purpose of seeking a location to establish a branch of their shoeshine parlour and shooting gallery in that town. The youthful firm is doing a flourishing business in Peterborough and should do well in Lindsay. Surely there is no town in Canada where a shoeshine parlour is more needed than in the same town on the Scugog.

THE MASK OF HEALTH

Few People Are Really as Well as They Look—Cause and Remedy

Many people in Peterborough, both men and women, who believe themselves to be in perfect health, are often in the greatest danger.

The most uncommon cause of ill-health is indigestion, with a myriad of symptoms, such as headache, sleeplessness, specks before the eyes, pains in the back and side, distress after eating, etc.

In the last few years the success of physicians everywhere with Mi-o-na stomach tablets has made them known far and wide as the acknowledged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases. They strengthen the digestive organs so that in a few days the stomach is in such shape that it takes care itself of all the food that is eaten without pain or distress.

Mr. Madill gives an absolute unqualified guarantee that your money will be refunded unless Mi-o-na cures. He takes the whole risk, and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures you.

Indians Fined For Their Misconduct On Steamer

Convicted of Being Drunk and Disorderly on Eventful Night of August 12th---Heaviest Fine Imposed on Johnston, the Supposed Instigator---Case Now Concluded

The feature of the Indian trial, which was resumed at the county police court yesterday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, was the lively tilt among the members of the bar—the Crown Attorney and Messrs. D. O'Connell, for the red men, and R. F. McWilliams, for the defendant in the liquor case which followed. The repartee was instigated by the Crown Attorney placing one of the Indians in the box, after he had been convicted of being drunk and disorderly, and, under one of the sections of the Indian Act, asking him to disclose where he obtained the liquor. The clause under question stated that unless the convicted told from where the intoxicating stimulant came from he would be liable to a further fine or imprisonment.

The three Indians, Alex. Knott, and David and Janus Jacobs, were jointly tried for being drunk and disorderly on the steamer Esturion, on the eventful night of August 12th. After the testimony of three witnesses was given, the Magistrate convicted the three men. David Jacobs was fined $5 and costs, which together with his $2 fine imposed in the morning, was paid by his brother, and he was given his freedom. Judgment was reserved in the other two cases until this morning at eleven o'clock, and which appears below.

Mr. Hartshorn of Chemong, testified that both the Jacobs boys were intoxicated on the steamer after it passed Burleigh.

Mr. Hopwood also stated that the same two boys were intoxicated, and that they showed a disposition to fight amongst themselves, and with everybody else.

Mr. Thos. Nicholls testified that the men acted rather wildly and boisterous, as if they were intoxicated.

The Magistrate found the Indians guilty of being drunk, but reserved judgment until this morning.

A lively tilt then resulted among the three members of the bar, Messrs R. E. Wood, D. O'Connell and R. F. McWilliams, when Mr. Wood proceeded to read the section of the Indian Act referring to an additional punishment if the convicted party does not disclose the place and person, from where and from whom, he obtained the liquor.

Mr. O'Connell objected to its reading on the grounds that since the Indians had been found guilty of intoxication, there was no proceedings before the court.

Mr. McWilliams considered that Mr. Wood was dealing with the case against his client, Mr. Darcy, which had not yet been called. Both the Magistrate and Mr. Wood informed Mr. McWilliams that he had nothing to do with the case in question. After reading the clause the Magistrate overruled the objections to the consideration of it, as it was stated that a further fine or imprisonment might be imposed upon the convicted, if he did not disclose the facts requested.

Mr. Wood, after much more parleying, was allowed to read the clause to Jonas Jacobs, who during all the time of the discussion remained in the box.

Jacobs told Mr. Wood that he got the whisky at Burleigh from Phil Aldrick, a white man, for whom he had once worked on the drive. Aldrich was on the boat, he said, and witness gave him $1 to get the bottle. He himself had gone to the bar of the hotel but had only drunk gingerale on that occasion.

In answer to all other questions from Mr. Wood, Jonas Jacobs was as dumb as the proverbial oyster, and answered the questions in a monotone—"I do'no."

Alex. Knott said he got the whisky from Rolly McAuley at Burleigh. After further questioning Mr. McWilliams objected again to the questions.

"You have no right to object," said the Crown Attorney.

"Yes, I have," said Mr. McWilliams, but the Magistrate ruled that he, (Mr. McWilliams) was dealing with another case, and had no right to interfere.

Mr. Wood then asked Knott why he told a different story about getting the liquor, in the evidence he gave in the morning from that he had just concluded.

To this Knott stated that the latstory was true, and that he had told a falsehood in the morning, because he was excited.

Among those who were present to listen to the case were East Peterborough Liecense Commissioners, Messrs. Knox, Jno. Rose and Joshua Smithson and Mr. Elias Williams, of Havelook, Liscbee Inspector of East Peterborough, who was prosecutor in the case.

David Jacobs, an Indian, the first witness, stated that he was in the Burleigh hotel on Aug. 12th and that he obtained two glasses of lager beer for which he paid 10c. He obtained the liquor from Roland Darcy, a brother of the defendant, but did not see teh defendant Mr. W. H. Darcy there. The lager, he said, was taken from a pump.

To Mr. McWilliams witness stated that there was another man tending bar but he did not take any notice of him.

Questioned further David Jacobs said he was of Indian blood and belonged to the tribe at Chemong.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, wholesale liquor merchant, entered the box and to Mr. Wood said that lager was an intoxicating beverage.

The Defence

For the defence, Mr. W. H. Darcy, the defendant, was sworn and stated that he was not in the bar of the hotel when the excursion was going back to Stony Lake. In the morning, however, he had been there and refused to sell any intoxicating liquor to the Indians although he was requested to do so. He himself had authorised his assistant, who was practically a new man on the job, not to sell any to the Indians.

To Mr. Wood he stated he did not know Aldrich but that he did know McAuley. The latter had not obtained any liquor from him that day.

Mr. Wm. Dever, the bar tender, stated he had received the instructions mentioned by Mr. Darcy and that he had sold no liquor to any Indian.

Mr. Darcy further stated that Mr. Roland Darcy was not employed by him but was merely there on a visit to regain his health. He often does work for him but he is under no obligation to do so.

This concluded the evidencee and counsel for the defence submitted that under the Indian Act, Mr. W. H. Darcy had not committed an offence, as he had clearly explained that strict instructions had been given to sell none of the red-men liquor. Neither was it shown that any had been sold by Mr. Darcy or any person in his employ.

The magistrate decided to reserve judgment until this morning in order to become more familiar with the Indian Act respecting the claim of counsel for the defendant.

This morning His Worship fined the Jacob boys and Alex. Knott $5 and costs for their disorderly conduct.

The case against David Jacobs, charged with obstructing Constable Nicholls, was dropped by the Crown, in view of the agreeable and straightforward manner in which he had given his evidence in the other cases.

SAWDUST PILE ON FIRE AGAIN

Brigade Was Called Out But Did Not Throw Any Water on the Blaze

The sawdust pile on the Quaker Oats Company's property, on the river bank, is on fire again, and the blaze resulted in an alarm being sent in to the brigade shortly after 12 o'clock to-day. The brigade responded to the call, but owing to the quantity of hose it would take to reach the fire, Chief Rutherford decided not to attempt to throw any water on the blaze, and the firemen returned, leaving the fire still burning merrily.

HAVE SENT EXHIBIT TO TORONTO FAIR

Handsome Display of Goods Manufactured by J. J. Turner & Sons

The firm of J. J. Turner & Sons today shipped the largest flag in Canada to the Toronto Exhibition. It is a Union Jack measuring 40 feet by 20 feet, and will be the chief article of exhibit of this progressive firm at the fair. It contains 204 yards of finest of English bunting and worked upon it are the words "Exhibit of J. J. Turner & Sons, Peterborough." The flag is too immense to be raised on one flag staff, so that two steel poles each 60 feet high will be used.

Also in the exhibit will be two 15-foot burgee flags with the name of the firm written upon them.

Twenty-seven international code of bunting signal flags have been manufactured for the exhibit and these will be artistically strung across the top of the 60-foot poles.

There will be four tents on the grounds also, including a double hospital tent for smallpox patients, one for consumptives, a silk surveyor's tent and a camping outfit.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons state that their exhibit this year at the Toronto fair will easily eclipse anything of the past.

A PITTSBURG PARTY HERE IN MOTOR CAR

Will Return to the South in Their Touring Auto

A Pittsburg auto party arrived in the city this morning from Chemong on their way back to their native city across the border. They have been touring through Canada for some weeks and have spent a very pleasant time. The following, who were registered at the Showden House this morning composed the party—Mr. and Mrs. S O Young, Miss M Imbric, Mrs. B. H. Horten and Mr. E P. Young.

PETERBOROUGH BOY ON HIS HONEYMOON

Mr. James P. Kelly, Son of Mr. John Kelly, Rubidge Street, Marries a Pittsburg Lady

Miss Harriet C. Curran, and James P. J. Kelly, of Peterborough, Ont., were married this morning in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Cathedral. The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride."

Among those present at the wedding was Dr. T. J. Kelly, of Bay City, brother of the groom. The happy couple are expected to arrive in Peterborough to-morrow evening, where they will visit at the home of Mr. Kelly's parents, 257 Rubidge street.

FIRST REGATTA OF UPPER STONY LAKE COTTAGERS A BRILLIANT SUCCESS

THE PRIZE-WINNERS

The first regatta under the auspices of the "Upper Stony Lake Cottagers' Association," held on the magnificent course at Crowe's Landing, yesterday, August 22nd, was a splendid success in every way. The completeness of the arrangements, the conduct of the regatta, the weather, the attendance, combined to effect the successful result. As the first regatta under the auspices of the newly-formed Association, it set a high standard for subsequent events of the kind. As remarked, everything seemed to contribute to the success achieved; the weather was simply perfect, there was just the right kind of breeze for the sailing events. The course is a splendid one, presenting a fine stretch of open water, unbroken by islands, except one to the eastward. It is in front of Crowe's Landing. Behind the Landing there is a beautiful, grassy slope in amphitheatrical form, and spectators have an unimpeded view of both paddling and sailing course, from start to finish, all the while comfortably seated. The course is somewhat better than the Lower Lake course, in front of Juniper Island. In addition to seeing the regatta events to the best advantage, the spectators have, what the East-enders regard the most beautiful view on the lake.

There was a large attendance of spectators, including some from Chemong Park, and Sturgeon Point, supplemented by a large contingent from Lower Stony Lake, who show no jealousy of the Upper-enders, but seem willing to co-operate in any enterprise that will contribute to the enjoyment and amusement of the lake dwellers at large, and to the well-deserved popularity of Stony Lake as a summer resort. While other conditions combined to the success of the regatta, much of it is due to the energy of the committee, which consisted of Messrs. John Davidson, Association Pres; F. D. Roxburgh, regatta president; Messrs. R. J. Winch, H. LeBrun, Judge Hudspeth, New York; — Rork, and John McKelvie. The judges of the events were Messrs. H. LeBrun, Alex Gibson and R. J. Winch.

The Winners

The following is the summary of the several events:

Ladies' single canoe, 1 Miss Rogers; 2 Miss Perry.

Ladies' Single Skiff, 1 Genevieve Sanderson; 2 Flora Burnham.

Ladies' tandem canoe, 1 Misses Hall and Aylmer; 2 Misses Erskine and Roger.

The Masquerade

The masquerade ball was a successful conclusion to the day's events. Again the weather was perfect. The brilliant scene inside was complementary to the brilliant scene outside, the full moon, from an unclouded sky pouring its silver rays over the "bright waters" of one of the most beautiful portions of the Kawartha Lakes. The costumes were elegant, and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, who awarded the prizes, had no easy task.

Best ladies' costume, 1 Mrs Bliss; 2 Miss Pentland; 3 a tie between Miss Rush and Miss Burnham.

In the absence of Judge Hudspeth, Hon. J. R. Stratton, on request, presented the prizes and, incidentally congratulated the Upper Lake dwellers upon the fine success of their first regatta, which represented a friendly rivalry with those of the other regattas on Kawartha Lake waters.

On the whole congratulations are in order all around in respect of the happy outcome of the first annual regatta of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association.

Expert On Libraries Advises The Council

Mr. W. E. Bradley, Chairman of the Berlin Public Library, Was in the City Yesterday.

LOOKED OVER THE PLANS

Rev. W. E. Bradley of Berlin, chairman of the Berlin public library, and vice-president of the Library Association of Ontario, was in the city yesterday and was introduced by Mr. William Pringle to the Mayor and Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Property Committee.

Rev. Mr. Bradley, who is recognised as an authority on public library questions, gave the local officials some valuable information, which should be of benefit to them in the new library which will be built for them in the property donated to the city by the Nicholls estate.

Mr. Bradley was shown the plans the building, or of converting the first and second stories into one. This arrangement he thought, gave more air and light, and a maximum of the latter was required in a library building.

The idea of having a ladies' reading room, Mr. Bradley thought, was go-received by the city and expressed himself as being decidedly in favour of plan No. 2, which provides for doing away with the second floor of ing out of favour. It required either great expense in duplicating papers and magazines, or else impoverishment of the general reading room.

He favoured having as much as possible of the used space on one floor, with the librarian's office in the centre, so that supervision could be exercised.

Rev. Mr. Bradley was of the opinion that more light in front was desirable than had been provided for in any of the three plans submitted in order to make up for the lack of light from the side.

He strongly advised the committee to inspect libraries in western Ontario, suggesting Galt, Guelph, Berlin, Paris and Brantford, all of which have good new libraries, and are connected with each other by electric cars.

FORMER LOVER INDUCED GIRL TO BREAK LATER ENGAGEMENT

The Beaverton Express says:—The death in Stouffville of Franklin Ross, and his burial in Smith's cemetery, Eldon, on Wednesday is the end of a romance which somewhat surprised this section about three years ago. The now young widow, while on the way to Winnipeg to wed a man of CManitoba, fell in with young Ross, a former lover at Orillia, who induced her to change her resolve and accept his love, which had never waned. They were married, and it is said that the union was very happy. Unfortunately, Mr. Ross contracted tuberculosis, and the end came Sunday, when he died at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. McLean, Stouffville, formerly of the second concession, Eldon.

WOMEN AGAIN BEFORE THE COURT

THEE PERSONS WERE FINED

Many sons have passed since the police court docket was so extensive as this morning. Magistrate Dumbie presided again, and it appeared as if the wrongs and iniquities of a whole week had been focused upon the court of to-day. There were nine cases in all to be ventilated, but from only three of these did the city's coffers receive any benefit, they being enriched by three fines, amounting in all to $9. Women were there again, but only to settle the case respecting indecent language, which was enlarged from yesterday.

The feature of the court was the case in which John Robertson of Hunter street east, was charged with having committed an assault upon Mrs. Alfred Bateson, who was visiting her mother-in-law at his residence one evening this week. The court room was well crowded, and on two occasions the Chief had to call order. The spectators outside the railing were kept in almost a continual state of laughter, when Mr. Robertson was giving his evidence.

He pleaded not guilty, stating that he did not assault the woman, but only pushed her out of doors. Mrs. Bateson testified that she was visiting her mother-in-law the other evening, when she was struck in the eye by the defendant and badly used. Mr. Bateson, her husband, was there at the time and corroborated her evidence.

Mr. Robertson stated that he had forbidden Mrs. Bateson to enter the premises because she had told his housekeeper that they were not decent. The woman's mother-in-law, he said, lived there, but paid him no rent.

"How many women have you in the house?" asked His Worship.

"Oh, about seven," was the answer.

The Magistrate advised him never again to use brutal force on to slap any woman.

"If you had come in I'd have done the same to you," said Robertson, who seemed very eager to get permission to "lick" Bateson.

He was fined $5, and asked how much more the charge would be to trim Bateson on the spot.

Mrs. Guerin charged Mrs. Connor with using insulting language towards her on August 21, but the circumstances of this case will scarcely admit of its publication. The Magistrate stated that it was too filthy a case to have aired in court, and sent the two women home to attend to their own business.

Minor Cases

Fred Eastland pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly in a public place yesterday. Mr. C. Nixon gave evidence that Eastland wanted to fight in his hotel. He was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $6.60, to be paid forthwith, or ten days in jail.

Charlie Burgoyne, the 12-year-old youth who was with the boys who stole thirty cents from Mr. Jas. R Bell's store some weeks ago, came before the Magistrate this morning. Mr. G. Gordon appeared on his behalf and stated that since he has been in the Shelter his morals have greatly improved. Mr. Henry was present and testified in this respect.

Young Burgoyne's father was also at court, and stated that in many respects his son was not so bad as his record would indicate. The day he ran away he went out to Chemong, where he earned $2 waiting on tables, and on returning he gave the money to his mother. His father also promised to send him to his uncle's farm near Lindsay, where he believed he would get away from temptation until old enough to consider the immoral path he had apparently chosen. Mr. Dumble decided to allow this course to be taken, warning the youth against his probable fate if he continued in the paths of deception.

Roland McClennan, a boy of not more than 12 years, was accused by John Williams of entering the latter's pasture field and milking one of his cows. The youth stated that in company with a couple of others, he had gone into the field to get some milk for ice cream, but that he did not milk the cow. Mr. Williams appeared on the scene and the boys spilled the foamy fluid and ran. Young McClennan was fined $2, which was paid.

Robert Smith was charged with being drunk and disorderly in a public place on August 12. He pleaded not guilty and the charge was dismissed.

ROLLER RINK OPENS FOR THE SEASON

Miss Noma Logan Won the Ladies' Skating Contest

The Peterborough Roller Skating Rink was successfully opened for the season last night, with the floor in good condition and a large crowd present. The feature last night was the skating contest for ladies for a prize, consisting of a handsome gold necklace and locket, donated by Mr. C. E. Frost. The award was made to Miss Noma Logan by the judges, Messrs. J D Armstrong, T H Savigny and Chas. Banks. There was a large number of good skaters on the floor and the judges had difficulty in making the selection. A section of the 57th Band rendered delightful music.

The rink will be open every weekday from now on.

BICYCLISTS COLLIDE NEAR EXCAVATION

One Had Narrow Escape From Falling in Telephone Trench

Two bicyclists collided at the corner of George and Hunter streets at noon to-day and for a moment it looked as if one of them at least was going to fall headlong in the trench, being dug for the Bell Telephone Company. His wheel met the other and he was thrown in the direction of the excavation, his front wheel striking the barricade which has been erected and partially demolished it. Neither cyclists was injured.

Music and Drama

A MESSAGE FROM MARS

That beautiful play, "A Message From Mars," which was received with so much favour on its appearance here last year, was presented at the Grand last night to a most enthusiastic audience, which seemed to enjoy every minute of the production.

The action of the play is too well known to require more than a passing notice in these columns. The story of the way in which Horace Parker, a selfish and thoughtless man of wealth, is utterly changed by the appearance to him, in a dream, of a messenger from Mars, who has been banished from that planet until he reforms the most selfish man on earth, it well known to the theatregoer. Part of the first and the entire second act deal with this dream, and the second act is the strongest in the play. A remarkably clever interpretation of the role of Horace Parker was given by Mr. Wallace Widdecombe, an English actor, who won his audience from his first entrance. He was most natural in his acting and made the most of his splendid role. An old Peterborough boy, Mr. Walter H. Clurton, was cast as the messenger, and played the part with fine dramatic art.

The supporting company was uniformly good, Mr. Alfred Beaumont's presentation of the role of a broken-down inventor "who has seen better days" being especially clever.

The scenic and electrical effects were sumptuous, and the production was a most enjoyable one. Three curtain calls were given at the end of the second act before the audience was satisfied.

The Doctor's First Question

Almost the first question a doctor puts to his patient is in reference to the action of the bowels. By keeping the bowels regular you avoid the serious derangements of the liver and kidneys and can defy colds and contagious diseases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure prompt movements of the bowels, and by their action on the liver thoroughly cure constipation.

WANT ARBITRATION APPLIED

Text of Proposition For Permanent Court.

THREE GREAT NATIONS AGREE

Matter to Be Discussed—The Hague Conference Will Deal With It Next Week—No Charge to Be Made—Judges to Be Appointed for a Term of Twelve Years—Will Be Representative Men.

The Hague, Aug. 23.—Great Britain, Germany and the United States have agreed upon the text of a proposition for the establishment of a Permanent Court of Arbitration, and the question will come up for discussion on Aug. 28. It consists of 26 parts. The first article records the desire of the signatory powers to organize into an international court of justice, easily accessible and free of charge, with judges representing the various systems of laws of the world and capable of insuring a continuation of arbitration by jurisprudence.

Competent Judges.

The second provides that the judges must be "juris-consults of known competence in international law, selected so far as possible from the members of the permanent Court of Arbitration.

According to the third and fourth articles the judges are appointable for terms of 12 years, and will enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities while exercising their functions.

Article five provides that the court shall consist of 17 judges, nine forming a quorum.

Article six allots the appointments to various nations.

Article seven provides that the High Court yearly shall appoint three judges, with three substitutes, constituting a special tribunal, which can, if necessary, try cases elsewhere than at The Hague.

Appointment of President.

Article eight says that the president of the court shall be elected every three years by a majority of the votes.

Article nine deals with the payment of the judges. The amounts are not fixed, but the proposal contemplates a fixed yearly salary, besides special remuneration when engaged in cases and traveling expenses.

Article ten forbids judges from receiving remuneration from their own or other Governments for services in connection with the High Court.

Article eleven says that the court shall sit at The Hague except in cases of "force majure," and the special instances provided for by article seven.

Articles twelve and thirteen deal with secretarial matters.

Article fourteen states that the High Court shall sit once or twice yearly, in July and January.

Court Procedure.

Articles fifteen, sixteen, seventeen and eighteen relate to the cases which the High Court is competent to try.

Article nineteen provides that "each party shall be entitled to have its own judge to participate in the trial of cases submitted to the court. If a special tribunal acts as a commission of inquiry even a person not connected with the court can participate in a trial."

Articles twenty, twenty-one and twenty-two deal with the court procedure and the calling of witnesses.

Articles twenty-three and twenty-four empower the court to establish its own rules.

Article twenty-five proposes the ratification of the convention at The Hague as quickly as possible.

Articles twenty-six proposes to establish the duration of the convention, but the term is not yet fixed.

Any signatory power is entitled to denounce the convention by notifying the Dutch Government two years before the expiry of each period, but the convention remains intact for the other powers.

Approve Prize Court.

The Hague, Aug. 23.—The special commission which has been examining the proposition to establish a supreme international prize court yesterday approved the project drafted by the United States, Great Britain, Germany and France by 10 to 2 votes.

Jealous Farm Hand.

Trumble, Conn., Aug. 23.—Lucas Koplinski, a married farm hand, yesterday shot and killed Lillian Mallatt, aged 55 years, because she had promised to marry another farm hand. He then set fire to the shed containing the body, which was rescued before the flames consumed it. He was arrested.

Tariff With Australia.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—It is stated that the Acting Minister of Trade and Commerce has for the past two weeks been in daily communication by cable, under the direction of the Canadian Government, with Mr. Ross, the Canadian commercial agent in Melbourne, regarding tariff arrangements.

THE GUARDS FIRED ON PRISONERS

ONE KILLED; SEVERAL HURT

Prisoners Under Lock When Shot—Worst Outbreak In History of the Asylum—At Given Signal Tried to Escape—Set Guards at Defiance—Fire Hose Was Useless—Rioting Lasted Many Hours.

Schenectady, Aug. 23.—A special to The Gazette says: "One of the worst outbreaks among the insane prisoners in the history of Clinton Prison at Dannemora occurred Wednesday night. As a result, Isaac Dubois, one of the inmates, is dead, having been shot through the heart by a guard. Besides Dubois being killed, several others were injured with rifle shots.

"The insane prisoners were being marshalled to bed when, at a given signal, they rushed into the two big lower domitories and slammed the doors in the faces of the guards. Having locked the doors, they proceeded coolly to set about making their escape, by smashing the doors and sawing the bars. Some of the less violently inclined, however, helped the jailers.

"Seeing that the struggling convicts could not be reached through the big steel doors, the guards turned on them from the windows, with streams of water from the fire hose. This kept them at bay, but did not subdue them. The guards were finally obliged to use rifles and pistols, and it was after midnight before the uprising was quelled."

QUARREL OVER ICE CREAM.

One Hundred and Fifty Men Injured In Free Fight.

New York, Aug. 23.—A petty quarrel over a plate of ice cream Wednesday evening precipitated a riot at Witzel's Grove, College Point, L. I., in which nearly eight thousand men were involved, and in which one hundred and fifty were hurt.

Of these fourteen were seriously injured. Mr. Witzel received a fractured skull and may die. It took reserves from six stations to cope with the remarkable outbreak.

It was a turbulent windup to a day of merrymaking by the Jefferson Tammany Club of the Bronx, which, headed by Leader Louis F. Haffen, had embarked on two steamboats and three barges at the foot of East One Hundred and Thirty-Fourth street in the morning.

About 8,600 strong, they poured into the grove. They had friendly games of baseball, and the dice rolled merrily in obscure corners for a while.

Entire Lockout Threatened.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—The garment workers' strike is larger again yesterday, the total on strike being 372. Employes of H. Gallop and of S. Felstein and Segar went out. It is said that the contractors have decided on a lockout of every tailor which will affect 1,000 men. The contractors for the clothing firms say they can't give an increase to the men at the prices they get, but will increase wages if the factories they work for will increase the scale for garments.

Fire Agents Organize.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—Fire insurance agents from all parts of the province held a preliminary meeting at the King Edward Hotel yesterday for the purpose of forming an organization similar to that of the life assurance agents.

About 70 attended and many others are expected to be present to-day for the framing of a constitution and election of officers of the new body, which will be known as the Ontario Local Fire Insurance Agents' Association.

Dynamiters Get Busy.

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 23.—An attempt was made yesterday to blow up the incoming Short Line passenger train with dynamite at St. Peter's Dome, midway between Cripple Creek and Colorado Springs.

Every window in the last car was broken, and M. J. McCarthy of Victor, deputy state mine inspector, had his hand cut. A number of women fainted, and there was great excitement.

A similar attempt was made to blow up the same train at Duffield the day before. The dynamiters escaped, but the sheriff is on their trail.

Youth Drowns.

He was standing on the dock and fell off while watching some members of the Tecumseh Boat Club preparing their launches. Deceased was 17 years of age.

Child Drowned in Milk.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Raymond Lane, one year old, while in his father's dairy, fell headforemost into a full can of milk while no one was about. The child was wedged fast and was drowned.

AFRAID TO SPEAK OUT MINDS

Men Who Raided Women's Tent at Wiarton.

ACCUSED WOMAN IN COURT

Claims Shooting Was Justified In Self-Defence—Was the Victim of Cowardly Assault — Magistrate Not Satisfied With Evidence — Refers Case to Attorney-General—Shot Fired Into the Air.

Wiarton, Aug. 23.—Annie Thomas was brought before Magistrate Miller yesterday morning for trial, and the result was that the magistrate, after hearing evidence, thus declared himself:

"I do not feel like taking the responsibility of acquitting the prisoner, nor do I care to commit her. I will, therefore, remand her for eight days, while I send the evidence to the Attorney-General for his consideration. He can then take whatever course he sees fit on the evidence."

Dr. Albert Fisher and Chief Hull were again examined, but little new evidence was produced. It was brought out, however, that the tent had been completely demolished, the furniture broken and strewn in every direction and the jacket and skirt of Stella Lamont covered with egg marks, while the chief noticed that she had been struck with a stone in the back and another on the face, and that Agnes Thomas had a tooth knocked out. He said the woman had sufficient cause to be alarmed of bodily injury, and in his opinion was justified in firing in the air.

The chief said he could not find one of the crowd of raiders, variously estimated from 35 to 50, who would come forward and say he was there during the raid and to give evidence.

The crown attorney produced the town bylaw against the use of fire arms within the corporation, and the counsel for the defence objected. Robert Lancaster, to whose house the deceased had been carried when dead, under the rapid cross-examination of A. G. Mackay, got badly tangled. He would admit nothing. Lancaster is reported to have been one of the organizers of the raid. The counsel for the defence warned him that he was liable to an action for perjury.

The crown attorney asked for the committal for manslaughter, claiming that there was not sufficient justification for the shooting when it was only to protect property.

Mr. Mackay made an able appeal for her discharge, claiming that the crowd who raided the tent were liable to imprisonment for life, and that the shooting was perfectly justifiable. He asked the magistrate to take the advice of the Attorney-General's Department before a committal for manslaughter, as no judge would allow it to go to the jury, and on account of the expense to the county the magistrate so decided.

In the meantime the prisoner has been sent to the jail at Walkerton.

The raiders are keeping mum lest they be indicted for housebreaking. It is said that they declare that bullets went whizzing around them, and that Gilbert was taking to the bush to protect himself, when he was shot.

As there was no charge against Mrs. Lamont, she has been given her liberty, but she remained with her friend, Mrs. Thomas, at the lockup all night. She was with her in the Police Court yesterday morning. Both women were dressed in black, and seemed to feel their position. During the recital of the shooting, tears ran down their cheeks. Mrs. Thomas is about 45, striking of figure, but worn of face.

Scalds Boy to Punish.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—Shrieking with agony, Dan Murphy, a 13-year-old boy of 395 Beaudry street, was taken to the hospital suffering from scalds inflicted by his mother in a fit of anger. His back is one huge blister.

The boy was [illegible] mother wanted, and in a fit of passion she snatched a pot of boiling water from the stove and threw it at him.

There the boy cried for his father, but begged the nurse to keep his mother away from him.

Blind From Smoking.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—William Wagner, a young man residing at 259 Albert street, went completely blind suddenly Wednesday evening, from excessive smoking, and remained so until yesterday morning, when he partially recovered his vision.

He was attended by Dr. T. A. Watterson, who pronounced the blindness due to cigarettes.

Wagner, however, smokes nothing but a pipe, but as he indulges heavily in this the same result followed.

Wilhelmshohe, Aug. 23.—The Empress Augusta Victoria, while walking in the park here Wednesday, slipped and fell, injuring a vein in her left leg, and making it necessary for her to remain in bed for some weeks. All Her Majesty's traveling engagements have been cancelled.

Fire on the Temeraire.

Kingston, Aug. 23.—Fire on the yacht Temeraire, at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, burned the jib and blistered the bow. A cigarette is blamed. The craft has just been purchased by Major Carruthers of this city.

INDIANS FINED FOR ASSAULT ON MATE

Johnston Considered the Instigator and Receives Heaviest Fine

In the Indian Gasault case, the evidence of which apeared in yesterday's issue, His Worship Magistrate Edmison this morning delivered judgment. Isaac Johnston was considered to be the instigator of the unpleasant affair and a fine of $10 and costs was imposed upon him. Jonas Jacobs and Alex Knott were each assessed $5 and costs for their connection with the assault upon Wright, and David Jacobs was fined $1 without costs.

All paid their fines except Johnston, who in default of payment will spend three months in jail. It is stated that he would pay it to-morrow.

Won From Lindsay In A Slow, Listless Game

Peterborough Beat the Red Socks Yesterday---There Were Few Remarkable Features in the Contest

In an exhibition game that was utterly devoid of any exciting features, the local ball team yesterday beat Herb Workman's band of Lindsay Red Stockings by 5 runs to 4, before a fair sized crowd, who seemed to have left their voices and their enthusiasm at home. The game was not as interesting as the close score would lead one to believe, the fielding being decidedly loose. The Red Socks led for the greater part of the matinee, being two to the good in the first of the eighth. Peterborough got two in their half and won out in the ninth with one down.

The locals had a patched up lineup, and did not play their usual snappy game. Bad errors gave Lindsay several runs, and on the other hand, poor base running lost the locals several counters. The men never forgot Saturday's game with Cobourg, and did not exert themselves very much.

Flaherty was on the mound for the locals for the first three innings, and held the visitors without a run or hit. Burns finished the game and pitched good ball, the visitors' best with the willow being five scattered hits, one of which was a corking three-bagger by Workman. The latter dispensed the shoots for Lindsay, and his slow ball, while it looked as big as a house, was not disturbed much by the efforts of the locals. Six hits was all that Herbie allowed, although two of them were good for transportation as far as the second ottoman.

The Scugog bunch was the first to score. Cain, first up in the fourth, lead off with a single, but was out stealing second; Workman singled, and McIlhargy was safe on fielder's choice. Errors by Johnston, who had a particularly bad day at the last corner, let in the runs.

Singles by Burridge and Graham, in Peterborough's half, were responsible for one counter.

In the sixth, Lindsay came back with another brace. Cain singled and Workman, who [illegible] him, drove out a slashing three-sacker to deep centre, scoring Cain. He crossed the pan a minute later when Johnston allowed Burridge's throw to get through him; Peterborough got one in their half. With two gone, McIlhargy fell all over himself in fielding Graham's grounder to first, and Chris was safe. He stole second, and scored on Flaherty's pretty drive to left for two bases. Peterborough tied the score in the eighth without a hit Cote dropped Burn's fly to start the works, then Callaghan was passed, and Burridge was safe on Perkin's error. This with a put-out, gave the locals two tallies.

They kept up the good work in the ninth. Belleghem led off with a single. Bartlett was hit by pitcher, and Sharpe sacrificed Then Burns hit one to Cain, who fumbled and the winning run crossed the plate.

Belleghem, of the Excelsiors, of the Intermediate City League, played for the locals and did good work both in the field and at the bat. He made two pretty catches in left, and a nice threw to second, getting Workman.

Jack Connors umpired the game, to the satisfaction of everybody.

COBOURG'S LINE-UP IS MYSTERY

Crowd Are Expected to Keep Back Off the Field at To-morrow's Big Game

Yesterday's game with Lindsay has put the locals in the best of shape, for the struggle at Riverside Park, with Cobourg to-morrow, and they will be fighting from their tip toes all the way. The game should be one of the best and most exciting ever seen in Peterborough, and indications point to the biggest crowd in the record of the game here.

By the way, a warning to the public will not be amiss. It should be distinctly understood that the crowd must not encroach on the field, and the spectators are expected to keep back to the fences. Cobourg has sent word that the game will not go on is the field is not kept cleared. It rests with the local people to see that there is not hitch on this account.

Peterborough will have one of the strongest teams that ever represented it on the diamond to-morrow.

It is not yet known who will do the twirling, at least Manager Johnston is silent on this point, but all three pitchers are in excellent shape, and anyone of them should stop Cobourg.

Nothing is known of Cobourg's line up. Rumour has it that they will have a number of Rochester players on their line-up, including an Eastern League pitcher. To-morrow will show the truth or otherwise of the report. It is certain, however, that they will have a team that will take a lot of beating.

Weekes, of Bowmanville, has been agreed upon as umpire, and will call the game at 3.30 p.m., sharp.

REYNOLDS WANTS A HANDICAP

If a Match Against David Hartley is Arranged

After quoting from Peterborough papers in reference to Mr. David Hartley's wishes to arrange a walk-match with Jimmy Reynolds of Port Hope, the Port Hope Guide says:

"When interviewed on the above Reynolds stated that he would be quite willing to arrange a match with Hartley. Considering that Hartley is sure that he could make Toronto and return from Port Hope in 32 hours, the undertaking which Reynolds failed to accomplish in 36 hours, Jimmy thinks he is deserving of at least 6 hours handicap. However to make things interesting he will take 4 hours handicap and walk with Mr. Hartley to Toronto and return on any date which may suit him, and for any amount of money."

Mr. T. W. McDonough Will Represent the Locals at Gathering To-morrow Night

Mr. T. W. McDonough will represent the local Rugby Club at the meeting of the representatives of the senior clubs called by President Geo. Ballard for the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, to-morrow night. Matters of considerable importance to the senior clubs will be taken up.

It is not likely that a general meeting of the O.R.F.U. will be held before a couple of weeks at least.

The local enthusiasts are already talking about the game and the prospects for the season, and it is likely that the annual meeting will be held in a shot time. From present indications Peterborough will have a senior team again this year.

FRENCH TROOPS WOUNDED.

Fighting Still Continues In Morocco —Another Port Bombarded.

Casablanca, Aug. 24.—Twelve Frenchmen were wounded during the fighting Wednesday. They include Capt. Detulles of the foreign legation. A battery of 75 millimetre guns was disembarked from a transport and used shrapnel with tremendous effect upon the enemy. The Arabs again showed reckless courage. They would ride close up to the French camp, dismount and fire persistently until they were disperse by the shell fire from the cruiser Glore.

The cruiser Gueydon has bombarded the port of Fidallah, to the north of Casablanca. The smugglers of arms had their headquarters at Fidallah.

Tangier, Aug. 23.—The Government troops, under command of Elmerani, the uncle of the Sultan, have been defeated by the Kmass tribesmen. Elmerani retreated in the direction of Alcasar.

Elmerani's defeat means there is danger of the hill tribes looting Alcasar. Three days ago Raisuli, who is holding Caid Sir Harry MacLean prisoner, was not more than eight miles from Elmerani's headquarters.

Paris, Aug. 23.—Vice-Admiral Philibert, commanding the French naval forces off Casablanca, telegraphs that while the Moors were advancing on the French camp near Casablanca Wednesday morning under the cover of a fog, the fog lifted and permitted the French batteries ashore and afloat to shell the Moors with deadly effect.

FRANCO-CANADIAN TREATY.

Tariff Negotiations Are Progressing Satisfactorily.

London, Aug. 23.—The Standard's Paris correspondent says the Franco-Canadian tariff negotiations are progressing satisfactorily. French efforts are devoted to obtaining modifications in the intermediate tariff. France is particularly anxious to succeed because this is the first treaty Canada has proposed in deference to the sentimental regard of the French-Canadian.

BIG ORDER FOR WARSHIPS.

Government Supposed to Be Russia Wants More Vessels.

London, Aug. 23.—A foreign Government, supposed to be Russia, says The Chronicle, has awarded to a British firm of shipbuilders a contract for several battleships, cruisers and gunboats, a record insurance of nearly $35,000,000 has been effected on the building and launching risks, the policies covering two years.

The New York Stock Market

New York Aug. 23.—The news this morning was mostly of a negative character, and it was thought probable, therefore, that the market would continue to be influenced by technical conditions. Such pressure as there was upon the active stocks came almost entirely from the professional element. The volume of transactions was smaller, and tended to become smaller as prices receded. Absence of liquidation was acted upon short selling. While we do not think the situation sufficiently clear as yet to permit of an extensive movement, some further improvement would be logical in view of the evident decline.

In the afternoon, when wheat and corn advanced so violently on reports of damage by frosts in the Northwest, the stocks sagged off quite fast, losing two points or more, and closing well toward the low for the day.

New Branch of Colonial Office Arising From Imperial Conference.

London, Aug. 23.—In the House of Lords, Lord Elgin announced that it was proposed to divide the Colonial Office into three departments, instead of four, as now. One is to be a Dominion department, exclusively for business of the self-governing colonies; the second for crown colonies; the third for legal and financial business; the last to have seven assistants under the Secretary of States, for duties arising out of the Imperial Conference. Mr. Just, joint secretary of the conference, is to be appointed.

Enormous Daily Loss Sustained By The World

Billions of Dollars Each Day Lost to the World by Death—Value of Man Placed at $10,000

HOW IT FIGURES OUT

Every morning in the year the sun rises upon 100,000 new-made graves, which hold a hundred thousand human forms from which the life has gone out—a billion dollars of material worth. How much of this loss of life and property is necessary, or inevitable? This is a question not easy to answer, but it may be safely asserted that half, at least, of the annual death rate is due to preventable causes, and there are good authorities who do not hesitate to claim an unnecessary rate of human life amounting to fully nine-tenths of the annual mortality. Who can form even a moderate conception of a daily loss amounting to half a billion or over a billion dollars, or $200,000,000,000 a year?

Under the heading, "The World's Daily Loss," the Iowa Health Bulletin gives some very startling data, as follows:—"Statisticians publish, now and then, summaries of the annual losses from fire, cyclones, shipwrecks, and various other destructive forces. The enormous totals of these property losses are often appalling, representing a sum sufficient to build a great metropolis or pay a national debt; but the greatest loss of all is seldom referred to. The loss of material is a calamity; but what can be said of the loss of human life? No proper estimate can be put upon the worth of a human life. We know not what might be the value of the life work of any single human being. The smallest infant may be the embryo of a discoverer, an inventor, of sources of wealth beyond estimate in amount. The state places the minimum value of a man's life at $5,000, because at $1 a day a man can earn $300 a year, which is the interest at 6 per cent. on $5,000. But, reckoning a man's time worth $2.75 a day, and placing interest at 4 per cent., as fair rate, a man's value should be placed at $20,000. To be sure, our estimate is modest; however, we will divide this amount, and fix the money value of a life at $10,000. Let us now compute on this basis the world's daily and annual losses from destruction of human lives by war, accident and disease. The average length of human life at the present time is conceded to be about 40 years. This means that of every thousand persons living, 25 die annually. This is true in civilized lands, like the United States. In such half-civilized countries as Mexico, for example, the death rate is much higher. The death rate in Mexico is so great, in fact, that the average length of life is reduced to barely 17 years, which means a mortality rate of 60 per thousand. It is probable that the same rate holds good for most savage and semi-savage countries. The greatest loss is from infant mortality. The savage infant has a hard chance for its life. The estimate that the world's death rate is 25 per thousand is not, then, an extravagant one, but represents less than the actual truth. What, then, is the sum total of the world's daily and yearly loss of life? Estimating the world's population at fifteen hundred million ($1,500000,000) and the total annual death rate at 25 per thousand means not less than 37,500,000, or nearly forty million deaths annually (doubtless actually more than this). This is at the rate of 103,000 deaths every day. These figures are truly appalling. Think of it, a whole city, a great army, wiped out every day of the year. The money value of these lives is represented by a sum 10,000 times as great, $1,030,000,000, an amount equal to the national debt. And not once only does this loss occur, as in the case of a fire or earthquake, but every day of the year, and year after year.

Haunts of The Feathered Game In Eastern Lakes

Havelock The Centre of Numerous Waters Where The Wild Duck Abounds Among The Marshes.

ADVICE TO THE FOWLER

Special Correspondence

Havelock, August 24th.—The duck shooting season which commences on September 1st, will soon be here and those that are intending to spend part or whole of the season in quest of this member of the feathered tribe will be picking out the best and most convenient place for the carrying out of their the rice and weed beds plenty of

Probably the best place for duck shooting for those from Peterborough and Toronto, is at the streams surrounding and north of the village of Havelock, 25 miles east of Peterborough, 100 miles east of Toronto.

ducks can be had. About three miles east of Trent River is an expansion called Mud Lake, where the ducks are very plentiful, but this place being the most easily reached is visited by large numbers and therefore it is most advisable to visit the lakes north of Havelock.

Ranging northward of Havelock is a region of forest, lake and stream which combines picturesque scenery with good prospects for duck shooting. A far-reaching chain of beautiful lakes extends through this country, linked together by small streams navigable by canoes, excepting in a few places where portages must be made.

Beginning at the south of the chain, the principal waters are Crow, Belmont, Round, Oak, Kashabogamog, Deer, Blue, Twin, Sandy, Jacks, Tonomous, White, Gull and Eagle.

Beginning at Crow Lake duck shooting is fairly good, but no very large flocks are got until North River, is reached. This river runs into Belmont Lake and is navigable as far up as Burnt dams, where the Havelock Electric Light Power House is situated. Above Burnt dams in some large coves covered by weeds there is an excellent place to get large numbers of ducks for when the season begins they all leave Round Lake and settle in that place.

Going farther north from Round Lake the ducks become more plentiful. You can have an excellent time at Belmont and Round Lakes and capture a large assortment of ducks at minimum expense and trouble, but if you have the time you can have a very enjoyable trip by going farther north and visiting some of the following lakes:—Blue, Twin, Gull, Eagle, Tonomous and Sandy. The shooting in these places is about the same as already described, the general characteristics of all these lakes are so similar as to render separate description superfluous, the only thing to be kept in mind is that the farther north you go, the more plentiful the ducks are, and that they are found mostly in the weed beds of small streams where they think they have a chance to escape to the forest on either hand.

No matter at what time of the day or night you reach Havelock you can always get the Merrymen to transport you to whatever part you wish. All the lakes and rivers mentioned can be reached by a drive over fair roads. Trent River is only three miles distant; Round, 7 miles; Belmont, 6 miles, while Koshabogamog is 25 miles. If you visit Trent, Round or Belmont lakes you can find accommodation at several large boarding houses situated on their banks, while if you visit any of the northern lakes it is more advisable to take your tent and provisions along with you so that you can move your quarters to any place you wish. If you do not like the idea of living under canvas, comfortable accommodation can be obtained with settlers in the vicinity of any of the above mentioned lakes.

If you take a rod and line along with you and try your luck at the art of fishing you will be richly rewarded for in any of these lakes or rivers a fine assortment of fish can be procured in a half a day. If you use either minnow, frog, craw fish or worm bait in these waters you will find them excellent but it is best to carry several kinds of bait for bass are capricious fish and while one day they would not look at a big, fat, juicy dew-worm, another day they would prefer them to any other bait. Live minnow as a rule is the most killing bait and can be easily procured.

A week spent in these regions in quest of fish and ducks is sure to prove a most delightful outing.

Popularity Of Mission Furniture To Continue

HISTORY OF ITS ADOPTION

The present era of popularity of the Mission style of furniture is of very recent growth, although styles have been pointed which were manufactured fifteen years ago, and which are almost identical with the Mission. Owing to some vagary of the public fancy the manufacture of these was discontinued, and it remained for a later date to see the acceptance of the Mission idea. In view of the immense vogue of the Mission style at present, the dealer is often tempted to ask himself how long this will last, and if the style has reached the height of its popularity. In the opinion of many of those competent to judge, it has not; it is also thought that, though slight modifications may be introduced, the style is destined to grow in public favour and demand.

Mission furniture, as the name suggests, originated with the early Spanish-California missions of the Jesuits, and is characterised by a plainness and simplicity of style which affords a welcome relief from many of those the market to-day. An old chest and a settee from one of these ancient missions, having fallen into the hands of a collector of antiques, is said to have furnished the motive for the American adaptation of the style. At nearly the same time at which the Mission made its appearance in this country, another style was developed in the Old Country which has many points of resemblance. This was the Arts and Crafts. This was due in the first instance to a revival of the art ideas of William Morris.

The Mission, on account of its resemblance in some respects, is often connected with the Gothic, and goes very well with the latter style of architecture and furnishings, though it should certainly be regarded as a distinct style. One modification of the Mission has been called the "Quaint." This differs from the ordinary Mission in the employment of a marquetry consisting of quaint, simple lines, purely conventional, and exceedingly decorative and pleasing in its best forms. Metal decoration in brass, copper and pewter are used in the form of bindings, straps, hinges, fastenings, escutcheon plates, etc. A marked increase in this style has been noted in England of late, the tendency in this country being to class the lot—including Moorish, Gothic, Arts and Crafts, Quaint, etc.—as simply Mission.

The Mission has many admirable points to recommend it. It is straight, simple, solid, dignified, and full of character. It has been stated that it was designed to withstand the frequent earthquake shocks of Southern California, but, however this may be, it occupies a distinct place among furniture styles, and is decidedly characteristic of American taste and ideas. Mission furniture was originally constructed from the rough timber, and fastened together without any nails or glue, the mortise tenon and dowel being the only contrivances used. In upholstering Mission, leather is the principal material used, as corresponding more closely with its dignity and strength of outline. Shades of red and brown or dark green are the most frequently used, and the most suitable and appropriate wood is the oak, in the turned or weathered style and invariably in the wax or dull finish. The style seems specially suited for the den, the dining room, hall and library, etc., and has even been quite successfully reproduced in bedroom furniture.

It is Reported to be in Good Condition in Prince Edward County—Dairymen Happy

SATISFACTORY RETURNS

Referring to the situation in connection with the cheese industry in Victoria County, to which the Examiner devoted some attention a despatch from Picton to the Kingston Whig says:

That is a sad picture painted by the Peterborough Examiner on the "Decadence of the Cheese Industry." It sounds depressing of the existing conditions in Peterborough district, that several of the cheese factories in the best districts have not been operated this season. A look in at Prince Edward tells a different story, one of industrious thrift, and steadily increasing enthusiasm, in the industry. The factories opened this year in Prince

MANY ALTERATIONS AT VATICAN

Improvements to Cost $1,000,000, Which Will Enable Better Display of Art Treasures to be Made

SEVERAL CHANGES MADE

Examiner Special,

ROME, Aug. 24.—Improvements which will cost about $1,000,000 are to be made in the Vatican palace as soon as practicable in order to enlarge the library, the printing office and the museum and gallerie containing the famous collection of paintings. Architect Schneider has submitted for the Pope's approval a huge transformation plan, which includes the doing away with perhaps twenty apartments at present occupied by employees. This would add room to the famed galleries and museums of the Vatican.

It has been found that the space for exhibits was too restricted and that visitors could be better accommodated if an extension were made. It was then decided to turn all the apartments immediately adjoining the museums and galleries into huge rooms in which could be placed some of the valuable works of art.

The plan will affect about a hundred members of the Vatican household who have for years been enjoying free lodgings, and more than twenty families have already been notified that they should secure lodgings outside the Vatican.

DOES THIS INTEREST YOU?

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder diseases, attributes a great deal of his success to the following simple vegetable prescription:—

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;

One ounce Compound Salatone;

Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mix, shake well, and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Your druggist can supply the ingredients, and the mixture can be prepared at home at very little expense.

This, the doctor says, acts directly on the kidneys, assisting them to filter the poisons from the blood and expel same in the urine, at the same time restoring the kidneys to healthy, normal action.

We feel that a great many readers will be pleased to learn of this simple prescription, and knowing the ability of the physician whose formula it is, we do not hesitate to recommend it to any sufferer.

DO NOT TREAT SYMPTOMS, GET AT THE CAUSE.

Indigestion, dyspepsia, and biliousness surely indicate that there is something wrong with the liver, kidneys and bowels. So-called cures for indigestion do not go to the root of the matter. Remove the cause and the symptoms will disappear. King Palmetto Compound succeeds where everything else fails, because it acts directly on the kidneys, liver and nerves. You are not ask to take these statements on faith. Look at the formula, we print it on the wrapper, and explain it fully in our printed matter, which goes with every bottle. If you are not acquainted with the action of the drugs of which it is composed, ask your physician. He will tell you that Saw Palmetto has wonderful efficacy in regulating the kidneys and that Cascara Sagrada is the best tonic and stimulant for the bowels known to medical science. These are only two of the constituents of King Palmetto Compound, the rest have equal merit. It is not a cure-all, but it will prevent the development of incurable diseases. It will not only relieve, but permanently remove the cause of constipation, that foe of health which is responsible for more than half the diseases that afflict the human race. Is your digestion imperfect? Are your bowels irregular? Are you bilious? If so, now is the time to act. Send for a free sample bottle of King Palmetto Compound to-day. Address King Palmetto Company, Bridgeburg, Ontario. This medicine is made upon honor and sold upon merit. One dose a day will meet your needs.

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

"Enfin, as I said, the two young gentlemen were quite sans le sou, for things had come to a point where M. le Duc looked pretty black at any application for funds—he has other uses for his gold, you see. One day monsieur was expecting some one to whom he was to pay a thousand pistoles, and to have the money handy he put it in a secret drawer in his cabinet in the room yonder. The man arrives and is taken to monsieur's private room. Monsieur gives him his orders and goes to the cabinet for his pistoles. No pistoles there!"

Marcel paused dramatically. "And what then?" I asked.

"Well, it appears he had once shown M. le Comte the trick of the drawer, so he sent for him—not to accuse him, mind you. For M. le Comte is wild enough, yet monsieur did not think he would steal pistoles, nor would he, I will stake my oath. No, monsieur merely asked him if he had ever shown any one the drawer, and M. le Comte answered, 'Only Grammont.'"

"And how have you learned all this?"

"Oh, one hears."

"One does with one's ears to the keyhole."

"It behooves you, Felix, to be civil to your better!"

I made pretense of looking about me.

"Where is he?"

"He sits here. I am page to the Duke of St. Quentin. And you?"

"Touche!" I admitted bitterly enough. Little Marcel, my junior, my unquestioning follower in the old days, was now indeed my better, quite in a position to patronize.

"Continue, if you please, Marcel. Yet in passing I should like to ask you how much you heard of our talk in there just now."

"Nothing," he answered candidly. "When they are so far down the room one cannot hear a word. In the affair of the pistoles they stood near the cabinet at this end. One could not help but hear. As for listening at keyholes I scorn it."

"Yes, it is well to scorn it. People have an unpleasant trick of opening doors so suddenly."

He laughed cheerfully.

"Old Vigo caught us, certes. Let's see, where was I? Oh, yes, when monsieur put on his proud look and said if it was a case of no one but his son and his cousin he preferred to drop the matter. But M. le Comte got out of him what the trouble was and went off for Grammont, red as fire. The two together came back to monsieur and denied up and down that either of them knew aught of his pistoles or had told of the secret to any one. They say it was easy to see that monsieur did not believe Grammont, but he did not give him the lie, and the matter came near dropping there, for M. le Duc would not accuse a kinsman. But then Lucas gave a new turn to the affair."

"How long has Lucas been here, Marcel? Who is he?"

"Oh, he's a rascal of a Huguenot. Monsieur picked him up at Mantes just before we came to the city. And if he spies on monsieur's enemies as well as he does on this household he must be a useful man. He has that long nose of his in everything, let me tell you. Of course he was present when monsieur missed the pistoles. So then, quite on his own account, without any orders, he took two of the men and searched M. de Grammont's room. And in a locked chest of his which they forced open they found five hundred of the pistoles in the very box monsieur had kept them in."

"And then?"

Marcel made a fine gesture.

"And then, pardieu! the storm broke. M. de Grammont raved like a madman. He said Lucas was the thief and had put half the sum in his chest to divert suspicion. He said it was a plot to ruin him contrived between monsieur and his henchman, Lucas. It is true enough, certes, that monsieur never liked him. He threatened monsieur's life and Lucas's. He challenged monsieur, and monsieur declined to cross swords with a thief. He challenged Lucas, and Lucas took the cue from monsieur. I was not there—on either side of the door. What I tell you has leaked out bit by bit from Lucas, for monsieur keeps his mouth shut. The upshot of the matter was that Grammont goes at Lucas with a knife, and monsieur has the guards pitch my gentleman into the street. Then M. le Comte swore a big oath that he would go with Grammont. Monsieur told him if he went in such company it would be forever. M. le Comte swore he would never come back under his father's roof if M. le Duc crawled to him on his knees to beg him."

"Ah!" I cried; "and then?"

"Marry, that's all. M. le Comte went straight out of this gate without horse or squire. And we have not heard a word of either of them since."

He paused, and when I made no comment said, a trifle aggrieved:

"Eh bien, you take it calmly, but you would not had you been here. It was an altogether lively affair. It wouldn't surprise me a whit if some day monsieur should be attacked as he drives out. He's not one to forget an injury, this M. Gervais de Grammont."

At the name intelligence flashed over me, sudden and clear as last night's lightning gleam. Yet this thing I seemed to see was so hideous, so horrible that my mind recoiled from it.

"Marcel," I stammered, shuddering, "Marcel"—

"Mordieu! what ails you? Is some one walking on your grave?"

"Marcel, how is M. le Comte named?"

"The Comte de Mar? Oh, do you mean his names in baptism? Charles-Andre-Etienne-Marie. They call him Etienne. Why do you ask? What is it?"

It was a certainty, then. Yet I could not bring myself to believe this horrible thing.

"I have never seen him. How does he look?"

"Oh, not at all like monsieur. He has only fair hair and gray eyes—que diable!"

For I had flung open monsieur's door and dashed in.

CHAPTER IX.

Monsieur was seated at his table talking in a low tone and hurriedly to Lucas. They started and stared as I broke in upon them, and then monsieur cried out to me:

"Ah, Felix! You have come to your senses."

"I will tell monsieur all, the whole story."

He tested my honesty with a glance, then looked beyond me at Marcel, standing agape in the doorway.

"Leave us, Marcel. Go downstairs. Leave that door open and shut the door into the corridor."

"Now, Felix."

I had hardly been able to hold my words back while Marcel was disposed of.

"Monsieur, I know not myself the names of those men. Now I have found out. They"—

My eyes met the secretary's fixed excitedly upon me and the words died on my tongue. Even in my rage I had the grace to know that this was no story to tell monsieur before another.

"I will tell monsieur alone."

"You may speak before M. Lucas," he rejoined impatiently.

"No," I persisted. "I must tell monsieur alone."

He saw in my face that I had strong reasons for asking it, and said to the secretary:

"You may go, Lucas."

Lucas protested.

"M. le Duc will be wiser not to see him alone. He is not to be trusted Perchance, monsieur, this demand covers an attack on your life."

The warning nettled my lord. He answered curtly:

"You may go."

"Monsieur"—

"Go!"

Lucas passed out, giving me as he went, a look of hatred that startled me. But I did not pay it much heed.

"Well!" exclaimed monsieur.

But by this time I had bethought myself what a story it was I had to tell a father of his son. I could not blurt it out in two words. I stood silent, not knowing how to start.

"Felix! Beware how much longer you abuse my patience!"

"Monsieur," I began, "the spy in the house is named Martin."

"Ah!" cried monsieur. "So it is Louis Martin. How he knew—— But go on. The others"——

"I lay the night in the Rue Coupejarrets, not far from the St. Denis gate," I said, still beating about the bush, "at the sign of the Amour de Dieu. Opposite is a closed house, shuttered with iron from garret to cellar. You can enter from a court behind. It is here that they plot."

Monsieur's brows drew together as if he were trying to recall something half remembered, half forgotten.

"But the men," he cried, "the men!"

"They are three. One a low fellow named Pontou."

"Pontou? The name is nothing to me. The others?" He was leaning forward eagerly. I knew of what he was thinking—the quickest way to reach the Rue Coupejarrets.

"There are two others, monsieur," I said slowly. "Young men—noble."

"Their names, lad!"

Then, seeing him unsuspecting, the fury in my heart surged up and covered every other feeling. I burst out:

"Gervais de Grammont and the Comte de Mar."

He looked me in the face, and he knew I was telling the truth. Unexpected as it was, hideous as it was, yet he knew I was telling the truth.

I had seen cowards turn pale, but never the color washed from a brave man's face. The sight made my fingers itch to strangle that gray-eyed cheat.

With a cry monsieur sprang toward me.

"You lie, you cur!"

"No, monsieur," I gasped; "it is the truth."

He let me go then and laid his hand on the collar of the dog, who had sprung to his aid. But monsieur had got a hurt from which the dumb beast's loyalty could not defend him. He stood with bowed head, a man stricken to the heart's core. Full of wrath as I was the tears came to my eyes for monsieur.

"It is some damnable mistake. You have been tricked!"

"No! They tricked me once. Not again! Not this time. I knew not who they were till now, when I talked with Marcel. The two things fitted."

"Then it is your guess. You dare to say"——

"No, I know!" I interrupted rudely, too excited to remember respect. "Shall I tell what these men were like? I had never seen M. le Comte nor M. de Grammont before. One was broad-shouldered and heavy, with a black beard and a black scowl, whom the other called Gervais. The younger was called Etienne, tall and slender, with gray eyes and fair hair. And like monsieur!" I cried, suddenly aware of it. "Mordieu! how he is like, though he is light! In face, in voice, in manner! He speaks like monsieur. He has monsieur's laugh. I was blind not to see it. I believe that was why I loved him so much."

"It was he whom you would not betray?"

"Aye. That was before I knew."

Thinking of the trust I had given him my wrath boiled up again. Monsieur took me by the shoulder and looked at me as if he would look through me to the naked soul.

"How do I know that you are not lying?"

"Monsieur does know it."

"Yes," he answered after a moment. "Alas! yes, I know it."

He stood looking at me, with the dreariest face I ever saw—the face of a man whose son has sought to murder him. Looking back on it now I wonder that I ever went to monsieur with that story. I wonder why I did not bury the shame and disgrace of it in my own heart, at whatever cost Keep it from monsieur. But the thought never entered my head then. I was so full of black rage against Yeux-Gris—him most of all, because he had won me so—that I could feel nothing else. I knew that I pitied monsieur, yet I hardly felt it.

"Tell me everything—how you met them—all. Else I shall not believe a word of your devilish rigmarole," monsieur cried out.

I told him the whole shameful story, every word—from my lightning vision to my gossip with Marcel in the antechamber, he listening in hopeless silence. At length I finished. It seemed hours since he had spoken. At last he said, "Then it is true." The grayness of his face drew the cry from me:

"The villain! the black-hearted villain!"

"Take care, Felix, he is my son!"

I got hold of my cross and tore it off, breaking the chain.

"See, monsieur. That is the cross on which he swore the plot was not against you. He swore it, and Gervais de Grammont laughed! I swore too never to betray them! Two perjuries!"

I flung the cross on the floor and stamped on it, splintering it.

"Profaner!" cried monsieur.

"It is no sacrilege!" I retorted. "That is no holy thing since he has touched it. He has made it vile—scoundrel, assassin, parricide!"

Monsieur struck the words from my lips.

"It is true," I muttered.

"Were it ten times true you have no right to say it."

"No, I have none," I answered, shamed. I might not speak ill of a St. Quentin, though he were the devil's own. But my rage came uppermost again.

"I can bring monsieur to the house in twenty minutes. Vigo and a handful of men can take them prisoners before they can suspect aught amiss. They are only three—he and Grammont and the lackey."

But monsieur shook his head.

"I cannot do that."

"Why not, monsieur?"

"Can I take my own son prisoner?"

"Monsieur need not go," said I, wondering. In his place I would have gone and killed Yeux-Gris with my own hands. "Vigo and I and two more can do it. Vigo and I alone if monsieur would not shame him before the men."

My blade buried itself in the side of the basket.

I guessed at what he was thinking.

"Not even you and Vigo," he answered. "Think you I would arrest my son like a common felon—shame him like that?"

"He has shamed himself!" I cried. I cared not whether I had a right to say it. "He has forgotten his honor."

"Aye. But I have remembered mine."

"Monsieur! Monsieur cannot mean to let him go scot-free?"

But his eyes told me that he did mean it.

"Then," I said in more and more amazement, "monsieur forgives him?"

His face set sternly.

"No," he answered. "No, Felix. He has placed himself beyond my forgiveness."

"Then we will go there alone, we two, and kill him! Kill the three!"

He laughed. But not a man in France felt less mirthful.

"You would have me kill my son?"

"He would have killed you."

"That makes no difference."

I looked at him, groping after the thoughts that swayed him and catching at them dimly. I knew them for the principles of a proud and honor-ruled man, but there was no room for them in my angry heart.

"Monsieur," I cried, "will you let three villains go unpunished for the sake of one?" It was what I had meant to do awhile back, but the case was changed now.

"Of two: Gervais de Grammont is also of my blood."

"Monsieur would spare him as well—him, the ringleader!"

"He is my cousin."

"He forgets it."

"But I do not."

"Monsieur, will you have no vengeance?"

Monsieur looked at me.

"When you are a man, Felix Broux, you will know that there are other things in this world besides vengeance. You will know that some injuries cannot be avenged. You will know that a gentleman cannot use the same weapons that blackguards use to him."

"Ah, monsieur!" I cried. "Monsieur is indeed a nobleman!" But I was furious with him for it.

He turned abruptly and paced down the room. The dog, which had been standing at his side, stayed still, looking from him to me with puzzled, troubled eyes. He knew quite well, something was wrong and vented his feelings in a long, dismal whine. Monsieur spoke to him; Roland bounded up to him and licked his hand. They walked up and down together, comforting each other.

"At least," I cried in desperation, "monsieur has the spy."

He laughed. Only a man in utter despair could have laughed then as he did.

"Even the spy to wreak vengeance on consoles you somewhat, Felix? But does it seem to you fair that a tool should be punished when the leaders go free?"

"No," said I; "but it is the common way."

"That is a true word," he said, turning away again.

I waited till he faced me once more.

"Monsieur will not suffer the spy to go free?"

"No, Felix. He shall be punished lest he betray again."

He passed me in his dreary walk. Half a dozen times he passed by me, a broken-hearted man, striving to collect his courage to take up his life once more. But I thought he would never get over the blow. A husband may forget his wife's treachery and a mother will forgive her child's, but a father can neither forget nor forgive the crime of the son who bears his name.

"Ah, monsieur, you are noble and I love you!" I cried from the depths of my heart, and knelt to kiss his hand.

Monsieur laid that kind hand on my shoulder.

"You shall serve me. Go now and send Vigo here. I must be looking to the country's business."

CHAPTER X.

I cursed myself for a fool that I had carried the tale to monsieur. It should have been my business to keep a still tongue and go kill Yeux-gris myself. For this last it was not yet too late.

Marcel was hanging about in the corridor, and to him I gave the word for Vigo. I tore away from his eager questionings and hurried to the gate.

In the morning I had not been able to get in, and now I could no more get out. By Vigo's orders no man might leave the house.

Vigo was after the spy, of course. Monsieur knew the traitor now; he would inform Vigo and the gates would be open for honest men. But that might take time and I could not wait five minutes. I had the audacity to cry to the guards:

"M. le Duc will let me pass out. I refer you to M. le Duc."

The men were impressed. They had a respect for me, since I had been closeted with monsieur. Yet they dared not disobey Vigo for their lives. In this dilemma the poor sentry, fearful of getting into trouble whatever he did, sent up an envoy to ask monsieur. I was frightened then. I had uttered my speech in sheer bravado and was very doubtful as to how he would answer my impudence. But he was utterly careless, I trow, what I did, for presently the word came down that I might pass out.

BUSINESS TRAINING FREE

Business Systems Commercial School Limited, founded upon practical up-to-date business lines, formed from new scientific methods, to teach business as business is done, basing their instructions upon forms and supplies identical with those now used in the most modern business houses, has an idea regarding advertising.

To work out this idea they want your assistance, and are willing to pay you, yes, to pay you well for it. Is your brain fertile, is it active, is it in good working order? If so "get busy".

We want a good "catch phrase" to use in our advertising, we want the best "catch phrase" obtainable. We have some good ones, but they may not be the best. We want the best, the best is none to good for Business Systems Commercial School, "The Best for Business Training". We now have the best rooms, best equipment, the best teachers, the best plan of work, and will undoubtedly give by far the best courses of training. We also want to do the best advertising, that young people from all parts of the country will know of the special advantages provided for them by this school, "The Essence of Essential Education", "The Pith of Practical Principles".

We are prepared to give to three persons, six months, four months, and two months, respectively of this "best business training" free of any tuition charges. The three persons mentioned will be the first three who send us three best "catch phrases" or should the one selected as the best be sent by three persons, they will rank in order as received, first received will be given first place, second received, second place, and third received, third place. All other contestants who send in the phrase selected as the best and who subsequently enter our school for at least a three month's course, will be given one month as a bonus, free of tuition charges.

All contestants must be candidates for a business training for at least a portion of the School Year of 1907-1908, or in other words, all persons competing must be elegible for, and purpose taking before June 1908, at least a one month's course in Day or Evening Classes in some Commercial School or Business College.

It costs nothing to try except a little brain exercise, and a few moments time writing to us. Talk it over with your friends, and those who are not competing, get their ideas with your own, remembering that two heads are better than one.

The shorter the phrase the better, as long as one or more good ideas are conveyed.

All answers must reach us not later than September 30th. If at a distance mail in time.

In order that you may the better know something of the special advantages of this school, and thus get ideas to use in the forming of the phrase, we will be pleased to mail all contestants upon request, a Booklet descriptive of our sncool and it's courses of study. Fall Term begins Tuesday, Sept. 3rd. Mention this paper when writing.

THE RECORD CALORIFIC

manufactured especially for the heating of large halls and public edifices, is designed to thoroughly warm the greatest amount of cold air in the least possible time. Entering the flues, as shown in the accompanying cross section of the fire pot, the cold air is taken up through this heated column which overhangs the fire, as illustrated, thus coming in direct contact with all products of combustion, and insuring a very rapid circulation. This warmed air ascending straight through the flues in which it started, can be carried direct, with practically all its heat retained, to the furthest and coldest part of the building. 106

Thermopylae

By MARTHA M'CULLOCH-WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

"I come here to play I am a dryad," Elspeth said, smiling wickedly at Hindon as he toiled after her up the steep and narrow steps that led to a railed platform, weather beaten, but still sound and weight worthy, set in the lower branches of a giant oak. Hindon thought the climbing a crazy performance, but love which makes the fool often a wise man makes the wise man often a fool. And he did not deny to himself he was in love and with the bit of quicksilver he was so painfully following.

"H-m! I seem to remember that dryads were not always all they should be," he said, sitting down so ponderously the branches quivered. Elspeth laughed softly. "You are to have a reward for coming up with me. I adore stories. You may tell me one instead of writing it—the very best story of them all."

"Impossible!" Hindon said gravely. "Don't you know there are but seven stories in the world, and six of them unfit for ladies? That leaves only one. I had much rather live it than tell it."

"No! You must tell it," Elspeth said decisively. "Begin! This is much better fun than private theatricals"—

"I tell you I can't begin. The story has to begin itself," Hindon interrupted. Again Elspeth laughed. "At least you can say how it begins," she murmured. Hindon smothered a growl. "I can tell you what it takes to make a sory," he said. "First, of course, there's a girl"—

"That's me," Elspeth interjected. Hindon nodded. "And a man in love with her"—

"That fits you," Elspeth said incorrigibly. Hindon flushed in spite of himself and bit his lip, but somehow kept his voice gay as he ran on: "And an obstacle—any sort, some sort. The obstacle, you know, is what really makes the story."

"Dear me! What a pity!" Elspeth said. "Yet I quite understand. But for the obstacle the sweethearts would have to marry right at the start and live happy ever after. I think—yes, I'm sure—the obstacle is looming up. See! Jack Delany is getting down at the steps."

"A plague on him, on all Delanys everywhere," Hindon began. Elspeth shook her head at him, saying: "How ungrateful. You said there had to be an obstacle. Could you ask a more proper one than Jack?"

"No! That's just the trouble," Hindon admitted. "You might easily fall in love with Jack—if I were not in his way."

"I believe he has cast you for the obstacle role," Elspeth said demurely, yet with dancing eyes. "You don't play fair—not in the least," she went on. "I asked you for a story—and here I'm making up one for you"—

"You've reduced it to its lowest terms—anyway I don't like it," Hindon broke in, his chin in the air, the light of battle in his eye. He saw Jack Delany sauntering toward the oak, his hat in one hand, the other swinging his ivory mounted crop. Jack was a youth of parts—rich, well bred and disgustingly good to look at. Moreover, he was new. Until a month back Elspeth had never seen him. Hindon had discovered the real Elspeth at about the same distance of time—when he had come down to World's End for silence and a measure of solitude. After years of struggle his latest book had hit the public hard. He wanted its successor to go above and beyond it. Then, just when the opening of it was fairly in mind, he had dined at the dean house and fallen under Elspeth's spell.

There had been a week of rebellion, then submission to the inevitable. He had had a conceit of knowing womenkind, also the verb to love, in all its moods and tenses. Elspeth had shown him how greatly he was mistaken. Hindon had a way with him that most women had found irresistible. After a surfeit of sweets one relishes a wholesome bitter. Elspeth's artless joy over his subjugation had not misled him into thinking she was to be had for the asking. He had two minds about her—one curiously aloof, wholly detached, deer noting the effect of unlikely conquest upon a nature girlishly vain and human and marshaling its impressions as for future reference; another, palpitantly masculine and possessive, alert to win and keep her against all comers.

Now the virile impulse dominated him. As Jack came within hail Hindon swung himself to the head of the steps, clutched a hand upon the rails at either side and half shouted: "Jack, I'm a life saver. You can't come up!"

"Oh, because you're quite too good looking and much too vain—so vain this cranky structure would never bear the weight of it," Hindon flung back at him, settling himself more firmly in his seat.

Jack laughed heartily. "I'm coming! Look out!" he admonished, making a dash for the stair foot. As he touched it Hindon looked down with twinkling eyes, to say: "Remember Thermopylae! Behold me, a new Leonidas, holding the pass!"

"Hang Thermopylae—and all those other sissy games," Jack said, with frank scorn. "I tell you, there's no scaring a fellow that's been through straight football"—

"So I perceive," Hindon said, his twinkle broadening. He turned half about to glance at Elspeth. She was sitting very straight, her hand clinched hard on the book in her lap, the ghost of a dimple flickering in one cheek. The estate in life wherein just now she found herself was clearly not displeasing to her. Cautiously she peeped over the edge of the platform and said to Jack, halting below it: "I wish you would come up, Mr. Delany. We—we are making up a story. Mr. Hindon is going to write it, and you can't imagine how fascinating it is."

"If I can't imagine it, I can find out," Jack said energetically, stepping back five paces to survey the big oak's spread of branches. The branches were broad, and some of them pendulous. Upon the farther side one swaying tip came within six feet of the ground. With a short, running leap Jack caught the tip, felt it slip almost away from him, but managed to keep hold, draw it down and clutch it hand over hand until he came to a place that was stout enough to swing upon. Back and forth, back and forth, he clung and swung, until at last he caught foothold in toward the trunk. Inside three minutes he was sitting upon a branch level with the platform, and but a little way from it, saying, as he lighted a cigarette: "Is this a detective story? You can put me in it as a porch climber or something."

"You're in it already," Elspeth said, smiling with soft malice. Hindon sat blocking the way down, divided between laughing and glowering. "Yes—you're in it, all right enough," he said, nodding toward Delany. "Trouble is to work up a climax that shall leave you out of it altogether."

"I won't be left out—of the story—nor anything," Jack cried, laughing gayly, rising and balancing himself as he spoke. It was a perilous undertaking there on the swaying bough, but he accomplished it, stood stockstill with folded arms for a breadth's space, then leaped lightly to the platform, landing fairly in the middle of it. It was almost twenty feet in air, well stayed betwixt two giant boughs. But the tree in its youth had been topped, so down where the boughs parted, unseen, unsuspected, there was a blotch, rotted and cankerous, weakening fatally the sound outer wood. Therefore under the impact of Delany's leap one bough broke loose at the trunk and crashed down, carrying with it the railed floor and those resting upon it.

As by a miracle Elspeth was flung far out amid cushiony, well leafed branchlets and got up with no worse hurt than the shock. Hindon, white and breathless, also scrambled to his feet, hit with an arm dangling limply beside him. Delany lay motionless, senseless. He had struck his head in falling, cutting an ugly gash.

Elspeth dropped down beside him and laid her cheek against his, crying softly: "Jack! Jack! You won't go and leave me, Jack! This is Elspeth! You love me! You will live for me! Darling, open your eyes! God can't be so cruel as to take you just as I know how I love you."

There was a flutter of the heavy eyelids. Hindon, white and remorseful, touched Elspeth's shoulder. "He is—only stunned," he said. "But, of course, you will never forgive me"—

"There is nothing to forgive," Elspeth said, looking up at him with wet eyes. "Indeed, I owe you much. It was all in fun, and but for it I might not have found out in time about the obstacles."

Looseness of The Bowels.

It is very seldom during the summer months that most people are not troubled with "looseness of the bowels."

Sometimes it only goes that far, but generally it develops into Diarrhoea, Dysentery or Summer Complaint and has a tendency to weaken the whole system.

When the bowels get loosened up in this way and you wish to check the unnatural discharge without bringing on constipation, there is only one remedy to use, and that one is DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY. This remedy is not an experiment as it has been used in thousands of families during the past sixty-two years.

When you ask for DR. FOWLER'S be sure you get it, as many unprincipalled druggists will try to palm off a cheap substitute on you.

Miss M. Hopkins, Roseview, Sask., writes: "I have used DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY and found it is all it is recommended to be for Diarrhoea and Summer Complaint. We would not be without a bottle of it in the house."

THE MEDICINAL VALUE OF FRESH FRUIT JUICES

One of the Greatest Wonders of the Age.

Everyone knows how beneficial fruit is, when eaten regularly. Fruit is nature's laxative—the finest kidney regulator—and the ideal skin tonic. Unfortunately, the medicinal principle of fruit occurs only in minute quantities. In order to consume enough fruit to relieve Biliousness, one would also consume a large amount of woody fibre or pulp, which would upset the stomach and impair digestion.

An Ottawa physician discovered a way to get around these difficulties. He pressed the juice from apples, oranges, figs and prunes—and then forced one more atom of the bitter principle from the discarded orange peels, into the concentrated juices. This formed a new compound, having all the curative effects of fresh fruit—and in a highly intensified degree. Then valuable tonics and internal antiseptics were added and the whole pressed into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives" the wonderful Liver Tablets you hear so much about. "Fruit-a-tives" cure the most obstinate cases of non-action of the bowels, biliousness, headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness, kidney trouble, rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia. They are the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world, while their action on the skin, in clearing and beautifying the complexion, is nothing short of marvelous. Ask your druggist for "Fruit-a-tives" and see that you get them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. By mail, postpaid, from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa. 118

How Whales Are Killed.

The feature attracting the casual observer is the vessel's harpoon gun, situated forward of everything, from which the formidable harpoon is fired into the whale. The gun looks like a small cannon, and about a pound of powder is used to discharge the harpoon, which is rammed home in the same manner as a shot would be and tied from the outside end with a small cord, this breaking, of course, when the gun is fired. The harpoon is a very heavy missile, weighing several hundred pounds, which necessitates its being fired only at pretty close range. The lance head pierces the whale and soon afterward explodes a bomb contained in it, while still farther back on the shaft are barbs, which expand on entering the whale, making it next to impossible for the harpoon to be drawn out again. Each harpoon after being fired has to be straightened by a blacksmith in order to again fit the gun barrel. A stout hemp rope four inches in circumference is attached to the harpoon about eighteen inches from the point. This line is of great flexibility and strength and is manufactured solely for whaling in Norway. A few fathoms of this line are coiled on a plate directly under the gun, the remainder being below decks clear to run. There are two of these lines, each 1,800 feet in length, and sometimes they are none too long for the purpose.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Shakespeare In Disguise.

In these days, when it is the fashion to aver that Shakespeare spells ruin for the manager, it is difficult to believe that in London during the first quarter of the last century his plays were performed under disguised names, so eager were the people to see them.

It was a royal ruling that they should be given only in the so called "patent theaters"—Covent Garden and Drury Lane—and to evade this law "Othello" became "Is He Jealous?" "Macbeth" masqueraded as "Murder Will Out," "The Merchant of Venice" figured on the bills as "Diamond Cut Diamond," "Romeo and Juliet" proclaimed itself as "How to Die For Love," while "Hamlet" hid behind the far cry title "Methinks I See My Father."—Scrap Book.

Boots With a Drawback.

"An army officer in charge of a native district in South Africa presented the Kaffir boy who acted as his particular servant with a pair of strong, heavily nailed ammunition boots," says Chums.

"The boy was delighted with the gift and at once sat down and put the boots on. They were the first pair he ever had, and for several days afterward he strutted proudly about the camp in them. But a few days later he appeared as usual in bare feet, with the boots tied round his neck.

"Hello!" said his master. "Why don't you wear your boots? Are they too small for you?"

"Oh, no, sah," replied the Kaffir, "they plenty big. Berry nice boots, sah, but no good for walking or running. Make um fellah too much slow, sah. Keep boots now for wear in bed."

Origin of a Well Preserved Joke.

Nasica, having called at the house of the poet Ennius, and the maidservant having told him, on his inquiring at the door, that Ennius was not at home, saw that she had said so by her master's order and that he was really within, and when a few days afterward Ennius called at Nasica's house and inquired for him at the gate Nasica cried out that he was not at home. "What!" says Ennius. "Do I not know your voice?" "You are an impudent fellow," rejoined Nasica. "When I inquired for you, I believed your servant when she told me that you were not at home, and will not you believe me when I tell you that I am not at home?"—Cicero's "De Oratore."

University for West?

An effort is being made by certain leading educationists in the three western provinces to establish in some spot in Western Canada a great university.

The question will be brought before the Alberta authorities as soon as Premier Rutherford returns.

It is pointed out, too, that a college of agriculture for the different provinces can be affiliated to the main university.

PURE WATER.

The One Beverage That is the Same Yesterday, Today and Forever.

Water is the king of beverages. It is the beverage to which all turn when they would cure themselves of the injurious habit of consuming other beverages. But water that is not pure may be more harmful than the most harmful of other drinks.

Water is the basis of all other beverages. All beverages of man's manufacture are water that has been adulterated by admixtures and chemical treatment.

Pure water is the one beverage which has stood the test of science and come down to us unscathed through continuous use for countless ages. It is nature's chiefest blessing to man. Other beverages undergo many changes with time. Each age brings them forth in new styles, new methods of manufacture, new processes of chemical treatment, aging and keeping. Foods change with each successive generation. We eat different kinds of foods from time to time. Each generation prepares them differently. There are different methods of compounding them, different methods of cooking them. Pure water is the same yesterday, today and forever.—What to Eat.

Scotland.

Prior to the year 258, which witnessed its invasion by the Scoti, a tribe who inhabited the northern portions of the country now known as Ireland, Scotland bore the name of Caledonia, literally the hilly country of the Caels, or Gaels. The word cael, or gael, is a corruption of Gadhel, signifying in the native tongue "a hidden rover," while Scot, derived from the native scuite, means practically the same thing—i. e., a wanderer. The Caledonians were the inhabitants of the highlands, the termination dun expressing the Celtic for hill, fort, stronghold. The Scots were the invaders from Scotia, who appropriated the Hebrides and western islands, whereas the lowlanders were the Picts, so called from their description by the Romans, picti, painted men. —"Names and Their Meaning."

Nero and His Voice.

In an interesting paper M. Moure and M. Bouyer relate the extraordinary care which the Emperor Nero took of his voice. At night Nero lay on his back, with a thin plate of lead on his stomach. He abstained from fruits and all dishes which could hurt his voice. In order not to damage the purity of its sound he ceased haranguing the soldiers and the senate. He attached to his service an officer specially deputed to take care of his voice. He talked only in the presence of this singular official, who warned him when he spoke too loudly or forced his voice, and if the emperor, carried away by some sudden fit of passion, did not listen to his remonstrances it was his duty to stop his mouth with a napkin.

Bananas.

"Bananas," says an authority, "are by millions of people eaten green or ripe, raw or cooked, are served in all ways in which apples, grains and potatoes are used and are palatable, healthful and nutritious in every way in which they are prepared. They make excellent bread, cakes and pies, puddings, confectionery and coffee substitutes, yield brandy, beer, vinegar, sugar, oil and fibers. They are bought as a luxury by millions who may use them as a staple food. Yet they may be grown profitably in a small area only. Therefore banana culture affords a perfectly safe and gainful use of time and money."

A Cold Turndown.

"Bridget," Mrs. Housekeep called down to her servant, "I see Mrs. Gaddis coming across the street. Run out and turn that door mat upside down."

"Which one, ma'am?" asked Bridget.

"The one that has 'Welcome' on it."

Timber Wolves.

Probably of all animals there is none which has more exciting experiences than a timber wolf. The wolf of fiction is a gaunt, hungry, evil looking animal. The wolf of reality in the north is slick and fat and about 80 pounds for females up to 140 for males. He never chases rabbits, but is willing to finish the remains of an owl's supper. But if some one has put a rabbit down doped with poison he generally polishes that morsel off.

They hunt deer by preconcerted plan. The pack station themselves down wind. Then one makes a circle and comes wind rights on the deer, which may be lying down or feeding, and of course makes a dash, never realizing that there is a circle of death dealing enemies before him. When the deer is coming in full jump the wolf first makes a short spring of six or eight feet, but the next is from twenty to thirty feet, and before the deer realizes danger his end is certain.

But if he chances to get off his doom is sealed, and within three to seven miles he is run down or corralled. They seem to get nervous and excited and to know that there is no escape and turn to bay, and that ends it.

out of the wrong kind of wheat any more than you can make the right kind of bread or pastry out of the wrong kind of flour.

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour is made from hard spring wheat—a wheat that is rich in nutriment, that grinds fine and white, and produces bread and pastry that are wholesome and nourishing as well as light and crisp—it's a flour that begins to be good in the wheat fields, not in the mills.

ENGLAND

The famous portrait by Van Dyck of the Marquis Giovanni Battista Cattaneo, recently acquired by the trustees of the National Gallery for 65,500, has become the centre of an extraordinary mystery. There hangs in Messrs. Graves' galleries in Mall Pall a picture which is almost identical with the potrait in the National Gallery, and which bears across the right hand corner the signature of "Edm. Spenser," with the date 1592, and some indecipherable writing underneath. Van Dyck was not born until 1599. The picture was brought to Messrs. Henry Sutton, and in whose family it has been for many generations. He had seen a reproduction of the Cattaneo portrait, and was struck with the resemblance it bore to the picture on his own walls. It is practically the twin painting to the Cattaneo portrait. The head and the expression of dignity and thought is the same in both pictures; the dress is precisely the same, with the exception of the right flap of the turned-down collar, which is broader in the National Gallery picture. In the "Spenser" portrait the left hand is not visible, but this, it is thought, is due to the canvas having been cut. In both pictures the right hand is in the same position—placing a piece of paper in the breast pocket—and the ring on the third finger is identical down to the smallest detail. The extraordinary riddle to be solved is: How is it that this picture, which has been in an English family for centuries, and dated 1592, is identical with a portrait by Van Dyck which is supposed never to have been out of Italy until it was bought for the National Gallery? A possible solution of the mystery is that Van Dyck saw the Sutton picture during his first brief visit to England in 1620, when he was only twenty-one years old; that he was struck by its excellence, and made a copy of it, which he took back with him to Italy, when he returned there to study in 1623.

"I am only a little girl, just as was the slave child of Naaman, but it has pleased God to deliver, through me, as He delivered through her, the message which I bring." Frances Bradley Storr, a tiny, solemn figure of a girl, in a short cream frock, stood upon the platform at Eston, a little village between Middlesbrough and Redcar on a recent Sunday morning, and addressed a tense crowded congregation that hung upon her every word. There were those who came to hear the twelve-year-old Doncaster child preach who "came to scoff, and remained to pray." It was the strangest congregation. Old men and women, young mothers carrying their babies, fashionable folk from the great towns in the district, they filled every seat and crowded the gangways of the hall. When the child preacher rose, and spreading like a tremble ran through the packed congregation, a most wonderful thing happened, for with the knowledge that emotion lay like an instrument to her hand to play upon, and with all the possibilities apparent, she struck the calmest, most soothingly key of all—humanity—and the audience relaxed into dead silence. Her sermon was upon a text from Kings II, chapter v., v. 3. 'And she said unto her mistress, 'Would God my Lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria, for he would recover him of his leprosy.'" Behind a shaky little table covered with a red cloth, and with only the postcard on which were written in childish, sprawling characters the notes of her sermon, she made a curiously pathetic little figure. She is a child with a calm, sweet face, and eyes that look steadily from face to face in the audience. She appeals to one at once as sincerity itself.

The strange ceremony of the "Return of Souls" took place recently at the temple of the "Al Ahmedans"—an extreme Mohammedan sect in King's Cross Road, London. The two Circassian priests, who had been "watching" since dawn, threw open the doors of the temple, and the faithful filed silently in. Then the doors were closed and the congregation (which numbered about forty) knelt in prayer. Soon the vestry door opened, and the two priests entered and approached the altar, closely followed by the High Priest. The former wore white turbans and flowing white muslin robes, but the High Priest wore a bejewelled turban of white silk, a white muslin skirt, and a tunic of gorgeous scarlet silk. In their hands the two priests bore a handsome box of Oriental design. The High Priest knelt and prayed and when he rose from his knees the congregation stood also. Lifting the lid of the box, the High Priest took from it a dove—the emblem of purity. From his belt he drew a long narrow bladed knife. "Ekkei?" he asked of the congregation. "Toonali" came the quick and excited response. "Attara?" he asked. "Dekkil" With one swift stroke of the knife the dove's head was severed from its body. This action, according to the belief of the Al Ahmedans, has wiped out their sins for the past twelve months. Silently kneeling they offered up prayers to the prophet, who permitted the departed souls of their relatives to visit them during these quiet moments.

Britain's newest battleship, the Bellerophon, which was launched at Portsmouth recently by Princess Henry of Battenburg, is a great improvement on the Dreadnought. She is 700 tons heavier, her displacement being 18,600 tons to the Dreadnought's 17,900. Her length is 490 feet, maximum breadth 83 feet, load draught 27 feet. She is the largest and will be the most heavily armed vessel in the world. The machinery is to be of 23,000 indicated horsepower, and the speed 21 knots, steam being supplied from water-tube boilers. The machinery is to be on the turbine principle, as the Admiralty are thoroughly satisfied with the results obtained by the Dreadnought's machinery during her long series of trials. So far as the main armament is concerned, the Bellerophon will be similarly armed to the Dreadnought. She will carry ten 21-inch guns, which will be mounted in pairs in barbettes, three forward and two aft. The ship will have a right ahead fire of six guns, but as the after of the two barbettes astern is to be raised to a higher level than the other, her astern fire will be eight guns, and the broadside fire will be eight guns. For resisting torpedo-boat attacks the Bellerophon will have 4-inch guns instead of 12-pounders, as in the case of the Dreadnought. Internally she is similar to the Dreadnought. She is divided into several watertight compartments, and below the waterline there is no opening in the bulkheads of any kind. The officers will live forward and amidships and the crew aft.

SCOTLAND

The authorities of Fort William were recently notified of a gruesome discovery made amid the solitudes of the trackless Moor of Rannoch. A workman employed at the Loch Laven Water Power Works, who had walked from there via Blackwater, came across the body of a man lying under the shade of a large boulder. Making his way to the railway, which is about three miles distant from the spot, he trudged on to Rannoch, and there reported the matter. Mist and darkness settling in however, the search had to be postponed until next day. The informant accompanied the search party, but for a time had difficulty in locating the spot where the body lay. In the meantime one of the searchers was somewhat taken back by coming across the skeleton of a second man. Being assured that this was not the corpse which was being sought, the search proceeded with the result that the other body was discovered about 500 yards off. Near by was a purse containing about ten shillings, while a small bundle was also found in close proximity but there was nothing else to lead to identification. The men had presumably been either making for or returning to the Kinlochmore Works, and had been overtaken by severe weather, or lost their way in the vast undulations of this isolated moor.

On Sunday morning it was discovered that George Burns, fireman, in the employ of a firm in Auchenloch, had been overcome while cleaning the boilers during the night. Burns was in the habit of cleaning out the boilers periodically, and the steam was blown off on Saturday forenoon to allow them to cool. It is not known at what hour he entered the boiler, as he was from home on the Saturday, and returned late in the evening. When he did not return for breakfast, inquiry was made at the sawmill, but nothing was known of him there. On climbing up to the boiler, the manhole of which was open, Burns was discovered in a sitting posture right under the manhole. He was stripped ready for work, but had never commenced, being evidently overcome with the heat. A boilerman from the neighboring works happened to be in the vicinity when the discovery was made, and entered the boiler to ascertain if Burns was alive, only to find that life was extinct and that decomposition had set in, due to the heated atmosphere.

A remarkable story of a girl's pluck and resources came from the north of Scotland. The residence of Mrs. Sinclair Wemyss, Bower by Wick, was broken into by a tramp while the family were at dinner. The first to discover the intruder was the butler, who, after a struggle, was knocked down and rendered unconscious. Two other servants were also attacked. During the scuffle the daughter of the house, sixteen years old, rushed out of the dining room, and at once took a patent fire-extinguisher which was hanging on the wall, from its hook and squirted the chemical contents into the face of the burglar. The man utterly unnerved by this unexpected attack, and believing, probably, that he was blinded for life, gave a shriek and bolted out of the front door. He was, however, captured later on.

The news that the Admiralty have practically settled on a big scheme of torpedo manufacturing on the Clyde has been received with feelings of gratification in Glasgow and clydeside in the district. Considerable difficulty has been experienced of late years, since the rapid development of this arm of naval warfare, in finding suitable sea space for torpedo tests and practice. The necessities of the case, demand a comparatively secluded area, with deep water and a long range. Some time ago attention was directed to Loch Long as possessing these essentials in a marked degree. A committee of experts, following upon consultations with Lord Provost Bilsland and other gentlemen, having reported favourably on the situation, the establishment of a manufacturing station will be proceeded with.

That famous old Highland regiment, the Black Watch, will shortly have another monument unveiled in Edinburgh to commemorate the officers and men who fell in the Boer war, 1899-1902. The memorial is to find a place near the Mound and will stand some five feet above the pavement, the design being that of a private of the Royal Highlanders in guard-mounting order, standing at the position of ease. The work has been subscribed for by the officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates of the Black Watch.

An Annan fisherman relates a curious incident he witnessed the other day. While near Southerness he saw a sea-gull swoop down on a wild duck's nest and capture one of the ducklings that was in it. It flew off with its prey, and the mother duck made chase. While the duck and the sea-gull were fighting, a number of other sea-gulls darted upon the nest and secured the remaining ducklings, the whole family being thus exterminated at one fell blow.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford was presented with the freedom of the burgh of Inverness during the recent visit of the fleet to Scottish waters. The ceremony, which took place in the Town Hall, excited considerable public interest, and there was a large attendance. Provost Arthur Ross, (in making the presentation, paid a high tribute to the distinguished services which Lord Charles Beresford rendered to the Empire.

IRELAND

An Irish breach of promise of marriage case, heard on appeal at the recent Mayo Assizes, disclosed that the courtship, engagement, and jilting had all taken place within the space of two days. The plaintiff, had claimed £500 and had been awarded only £7 by the county court judge, against the defendant. The plaintiff, an elderly woman, stated that on April 2, a Mrs. Morley came to her house and asked her if she would like to marry the defendant, and on the following day Mrs. Morley called again with the would be groom and she consented. The plaintiff, an old man, said he had been a widower since last October. He had seven children, five of whom were in the workhouse. He broke off the match because he had heard it alleged that plaintiff had once been in an asylum. He would not marry any woman who had been in an asylum, not if she had £1,000. His Lordship, giving his decision, said the elements of love introduced into the case was the shortest on record. The decree was reduced to £1.

A sea-monster, cut in two through some mischance or other, possibly by a passing steamer, was thrown up on the beach at Sandycove, near the bathing place known as the Forty-foot Hole. The news of the strange arrival spread rapidly through the neighborhood, and attracted a large crowd of people to the scene. So far, no one has been able to definitely classify the enormous creature, though in many important respects it bears striking resemblence to the whale family. It measures 9 feet in length, with a girth of about 12 feet. The mouth opens to an expansion of 3 ft., 6 ins.

At Galway Assize the Solicitor-General applied for a postponement of the hearing of several cases, in which over sixty persons are charged with having taken part in illegal assemblies connected with cattle-driving in different districts of the country. The application was made on the ground that it is intended to apply to the King's Bench Division for an order to change the venue, it being found impossible to obtain a fair and impartial trial owing to the present state of feeling in Galway. Mr. Justice Wright granted the application.

The French Admiralty training ship Duguay Cronin recently put into Belfast Lough flying a flag at half-mast, and reported to the Consul the death of Artificer Paul under tragic circumstances. It appears that the vessel was on a voyage from Oban to Plymouth, and had anchored at Staffa, where a party was landed to visit Fingal's Cave. After an inspection of the cave Paul detached himself from the party with the object of searching for sea-gull's nests, and while doing so he fell from the crags and was killed instantly.

A sad accident occurred on the River Lagan recently, as a result of which a little boy lost his life, while a brother had a narrow escape from drowning. The two lads were engaged in catching sticklebacks near the first locks, when the younger, a boy of some six years of age, overbalanced himself and fell into the river. The other lad made a gallant attempt to rescue his brother but was unable to do so, and was himself taken from the water in an unconscious condition.

A painful affair is reported from Paddars town, County Westmeath. On an entrance being effected into the house of an aged couple named Patrick and Mary Wyse, the husband was found dead standing upright against a table, while the wife was found lying dead in bed. There were no marks of violence on either, nor was the place disturbed. The woman, it is believed, died from heart disease, and the man from paralysis, from which he suffered.

Exciting scenes were witnessed in Belfast recently in connection with the local labour disputes. Motor goods waggons were utilised to deliver merchandise, which were escorted through the centre of the city by large force of police. Several attacks were made on the waggons, and the police had to clear the streets.

WE CANNOT SAY TOO MUCH FOR PE-RU-NA

These Women Say, In Substance, That Before They Took Pe-ru-na They Were Miserable.

They Were Weak and Wretched.

After Taking Pe-ru-na They Were Restored to Health and Usefulness.

This Is the Whole Story In a Nutshell.

If Pe-ru-na Can Do Such Wonders For These Women It Can Do the Same For You.

The housewife is the one who is best able to judge of the relative merits of family medicines. It is she that knows the many uses of Peruna in the family. It is upon her testimonial that chiefly depends the popularity which Peruna enjoys.

MRS. E. T. GADDIS

Mrs. E. T. Gaddis, Marion, N. C., writes:

"Before I commenced to take Peruna I could not do any hard work without suffering great pain. I took Peruna and Manalin, and can say with pleasure they have done more for me than any other medicine I have ever taken. Now I am as well as ever, I do all my own work and it never hurts me at all. I think Peruna is a great medicine for womankind."

From Grateful Women.

"I was troubled with suppressed and painful menstruation. I took Peruna according to your directions, and now I am well."—Mrs. James Eighmey, Grape, Mich.

"We have been using Peruna for some time. To speak from a standpoint of experience I can candidly say that Peruna is the remedy for female weakness.

"From a personal test and from the testimony of many others I shall not hesitate to recommend it, especially to all suffering women."—Mrs. M. F. Jones, Burning Springs, Ky.

"I suffered from catarrh for many years, but since taking Peruna I feel strong and well. As I used Peruna and Manalin while I was passing through the change of life, I am positively convinced your beneficial remedies have relieved me of all my ills."—Mrs. Mathilde Richter, Doniphan, Neb.

PE-RU-NA FOR PELVIC DISEASES.

"I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, I can say I am cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful. I never felt better in my life than I do at present."—Mrs. Etta Booker, Dundurn, Sask, N. W. T., Can.

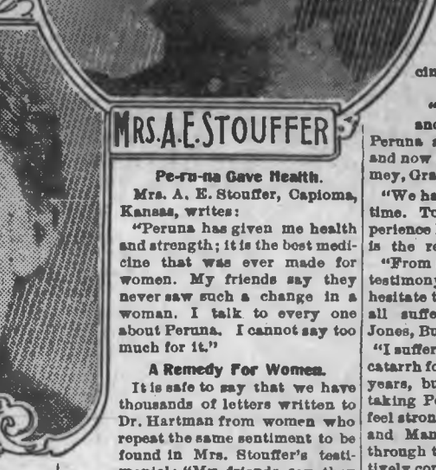
MRS. CAROLINE SUNDHEIMER

Stronger Than for Years.

Mrs. Caroline Sundheimer, Clarks, La., writes:

"I am feeling quite well now. I can work again and am stronger than I have been for years, and I do believe that Peruna saved my life.

"I am very thankful to you for your advice. I will advise all I can to take your medicine."



MRS. A. E. STOUFFER

Pe-ru-na Gave Health.

Mrs. A. E. Stouffer, Capioma, Kansas, writes:

"Peruna has given me health and strength; it is the best medicine that was ever made for women. My friends say they never saw such a change in a woman. I talk to every one about Peruna. I cannot say too much for it."

A Remedy For Women.

It is safe to say that we have thousands of letters written to Dr. Hartman from women who repeat the same sentiment to be found in Mrs. Stouffer's testimonial: "My friends say they never saw such a change in a woman." Over and over again this sentence is penned by grateful women who are more than willing that we should use their words to assist other suffering women in finding a cure.

Peruna is a great medicine for women. It cleanses the inside of the body in much the same way that water cleanses the outside of the body.

Drooping—Tired—Weary

You Feel Depressed, Dragged Out, and Sort of "All Gone" —Shake Off That Tired Feeling, Get Well and Strong, Fortify Your Nerves, Nourish Your Blood.

FERROZONE

You are getting pale and thin. You're dragged down with a "don't care" feeling that makes life most unhappy. Your strength is fleeting away, and weakness is creeping in. Every day your chances for cure becomes smaller.

Trouble is you don't assimilate your food, consequently the body is poorly nourished. The blood is thin, lacks those red corpuscles that denote health.

You can only prevent a total collapse by building up all the powers of the body with Ferrozone, which will surely make you well. Ferrozone creates tremendous appetite, increases the power of digestion, and insures perfect assimilation. Everything you eat is at once converted into nourishment.

FERROZONE makes rich, pure blood, a surplus of energy, new life for the nerves and all over-strained organs. Robust health will glow on the cheeks, jovial spirits, increased weight, and a clear, active brain will evidence a few of the benefits that follow Ferrozone.

The effect of Ferrozone is instant, yet permanent. For upbuilding and invigorating the listless and depressed it has no equal. It's the concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone that makes it so beneficial. We guarantee it contains no opiates, no alcohol, nothing but the most strengthening qualities known in medicine. Won't you use Ferrozone; it will surely make you well.

GAINED 15 POUNDS.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 228 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. I weigh fifteen pounds heavier than ever before, and feel like a new man.

BUILD UP WITH FERROZONE!

Ferrozone Makes the Weak Strong—the Sick Well.

CAUTION! Be on your guard against the substitutor who urges something "just as good." Get FERROZONE when you ask for it. Other tonics are not so good as FERROZONE, which is guaranteed to cure. Price 50c per box of 50 chocolate coated tablets. Sold by all reliable dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ontario.

Who Gets the Most Out of Life?

Not the wealthiest, not the most learned, nor the idler—but the man who has good health and works for his living. This truth is trite, but not trivial.

Every man should guard his health as his most valuable possession. The more so because health is easier to retain than regain.

Keep your grip on health by regular exercise, reasonable care in eating and requisite sleep. Take Beecham's Pills occasionally, to tone the stomach and keep the liver and bowels in good working order. And don't worry.

Observe these simple rules and you will agree that the one who gets the most from life is

TWO BARN RAISINGS IN EMILY

One Goes Up in Smoke and the Other In Timber

OMEMEE NEWS OF WEEK

Examiner Special.

Omemee, Aug. 20th. — The harvest is being beautifully saved, and we are having sufficient rain to ripen up all root crops.

Dr. Keith removed from here, after a successful practice of 4 years, to a more lucrative practice at the Canadian Soo.

A number of our farmers attended the Peterborough market on Saturday, as the harvest is hardly in full swing yet.

D. H. Rea, of Ops, a prosperous and ambitious young farmer erected a frame barn, 45 x 75 feet, 22 foot posts, 9 foot wall, on Thursday last. A large number of hands turned out, over 100 men being present. The ladies spread a most bountiful repast on tables on the lawn. Music, games, etc., followed, and the affair was quite a picnic.

A barn belonging to Mr. Meehan, two miles north of Downeyville, was consumed by fire a few nights since. The barn which was a frame building, 45 x 90, contained all this season's crop of hay. The cause is supposed to have been spontaneous combustion. The loss will be partly covered by insurance.

Jessie Lamb, aged 22 years, daughter of J. J. Lamb, of the Omemee tannery, died last night after a lingering illness from lung and heart trouble. The deceased had only returned from Moosejaw a few months ago, where she had spent a year for her health.

Mrs. J. Sanderson, wife of a Salvation Army officer, is confined to the house by serious heart trouble.

Pigeon Creek is almost blocked up with the weeds to the disgust of the boys who desire to go fishing. The grant promised by the Government would clear the weeds all out and make the river as navigable as any other feeder or tributary of the Trent Canal.

DURHAM OLD BOY ON EXCURSION

A Delightful Trip, Which He Thinks Should be Made an Annual Affair

The 25th day of July, 1907, was selected by the Executive Committee of the Durham Old Boys on which to hold their annual excursion, and the weather conditions were very favourable. It was below the mean temperature for the month, and the gentle zephyrs were exhilarating. About 8.30 a.m., the excursionists, on a special from Cobourg and Peterborough and covering intermediate points on the main line of the G.T.R. arrived at the foot of Yonge street, Toronto, where they were met by President J. L. Hughes and their friends of the city, and all embarked on the 9 o'clock boat of the Niagara Navigation Company. The sail across the lake was ideal and nothing occurred to may the pleasure of the trip. After touching at Niagara-on-the Lake, the party proceeded to Lewiston where the electric cars of the Gorge Route were in waiting to convey the pleasure-seekers along its lines to Niagara Falls, N.Y. The trip from Lewiston to the Falls via this route cannot be understood or appreciated by any person who has not taken it. The electric road about on a level with, and close to, the river, whose might is shown in the spectacular rapids and the irresistible whirlpool. A better point of observation than that afforded by the Gorge Route seems impossible. When at bottom of the Gorge, one can appreciate with greater comprehensiveness, the distance the water rolls along below the top of the bank and the unusual colour from the reflection of the foliage on the rising banks. The bed of the rapids seems to be composed of large, irregularly shaped and placed masses of rock which impeding the mad dash of the water, throw it into the air and churn it into foam. The excursionists spent a great portion of the day in sight-seeing on the American side; some visited the Canadian side and viewed many of the power houses. When one meditates on the volume of power represented by the falls and rapids, he is lost in amazement and it seems that the result would be beyond comprehension. Think of our top channel commencing near Chippewa and extending to the Falls. What a series of power-houses can utilize the water of the same channel? Then, calculate how many similar channels may be made, the number of horse-power the Horse Shoe and American Falls would yield, and you are near the power of Niagara.

A large deputation of the Durham Old Boys' excursionists accepted the generous invitation of a monster cereal plant to visit their works and inspect the manufacture of grains into foods. A very instructive and pleasant hour was concluded by an appetizing lunch served at the expense of this cereal firm. About 5 p.m., the major portion took cars for Lewiston, and had a delightful journey to Toronto on the steamer Chippewa. The illumination of Hanlan's Island and Scarboro Beach drew forth many exclamations of their magnificence and beauty.

The excursion of 1907 was an unqualified success, due to the skilful management of the executive, conspicuous among whom were President Hughes and Secretary Yellowlees. Durham county may well be proud of its people—they were a good-looking, well-behaved and intelligent collection. The urban and rival portions sent large representations, from prattling infants to past the four score span were the happy-faced Durham Old Boys. We were informed that the oldest Durham Boy on board was from a village in the most north-westerly portion of Cavan township.

The fraternizing element of the excursion seems so commendable that a hope might be expressed for the annual continuance of such an improving and generally beneficial outing.

"Durham Old Boy."

The Price has nothing to do with the Quality

Beer, brewed abroad, is not one bit better because it costs twice as much in Canada as it does at home.

The difference in cost goes into the custom house—not in the lager.

Beers, that cost 20c. and 25c. a bottle in Canada, cost the same at their homes that O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager costs here at your home.

What are YOU paying for — lager or custom charges?

All the leading hotels, cafes and dealers have O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager. It's the ideal beer for the table and sickroom. Order a case of

MR. W. H. HILL,
Insurance Agent.

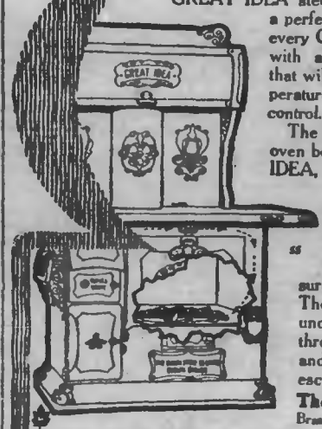
Dear Sir:—Kindly convey my thanks to the Perth Mutual Fire Insurance Company for the prompt and satisfactory settlement of the loss of my barn and contents by fire, on June 19th, (insured under policy 184814 - 15) not only was the full amount of the insurance on the barn paid but every cent claimed by me on contents was allowed.

I have great pleasure indeed in recommending this company to my fellow farmers or anyone else requiring insurance.

Yours truly,

JOHN STOTHART.

THE TEMPERATURE NEVER VARIES



The draft construction of the GREAT IDEA steel range insures a perfect regularity of heat—every GREAT IDEA is fitted with an oven thermometer that will prove this. The temperature is always in exact control.

The baffle plates fitted to all oven bottoms in the GREAT IDEA, and the quarter-inch air space between the cast iron oven top and the steel oven top insures an even distribution of heat. The flues throughout—even the flues under the oven—are protected with three thicknesses, one of asbestos and two of steel, thus preventing escape of heat from the range body.

THE LATEST IN FASHION'S REALM; ITEMS OF INTEREST TO THE LADIES

HERE AND THERE.

Each season sees new meshes and designs in veils, the summer offerings naturally being lighter in quality than those of winter. This year the plain nets are much in demand, and small dots are preferred to large ones. Veils with large dots should be worn only by tall figures or by the woman with large features, but the little woman of the baby type will look absurd behind such a drapery. She should choose the plain mesh or a fine net sprinkled with tiny dots fully an inch apart.

It is not every day that an ornament is found whose sentimental attraction and sheer constructive genius equal its intrinsic value. This raga avis is exemplified in a simple marguerite, with each petal made of a single pearl. These pearls are large and lustrous and of irregular and elongated shape and are set with great skill and taste in such a manner as to represent most perfectly the curiously curled or straight petals of the flower. A small diamond, like a drop of dew, sparkles in the center. A collection of such pearls could not have been made in a day, though the idea is exceedingly simple. The rarity of the pearls and the exquisite workmanship make it an object of extreme beauty as well as of great price.

Pongee makes the bathing suit seen in the cut. It is trimmed with bands of red and white dotted china silk. Such a suit as this is available for all the more familiar materials, such as mohair, taffeta and serge.

Women who motor are wearing for short distance runs coiffure nets instead of face veils. In old fashioned novels the heroine affected wavy locks. Indeed, they were part of the outfit of sloping shoulders, fainting fits, the "vapors" and exquisite sensibility. The new woman prefers a close reefed appearance when upon her automobile.

The newest in jewelry is the wearing of a black satin ribbon chain upon which are slipped a number of diamond slides in miniature size, but set with real stones and all of fine workmanship. The ribbon is arranged double, so that there are two narrow ribbons running through each slide.

Your runabout frock of dark blue foulard can be made up to date if its long sleeves are finished with link cuffs. If not already provided you can alter the sleeve as follows: Rip the "outside" seam of sleeve from the wrist end for four or five inches. Face both sides with a strip of the same material as the frock as deep as possible. Work buttonholes on both sides of the cuff's end and insert your sleeve-buttons a la mode.

Hand painted fish net is one of the blouse materials of the year. The net is adorned with flowers of muslin applique, and these are delicately painted.

Nothing makes a more satisfactory trimming for underwear than strong German valenciennes that is used here in the illustration combined with linen batiste. The drawers are shaped with as little fullness as possible at the upper edge, in this way preventing bulk at that point.

Fish Net For Summer Blouses and Dress Trimmings.

A kind of guipure called "fish net" is made into summer blouses and slip bodices, and for trimming generally the same net, with motifs worked in colors, is very popular and effective.

If the home dressmaker buys some lace motifs of a heavy linen lace and works a thread of gold into the pattern, using the finest gold thread that does not tarnish, she will have something odd and pretty for her trouble.

The little coat plays an immensely important part in the remodeling of all gowns. A dainty dinner coat of Chinese blue silk is embroidered in oriental colors. Scarcely a spot in it that is not touched with the embroiderer's needle. The little coat is cut like a kimono jacket, very short, with loose front and straight back. The sleeves are short and very wide.

Odd looking shirt waists which bear the stamp of Paris are made of striped linen, batiste, percale, etc. The stripes are of the hairline variety or a trifle heavier and are far apart, thus preserving to the waist the appearance of a white rather than a colored garment. The stripes are vertical, and at the top of the waist where the yoke is simulated by vertical tucks they come close enough together to produce quite a color effect.

Very beautiful collar and cuff sets are made by edging fine embroidery with valenciennes lace, put on slightly full.

Costumes of checked materials combining the straight with the bias effect are exceedingly smart this season in silk, pongee and linen. Here is a model that can be used for all the fabrics mentioned.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

Pretty cottage bedroom curtains can be made out of Brussels net with roses and green foliage from cretonne appliqued on them.

An upholsterer's needle will prove very useful to keep in the sewing table drawer. Chair buttons, couch buttons, etc., can be easily replaced by the housekeeper. Even mattresses can be fixed after a little experience.

One woman, whose shirt waists wear through in the back between the shoulders, while the fronts are still good, finds it economy to put new backs in. In the same way, sleeves that go through are renewed, and thus the usefulness of embroidered and lace trimmed fronts is prolonged by many months.

To hemstitch on the machine, draw as many threads as desired and run over with the edge in the center of the drawn threads. Let the tension be loose and stitch as near the edge of the hem as possible. Pull out the bastings, take in goods in one hand and the hem in the other, pull the edge of the hem to the bottom of the drawn threads and the work is finished. Tucks may be hemstitched in the same way.

WHAT IS WORN.

Princess Style Smart For Lingerie Frocks—Cretonne Mob Caps.

The majority of the handsomest lingerie frocks are made in princess style. Eyelet work is conspicuous in their trimming. Among the most popular laces for these gowns is Irish crochet, and cluny is not far behind in favor. Most really smart lingerie dresses combine two or even three kinds of laces, including valenciennes. The coarse Irish crochet motifs continue to be popular enough to keep all of crocheting Ireland with its fingers flying to supply the demand.

Huge mob caps of cretonne or of brocade trimmed with rows of straw and with bows of coarse cotton net bordered with straw are the thing in Paris. They might at first call forth Petruchio's derisive question, "Call you this a cap?" but they are said to look jaunty with a jacket of yellow pique.

Very wide elastic belts in both black and white are studded with cut steel. Some belts are elaborately jeweled, and when worn with a two piece costume give to the waist the graceful lines so much sought after in the princess model.

Hand painted blouses are among the smart novelties of the mode with filet net used as a trimming. Often chints patterns are cut out and appliqued on the blouse, united by scroll work in rather heavy silks. Sometimes a true lover's knot is employed for the joining.

The frock illustrated is carried out in striped linen. One of the latest Eton jackets is used in this design. The trimming is of fancy braid.

BABY'S HOLD ON LIFE

Babies Own Tablets cost 25 cents a box. A box bought now may save your baby's life. Summer complaints come often without warning, and thousands of little ones die from them every summer. If children's stomach and bowels are kept in order there is little danger of these troubles and that is just what Baby's Own Tablets do. They are good for the new-born baby, or the well-grown child, and they are absolutely safe. Give your child an occasional dose of the Tablets and you will keep it well. If you have not got a box of the Tablets in the house now, send for them at once, and you may feel that your little ones are safe. Mrs. William Parrott, Myrtle, Ont., says, "My little boy suffered greatly from colic, and cried almost continuously. A few doses of the Tablets cured him, and now I give the Tablets occasionally to prevent the trouble returning." Sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

many hats are dainty and effective with soft ribbon of delicate shades swathed about the crown, leaving a big loose bow at the left front. A scarf of pink ribbon with a cluster of big, loose petaled pink roses at the side, for charm and beauty, is as good a trimming as one could select for this style of hat. It is, of course, a very youthful affair; still it is becoming to almost every face. One style of the present season was dainty and beautiful, of creamy batiste embroidered in English openwork. Around the crown was a wreath of maidenhair fern which looked as fresh as if it had just been picked in the woods. Tucked snugly among the sprays of fern were blue and pink forgetmenots.

The hat illustrated here is of white lawn with a simple design of English embroidery. It is made up on a wire frame, and the brim is faced with shirred muslin having many rows of narrow lace. It is trimmed with a band of soft pink ribbon about the crown, and at the left side are a bow

LAMP CLOCKS.

They Were Quite Common in the Seventeenth Century.

Of the various examples that have been given of early specimens of the clockmaker's art not the least interesting are the several types of lamp clocks. One of these was of a kind quite common in the seventeenth century and consisted of a lamp burner placed at the base of a glass oil receptacle mounted vertically on a suitable standard. The oil reservoir had attached to it a scale facing the burner and showing the hours, beginning at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the lamp was to be lighted in winter, and ending at 7 o'clock in the morning. The lamp being lighted, the gradually descending level of the oil as combustion proceeded marked the hours.

The other device, of later origin, dating back to the beginning of the last century, utilized the same principle. It consisted of two communicating oil chambers, superposed by a clock dial. In one of the chambers was placed a night lamp to illuminate this dial, and in the other was suspended a float from a cord which passed around a small pulley. The latter was mounted on a horizontal axis ending in the center of the dial. The float of course descended as the oil was consumed and carried the index hand along with it, thus marking the hours precisely as in the case already cited.

PANDORA RANGE

Pandora Ventilated Oven is a Real Success

That the Pandora oven is ventilated in reality you can prove for your own satisfaction beyond a shadow of a doubt. Just moisten your finger and place it in close proximity to the three small vents between oven and fire-pot doors. You can then feel quite distinctly the current of air being drawn towards and through the vents. Try this little experiment on your neighbor's Pandora.

So scientifically perfect is the Pandora system of ventilation that the air in the oven is constantly being renewed with fresh air and the cooking fumes carried out through another set of vents in back end of oven and from there to smoke pipe.

The arrows in illustration show how the fresh air is distributed throughout the oven and the way the odors escape from the oven.

No indiscriminate mixing and re-mixing of cooking odors in the Pandora oven, consequently there is positively no chance for one article to be tainted with the flavor of another. Rather, the delicious natural flavor of every article is retained to the fullest extent.

The Pandora ventilated oven is a real success. When you open the door, the oven never smells close and stuffy, as do the great majority of range ovens.

Food cooked in the Pandora is more healthful, as well as more appetizing and satisfying.

Interesting Record of Movements of World-wide Interest

At the recent exposition of the French Society of Physics exhibitions were given, says Youths' Companion, of an ingenious combination of the phonograph with the cinematograph, whereby the figures upon the screen were caused to go through all the motions of singing, while the sounds issued concordantly from the phonograph, so that the illusion was astonishingly complete. Similar combinations have been made before, but seldom with so much attention to details. The apparatus employed is called the chronophone.

A Mechanical Bank Clerk

A leading Chicago bank, which employs 600 clerks, expects, the Springfield Republican says, to be able to reduce its force by the use of a new mechanical calculator, which does much more than the ordinary adding machines. The new machine adds, subtracts, divides, and multiplies, and calculates in both vertical and horizontal lines simultaneously. It is operated by keys and resembles a typewriter. It is run by a small electric motor and prints its records. It is the invention of a bank bookkeeper, who has spent 12 years in perfecting it. He claims it will save one-half the time now spent in keeping books.

The First Great Test of the Turbine

No event in transatlantic navigation has, says the Springfield Republican, been awaited with such world-wide interest, since the introduction of steam power, as the first performance of the giant turbine driven Lusitania of the Cunard line. This is to be the great speed test of the turbine. The other turbine-driven ocean liners that are already in service were intended to be comparatively slow ships and were never designed to break records, so that their performances, while satisfactory, have been neither spectacular nor epoch-making. But in the Lusitania and her sister ship, the Mauretania, both built with the greatest Government subsidy ever paid, is incarnated the resolve of England to win back from Germany the blue ribbon of the seas. Thus, to the greatest test yet made of the turbine —driven in this case by the concentrated power of 70,000h orse—there is added the element of a great international sporting event, involving commercial prestige. It has been reported that the giant turbiners, the largest ships in the world, would not make their debut until next year, but it is now announced that the Lusitania will make her first trip to New York early in September and leave on the return voyage on September 21st.

From New York to Japan in two Weeks

It is, says the Springfield Republican, hoped that the new route from Europe to Japan, by way of the Siberian, Manchurian and Korean Railways, will be open within three years, and will reduce the time from Paris to Japan to eleven days, with no sea voyage except a six-hour trip from Korea across the channel. From London eight hours must be added, and with the new fast steamers, a traveller in a hurry, should be able to go from New York to Japan in a little over two weeks.

Gasoline Motors for Suburban Traffic

It is reported from Chicago that some of the Western American railways, including the Burlington, have asked George Westinghouse, the inventor of the air-brake, to design a motor car for their use on suburban interurban and branch lines. This sounds as if the adoption of motor cars for such service might be contemplated on a large scale. Already there has been produced a number of apparently successful railway coaches driven by gasoline engines, and one of them a year ago made, we believe, a trip from coast to coast in demonstration of its powers. For service under certain conditions, such as infrequent running, it would seem as if there might be an excellent opportunity for the gasoline motor to compete with electricity, particularly in view of the comparatively small investment required in the case of an established line and the present difficulty in obtaining capital.

Nearly 40 Miles An Hour at Sea

There was, says the United States Consular and Trade Reports, launched, February 16, 1907, a new torpedo boat at one of the Birkenhead shipyards, which will be the fastest torpedo destroyer in the British navy, and it is believed in the world, as she is expected to maintain a speed of 35 knots an hour "all or down." This vessel is the first naval vessel of her kind to be propelled by turbine machinery of the Parson's type, and she will have triple screws. One of the most interesting and important facts in connection with this new torpedo-destroyer is that certain novelties are to be introduced in her machinery and in connection with oil fuel, the results of which, it is believed, will enable the vessel to attain a speed which has never been attained before on sea. The length of the vessel is 270 feet, breadth 26 feet, depth 15 feet 5 inches, and her builder's measurement is 914 tons.

Copper and the Electric Age

The 19th century, says the Springfield Republican, the age of steel, and the 20th century, in its beginning at least, is the age of electricity. Electricity demands copper, in ever-increasing quantities. For the last six decades of the 19th century, says the Copper Handbook for 1906, just published by Horace J. Stevens, of Houghton, Mich., the production of the leading metals increased at the rate of almost exactly 6 1-2 per cent., compounded yearly, but in the last decade of the century, copper left the other metals behind and for 15 years past the average ratio of increase in copper production has been 8 per cent, compounded yearly. The difference of only 1 1-2 per cent. in the ratio of yearly increase may seem small, but like the fable of the horse's shoes, for which shoes to which the first nail brought a penny, and each nail thereafter was doubled in price, the cucumulative results are surprising, and in 15 years have run into hundreds of millions of dollars. In 1851, a quarter century past, the world's production of copper was 103,000 long tons, worth an average of 10 cents a pound, giving a total value of $65,000,000 in round figures, while at the present moment the copper mines of the world are producing at the rate of nearly 800,000 tons per annum, worth with copper at a little more than 20 cents a pound, $1,000,000 for every day in the year, or at the rate of $365,000,000 for 1906 — an increase of almost five fold in the world's copper bill in a quarter of a century. With electricity finding new uses daily and with a rapid extension of electric energy for power, traction and many other employments, there is small hope that the poor old world will be able to curtail its copper bill to any important extent, and every reason to believe that the world's copper ten years hence will cost considerably more than the world's iron and steel ten years ago.

Non-Inflammable Paints U. S. Warships

The plan of reducing the danger of fire on board ships of war is now the subject of some important tests that are being conducted at the United States navy yards, says a despatch from Washington. It has been suggested by some of the naval officers that paint used on shipboard would communicate fire, and an effort is being made to obtain a paint which is not inflammable. The ordnance officers believe that in time of war the contact of a shell with the side side of a ship might possibly cause ignition when no other damage was wrought, and this by means of the paint with which the structure is covered. The ordnance officers at the naval proving grounds at Indian Head, Md., will have erected a structure which resembles the side of a ship and covered with such paint as is used in the service. By this means it is expected to determine by practical means and in a definite way the extent to which there is danger from fire on account of the inflammability of paint. So-called non-inflammable paints have been used in warship interiors for some time but there has been general suspicion that they would not resist fire, as claimed.

Making a Match

The long development in the making of matches reached the practical stage in 1827, when John Walker, a druggist in a small English town, tipped a splint with sulphur, chlorate of potash and sulphide of antimony, and rubbed it on sandpaper, and it burst into flame. The druggist had discovered the first friction-chemical match, the kind we use to-day. It is called the friction-chemical because it is made by mixing certain chemicals together and rubbing them.

Walker's match could be lighted only by hard rubbing and it sputtered and threw fire in all directions. In a few years, however, phosphorous was substituted on the tip for antimony, and the change worked wonders. The match could now be lighted with very little rubbing, and it was no longer necessary to have sandpaper on which to rub it. This was the phosphorous match, the match with which we are so familiar. The first phosphorous matches were sold at 25 cents a block—a block containing 144 matches—and they were used by but few. Now a hundred matches can be bought for a cent.

There is one thing against the phosphorous match; it ignites too easily. To avoid accident by matches, the safety match has recently been invented. The safety match itself contains no phosphorous. The proportions is mixed with the fine sand and glued to the side of the box in which the matches are sold. The safety match, therefore, cannot be lighted unless it is rubbed on the phosphorus on the side of the box.

And how long it has taken to make the match as good as it is! The steam engine, and the telegraph, and the telephone, and the electric light, were all in use before the simple little safety match.

Destruction of United States Fisheries

It is, the Springfield Republican says, a very dismal story about the gradual destruction of the United States Atlantic sea fisheries that is told by John R. Rogers in one of the monthly magazines. Mackerel, lobsters, bluefish, cod — about everything is disappearing, and the statistics seem to prove the contention. The old theory of the optimists along shore that the fish had merely "taken another course" in the briny deep and would appear again with numbers reinforced in their ancient haunts becomes less tenable year by year. The fish are being exterminated by our ruthless, unrestricted methods of catching them, just as certain land animals have been exterminated and the forests destroyed. No other explanation fits the situation, and this may as well be faced, according to Mr. Rogers. Every summer visitor along the New England coast, who can remember the conditions in deep sea fishing 30 years ago, must take the same view. More to blame for the decline than anything else, probably, is the purse seine, which succeeded the hook and line, since it introduced the catch by wholesale and temporarily increased enormously the annual product. It was this greedy commercial device that did the business with mackerel, of which last year only 29,301 barrels were caught, while in 1884 the catch amounted to 475,076 barrels.

Useful Candle Nut

One of the oddest nuts in the world is the candle nut, which grows in the Pacific Islands. The name is derived from the fact that the kernel is so full of oil that when dried it can be stuck in a reed and used as a candle.

The natives of Hawaii roast these nuts, and after removing the shell reduce the kernel to a paste, which when seasoned with salt and pepper, is reported as making an appetizing dish.

The husk of this nut and the gum which exudes from the tree have medicinal values, while the burned shell is used in making an indelible ink, with which tattooing is done.

On the last Monday in July, British consols, considered the best security in the world, sold at 82 11-16c. This, the Springfield Republican says, was the lowest record since 1848, when they touched 80. Still more recently the underwriters of the $20,000,000 Manchurian Railway five per cent. loan were obliged to take half of it themselves, and the Brazilian loan has been postponed until October. Money is tight.

AN INJUSTICE IS CHARGED

Father of Picton Girl Who Was Assaulted Thinks Sentence Imposed Was Not Heavy Enough

VERY STRONG LANGUAGE

Picton, Aug. 22.—"If you call that English justice, I am d—— if I do!" When the father of little Dorothy Stretton made this scathing criticism of the judgment of the court, Magistrate Currie quietly surveyed the man and asked that he retire from the room. There was an amused tinge of excitement in the police court, Wednesday, when John Stinson, formerly of Kingston, was sentenced to fifty days at hard labour in the county jail for an assault on five-year-old Dorothy Stretton.

County Crown Attorney Brown pressed for the maximum penalty for an indecent assault which is six months and $100 fine; Society at large must be protected, and little children in particular. It has come to a pretty stage if little girls cannot be sent by their mothers on an errand without being so grossly treated as was this child. Magistrate Currie, however, seemed to take the view of the prisoner's counsel, E. M. Young, that the wrong doing had come only within the limits of a common assault, and was to be defined as criminal. The case has created wide discussion about town.

Baby Died While Indian Was On A Two Weeks Drunk

Methodist Missionary at Hiawatha Accuses white Men From Peterborough of Giving Indians Liquor —A Memorable Sunday.

A DISGRACEFUL SCENE

A Constable Will Be Appointed and Lock-up Erected — To Protect Indians From White Men

(Examiner Special.)

Hiawatha, Aug. 24.—In a drunken stupor for two weeks, placed in this condition by white men who visited this village on Sunday, August 4th, John Noggon, one of the oldest, and, under ordinary circumstances, one of the most peaceable Indians on the Reserve, came out of his drunken stupor to find that his baby had died while he was under the influence of the "fire-water" the white men, said to be from Peterborough, had supplied him with on that memorable Sunday, a Sunday which will be long remembered by the wives and children of the Indians, who were the victims of the despicable work of the white men who visited the village.

Missionary Speaks

Rev. George Dunkley, the enthusiastic and earnest Methodist Missionary to the Indians here, is much concerned over the fact that men from Peterborough make a practice of coming to Hiawatha and bringing whiskey and beer with them and treating the Indians, in many cases getting them so drunk that it requires several days for them to recover from the effects, and in the meantime, the wives and children of the intoxicated men are placed in a state of terror.

Worst Outbreak

The last occasion of this kind, Sunday, August 4th, was in many respects the worst that has been experienced, and as a means of preventing a repetition, steps have been taken to secure the appointment of a constable, one of the more stable of the Indians, and erect a lock-up, giving the constable the authority to arrest and place behind lock and key any of the Indians who become unmanagable. This has been considered necessary by reason of the recent outbreak of intemperance, due, Mr. Dunkley states, to the action of the white men who visit the village on alleged fishing expeditions, but which are in reality outings taken for the purpose of getting drunk themselves and putting the Indians in the same condition, though with much more serious results.

Not Naturally Bad

Ordinarily the Indians at Hiawatha are exemplary in their conduct. When they are left alone they are industrious and attend church regularly, sing in the choir, and take a deep interest in the work of the church. Mr. Dunkley is an advisor to them, and they all place great confidence in his judgment, but there are some of them who cannot resist the temptation to drink when it is offered them, and the consequences, as has been pointed out, are serious.

SERGT.-MAJOR FEE LIKELY TO LOSE HIS EYE

In Letter to Dr. Blanchard He States Sight is Apparently Gone

Dr. Blanchard has received a letter from Sergt. Major Fee, who is now in the hospital at Toronto, giving the unfortunate intelligence that the sight of the injured eye is apparently gone. Sergt. Major Fee, it will be remembered, was injured on the train carrying the 24th Field Battery to Petawawa Camp last June, and he has been in the hospital ever since.

He also stated in his letter to Dr. Blanchard that he would soon be leaving the hospital.

The Doctor's First Question

Almost the first question a doctor puts to his patient is in reference to the action of the bowels. By keeping the bowels regular you avoid the serious derangements of the liver and kidneys and can defy colds and contagious diseases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure prompt movements of the bowels, and by their action on the liver thoroughly cure constipation.

ENGLISH TEACHERS FORCED OUT OF THE TRANSVAAL SCHOOLS

Mrs. H. C. Garrard, a Peterborough Lady Who Was Five Years in the Transvaal, Tells of the School Situation

DUTCH ARE GOOD PUPILS

The Location of Teachers is Entirely Under Government Control—Method of Payment is Different

That General Botha and his new Transvaal Parliament are doing their utmost to drive all outsiders out of government positions and keep them as far as possible filled with Dutch people, is the opinion advanced by Mrs. H. C. Garrard, who after five years in the Transvaal, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Yannie Weller street.

Mrs. Garrard was one of a number of Canadian teachers, who, five years ago, were sent out to South Africa at the conclusion of the war to give assistance in the schools. It will be remembered that at that time a large number of teachers were sent out from the Mother Country and the Colonies, and these Mrs. Garrard considers are in danger of losing their position.

To an Examiner reporter who saw Mrs. Garrard yesterday, that lady very kindly furnished much valuable information concerning the educational system of the Transvaal.

The curriculum of the Transvaal schools is very similar to that of Canadian public schools, with the chief exception that if the parents desire the children are taught the Dutch language. This is a similar privilege as exists in the schools of Quebec where the children are taught French if it is desired by their parents. Outside of Johannesburg, in the country districts, the majority of pupils are Dutch, in fact, about 70 per cent. of the population is of Dutch children.

Mrs. Garrard says that the Dutch children make good pupils. They are very bright in some ways, particularly in the study of language, and it is not an uncommon thing to find a pupil who a year before did not know a word of English, talking quite fluently in that language. An Example was given of a young Dutch girl who is going up for her honour matriculation examination test, which is little different from the same examination in our own schools. Five years ago she was utterly ignorant of the English language, and yet in that time she has not only mastered its difficulties, but has also passed through the various grades of the school. Very few Canadian pupils could accomplish this last feat, and if they were asked to learn the Dutch language before commencing they would probably be unable to accomplish the task at all.

At first, after the conquering of the Transvaal by the British, the teaching staff of the schools was composed, for the most part, of British and Colonial teachers. Now, however, the Normal School at Pretoria is turning out Dutch and Afrikander teachers, who are taking their places on the staff.

The Transvaal teachers at present are treated as civil servants. They are under government control and their location is a matter that is settled entirely by the government, the teachers themselves having no say in the matter. This is different from the practice here, where teachers have the opportunity of choosing their schools.

In the Transvaal the salary paid depends upon the size of the school. An allowance is made for teachers in the fever districts, who are given more than those in better favoured communities. To married teachers there is also a house allowance, consisting of 10 per cent. of their salary.

These conditions may be changed by the new bill, which is being introduced by the Botha Government. One important provision of this legislation is the establishing of School Boards in certain districts, which will place the schools under local control. Every man twenty-one years of age and over is allowed to vote in this case.

Speaking about the Transvaal, Mrs. Garrard stated that she liked the life there very much. She has lived in three places in the country, at Kierksdorp, Christiana and Kmelo. The last place has just been given railway connection. Nearly all the time Mrs. Garrard resided there communication with the outside world was only maintained by means of a stage coach which made a sixty-mile trip, a very wearisome journey, too, over decidedly rough roads. The climate she described as perfect. There had been only one fall of snow all the time she was in the Transvaal, and that was only a slight flurry. The nights, even in the summer, are very cool. The temperature drops rapidly as soon as the sun goes down.

Mrs. Garrard states that many civil servants are being forced out of their positions by the present government, and are being left stranded without a position and with little money. This, in view of the fact that they were brought out by the Imperial Government, appears to be an injustice.

Insure Against Serious Colds

Of the many forms of insurance probably that which protects you against the serious results of colds is the most valuable at this time of the year, when so many are becoming victims of la grippe and pneumonia. By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can keep the loose, prevent further development of the cold and cure it in a few days.

Don't Impose on The Newcomers

Because you happen to know a little more than the other fellow that does not constitute a right to abuse him. It may not be anything to your credit, nor to his discredit that he is not as well equipped as you are.

Other considerations than one's willingness to receive a mental equipment sufficient to place him in a commanding position often enter into the matter.

Employees of a business establishment in the city this week had what they thought was a joke on a simple minded young fellow who is trying, with apparently honest intentions, to get along in Canada—he is an Englishman—when they told him that in addition to working all day in the trench the Bell Telephone Company is digging on Hunter Street, he was supposed to act as watchman at night. He did it for two nights, working forty-eight hours at a stretch without sleep. It was pretty hard times he thought, but still he was under the impression that he had to do it or lose his job, and he couldn't afford to do that.

When he had been "watching" for two nights, a place that no more required to be watched than a church pew in the holidays, and he discovered that he had been the victim of a joke, and worse still he found that he would not be paid for his night-work.

WOULD CHANGE THANKSGIVING DAY; MONDAY IS WANTED IN FUTURE

To change Thanksgiving Day from Thursday, the day on which it has been held in the past, to Monday is the aim of a movement inaugurated by the Commercial Travellers' Association.

The Peterborough Board of Trade has received a communication from this association setting forth its views on the matter and a request accompanied it which the Board was asked to secure signatures to. The matter is being taken up by Mr. P. Campbell and he has the petition to which many signatures have been attached.

It is apparent that the majority of persons here are in favour of the change, the advantages of which are obvious. Holidays which fall on Monday are much more fully appreciated than those that come in the middle of the week and disarrange business for a day before and a day after the holiday.

The petition is being widely signed in the city and will be presented to the Secretary of State.

THE STARS AND STRIPES FLAUNTED AT RICE LAKE ROUSE CANADIANS' IRE

Americans Said to Disregard the Courtesy Which Prompts Recognition of Flag of the Country

YACHTS FLY "OLD GLORY"

To the Exclusion of Union Jack—Canadians Feel Strongly This Slight on Country

Examiner Special.

Jubilee Point, Aug. 24.—Canadian campers at Rice Lake complain of the apparent disregard on the part of American tourists of the fact that they are in British territory and sailing on British waters.

A number of them own and operate launches, gasoline and motor boats, and it is a very rare occurrence to see any of these American boats flying th eBritish emblem on any part of their craft, while the Stars and Stripes of the United States is always prominent, as if the owners took a delight in thrusting the American Eagle before the eyes of the Canadians, who, on their part, submit to it in silence.

While, of course, there is no law governing the matter, the Canadians here are of the opinion that courtesy to the flag under which they are sojourning would induce them to recognize it in some way.

It is pointed out that were British subjects to invade American territory to the extent that the Americans have come here, and parade their flag as the Stars and Stripes are being done here, there would be some objection raised.

There is no fault to be found with the Americans coming to Canada to spend their summers — and their money—but it is felt here that while they are here it would be more becoming were they to recognise that they are sailing in British water.

There has been no demonstration against the practice of ignoring the Union Jack, but there is a rather strong feeling on the matter, and it is somewhat galling to see the yachts shooting around the lake, nine-tenths of them flying a Stars and Stripes flag at their stern. The situation suggests these lines of Lord Roscommon:

Immodest words admit of no defence,
For want of decency is want of sense.

WORE FUR COAT AT CHURCH BUT CROPS ARE STILL SAFE

Mr. Wm. Eyres, who is largely interested in farming in the Canadian West, is receiving daily reports of the conditions there, and he stated to the Examiner to-day that so far he had been notified of no serious frost, and the crops were represented to be satisfactory in the majority of cases.

It is true that at Red Deer there was snow on Sunday, and at Calgary a lady wore her fur coat to church—still it might have been a new one—but there was very little frost, certainly not enough to do any injury to the crops, and Mr. Eyres is confident that the western wheat will come through the ordeal in good condition. The danger point has not yet been passed, but it will only be a matter of a few days.

THREE INCHES BETWEEN NORTH VERULAM COUNCILLOR AND DEATH

Mr. William Mann, a North Verulam councillor for many years, had a very narrow escape from serious, if not fatal, injury, the other day. He was helping to set up a stumping machine, part of which consisted of three great sticks of timber, about twenty feet long, that stand up on end, forming a triangle. By some means they fell grazing Mr. Mann's back. His clothes were torn off and his back bruised. Three inches more and he would have been smashed to a pulp. It gave those around a fright that they will not forget for a while.

Three Members Of One Family Were Drowned Near Madoc

Madoc, Aug. 24.—Three members of one family drowned, and all of them under 10 years of age, is the awful record of an afternoon row on Wadsworth's Lake.

The accident occurred on Wednesday afternoon, and has cast a gloom over the whole community.

The three little children whose untimely end is recorded are the two sons and a daughter of Mr. Norman A. Green, of Madoc, and agent for the Anglo-American Iron Company for North Hastings.

The scene of the drowning is about thirty miles north of the town where Mr. Green has been spending the summer with his family.

Wadsworth's lake is one of the many small bodies of water which abound in the northern part of this county. It is about two miles and a half long, and situated about three miles from Gilmour, where the head office of the Anglo-American Company is situated. As the company controls about 80,000 acres of land in Hastings county, Mr. Green has to spend much of his time in the northern part of the county, where most of the company's property is situated. For this reason Mr. Green has been in the habit of taking his family north with him during the summer, and this season he decided to locate near Gilmour.

Played in a Skiff

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Green and one of the older boys, Percy, had gone out picking berries. Another boy, Roscoe, was in the house putting the baby to sleep.

On the shore of the lake close to the house was a new skiff which Mr. Green purchased this summer.

It is thought that the children got the boat into the water, climbed in, and pushed out from shore. When about 45 or 50 feet, they in some manner capsized the skiff, which was very light, and as the shore is rocky and slopes away rapidly, they were thrown at once into deep water.

Roscoe was the first to discover the accident, Having succeeded in putting the baby to sleep, he had gone out to join the others in their play, when he was horrified to see the skiff floating bottom upwards, and the children nowhere to be seen. He immediately gave the alarm, but as there are no other cottagers on the lake, which is in a lonely spot, and the nearest neighbour is nearly a mile away, it was some time before help arrived.

The news of the drowning soon spread, however, and neighbours from miles around came to assist in dragging for the bodies.

The Bodies Recovered

That of the little girl, Helen, was the first to be discovered. Her body was found about seven o'clock, three hours after the accident. The body of Burnett was recovered at 7.30 the following morning, and that of Willie an hour later. The bodies were brought to Madoc last night by Mr. Green.

Mr. Norman A. Green is known all through Hastings County, having been engaged in business here for many years. Previous to his appointment agent of the Anglo-American Company he kept a general store at Gilmour. He moved to Madoc about three years ago.

The surviving children are Percy, aged 14, Roscoe, aged 12, and a baby a little over a year old.

Uncle Of Local Men Murdered With Spade In Southern Africa

EDUCATIONAL WORK OF INSTITUTE

Mr. F. E. Dingman Tells of the Good Results of Summer Institute of Y. M. C. A.

WAS NOTABLE GATHERING

Mr. F. E. Dingman, physical director of the local Y.M.C.A., has returned from Geneva Park, on the shores of Lake Couchiching, where he attended the Y.M.C.A. Summer Institute. In an interview this morning Mr. Dingman gave some interesting information in connection with it. He said:—

"This camp was organized in the first place for the purpose of training men for Association work, and of fitting men who are already in the work for larger fields. To say that it has been a success so far is putting it mildly. A large number of middle aged and young men, some just entering the work, attended the Institute. Quite a number had their wives and families along, for whom ample provision was made. The regular programme for the Institute began on Monday, Aug. 5th. The day usually began with a dip in the lake at 6.45 by those who were brave; 7.30 breakfast; 8.15 Bible study, led by Mr. Southam, of the International Committee, the first week, and Mr. Green, of Buffalo Central, the second week; 9 a.m., religious work conference, led by Mr. Southam.

Following that the work was divided into two sections—Physical and Secretarial. At 10, elementary and advanced gymnastics and nomenclature, led by Mr. Brent, London, and Mr. Lee, Ottawa, respectively; 10.30, lectures on athletics, Mr. Cameron, Buffalo; 11, lecture on Methods of Organization of Physical Work, Mr. Ball, Detroit; 11.30, massed drill, by Mr. Cameron; swim at 12, and dinner at 12.30. At 2, lecture on physical diagnosis and prescription of exercises, by Mr. Ball; 2.30, rythmical exercises, for gym. use, by Mr. Lee of Ottawa. 3, class in wrestling, Mr. Lee of Ottawa; 3.30 to 4, fencing, taught by Mr. Walters, Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto. Then, apart from this, was the course for the secretaries. All phases of their work was dealt with by able men. Their social, personal and religious work, the financial work of the Association, the Association's relations to the churches, and all phases of the work were touched upon. Then at 4, work was over and play began. Football, baseball, basketball, swimming, fishing, canoeing and other sports too numerous to mention were indulged in.

"Occasionally it would be physical directors vs. secretaries, married men vs. single men, or ladies vs. gentlemen, the latter playing with one hand behind their backs. Then each night some kind of programme was arranged. Owen A. Smiley was secured for an evening, then came an evening with Dickens, by Mr. Williamson of New York, who recited Dickens' Christmas Carol in a masterly manner and delighted his hearers. Taffy pulls, corn roasts, etc., were provided by the ladies and enjoyed by all. These always took place around the camp fire. One evening a circus was put on, and proved highly amusing. It opened with a grand parade and cake walk. A sabre bout, wrestling match, tight rope walking (over a table three feet wide), and many other amusing feats were also on the list. Apart from all this, perhaps the most helpful thing in camp was the good fellowship which prevailed all through among the campers, who seemed just like one big family. The regular Sunday worship was also very helpful and inspiring, and when camp broke up on Saturday morning all were sorry to leave, and a larger and even more successful camp than ever is looked forward to for next year."

NEW POTATOES OFFERED AT A DOLLAR PER BAG

New Hay Very Expensive—Market Only Fairly well Attended

The market this morning was but fairly well attended, the threatening weather being partly responsible for the scarcity of produce. Vegetables and garden products were conspicuous. New potatoes have taken a quick drop in price, and $1 a bag was all that was asked for them today. Harvest apples sold at 20c per peck, and, considering the number of market vehicles, there was a good supply of them. Corn in the ear sold at 15c per dozen, and tomatoes at 40c per peck.

In the market hall, eggs held away in numbers, selling at 18 and 19c per dozen. Butter was offered at 25c and 26c per lb., and chickens around 70c per pair.

New hay is very scarce, and the high price of $14 is being obtained. The old quality has all been disposed of, and cannot be purchased at any price.

OWNED $100,000 DIAMOND

Some years before the famous South African war broke out upon an unsuspecting world, a cold-blooded and brutal murder was committed on the veldt, a short distance from Johannesburg, which has recently been found to have a direct bearing upon residents of Peterborough. The victim of the assassin's wrath was Edward Derry, to whose reference was made in Thursday's issue of the Examiner, and who, when he lived, had five nieces and two nephews residing here. The late Edward Derry, it will be remembered by those who read the previous account of his death, had amassed an immense fortune in the search for diamonds in South Africa, and for which the rightful heirs are now being sought.

An Examiner representative yesterday evening was fortunate in obtaining an interview with Mr. Thos. Derry, 560 Park street, one of the nephews of the deceased millionaire, who is said to have been worth in the neighbourhood of $5,000,000 at his death. Mr. Derry told of his uncle going, many years ago, from Michigan to Africa, where the whole of his fortune was made, but, unfortunately, where he met death, when his work was just completed.

The Story of the Murder

The murder of Mr. Derry's uncle was one of the most brutal records in the annals of Southern Africa previous to the Boer war. Edward Derry was crossing the veldt at Johannesburg, accompanied by a number of natives, when he was viciously attacked by an adventurous Englishman, and with a spade his brains were battered out. He had in his possession at the time, according to reports, a diamond valued at $100,000, and for this the assailant was seeking. The natives gathered around to defend their master, and attempted to capture the unknown Englishman, who succeeded in making good his escape and who has never since been heard of, so far as the authorities are concerned.

The precious stone he sought was lost in the sand in the melee, and found later. For many years after the murder the British Government sought for the heirs to the immense fortune of the diamond king, but it was only recently that they have been traced to Milwaukee, where the long-dead mad once lived.

Mr. Derry declined to talk to the Examiner about the prospects, stating that he as yet knew little regarding the probable distribution of the millions.

TO REBUILD BRIDGE ACROSS LAKE

Belief in Harwood That This is to Be Accomplished—Stone Being Taken To Site of Old Bridge

HARWOOD IS JUBILANT

Examiner Special.

Harwood, August 24. — The rebuilding of the railway bridge across Rice Lake, and the rehabilitation of the old Cobourg and Peterborough Railway, is again being discussed here and there are said to be events which give reason to believe that it is being seriously considered.

The steamer Rainbow has been engaged during the past week towing scows loaded with stone from Bewley, and this stone is being dumped along the line of the bridge, apparently with a view of re-building the structure.

It is stated here that the re-opening of the iron mines at Blairton and other mining activity, recorded in Peterborough county, is responsible for the proposal to again open for traffic a railway which for many years was one of the busiest roads in Canada. This, however, cannot be verified here, though there are many who look upon it as a reasonable solution.

The railway from Harwood to Cobourg was for years operated with profit to the promoters and it seems like a revival of the old prosperity to contemplate the present activity and the prospects for the future should the road be rebuilt and operated.

LOOSE STONES AND LOOSE METHODS

A correspondent in our Postal Card Column calls attention to the nuisance of loose stones on the streets. And he is quite justified in doing so. Every person who uses the streets for driving will say that these loose stones, which may be found on every street, are an annoying nuisance, needing no description—it is self-evident. They are a nuisance to both wheelmen and drivers. They can easily be removed and the nuisance abated or entirely eliminated. Stones are needed for pavement filling. If these were raked in heaps and carted away they could be put to good use, and, at the same time, our streets would be relieved of one of the most iniquitous conditions, in a minor way, that can be imagined. Some of these stones may be accidentally dropped from loaded wagons as they pass through the streets, but for many of them the Board of Works is directly responsible, and to blame, to boot. The return to country methods of road-making, represented by the plentiful employment of gravel, makes our streets worse than they were before. Here and there throughout the city, a piece of street which becomes so bad that it makes even an alderman ashamed, is, assumptively, improved by dumping upon it a quantity of so-called gravel, consisting, in many cases, of a little real gravel with an admixture of dirt—soil—and baby boulders, round stones—these stones are left loose, and the comfortable use of the street is prevented by their presence. If they were raked out and removed for pavement filling they would be put to good use, instead of being a nuisance; or, if not raked out and removed, they should be broken where they lie. It is lack of attention to these little details, requiring only a little desire to do things properly, that tends to keep our streets in a perpetually disgraceful condition.

It is only of a piece, however, with other careless and slovenly ways of doing street work. For instance, in the laying down of pavements and crossings and making repairs, piles of rubbish, refuse, sand, gravel, stones, fragments of lumber, stakes, etc., are left where they are dumped, to disfigure and encumber the streets for months. Enough gravel, ground granite and sand are left kicking about where street crossings have been put down, to build two or three crossings. A half rotten wooden culvert is replaced by tile and the rotting timbers taken out of it are flung aside and allowed to remain, presenting an unsightly appearance and an obstruction, in the streets. Thus, in addition to our streets being sown with loose stones, they are littered with all sorts of rubbish and there is an entire absence of neatness, and not the slightest attempt or apparent thought of keeping the streets tidy and beautiful, as they could be if kept half decently, with their flanking boulevards kept by citizens in as neat a condition as corporations carelessness and slovenliness will allow. With our beautiful lines of street trees, the city of Peterborough should be the finest in Ontario. There is no city or town in Ontario so generally and generously provided with splendid stretches of shade trees, and it is safe to say that there is no city or town in Ontario where there is more sloppy and slovenly work done to aid in the disfigurement of the streets. Why should it be so? It costs money to tear gravel and ground granite to the street crossings, and why these should be left kicking about the street as an eyesore and a nuisance, it is difficult to understand. It would cost little to have the pavement and crossing gangs "clean up" after themselves, and the cost of raking up loose stones would be met by their use in pavements or in the improvement of the streets. These loose stones are a good type of the results of the loose methods and absolute lack of system in connection with the supremely important matter of dealing with our streets. How long, O how long?

Toronto is losing its grip. It got turned down at the Ontario rifle matches. It has let a little backwoods village slouch away with the Dominion bowling trophy — it has let Montreal actually draw it out of the running in competition for government prizes. But its foreign baseball hirelings are in a hopeful run for the baseball pennant, and the great National Exhibition is expected to bring up the average.

THE INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY

Mr. M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, has just returned to Ottawa, after a three weeks' trip of inspection, which covered the whole system of Government railways in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Borden may get a good railway commission, but he will not get a more efficient, industrious and intelligent supervisor of our canals and railways than Mr. Butler. In an interview, Mr. Butler said:

"The Intercolonial Railway was never in better shape than it is today, and was never before handling such a large volume of business. We made the whole trip by daylight, and ran at high speed, making stops at every point where there is work going on," said Mr. Butler. "I did this for the purpose of testing the track, and at the same time seeing every mile of the system by daylight. The roadbed was never in better shape. So far as rails, ballast and bridges are concerned, there is not a better road to-day in America. The rolling stock is in good shape, though, like all other systems on the continent, we are short of cars and locomotives. We could use from three to four thousand more cars and fifty freight engines with the traffic that is available. The shortage is being repaired as expeditiously as possible. Rhodes & Curry of Amherst, who have the contract for a thousand freight cars, have promised to hasten deliveries. As soon as the new shops in Moncton are completed, we shall be able to do a great deal towards keeping the supply of locomotives and cars up to our requirements. Good progress is being made on the new car shops, and when they are completed the Intercolonial will be thoroughly provided with repairing and construction facilities. During the month of July the earnings of the Intercolonial were the largest in the history of the road."

Mr. Borden's demand for a Railway Commission must have been inspired by a study of the results of Conservative administration of the Intercolonial.

RARA-AVIS

Constable Hull of Wiarton, deserves to be placed upon a pedestal apart. He is a comparatively unique speciman of a constable, who does not feel it his duty to secure conviction of an acused person, at any cost—who does not go upon the too frequent official assumption, in reversal of the good old British rule, that a person charged with a crime, is guilty till he is proven innocent. In giving his evident at the inquest into the cause of death of Philip Gilbert, who met his death while leading a riotous assault on two defenceless women, he actually showed a manly inclination to give evidence, showing his conviction that the woman's story was true, and that she only fired a revolver to scare her assailants. After examining the condition of the wrecked tent he was of the opinion that the woman was perfectly justified in shooting in the air to frighten the mob. Constable Hull seemed anxious to get at the truth, not to only find, or furnish, incriminating evidence. While detectives, policemen and even Crown attorneys, are in duty bound to see that those guilty of crime are brought to book, and punished, they are not called upon as a matter of duty to strive to convict every accused person, innocent or guilty. They are expected to collect all evidence of fact, without animus or prejudice, in the direction of guilt or innocence.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Colonial Office in London is being re-arranged, and hereafter Canada will have a pigeonhole all to herself.

Mr. Borden is striking the true debating school gait. He thinks decent Liberals should hurl the present Government from power.

The United States are to pay $30,000 to Canadian Indians as compensation for injustice to their ancestors. Should they decide to compensate at the same rate all the Indians whose ancestors have suffered injustice at Uncle Sam's hands, Rockefeller's fine of thirty millions wouldn't pay the first instalment.

There are many ways of reaching the results of a business combine. The clothing contractors of Montreal are declaring a general lock-out, which will throw 1000 men and women out of employment. Their avowed object is to force the wholesale prices to equal the increased prices, so that they can meet the demands of their employees for an advance in wages.

Mr. Borden bears testimony to the superior administrative and executive ability of the "Grits." He says the prosperity of the country is not due to the "Grits," but to the policy of the Conservative party. If that is so, the Conservatives must have been a lot of muffs — they had an eighteen year innings with their policy and, to use baseball language, they never got beyond first base.

Reading between the lines of Mr. Borden's political confession of faith, one is not surprised to find inconsistencies — the patchwork does not always fit. In article 8, Mr. Borden calls for destruction of the evil, as he regards it, of the government management of our national railways, by placing them under an independent commission. In another article he advocates and declared for a government system of telegraphs, and telephones, to be managed by the Government. If government management of railways is a failure, is government management of telephones and telegraphs likely to be better?

Mr. Borden professes confidence in securing a sufficiently large following in the next election to place him in power. What are his chances? He declares in favour of excluding grafters from Parliament. Then how can he count upon having Hon. Mr. Foster, Mr. Fowler, Mr. LeFurgey, et alill stalwarts, at his back in the next House? He declares in favour of killing the spoils system by removing the civil service from the sphere of political influence. If he insists upon this, he will have Mr. Whitney and the almost solid influence of Conservatism in Ontario against him, and he counts upon Ontario as the chief recruiting ground of his expected majority in the next House. These two chief planks of his platform will cut out his ablest lieutenants, and thins the rank and file from Ontario.

The Fredericton Gleaner is evidently trying to have its cake, and eat it — to make contradictory charges do work against the Government. The Globe points out that this journal now says that the lands purchased by the Southern Alberta Irrigation Company from the Government, are valueless for irrigation purposes. This is the land which Opposition speakers in Parliament last year told us was so valuable, and that its sale was a piece of graft for the enrichment of friends of the Government. The Gleaner takes the new tack that the Government is responsible for the losses of the English investors. The curious thing is that it is not even known whether any Englishman invested a dollar in it. It is all the creation of Opposition hot air. At all events, the theory that the Canadian Government can watch the whole English people, and restrain them from making bad investments, is too wild, even for the re-eyed Gleaner.

Editor Post-Card Column,

Dear Sir,—I drive a horse and a rubber-tired run-about. You may say that that is no affair of yours. But it is your affair, and that of everybody who uses our streets for driving. The loose stones that cumber the streets are an abominable nuisance. Why do the aldermen allow them to stay on the streets? Our streets do not need this sort of troulbe to make them unfit for comfortable use.

Yours truly,
DRIVER.

MAPLE BLOSSOMS' FINE TRIP

Miss Birdie Thompson Heard From on Her Trip to London—Splendid Voyage Across Ocean

BLOSSOMS ARE POPULAR

Mail advices from Miss Birdie Thompson, who was one of The Toronto World's trip to London party, received in the city to-day, record her arrival in London, and state that she is having a splendid time. A special letter written by Mr. Smythe, who is in charge of the party, appeared in The World, and it will be of interest to friends of Miss Thompson here. It is as follows:—

Liverpool, Aug. 10.—Spinning down the Irish Sea, within an hour or two of landing at Liverpool, an opportunity occurs to look back on the voyage of the Maple Blossoms since they left Rimouski. Last night (Friday) a quite brilliant dancing party brought the week to a sparkling close. Most of the days had been dull and grey and monotonous. Nothing had occurred to relieve the tedium since passing Belle Isle such as usually enlivens an ocean passage. An iceberg was seen, but it was in a decadent condition and evidently had been upended. Porpoises and whales avoided the track, and even seagulls were scarce. A solitary steamer was seen on the dim horizon one day, and yesterday the Corsican came plowing along through head seas, which dashed over her bows. A brave old sailing craft appeared to the south and, shortly after, the Virginian was in touch with the Irish coast. If other features were wanting, the Atlantic is always strong on waves. Envious male passengers twitted the World man with having unwonted opportunities for holding hands. He was restricted entirely to holding heads. Naturally, he only held one at a time, but they advanced to the ordeal with pitiful regularity. Of course, there were exceptions, and wild horses would not drag from the World records the names of either the fortunate or the forlorn. Each must make her own boast. It is only fair to say, however, that Toronto made a better showing on the bill of health than the provinces.

Lost a Day

The voyage has not been a record one in the matter of time. Heavy fogs in the Straits of Belle Isle delayed the steamer for 15 hours, which counted a day off the London trip. An effort will be made to lengthen the metropolitan days as a compensation. Some grumbling occurred when the vessel lay to in a fog, but this ceased after a somewhat exciting incident. A horn was heard on Monday morning not far off, and after some time, the fog lifting revealed a big liner right across the bows of the Virginian, and much too close for nervous passengers. After this no more complaints were heard about caution.

On Sunday three church services were held, two of which were largely attended. The steerage passengers were duly warned against the evils of wealth, and the saloon people were told of the blessings of faith, and everybody sang heartily and contributed to the Sailors' Orphan Fund. A clever cornetist who plays his instrument with one hand and accompanies on the piano with the other, led the hymns. In the evening the Aurora Borealis flashed out over the north and paled and wavered with the pulsing vibrations of the great one, Life. Then, as it died away, the dear old Dipper shone clear, and the Maple Blossoms remembered that the familiar stars would watch them on one land as in another.

Toured the Vessel

A tour of inspection of the vessel itself resulted less pleasantly for some than has been expected. The cleanest of ships has a way of generating peculiar odours, and the unwonted motions of the Atlantic made a poor combination for amateur sailors. By Tuesday, the more robust of the passengers were busy at the usual ship pastimes. Shuffleboard is the chief of these and two rinks are kept going at all available hours. This is one of the pleasantest and most informal ways of getting acquainted and among the 66 saloon passengers there were many congenial spirits. A Kingston graduate of Queen's, for example, bound for Nigeria, discovered that he was well acquainted with the first cousin of another medical officer stationed out there. A New Zealander made himself popular and United Statesers fraternized with Britishers, as if the millennium had already come.

Post cards are a marvellous fad. One of the Maple Blossoms addressed over 400 and another had 300 all ready this morning for the first mail home. What thousands of pleasant thoughts must be engendered by a kindly greeting of this nature, the recipients will best know, but one no longer wonders at the popularity of the Maple Blossoms, who are so full of gentle courtesy.

Eat, Eat, Eat and Eat

Exercise is one of the essentials of healthy travelling. Round the deck the promenade has been fairly constant. Eleven laps to the mile is the dead reckoning, and sturdy individuals did 22 before dinner. After dinner the records were lower. It was evident, however, that the exercise was effective. Eating is the great aim of steamer travelling. Breakfast, beef tea at noon, luncheon, afternoon tea and dinner, are the great events on which the day turns. The saloon tables are a pretty sight and the excellent taste and the charming appearance of the Maple Blossoms, was the subject of general comment.

But, as has been said, the passage concluded in a blaze of glory. Everybody was better. In fact, everybody was well. On the previous capacity for flirting indicated the convalescence of the sickest. By Friday morning the purser's suggestion for a dance was hailed with delight. After dinner the port deck was found to be closed in with canvas covers and decked with bunting. A piano was lashed in a corner and well thumbed subsequently. The smooth deck had a fair surface and if the lurching of the ship occasionally banged the gyrating couples against the rail, no harm was done and there was much hilarity. Everyone felt jubilant with the thought of London on the morrow, and when "God Save the King" was sung, a stranger called for three cheers for the Maple Blossoms, and they were given with a will. The World man felt very proud of his party and would be glad to prolong the trip around the world again.

Pains in the Back Over the Kidneys
TELL OF DISEASED KIDNEYS AND THEI PROVEN CURE FOR THIS DREADFULLY PAINFUL AILMENT IS
DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

When kidney disease does not arise from exposure to a draft or chilling of the body it is usually developed gradually as a result of liver and bowel disorders.

It is because of the intimate and dependent relations of the liver, kidneys and bowels, that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure diseases of the Kidneys when mere kidney medicines fail.

By quickening the action of the liver and bowels this treatment immediately lessens the work of the kidneys, and at the same time restores their natural vigour. In this way the most serious and complicated diseases of the kidneys are thoroughly cured.

"For some time my mother could not walk across the floor, or stoop over because the pains in her back just over the kidneys were so severe. She had severe headaches, backache, spells of blindness and disziness, and tried many remedies without obtaining any relief. The doctors of our town said that the trouble was due to the turn of life.
"A lady friend advised mother to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and by the time she had used two boxes of this great medicine she was perfectly cured and the old trouble has never returned."
Mr. J. Edwards of Colborne, Ont., and who is employed by the Kennedy and Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I have been taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for some time and can positively say they are the best medicine I have ever used. I was troubled very much with my kidneys, and had dreadful pains in my back, which increased by leaning over.
"I can testify to the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because they have cured me, and shall gladly recommend them to anyone inquiring about them.
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills regulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

MORE MONEY FOR THE ENGINEERS

Grand Trunk Engine Drivers Will Receive Higher Wages In Future

The engineers of the Grand Trunk Railway have been agitating more or less for the past few months for a revison of the wage schedule all over the system. At last they have been successful in receiving a new schedule which takes effect from August 1st, and is good for three years.

This new schedule gives a fifteen per cent. raise in wages and along with this the engineers have also secured some improvements in the conditions of their work.

On the whole, the new schedule is meeting with general satisfaction.

LEAD PENCILS FROM POTATOES

New Method for Making Lead Pencils—Wood not Necessary

Consul Frank S. Hamrah, of Magdeburg, reports that a company has been formed to perfect an invention which instead of making use of cedar wood substitutes a compact mass, the main ingredient of which is potatoes. The invention has finally been perfected and the pencils are being manufactured.

These pencils while slightly heavier are the same in size, form and appearance as those at present in use, admit of sharpening a little more easily, and can be produced at a nominal figure.

WOMEN SUCCEED IN THE OCCUPATION OF FARMING IN THE CANADIAN WEST

How One Woman Overcame the Difficulties Incidental to Life in the West and Made Good.

NEIGHBOURS HELP HER

When one meets—and this in not infrequently — among newly-arrived immigrants robust, cheery-faced men, who held back from homesteading for fear of the loniiness or hardships of the life, it is worth while to recall a few instances of the weaker sex "making good" on Western farms.

Miss Marie Gilroy, of Saskatchewan, is one o fthe most famous women settlers of the west. She put her last shilling into a prairie fatm and spent seven years in a hand-to-land tussle with fortune, sitting on her own binder, cutting her own grain, handling the plough in the furrow, and doing stable duty. In 1906 her holding excited the admiration of a young Englishman, and Miss Gilroy was induced to hand over her lock, stock and barrel to him for the round sum of $15,000. To-day Miss Gilroy is touring Europe on the proceeds of her original $2,000.

Began Almost Pensiless

Mrs. Gilroy, who came to the Canadian west 20 years ago with 6 small children, is another prominent woman farmer of Saskatchewan. Her 160 acres of homestead have now grown to an 800-acre estate, and her children are settling around her in comfort and affluence.

Salome Wertman came with her husband and little family from Russia, and soon she, too, was a widow. She still kept on trying to "earn bread," as she says, and 16 years after her absolutely penniless start she stands as one of the successful landowners of Saskatchewan.

Neighbours Put in Crop

Mrs. Grant has a beautiful farm on the banks of the Canadian Killarney, in southern Manitoba. Three years ago she went there from Scotland with her son, a young man just out of College, and her daughter. A year ago, just as they were preparing for spring seeding, the son was stricken down with appendicitis, and in 24 hours he was dead. Filled with hatred for the place, she decided to leave it, but the morning after the sons funeral, when she was packing up, her daughter called to her, "Mother, come here, quick." She looked and saw that men, teams and ploughs quietly and without a word of explanation were beginning work on the farm. The neighbours had decided to put in the season's crop for the two bereaved women. They actually ploughed, harrowed, seeded and reaped the entire crop. After that Mrs. Grant talked no more of going "home." Her farm by the shores of the Canadian Killarney was home to her.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT: ITS CAUSE

An interesting statement was made by Sir James Crichton-Browne during an address upon the brain mind and education of children, at the International School Congress, at South Kensington. He essayed, in cold, unemotional phraseology, an explanation of "love at first sight;" and the lady delegates smiled in secret, but none the less whole-hearted amusement. Sir James attributed this inevitable "first love" practically to two scientific causes—although he considered it "to problematical and out-of-date, in these days to merit serious physiological consideration." The two causes of the tender passion were, in his opinion:

(1) A species of cerebral commotion.
(2) The stirring of some hitherto dormant association centers by an appropriate affinitive impression.

He also described a curious experiment which had been made with 848 tiny children to test their individual mind impulses. A variety of dolls were offered to them, and their choice carefully studied. In the result 161 preferred wax dolls; 163 paper dolls, 158 china dolls, 144 rag dolls, 116 bisque dolls, and 63 rubber dolls.

Sir James delivered a notable passage upon what he called "the commerce of the brain." "In every brain," he said, "there are broad, well-beaten highways of association that can never be abandoned or interfered with; but in every brain there are also crossways and byways that can be converted into highways or blocked up altogether, and in every brain there are territories that have not been fully opened up to traffic but that may be penetrated and brought into the trade circuit."—London Daily Mail.

Weather We May Look For During Three Weeks

Local Weather Prophet Gives His Opinion of What Will Happen Between Now and Sep. 12th.

There'll Be No Moustache Now Between The Cup And The Lip

UNKNOWN BY THEIR FRIENDS

Little observation is necessary to see that many Peterborough residents of the sterner sex have inaugurated a crusade against man's greatest joy —the moustache. Within the last few days a number of the prominent men of the city have appeared on the streets and elsewhere minus the little growth on their upper lips, which was one of the prominent marks on their countenances to distinguish them from their fellow beings. Men who have worn the moustache for years have discarded it without an hour's notice to their friends, and, consequently, the latter are often puzzled to know them.

In one of the local stores the other day a gentleman called to see the proprietor, whom he knew as well as his own father. A man stood behind the counter, and of him he asked if the "boss" was in. The owner of the business was, of course, the person to whom the question was addressed, and he stood astonished to think that he was not recognized by such a well known acquaintance.

On another occasion the same gentleman, who, by the way, has eliminated his moustache, was mistaken for his brother by a person who was well acquainted with him.

The reason for this wholesale discarding of the moustache is not very apparent. One would think that the male sex would take great pains in the preservation of such an ornament to their faces, which has probably taken years to train to perfection. It has been suggested that the eliminating of the moustache has been for the purpose of producing greater comfort for the individuals who have had to wear them, during the warm weather of the summer season. But this theory does not seem to hold good when it is known that most of the men referred to have practically waited until the really hot weather has passed.

It may be that the persons who have been moved to use the razor so freely have committed some offence, the disclosing of which fact they wish to hide betind a disguise. Or perhaps they have been told by some feminine admirer that their appearance would be greatly improved by such an alteration.

However true these suppositions may be, the fact remains that a large number of the men have discarded their moustaches, and acquaintances have to look twice before they turn away their heads without the usual recognition.

The Capture Of Largest 'Lunge Never Recorded

LANDED UNTO THE DREDGE

The capture of the largest 'lunge in the history of the Kawartha Lakes, strange to say, has never been published. The monster was caught in Lake Ketchewanooka, not many years ago, but the time and the exact place have been forgotten, and as far as is known there is only one person who can testify to seeing the fish weighed after having been pulled from the water.

It was caught some six or eight years ago, off the Government dredge between Lakefield and Young's Point. The successful fisherman was the cook on the dredge, who happened to notice the finny monster on the bottom of the lake, lying beside a sunken log. He pulled it to the surface with a pikepole, and in the presence of Mr. Frank Walsh, of Young's Point, who is still a resident there, found the fish to weigh in the neighbourhood of 41 pounds.

The strange part of the catch, however, was that the 'lunge was so aged that the moss had grown upon its back, and had it been left much longer would have soon passed beyond this life. The capturer cooked the fish but the meat was too strong for consumption.

This fish certainly beats the record for Peterborough county, and as far as can be learned the report of its capture was never before published.

"WIGS ON THE GREEN" AT GRIMSBY PARK; A FACTION FIGHT CAUSES TROUBLE

No Dividends Have Been Paid for Years, and Shareholders are Dissatisfied With the Management.

VAUDEVILLE THEATRE

A Peterborough visitor, who is spending a few weeks at Grimsby Park summer resort, writes that there were wigs on the green at the park, on Thursday, when the annual meeting of the company was held.

There are two rival factions in the clash, one being the present management of the park, and the other being certain shareholders, who appear to think that it has not been managed in a way calculated to produce the best results. Behind this latter party, it is said, is J. Hewitt, the millionaire, who has done so much for the neighbourhood. They want to thoroughly renovate the park and build a vaudeville theatre.

S. F. Lasier, K.C., who holds $900 preference stock, and $1200 debentures, and $275 common stock, in the company, and whose wife owns three cottages on lots leased from the company, has filed a petition for a winding-up order at Osgoode Hall. He says in the course of his statement that the company, originally incorporated as the Methodist Camp Ground, Limited, but subsequently changed to Grimsby Park Company, passed bylaws in 1900, authorizing the issue of $40,000 debentures, bearing interest at 4 per cent., and $30,000 of 6 per cent. preferred stock. All the debentures were duly sold and the stock subscribed, and part of the money derived from these sources was applied to pay off the outstanding liabilities. Prior to this date, $15,000 of common stock had been issued.

Assets of the company in 1900 were 1000 acres of land, two hotels and one temple auditorium. Several lots were leased on 999-year leases, and on these 175 cottages have been built. The income depends on gate fees, garbage fees, water rates, leases and the operation of hotels, stores, etc. Since 1901, only one dividend of 3 per cent., has been paid to the knowledge of the petitioner and since then the funds available have not only been insufficient to pay further dividends, but have been inadequate for the repair of the wharves and other improvements, which have consequently deteriorated very seriously in value. In 1904, 1905 and 1906 the company was unable to pay interest on its debts, and Mr. Lasier claims that therefore the provisions of the winding-up act apply and he asks for the appointment of a liquidator.

In his affidavit the petitioner says that the operations of the Lord's Day Act in preventing the charging of fees and the actions at law of cottage owners against the imposition of entrance fees have been detrimental. The official programme of the company for the current year, shows a serious falling off and the accounts given in the press of late have not been of a nature to attract favourable attention. Under the circumstances Mr. Lazier does not believe that the company will ever be able to pay dividends on either its preferred or common stock and he believes that it would be to the advantage of all concerned that it should be wound up.

It is understood that J. Hewitt, an American millionaire, wants to build a vaudeville theatre there, and this provides another feature to the situation.

GREAT FEAT BY A LOCAL JOCKEY

Nat Ray Has Series of Successful Races in England

Nat Ray, after riding the victor of the steeplechase race at Brighton Beach on Saturday, the 3rd instant, went over to Parkway, L. I., and drove his pacer, John McEwen, a winning race at the matinee. On last Thursday he left the runners at Saratoga and run down to Parkway again, and won the 2.11 pace with John, and incidentally gave him a new mark of 2.09 1-4. He also displayed the skill of a Geers or a McHenry in piloting a pacer. John McEwen formerly wore hobbles, kicking straps and other ornaments, but now goes clean and is a great wiggler. Nat might open a winter school and teach the drivers of hobbled pacers how he did it.—Horse Review.

BASS FOLLOWED AND KILLED WITH PADDLE

East City Painter Beats a Good Many Records

An East City painter has most of the records beaten for catching fish. He went down the river last night and just below the locks caught a fine bass with no bait, hook, rod or line, but with just a common paddle. He noticed the bass swimming along on the surface of the water with its head in the air and he took after it in the canoe.

The fish apparently had for the time being forgotten how to dive, and its nose was crooked by the blade of the paddle and gathered in.

CHOSEN FRIENDS HOLD SOCIAL

An Interesting Programme Was Given Last Night in Sons of England Hall

A pleasant evening was spent last night in the Sons of England Hall, when, under the auspices of the local Circle, No. 423, Canadian Order of Chosen friends, a social was given. There was a good attendance, and an interesting programme of music and other features was presented. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. McGill, and piano solos were given by Miss Geraldine Buyers, vocal solo by Mr. R. A. Cunningham, and readings by Mr. A. Hanna, the latter contributing three intensely humorous readings. Following this, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

OBITUARY

IRENE HOGAN

The many friends of Miss Irene Hogan will learn with regret that she has passed away, after a long illness. Her death occurred on Friday afternoon at her home, 210 McDonel street. The deceased was 16 years of age. She leaves to mourn her loss her father and mother, two sisters and two brothers.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

Miller's Pills are sold by Wm. Madill.

FIRST WIDOW: Oh, Sir! my husband was insured in that company, and you frightened him so that he dropped his policy, and now what will become of my children and me?
SECOND WIDOW: And my husband had promised to insure, but you stopped him, and now I have nothing.
THIRD WIDOW: My husband would have insured too, but your law compelled the companies to dismiss half their agents, and no one came to see him. Will you educate our children?
JUDGE McTAVISH: My poor women! I am very sorry for you, but you are martyrs in a good cause. As Mr. W. F. Maclean says, Canada was suffering from an attack of over-insurance and we had to cure it. Over-insurance is a terrible disease! If every person was insured there would be no use for our workhouses and orphan asylums.—Office and Field.

THE STORE THAT NEVER DISAPPOINTS

A NOTE FROM

Cressman's

OUR ENLARGED PREMISES

What it will be

One of the finest stores in the Province—every portion refitted with the most modern conveniences, strictly along the lines of accomodation and first class service for our patrons—every foot of space is to be utilized to the best advantage possible and all new devices will be installed for the betterment of store service.

Some New Features

LIGHTING— Store will be illuminated in the day time with the best light distributors known and at night by the latest improved electric lighting system to faolilitate evening buying.

HEATING—A new steam heating plant is being installed and improved elevator service will be given.

LARGER DEPARTMENTS— Every department will be doubled in size and much larger stocks will be carried LARGER STAFF—Our present large staff will be increased one-third.

DELIVERY SYSTEM—We are the only dry goods house in the city that has its own parcel delivery service, three first class rigs will be at our command—goods delivered to any part of the city, also to all trains and boats.

MAIL AND TELEPHONE ORDERS—This is a new addition to our service which will be made as efficient as any other department in our store. Any goods not satisfactory will be promptly exchanged or money refunded.

What it Means

LARGER SELLING—The larger the business and the better service it gives, will mean a greater turnover of merchandise, which will necessitate—

LARGER BUYING—And as is well known the larger buyer can demand better prices from the manufacturer and in turn greatly enables him to lessen, in a substantial way, the retail prices of his goods.

QUICK SERVICE—With a much larger staff all competent to serve the public properly in their respective departments, and with the new labor saving devices installed—one result can only be the outcome viz:—better and quicker service.

Special Selling Features

BARGAIN ANNEX—This is our 4th floor sales room, where all greatly reduced priced goods are placed on sale for convenient and quick selling, Open every Wednesday from 8.05 a. m. to 5.15 p. m. only.

SATURDAY SNAPS—This sale was introduced to give the marketers and out of town people as well as the city folk a chance to secure Snaps, such as are sold in the Annex Merry One Price Sale.

This new selling feature is being organized as a continueance of our Merry Half Day Sale and will be carried along just as strong lines as our ' Bargain Annex " which has become such a popular feature in this business—special buying will be done for this sale—a competent head will be placed over it and will be required to provide each THURSDAY MORNING between the hours 8:05 and 11 o'clock; a "One Price" attraction that will be in keeping with every new feature introduced by this business.

STORE HOURS—After the formal opening of the new store, the doors will be opened daily at 8:05 a. m. and closed at 5:45 p. m.

GREAT FISHING AT RICE LAKE

AN ILLUMINATED PARADISE

Examiner Special,

Jubilee House, Rice Lake, August 24.—The Jubilee House is having a continuation of the patronage that it has enjoyed this season, and under Mr. J. J. Gilman's proprietorship, is gaining still greater fame as a summer resort. The feature of the locality that is pleasing the boarders is the fine bass and lunge fishing in Rice Lake, near the Point. Mr. Chas. Helm, of Rochester, who is registered at the house with his wife, got a lunge on Wednesday after a game fight, and when weighed just tipped the scales at 19 pounds. Mr. Helm is justly proud of his prize and includes it in his list of stories on the verandah every night. Mrs. Helm has also had good luck, and has landed some fine lunge. Dr. and Mrs. L. Stetxmeyer and son, also of Rochester, have also been very successful in their fishing expeditions.

Mr. A. Belcher, of Rochester, arrived this week for a few weeks' holidays.

Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong of Oshawa, are among the guests at this resort, and are getting their share of fish. Dr. Armstrong, besides having hooked his share of the lunge is having great luck with the black bass. Mr. George Kemp, who accompanied them, has returned to Oshawa, and will play with the Shamrocks in their scheduled game.

The Knooker Camp boys are located at Hatrick's Point, Messrs. Austin Cranfield, Bert Holland, Fred Holland, W. Moncrief, et al., are down this year and are having a good time. The boys are regular visitors at Jubilee, where they are popular with their music. So far, Fred Holland has the fishing honours, having the biggest fish to his credit. On Thursday he landed a 9 pound lunge from in front of the camp. Their camp fire musicales have won favourable comment from the neighbours.

Rev. O. C. Elliott, formerly of the Park street Baptist church, is in camp south of Wedlock's. Mr. Stanley Gillespie is among those at the camp.

Visitors at Wedlock's fine resort are still coming, and the house is now nearly crowded. The yacht Mermaid is used by the guests in trips about the lake and for fishing.

At Gore's Landing on Tuesday evening an illuminated parade was held off the dock, and proved to be a great success, many floats being prettily decorated, presenting a scene seldom witnessed on the lake. Afterwards fireworks were let off from a barge that was moored out from the shore. As the million coloured rockets and lights shot into the air, bursting into stars that almost surpassed those that dotted the heavens, they were reflected in the water, and the whole was greatly enjoyed, not only by the people of Gore's Landing, but from all over the lake.

The fishing on Rice Lake promises to be even better during the next few weeks and the followers of Isaak Walton, will continue in their efforts to capture the best specimens that the water's produce.

AN ATTRACTIVE EXHIBIT

The Making of Shredded Wheat One of the Great Drawing Features of the Industrial Fair

Shredded Wheat has become a household word throughout Canada, and this year the visitors to the Toronto Exhibition are afforded an opportunity to witness how this famous cereal is made. Each day from 9 a.m. to closing time the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company will have a most complete miniature food factory in full operation in the Process Building, and samples of Biscuit and Triscuit are being distributed to thousands of interested sight-seers.

This exhibit is easily the most attractive at the Industrial and the Company has so arranged it that it is being kept in continuous operation from the opening of the fair in the morning to the closing of the gates at night.

The power supply in the Process Building is shut off from 12 to 2 o'clock each day, but as the Shredded Wheat Company has installed their own motor they have been able to keep their plant running without interruption. The cardinal principles in the manufacture of Shredded Wheat is cleanliness and purity, and after seeing how it is made users will eat it with a greater relish. The process of manufacture clearly establishes its claim of being the cleanest, purest and most nutritious cereal in the world.

Stony Lake Cottagers Hold Annual Meeting

OFFICERS WERE RE-ELECTED

The principal thing that came up before the Stony Lake Cottagers Association, at its annual meeting held at Juniper Island last night, was the question of pavilion accommodation. The property committee reported that they were negotiating for the securing of permanent headquarters with the owners of Juniper Island, and were hopeful of bringing able to come to an arrangement, whereby this could be effected.

Vice-president Henderson occupied the chair, in the absence of President Acton, and there was a large attendance, some one hundred cottagers being present.

The usual reports were read and adopted. They indicated that the association is on a sound footing.

The property committee reported that they were negotiating with the owners of Juniper Island on the subject of securing more suitable quarters there, but no arrangement had been effected. They recommended to the association the securing of the free hold right to some property to be used as headquarters.

Mr. G. M. Roger, who was present on behalf of the owners of the island, asked the privilege of denying the rumour circulating about the lakes for some years questioning the absolute ownership of Juniper Island by the present owners and suggesting some impropriety in the way in which it had been acquired. He explained at length the circumstances under which the Island had been aquired from the Crown and offered to give the Association all facilities for investigating the matter if they thought fit. He declined to give any permanent rights in the island to the Association as long as the members of the Association chose to question the owner's rights thereto.

After some discussion on the subject a resolution was unanimously carried accepting the explanation as entirely satisfactory and exonerating Messrs. Roger and Edwards from any reflection in connection with the matter.

The election of officers resulted in the old officers being elected with the addition of Hon. Geo. A. Cox as Honorary President, and Hon. J. R. Stratton as a member of the executive.

Mr. Robt. Neill brought up the question of sanitation on the lake and that it was desirable that a committee should be appointed to oversee this matter. He trusted that the property holders would co-operate in every way possible.

The Executive Committee with the name of Mr. Sutherland added was selected as a Committee on Legislation and Sanitation.

THE COMMITTEE ROOM ENLARGED

Meeting Place of the Council Committees Is Being Made Bigger

The work of re-modelling the old fire hall into offices for the city officials, is going rapidly ahead. The workmen have begun with the enlarging of the council committee room, which is to be made larger by the removal of the wash room from the rear of the room. The present accommodation is too limited, especially when a deputation is waiting upon one of the committees.

EXHIBITION WILL BE A SUCCESS

Directors Inspected the Grounds Yesterday—Better Accommodation is Promised

CHILDREN - LET IN FREE

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, with the superintendent, Mr. J. J. Bennett, met last evening at the Exhibition grounds and went thoroughly over the premises, with a view of ascertaining what repairs and improvements are required. The ground and buildings were found to be in good shape with the exception of the windows in the main building. Small boys have been at work and hardly a pane of glass is left. Even the windows protected with a netting have suffered the same fate as the others.

The directors decided that better accommodation should be provided for the poultry. The present quarters, it was felt, were inadequate and not in a good position. It is probable that the poultry exhibit will be placed in a large tent.

"The exhibition is bound to be a success this year," remarked President Leary, and he spoke with confidence, too.

A new feature this year will be free admission to all children under 10 years of age. The directors have decided upon this step, and no doubt it will prove very popular.

SPLENDID CONCERT WAS PLAYED

New Members of the 57th Band Last Night Delighted Crowd

The weekly band concert last night by the 57th band was very much enjoyed by a vast crowd. The programme was a varied and delightful one and every number was received with applause.

Two splendid solo numbers were given, a cornet solo, by Bandsman Hughes, "My Rosary," and "Third Au Varie," by Bandaman Cronk. Both were rendered with ease and effect. The two new medleys, Remick's Hits No. 2 and 3, were thoroughly enjoyed. They include a number of the latest songs of the day, and were splendidly played by the band. Other enjoyable numbers were Godfrey's "Reminiscences of Ireland," and Suppe's grand overture, "Morning, Noon and Night, in Vienna."

A GRAVE INJUSTICE IS DONE

Senator Cox Gives Advice to Insurance Men.

BANQUET OF UNDERWRITERS

Senator Offers Agents Some Tips on Obtaining Commission — Condemns New York System—Will Oppose Canadian Legislation on Same Lines—Law Should Be More Equitable—Convention Closes.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—"It is immaterial, gentlemen, whether we live north or south of some imaginary border line, whether we be subjects of King Edward or citizens of the great republic, we will all of us, I know, most heartily follow the customs of our hosts and begin our proceedings tonight by a toast to the King."

Thus did Charles W. Scovell of Pittsburg, U. S. A., toastmaster at the National Underwriters' Association banquet, open the speechmaking last night. Fully 300 guests were assembled, principally delegates and their wives and daughters from the United States. They rose at once and joined in singing "God Save the King." They fell down, however, in an effort to sing the "Star Spangled Banner" when the President's health was next proposed. It is not usual to drink the President's health in his own country and few Americans ever attempt to sing their National Anthem.

Senator George W. Ross was to respond to the toast of Canada, but in his absence, owing to indisposition, Rev. Canon Cody responded. He greeted the underwriters as "propogandists of thrift." He admired thrift and opposed old-age pensions as calculated to destroy thrift. The canon briefly traced the history of Canada. The country had passed from the crown of France to the crown of Great Britain, and he believed that it was destined to remain permanently a British country. At the same time the Government was free and democratic Canada, if daughter in her mother's house was mistress in her own.

Value of Insurance.

W. F. Cockshutt, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, was given a cordial reception. He gave an address on the topic "The Value of Life Insurance to the Country at Large," and began by admitting that insurance was one of the greatest factors for the upbuilding of a man's savings and the protection of his heirs.

"What was the destiny of Canada?" The speaker confessed that he could not say. It was enough for us to consider the duty of Canada. It was the duty of Canada to fix upon high ideals and then to try to live up to them. We should avoid the dangers of Socialism. The state could not do everything. There was danger in too much "paternalism," but there could not be too much true fraternity. He extended an eloquent welcome to the American visitors and in return they gave to him when he resumed his seat a magnificent demonstration.

"A Builder of Canada!" Thus it was that the toastmaster introduced Senator George A. Cox, who was greeted with cheers and a chorus proclaiming that "he was a jolly good fellow."

Work of Half a Century.

The Senator spoke of "fifty years of life insurance in Canada." He recalled with pride his hard work with the rate book as an insurance solicitor. In that capacity he believed that he had done more good for the country than in any other way, although he had been honored by many positions of power and trust. He had always a soft side for the men in the field. As a rule they were not paid enough. They were the men who did the hard work and who brought in the money and they should get the lion's share of the profit.

The Senator advised the agents in making their contracts with the companies to stipulate for commissions on renewals. They counted far more than the initial commission. Personally he was still getting a commission on policies secured 46 years ago. The Senator denounced section 9 of the New York insurance code. They may try, he said, to pass a similar law in Canada. "Well, gentlemen, I promise you to fight such legislation in and out of Parliament. Any such law will certainly have one vote cast against it."

Charles Jerome Edwards, the newly-elected president, was called upon and briefly responded.

CROPS ARE NOW SAFE.

Chances Are Good for Fine Harvesting Weather.

Winnipeg, Aug. 24.—The general belief of grain men is now that the danger point in regard to frost has been passed, and that the chances are good for fine harvesting weather for the next two weeks.

Reports received by the Canadian Pacific Railway from all parts of the west indicate that no serious damage has been done by frost. Garden stuff, potatoes, etc., were nipped, but wheat was not hurt, except in rare spots.

THE MICHIGAN CENTRAL RESPONSIBLE

Gross Negligence Charged in Verdict of Jury at Inquest.

CAUSE OF ESSEX DISASTER

Explosive Was Sent as Ordinary Freight — Employes Took No Extra Precautions—May Institute Criminal Proceedings Against Company—Superintendent Admits Car Was Negligently Handled.

Windsor, Aug. 24.—Gross negligence on the part of the Michigan Central was charged in the verdict of the coroner's jury at the Essex inquest yesterday afternoon. Witnesses were called to trace the car from Black Rock to Essex. The evidence went to show that it was four days on the way, being sent on the morning of Aug. 6, reaching St. Thomas on the evening of Aug. 7, and remaining there until the morning of the ninth, then being shipped to Essex, where it was kept until the next morning—the day of the explosion.

It went all the distance as way freight, stops being made at Welland, St. Thomas and Ridgetown before reaching Essex to unload and receive consignments.

The regulations concerning shipments of explosives were produced and called for special construction of cars. The evidence was to the effect that no precautions were taken by the railway employes.

Six trainmen were called, and only one had seen the regulations. Conductor Barry said it had been the rule to send a despatch ahead of dynamite cars, but this had not been done.

A case of dynamite belonging to the same consignment was produced, and an expert, Frederick Julian, employed by the consignors, the Pluto Powder Co., testified that the dynamite was properly manufactured.

Superintendent Adams of the Michigan Central admitted that the car was not handled as it should have been, but he would not admit the explosion was due to that.

The jury were out 20 minutes before returning the verdict. Crown Attorney Rodd would not make a statement as to whether he would institute criminal proceedings or not.

The verdict against the railway company caused no surprise, particularly in view of the fact that claims agents of the Michigan Central have been on the ground ever since the explosion, quietly making what arrangements for settlement were possible with those whose property was destroyed or damaged. Claims amounting to over $20,000 have already been settled in this way, and it is expected that practically a full settlement will be reached without recourse to the courts.

FOUR MINERS BURIED.

Caught In Cave-In In Pennsylvania Mine.

Wilkesbarra, Pa., Aug. 24.—Four of the miners who were Thursday caught in a cave-in in No. 14 tunnel of the Pennsylvania Coal Co., near here, are still entombed, and it is believed they are dead. The voice of James Boyle, one of the entombed men, was heard at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, but since then silence has reigned in the vicinity of the cave-in. Boyle's companions are Peter Flynn, John Koening and Joseph Koening. The cave-in was caused by a heavy fall of rock. Six men were entombed, but two of them crawled from under some of the debris after several hour's effort. Of these Michael Naghton was badly injured, but the other man escaped unhurt. Rescuing parties working in shifts labored all night to free the men still in the mine.

CRASHED INTO BARGE.

Steamer Imperial's Steering Gear Went Wrong.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—The steamer Imperial, belonging to the St. Lawrence Navigation Co., rammed and sank a barge yesterday afternoon in the St. Lawrence River. The Imperial was leaving for Quebec on her regular trip, and had just got nicely started when her steering gear went wrong and she headed at full speed for the dock. Her engines were reversed too late, and she crashed into the barge, which was unloading brick, and sank her. There were six people on board the barge, but they escaped in time. The barge lies 35 feet under water, with 60,000 bricks on board. The Imperial backed off and proceeded on her way to Quebec, as if nothing happened.

Chicago Contractor Murdered.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The body of Evander McIvor, a wealthy contractor, residing in Prairie avenue, was found yesterday in a stairway leading to a basement in a house at 25th and State streets. There were marks of violence on the body, and all money and valuables had been taken.

Marion Story Kills Himself.

New York, Aug. 24.—Marion Story, the artist and brother of Julian P. Story, the well known artist who was divorced by Mme. Emma Eames, committed suicide at his home, Brook Farm, about a mile from Portchester, Thursday night, by shooting himself through the head.

SWUNG OVER DEEP CHASM

Poisonous Reptile Crawled Down Rope and Attacked Him—Was Preparing to Lay Dynamite Blast—Pit Was One Hundred and Fifty Feet Deep—Fought While Clinging to Rope — Narrow Escape.

New York, Aug. 24.—A despatch to The Herald from Trenton, N. J., says —Half a dozen laborers and fifty or more convicts at the stone quarries of the Mercer County workhouse farm yesterday helplessly watched John Hutchinson, blaster, as he fought for half an hour in mid-air with a big mountain pilot snake, a poisonous species, that had crawled down a rope ladder to attack him as he was swinging half-way to the bottom of a chasm one hundred and fifty feet in depth, preparing to place a dynamite blast.

None was able to render aid, and Hutchinson was obliged to fight alone until he beat off the reptile with an iron drill in his one hand, while he clung to a rope with the other. He dared not drop the dynamite lest he cause an explosion that would have blown him to pieces, and he was obliged to keep a tight hold on the rope or fall to the bottom of the pit. He slipped the dynamite into his pocket, and as the snake dropped within his reach he struck it with a small drill. The swinging of the rope spoiled his aim and he missed. He struck again and again, the snake's progress was impeded, and finally it uncoiled from the rope and dropped to the pit below.

Hutchinson signalled for help and was drawn to the top in an almost exhausted condition. As he stepped back two other pilot snakes struck at him, but his heavy boots blocked their fangs. They were quickly killed.

MURDERER WAS FOILED.

Victim's Prayers Led to Timely Arrival of Assistance.

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Prayer prevented the escape of a prisoner from the Mt. Holly jail early yesterday morning. George R. Clark, who recently attempted to murder Thomas J. Barrell, had his plans to flee from the institution, but his threat to kill Joseph Misler, his cell-mate, proved his undoing.

Clark was engaged in removing bricks from a chimney in his cell. The noise awoke Misler, and when Clark realized that his effort to escape had been discovered, he removed the blade from a razor, rushed toward Misler and commanded him to pray, saying: "I am going to kill you and then commit suicide."

Misler prayed so fervently that Charles Williams, a "trusty" prisoner, heard his voice. Williams summoned Deputy Sheriff Fleetwood and Turnkey Gaskell, and the crime was frustrated.

KILLED BY COUNTERFEITERS.

Deserter From French Army Brutally Murdered.

Palermo, Aug. 24.—The finding yesterday of two half-burned chests containing portions of a human body in the forest of Belletampe brought to light a brutal murder and led to the discovery of an extensive plant for the manufacture of spurious bank notes. Italy has recently been flooded with counterfeit money. The victime of the murder was identified as Henry Francois, a deserter from the French army.

A local engraver, his wife and two merchants were arrested both as the assassins and as counterfeiters. The motive of the crime is alleged to have been the fear of betrayal by Francois, who was a member of the gang.

For Workingmen.

London, Aug. 24.—(C. A. P.)—The provost at Glasgow has received from Earl Grey a copy of the Royal Atlas of Canada, issued by the Department of the Interior, with the request that it be placed in the library most frequented by workingmen. Earl Grey states that he knows no publication in any country, which either in form or substance, equals the merit of this Atlas. The provost fulfilled his request.

Hotelman Will Be Tried.

St. Catharines, Aug. 24.—James Wadsworth, the Queenston hotelkeeper arrested on the charge of receiving stolen goods from freight cars by boys at Niagara Falls, yesterday elected to be tried summarily by Judge Carman and trial was set for Sept. 10.

Slays Wife Over Sleeping Child.

New York, Aug. 24.—Taking aim over the sleeping form of his daughter, Margaret, four years old, Bernard Delaney Thursday night shot and mortally wounded his wife as she lay asleep in bed. He then shot and killed himself.

SUICIDE OR MURDER?

Mystery of Banker's Death Assumes Another Phase.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Three arrests were made in connection with the "Banco Giannetti" tangle yesterday noon. Another man is wanted and a day-long conference of detectives, lawyers, prisoners and interpreters led to the discovery of documents which cast some light upon the affairs of the "Banco," though it still teems with mystery.

The suicide of Giannetti, too, is slightly cleared by the discovery of the man from whom he purchased the razor used for the deed.

The men arrested are:

Domenico Vetromile, 160 Mulberry street, New York, broker.

F. E. Martirani, same address, clerk.

D. Confortis, Yonge street, Toronto, clerk.

The man wanted is Coroneo of this city, a clerk for Giannetti. He cannot be found, and is supposed to be in hiding, whether from fear of arrest or of the threatened violence of his countrymen the police cannot say.

The warrant charges that the men "did conspire with one another, and with another, by deceit and other fraudulent means, to defraud Gennard Gorrasi of the sum of $2,300 in money, his property." Gorrasi lives here and paid the money in at the local office of the "bank" in July. It is said to have been sent to New York, but cannot be shown to have been sent further.

The evidence which led to the arrest of the trio is a card found among the defects of the dead man. It purports to set out the branches of the bank, and their managers. It reads:

Banco Giannetti, 160 Mulberry street, New York. Sig. Domenico Vetromile, director.

This directly contradicts the statement of V. D. Vetromile that he is in no way connected with the bank, save as a friend of the dead man.

Mr. Eric Armour, counsel for the creditors, says that to this there has been found among the papers taken from the bank safe a partnership agreement drawn up by Messrs. Bandouin and Bandouin, notaries, 99 St. James street, Montreal, between Archimede Giannetti, thought to be the dead man, and Gaetano Vetromile, the brother of the prisoner of that name. It sets out that both agree to devote all their time and energy to the business of transmitting money to Italy and other points and the sale of steamship and railway tickets in Canada, but says nothing of the banking business. It bears date Nov. 12, 1906.

A further find was made last night of books of entry purporting to show the despatch of moneys from Toronto, to the stubs of which are attached official looking receipts bearing Italian stamps and dated from Genoa and Naples. These are thought by the detectives and Mr. Armour to show that these sums were actually received in Italy. The attached receipts stop in June, but the other entries continue, which leaves the sending of these moneys in doubt.

The ledger of the bank taken from the safe opens the door for a second long avenue of fraud. In this book long columns of deposits appear, against which stands only $24.78, the balance to the credit of the banco in the Merchants' Bank here, against which the last draught was made Aug. 19 for $355. These withdrawals, as shown by bundles of returned checks, were made by Coroneo, since the beginning of June, before which Giannetti had done the signing.

The check book of the bank shows a steady stream of remittances, each for about $300 going to the Fort William branch till June, when the tide turned in favor of New York.

Miss Eva Armstrong of Westmount, Montreal, says that she was engaged to Giannetti, but knew of no reason for him to suicide.

Giannetti was well known as a business man in Montreal. He was a member of the Chambre de Commerce and was prominent on its committees. He was a friend of C. H. Cateill, the president of the chambre, and spent a few days recently on his private yacht.

Killed by Train.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Alex. McDonald of this city, a foreman in the construction department of the G. T. R. was killed by a train near London yesterday.

He was directing his gang of men and failed to get out of the way of the west-bound Sarnia local. He was hurled 50 feet and had his back and ribs broken, his skull fractured and his collar bone broken. He died in Victoria Hospital, London, a few minutes after arriving there.

Deceased was 70 years of age and had been railroading for thirty years.

Italian Uses Knife.

Bridgeburg, Aug. 24.—A man by the name of Moxon, who works as a fitter at the Canadian Ship Yards here, was seriously wounded yesterday afternoon by being stabbed three times by an Italian.

The trouble arose by the Italian stepping on some work which Moxon was doing, when he struck the Italian.

Six Killed by Boiler.

New York, Aug. 24.—Six men who were testing a boiler of a donkey engine in a small room in the hold of the coal barge Paterson, were instantly killed yesterday by the explosion of the boiler.

Farmer Hangs Himself.

Blyth, Aug. 24.—William King, a farmer from near Aurora, committed suicide early yesterday morning by hanging in a coopershop. No reason is assigned. He leaves a family.

Civic Abattoir.

Winnipeg, Aug. 24.—The Retail Butchers' Association has unanimously declared for a public abattoir as the salvation of the meat trade, and the one means of restoring public confidence.

To Stop Export of Coke.

Nelson, B. C., Aug. 24.—The Board of Trade passed a resolution calling upon Premier McBride to enforce the law against the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. exporting coke to Montana smelters.

THE ASSESSORS WANT QUARTERS

City Officials Claim that They Have no Accomodations for Doing Their Work

The city council appears to have been very remiss in neglecting to provide suitable office accommodation for their assessors. Their duties this year are unusually arduous. It seems that a much large amount of information and detailed calculation has become necessary in order to comply with the late amendments to the Municipal Assessment Act. The nature of this work would be greatly facilitated if proper office and desk room were provided. As it is the assessors are compelled to carry their cumbersome books and papers to their private homes, and there do their calculating and figuring under many disadvantages. Instead of being able to put their valuable books away in a safe at night they have to be left lying around, exposed to the risk of fire and other accidents, which might destroy months of valuable work. Besides it is desirable that the assessors meet occasionally to discuss questions regarding their work; but as no convenient meeting place has been provided this cannot be done.

The council should see the seriousness of this matter at once and provide suitable office room for their assessors.

SKELETONS IN GRAVEL PIT.

Startling Discovery In Quiet Village of Islington.

Robert H. Tier was working in his gravel pit at the rear of his home, when he unearthed three human skeletons, buried about four feet below the surface of the ground. Two of the skeletons are those of adults, and the third that of a child, apparently about one year old.

The appearance of the teeth in one of the adult skulls would suggest that the person had been somewhat advanced in years, while the other skull seemed to belong to someone not over thirty years old at the time of death, as the wisdom teeth were only partially developed.

The skeletons were found in a hole which had been dug out and filled in again, and were all lying in a heap as if they had been thrown in. There is no indication of coffins having been used, and the indiscriminate way in which the skeletons were lying would suggest either foul play or that an epidemic of some kind had broken out and these three victims were thrown in the one grave.

PELTED TEETOTALERS.

Local Option Causes Disturbance at Pilot Mound.

Pilot Mound, Man., Aug. 24—Thursday night was one of the most disorderly in the history of Pilot Mound. All day the roomers and boarders that had been turned out by the closing of the Mound's two hotels as a result of local option paraded the streets in search of other lodgings, and were found grouped together discussing the outcome of the action taken by the hotel proprietors. In the evening those who were still homeless formed a parade and presented a number of temperance leaders with an assortment of eggs. Mayor Baird had to be called, and after some difficulty succeeded in restoring order. Yesterday two arrests were made, and the offenders will appear before Magistrate Preston. During the day a number of travelers stopped at the Mound and had considerable difficulty in finding accommodation. Some of the town laborers are being compelled to drive to Crystal City, a distance of five miles, to get their meals.

TO USE AIRSHIPS.

Will Fight the Moors From Captive Balloons.

Paris, Aug. 24.—Several captive balloons are being forwarded to Casablanca, Morocco, from the army's aerostatic park for use in locating the enemy.

A despatch from Melilla says the rebel Caid Dyalimoul has raided the local tribes and returned to Tetuan with two Imperial caids as prisoners and much booty in his possession.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Cable information has been reported to the State Department to the effect that the bandit Raisuli has defeated the large force sent against him by the Sultan of Morocco in the effort to secure the release of Caid MacLean. According to the report, the important city of Alcazar, which is distant only two days by the caravan route from Tangier, is in great danger.

AFTER THE BOOKIES.

Nine Operators at Fort Erie to Be Prosecuted.

Niagara Falls, Aug. 24.—Summonses to appear in the Police Court has been served on nine bookmakers of the Fort Erie race track. The prosecutions are instituted by Chief Mains of this city, who has been spending a lot of time on the Fort Erie track since the opening of the present race meeting. The informations against the bookmakers were laid before Magistrate Cruickshank of this city, and the charge in each case is keeping a common gambling house. Magistrate Cruickshank will go to Fort Erie on Tuesday, and the cases will be tried before him then.

John D. Rockfeller On The Art Of Saving

One of those rare occasions upon which John D. Rockefeller is prevailed upon to address an audience came recently in the parlours of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, says the New York Tribune. Mr. Rockefeller was one of the speakers at a social gathering of the Young Men's Bible Class of the church. He said:

"It is not an address at all that I have to give you. I supposed at first that I was to meet here a company of young students, and I had prepared a little address for them. Then when I came in I bethought me of a little book. I kept my accounts in this book, and also some memoranda of little incidents that seemed to me important. In after years I found that book and brought it to New York. It is more than forty-two years since I wrote what it contains. I call it Ledger A, and now I place the greatest value upon it. I have thought it would be of little help to some of you young men if I read one or two extracts from this ledger.

Evidence of Extreme Economy

"When I found this book recently I thought it had no cover, because I saw it had writing on its back. But I had utilized the cover to write upon. In those days I was economical, even with paper. When I read it through it brought to my mind remembrances of the care with which I used to record my little items of receipts and disbursements—matters, I think, which many of you young men are rather careless about. I believe it is a religious duty to get all the money you can, fairly and honestly; to keep all you can, and to give away all you can. I think that is a problem you are all familiar with. I have told you before what pleasure this little book gives me. I dare not let you read it through, because my children, who have read it, say that I did not spell toothbrush correctly. But then, you know, we have made great progress in our spelling, and I suppose some changes have taken place since those days. I have not seen this book for 25 years. It does not look like a modern ledger, does it? But you could not get that book from me for all the modern ledgers in New York, nor for all that they would bring. It almost brings tears to my eyes when I read over this little book, and it fills me with a sense of gratitude that I cannot express. It shows largely what I received and what I paid out during my first years of business. It shows that from September 26, 1855, until January 1, 1856, I received $50. Out of that I paid my washerwoman and the lady I boarded with, and I saved a little money to put away. I am not ashamed to read it over to you.

Early Charity.

"Among other things, I find that I gave a cent to the Sunday School every Sunday. That is not a very large sum, is it? But that was all the money I had to give for that particular object. I was also giving to several other religious objects, and what I could afford to give regularly, as I was taught to do, and it has been a pleasure to me all my life to do so.

"I had a large increase in my revenue. It went up to $25 a month. I began to be a capitalist, and had I regarded myself then the same way we regard capitalists now, I ought to have felt like a criminal, because I had so much money. But we had no trusts or monopolies then. I paid my own bills, and always had a little something to give away, and the happiness of giving some. In fact, I am not so independent now as I was then. It is true, I could not secure the most fashionable out of clothing. I remember I bought mine then of a cheap clothier. He sold me clothing cheap, clothing such as I could pay for, and it was a great deal better than buying clothing that I could not pay for. I did not make any obligations I could not meet. I lived within my means, and my advice to you young men is to do just the same.

"Dr. Faunce has said that all young men who come to this church are welcome, and are never asked to whom they belong, or where they came from. I would like to know how many of you come from the country. (In response, fully three-fourths of those present held up their hands.)

"Now, what a story that tells!

"To my mind there is something unfortunate in being born in the city. You have not had the struggles in the city that we have had who were reared in the country. Do you not notice how the men from the country keep crowding you out here—you who have wealthy fathers? These young men from the country are turning you around, and are taking your city. We men from the country are willing to do more work. We are prepared by our experiences to do hard work. I remember a little time ago I was in the country, and I saw a carpenter placing mineral wool under the roof of a city servant's bedroom, so that the man should not feel the heat of summer or hear the patter of raindrops on the roof. I could not at the time help recalling the experience of my boyhood when I slept under a roof. I could see the shingles and I remember that I could peep through the cracks in them. It was pretty hot up there in the summer, too, I can tell you. But I think that I was better for all that sort of experience, for having been reared in the country in that sturdy, practical way, and my heart is sometimes full of sadness as I contemplate the condition of a number of the young fellows in this city whom I happen to know well.

Embarrassment of Riches

"They are in the embarrassing position that their fathers have great sums of money, and those boys have not a ghost of a chance to compete with you who come from the country and who want to do something in the world. You are in training now, shortly to take the places of those young men. I suppose you cannot realize how many eyes are upon you, and how great the interest that is taken in you. You may not think that when you are lonely and find it difficult to get a footing. But it is true that in a place like this true interest is taken in you. When I left the school house I came into a place similar to this, where I associated with people who it was good to know. Nothing better could have happened to me.

"I spoke just now of the struggle for success. What is success? Is it money? Some of you have all the money you need to provide for your wants. (Who is the poorest man in the world? I tell you the poorest man I know of is the man who has nothing but money—nothing else in the world upon which to devote his ambition and thought. This is the sort of man I consider to be the poorest in the world. Money is good if you know how to use it.

"Now let me leave this little word of counsel with you. Keep a ledger, as I did. Write down in it what you receive, and do not be ashamed to write down what you pay away. See that you pay it away in such a manner that your father or mother may look over your book and see just what you did with the money. It will help you to save money, and that you ought to do. When I spoke of the poor man with money, I spoke against the poverty of that man who has no affection for anything else, but money. That kind of man does not help build up his own character nor does he build up the character of another.

"Before I leave you, I will read a few items from my ledger. I find in looking it over I was saving money all this time, and that in the course of a few years I had saved one thousand dollars. Now, as to some of my expenses: I see that from November 24, 1855, to April, 1856, I paid for clothing $9.09. I see here also another item which I am inclined to think is extravagant, because I remember I used to wear mittens. The item is a pair of fur gloves, for which I paid $2.50. In the same period I find that I gave away $5.58. In one month I gave to foreign missions, 10 cents; to the Mite Society, 50 cents, and there is also a contribution to the Five Points Mission, New York. I was not then living here, but I suppose I felt that it was in need of help, so I sent 12 cents. Then to the venerable teacher of my class I gave 35 cents as a present. To the poor people of the church I gave 10 cents at this time, and in January and February following I gave 10 cents more, and a further dime to the foreign mission. These contributions, small as they were, brought me into direct contact with philanthropic work and the beneficial labours and aims of religious institutions, and I have been helped thereby greatly all my life. It is a mistake for a man who wishes for happiness and to help others, to think that he will wait until he has made a fortune before giving away money to deserving objects.

"THE LAND OF NOD" AT TORONTO

Big Musical Comedy Will be Exhibition Week Attraction at the Princess Theatre

IS A GREAT PRODUCTION

There is always a big show at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, the second week of the exposition, for which everybody waits, and that show this season is the famous musical fantasy, "The Land of Nod." The engagement opens on Monday, September 2nd, and remains throughout the week. Matinee performances will be given on Monday — Labour Day — and Wednesday and Saturday.

It is difficult to talk of this "Land of Nod," except in terms used of the biggest aggregations that play under canvas. The production which was built especially for the recent run in New York, cost $100,000.00, and can be housed only in the largest theatres. The company, including the executive staff, musicians and stage mechanics, numbers considerably over one hundred. Three 60-foot baggage cars are required to transport the scenery and effects. It is one of those massive organizations which are characterized by a plentitude of comedians, singers and dancers, and a "Beauty" chorus and ballet, and in which scenery, costumes and "effects" are lavishly displayed. The musical score contains plenty of the jingling, "catchy" sort of compositions, which enlivens and satisfies.

For weeks past so much interest has been shown by the out of town patrons in the coming engagement, that the management of the Princess Theatre has deemed it necessary to receive mail orders for seats.

The sale of seats will start on Thursday, August 29th, at the theatre box office. It is advisable for those intending to witness this production and who will be unable to be in line when the advance sale opens, to file their orders at once, as mail orders for seats will be promptly attended to in the order of their receipt when accompanied by remittance and self addressed envelope for reply. Applications for seats should be made payable to O. B. Sheppard, Manager Princess Theatre. State when ordering price ticket desired and for which performance.

By inquiring of your local railway agent price of excursion ticket can be ascertained.

CHORUS GIRL FAMINE IS REPORTED

The Theatrical Managers Are Alarmed at the Difficulty of Securing Girls For This Season

A PANICKY MARKET

Examiner Special.

New York, Aug. 24.—It has been a feverish week in the chorus girl market. Chorus Girl preferred has jumped with 35 bid.

When it will be considered that only a year ago Chorus Girl preferred was 25 and Chorus Girl common was 15, it is no wonder that many of the leading operators such as R. H. Burnsides, acting for the Shubert interests, and Herbert Gresham, for Klaw & Erlanger, report the demand exceeding the supply, and unless western shipments come to the relief of the market, prices will be prohibitive.

In the Show Girl lines the shorts have run to cover, and the efforts of Dan Arthur to corner the market have inflated prices to the boom point.

Squabs that grade up well and showy dressers are scarce. Many hitherto keen operators who surmised that the Chorus Girl market would slump in sympathy with Wall street, find themselves on the wrong side of the market, and such independents as Ben Tear and Julian Mitchell were in dire straits all week to cover their margins.

A well-known agency of upper Broadway added tone to the market yesterday by putting out the report that Alf. Hayman had made arrangements with foreign correspondents for quick importations of English blondes to relieve the market.

As a matter of fact, never in the history of the Street (Broadway being the street, of course,) has there been such a dearth of shapely and tuneful chorus girls.

An attempt to flood the market with the inferior article by Jared Flagg and other houses with no connections with the various exchanges met with disaster when it was found that the samples did not grade.

PRIZES FOR THE BEST SEED SAMPLES

An Incentive to Farmers to Grow Clean Seed—Seed Growers Association to Pay the Prizes

TO BENEFIT THE FARMERS

At the last annual meeting of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, detailed explanations were given of the plans that had been adopted to offer special prizes to members for creditable exhibits of "Hand-Selected," "Improved," and "General Crop" seed that were brought together in connection with the various provincial or district exhibitions. These exhibits of selected seeds were always an attractive and educational feature of the exhibition and have done more to make the work of the Association more widely known and better understood and appreciated by the general public. The places at which these special exhibitions are now held annually throughout Canada are as follows:

1. At Amherts, N. S., open to all members in the Maritime Provinces, and held in connection with the Maritime winter fair.

2. At St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, open only to members resident in the Province of Quebec, and generally held in the month of April in connection with the regular Spring Seed Fair.

3. At Guelph, Ont., open only to members in the Ontario District, and held in connection with the Ontario Provincial Winter Fair.

4. At Brandon, Man., open to all members of the District of Saskatchewan, and held in connection with the Winter Fair. The exhibition to be held at Regina next winter will be the first of its kind ever held in the province of Saskatchewan.

Creditable prizes are offered at each of these places for special selections of seeds and plants taken from the "Hand-selected" and "Improved" seed plots. The classification of the prize list provides for two sections for each of the smaller grain crops considered. Section 1 makes provision for hand selection of plants from the standing crop on the breeding plot. These plants are exhibited in the form of sheaves.

Section 2 provides for a "Group Exhibit," consisting of a hand-selected sheaf from the breeding plot, a half bushel of threshed seed from the same plot, and a bushel and a half of threshed seed from the "Improved" seed plot.

Where prizes are offered for corn, the best ten ears are called for, the said ears to be selected from the seed corn plot. In the case of potatoes, prizes are also offered in the cast for special selections from the seed plot. In addition to the general prizes offered special prizes are also offereed to those members making the most creditable showing of selected seed. These awards are usually in the form of medals or cups.

Without a single exception, these exhibitions have amply justified their establishment. The publicity that they have given and are giving the work, the interest that has been taken in the exhibits, and the service they have rendered the various exhibitors in advertising their surplus stock has proven their inestimable value to the country. As time passes and the general public, as well as the members themselves, come to look upon these fairs in their respective districts as permanent organizations, and as annual meeting places, their real place and importance will be revealed. Their perpetuation, extension and perfecting is obviously the duty of the Association.

A PUBLIC MEETING AT THE GOSPEL HALL

To be Held To-morrow Evening—Song Service Also

The public meeting in the Gospel Hall, corner of George and Brock streets, will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. This meeting was very satisfactory last Sunday, and a very large number attended the song service before the meeting. Tomorrow there will be another song service about 8 p.m., when Mr. Mulligan will sing some new songs and also one or two familiar ones. The singing last Sunday night could be heard distinctly a mile out on the Monaghan road. Everyone is welcome.

MISS ROSA McAHAN OF BUTTE

How After Two Years She Found a Remedy For Dandruff

Miss Rosa McAhan of 211 West Quartz street, Butte, Mont., says:—"Herpicide has thoroughly cleansed my scalp of dandruff, with which it was entirely covered; and it has stopped my falling hair. I have tried many different preparations in the past two years, but none took effect except Newbro's Herpicide." Dandruff is a germ disease and Herpicide is an infallible destroyer of the germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect" Kill the dandruff germ. Ask your druggist for Herpicide. It is a delightful hair dressing, makes the hair soft as silk.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit Mich. Two sizes — 50c and $1. McDermid & Jury, Special Agents.

"Holy Roller" Mother Let Her Child Die; No Medical Help Called

She Thought the Lord Would Save the Child if He Wanted it to Live —Coroner's Jury Differed.

PARENTS ARE RESPONSIBLE

New York, Aug. 21st.—A few weeks ago the Holy Rollers of Totterville, Staten Island, prayed for five hours that Peter Peterson, member of the strange sect, might die, because in the excess of religious zeal he had proclaimed that he was ready to be received by the Lord. Peterson still lives, but yesterday Ruth, his fifteen-months-old daughter, died at his home on Breakhaut avenue unattended by a physician. Following the tenets of the Holy Rollers, Peterson and his wife had prayed over the sick child instead of administering the medicines a physician had prescribed.

Last night when Peterson and his wife Anne, were called before a coroner's jury to tell why they had allowed the child to suffer without medical aid, both requested that they might pray for divine guidance before giving their testimony. The mother of the dead child knelt before Coroner Martin Cahill and the jury and lifted up her voice in a prayer.

"Almighty God," she said, "I left my loved one in Your hands for I knew that if You saw fit to save its life You would. Now that You have taken my child away I know that You have done it for the best, but I know that you will permit me to see it in heaven some time. The Almighty God is powerful, and I am satisfied that no doctor on earth could prescribe medicine which would cure my child if God saw fit to take it away. If God saw fit He could restore my child to me."

While Mrs. Peterson was praying the Holy Rollers who had purposely hired a hall next door to the Knights of Pythias' Temple, where the inquest was in progress, were engaged in praying vociferously for the souls of the man and woman who were being examined. Their shouts of glory and hymns of praise dinned into the coroner's room constantly during the proceedings. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson were held by the coroner to appear before the magistrate's court in Stapleton to-day.

As soon as the fact of the child's death was reported to the Tottenville police station yesterday morning District Attorney John J. Kenny, of Stapleton, was notified and Coroner Cahill began an investigation. Peterson admitted that the child had been allowed to suffer without the administeration of medicines because, he said, if it was the Lord's will that the little one should die no human aid could avail to save her. He said that a week ago he had called in Dr. David Coleman, who had recommended medicines for the infant, but the prescriptions were never filled. The doctor had been called only because Peterson thought that in case of her death the physician would sign a death certificate.

When the District Attorney made an investigation of the case yesterday he learned much of the peculiar practices of the Holy Rollers. The Christian Alliance is the name the denomination gives itself. The sect has a church in Tottenville and carries on religious services of a character to set most of the people of Tottenville in protest against the votaries. Those who have attended the services told District Attorney Kenny that in the frenzy of their religious mania the worshippers roll about the floor and climb under the seats, men and women indiscriminately. Below the floor of the church there is a 'prayer cellar" with a sign over the door, "This is for Christ only." Here, it is said, religious orgies are carried on without lights and sometimes far into the morning.

At a recent meeting of the sect Peterson is said to have proclaimed that he was so pure and so happy in the redemption that he knew to be his that he wanted to be translated at once. Whereupon all the worshippers united in five hours' serious endeavor through prayer to have the Lord show his strength and blast Peterson on the spot.

It is the belief of the Holy Rollers that medicines and physicians' services are interferences with the will of the Almighty, and consequently prayer is the only remedy for sickness among them. Recently when a woman of the flock was about to give birth to a child the Holy Rollers fought against the calling in of a physician until neighbors insisted. The child had been hailed before its advent as a promised prophet.

An autopsy held yesterday afternoon developed the fact that Peterson's baby had died of inflammation of the bowels. At the coroner's inquest held last night Peterson freely testified that he and his wife had made no effort to minister to the sick child except through fasting and prayer.

NEW METHODIST PASTOR EXCHANGES PULPITS TO-MORROW

REV. E. H. COON,
Pastor of the Mark Street Methodist Church, Who Will Preach in Charlotte Street Church Tomorrow Evening

METHODISM HERE AND THERE

Mr. R. W. Perks, M.P., Thinks American Methodism Has Departed From Primitive Simplicity of Early Days

IS PRESERVED IN ENGLAND

From the Literary Digest.

That American Methodism has departed from the standards of primitive simplicity still preserved in England seems to have been impressed upon a recent British visitor. In our issue of June 15, we recorded the visit to our shores of Mr. R. W. Perks, M. P., a prominent British Methodist layman, whose mission was in the interests of a brotherhood "for binding more closely together the federated forces of Methodism throughout the world." In a letter contributed to the Methodist Recorder, London, July 11th, upon his return, he reports the sympathetic welcome his ideas received, and in addition draws some interesting comparisons between the outward aspects of Methodism presented by England and America. A matter of some apparent surprise to him, was "one of the wealthiest and most luxuriously equipped Methodist churches, in New York, off Fifth avenue." He describes it in these terms:

"The church was carpeted throughout. The low rostrum was adorned with flowers. Elegantly dressed ladies fanned themselves. All around was sombre elegance. Owing to the heat the families were rapidly leaving New York, but the congregation was good. The galleries, however, were empty, but for that most important and potent feature, the 'quartette.' God preserve British Methodism from 'the quartette!' The Fifth avenue church spends, I am told, an enormous sum annually upon these four singers. They are certainly very accomplished performers. The music they sang was of a high order; but, after all a Methodist church is not a music hall. The finest singing I heard while away, and the largest congregations I saw were at the famous St. James' church, Montreal, architecturally, I suppose, one of the finest buildings Methodism can show, and at the large coloured church in Washington, where my boy and I were the only whites in a congregation of some 1500. At both these churches the singing was congregational and very attractive. Personally I did not feel at home at the Fifth avenue church, until we came to the sermon. His sermon was preached, and not read. His language was scholarly and ornate; he preached the living gospel, with manifest power. The Methodist minister of the Fifth avenue church, is no clerical sycophant, tempering his teaching to the tastes of his flock.

"Unfortunately I had only one Sunday to spend in New York. I felt I should like to see the two extremes of New York Methodism—something corresponding to our Gothic suburban Methodist Church at one end of the scale, and the crowded democratic mission hall at the other. I soon found, however, that there is nothing, so far as I could learn, in any other American city similar to the great mission halls holding two to four thousand people which British Methodism has in recent years erected in our great cities. It is quite true that there are small "mission centres" in the poorer parts of New York, where the rich 'up-town' churches 'do mission work' on a small scale. The explanation, or I should prefer to call it the excuse, for the absence of the great mission hall, given to me in New York, and also in Chicago, is that the city is deserted and the population too cosmopolitan. I walked on Sunday night through these 'empty' streets. The tramcars were crowded; the music halls were open; tens of thousands of people thronged the roads; half the shops in the poorer streets seemed open, the saloons were doing a roaring trade."

Put into a brief compass his views of American Methodism are expressed in the following comparative method:—

"1. The connectional spirit which pervades British Methodism, binding our people so closely together, does not exist to anything like the same degree in America. Methodism there is more congregational. The circuit system seems, in the large cities, to be comparatively rare.

"2. The lay preacher is almost extinct. Nothing surprised my American Methodist audiences more than to be told that out of the 26,000 or 27,000 sermons preached next Sunday in the chapels and mission halls of British Wesleyan Methodism, nearly 20,000 will be preached by unordained laymen. And yet this is the class more than any other from which England draws her political speakers, her municipal rulers, her Labour M. P.'s.

"3. American Methodism does not seem to me to be as democratically governed as in the Old Land; nor have her laity as great a share in control and in initiative. Liberty has walked backward.

"4. I doubt whether Methodism in the United States has the hold upon the working classes which British Methodism has of late years secured. In England the weight of Methodism has not for half a century been flung into the scale against popular rights and social reform, even when they clashed with vested interests and the privileges of the few. Whether such is the case in America I do not know.

"5. In the wealth and social influence of its individual members, the Methodism of the States is, I think, far ahead of the Old Country. No state church exerts her denominating and whithering power. Its educational institutions controlled directly by the church are far, very far, in advance of those (in our land."

VETERAN PREACHER IN THE CITY

Rev. T. M. Jefferies, of Hamilton Conference, to Preach in Charlotte Street Methodist Church

To-morrow night a veteran Methodist preacher will be heard at the Charlotte street Methodist church, in the person of Rev. T. M. Jefferies, of the Hamilton Conference. Referring to Mr. Jefferies' preaching the Christian Guardian says:—

"His clear voice, his arrangement of subject matter, his clear and forceful utterances, his present day application of Bible truth would not lead you to think that the preacher had the weight of four and fourscore winters resting upon his brow."

Mr. Rodger Manning, of Toronto, sings at the evening services, a feature which will add to its interest.

NEW DISTRICT DEPUTY COMPANION

Mr. Wm. Lloyd Honoured at Meeting of High Court of Companions of the Forest

Mrs. Wm. Lloyd, of this city, who has been in London attending the High Court meeting of the Companions of the Forest, has been elected to the office of District Deputy Chief Companion for this District. Peterborough is thus, well represented on the list of Grand Officers, Mrs. Goodenough having been elected Grand Sentry.

INSURANCE MEN AT THE LAKES

Hon. Senator Cox Entertaines Party at Stony Lake

The representatives of the Canadian and American insurance companies, who have been in Toronto, attending the annual convention of the National Association, to the number of over 100, are, to-day, guests of Hon. Senator Cox at Stony Lake. This morning they passed through this city on a special train of three Pullman coaches and a day coach, on the way to Lakefield, where the steamer Stoney Lake, which had been chartered for the day, met the visiting insurance men and took them on a trip around the lakes. The visitors were taken to Hon. Senator Cox's new cottage at the lake, where refreshments were served by Mr. T. H Hooper of this city.

The party will return to-night, a special train having been again secured to convey them back to Toronto.

ALL TEACHERS ARE QUALIFIED

Very Creditable Showing Made by the Separate School Teachers in the Recent Examinations

ALL WERE SUCCESSFUL

Though the official returns have not as yet been made public, it is understood that the Department of Education has forwarded to every Separate School teacher who tried the recent examinations held in St. Peter's School here, a certificate, all having succeeded in passing the examination.

This is a very creditable showing and proves that the teachers, although in the past they have not been in possession of the certificates demanded by the Education Act of Ontario, were well qualified to teach.

In the neighbourhood of 60 teachers tried the examinations here, they having come from many points in this district.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

New York, Aug. 24.—The market closed quietly at almost the lowest prices. What buying power there is in the market comes into play on declines rather than on advances.

The bulge in the first half hour apparently encouraged very little fresh buying owing to the reluctance of buyers to follow prices up, but on recessions in the last hour there was a good market for most of the active stocks.

Market for such stocks as Southern Railway, the Erie issues, and other securities, in which special liquidation seemed to be under way, was poor. The bank statement, although better than expected, was received with indifference. New low records were made to-day for Southern Railway, common and preferred, and all the Eries.

ADDRESS PRESENTED TO HON. GEO. A COX

By Insurance Men Convention Yesterday in Toronto.

At the convention of the Life Underwriters' Association yesterday morning an address was presented to Hon. George A. Cox, President, and Mr. E. W. Cox, Vice-President and General Manager, of the Canada Life Assurance Company. The address included a hearty vote of thanks for the manner in which they entertained the guests. It was signed by 80 persons.

COBOURG IS SURE OF VICTORY

Have Four New Men on Their Team To-day—A Great Game Promised

The Cobourg ball team arrived in town this morning with a number of rooters, and a big bunch of confidence, ready for the game this afternoon, at Riverside Park, with the locals.

Their team is strengthened by four new men including a new battery. The twirler who will be on the mound is said to have pitched a one-hit game with a Tri-State League team on Wednesday.

When some of the Cobourg bunch learned that O'Hearns was to play for Peterborough to-day one of them remarked that it would take nine O'Hearnes to beat Cobourg to-day.

The game will be called at 3.30, and there should be an enormous bunch of fans on hand for the contest.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube, when this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. INSURANCE MEN'S OUTING

AN ENJOYABLE TRIP

A very enjoyable time was spent by the 120 Life Underwriters, who enjoyed the hospitality of Hon. Geo. A. Cox, at Stony Lake on Saturday. A special train brought the visitors from Toronto, and they were met at Lakefield by the steamer Stoney Lake, which had been chartered for the occasion.

The party was taken on a trip around the lake, and were delighted with its many and varied beauties. They returned to Mr. A. L. Davis' island residence for dinner, which was served by Mr. T. H. Hooper of Peterborough, who catered in his usual excellent style.

Otonabee Had Her Shaft Straightened—Water Lily on a Trip to Buckhorn

The steamer Otonabee left Saturday afternoon for Burleigh, to go into dry dock for repairs to be effected to her shaft, which was damaged a short time ago. She is back in the city again to-day and is again ready for service.

The Water Lily left this morning for Buckhorn, to bring down a scow that has been used in connection with the work on the new dam there.

OBITUARY

MRS. ENOS PODGER

The demise of Evelyn P. Giles, wife of Mr. Enos Podger, and daughter of Mr. Josephus Giles of North Monaghan, will be a shock to many of her friends. Although it has been known for some time that little hope was entertained of Mr. Podger's recovery, her illness has been of such a nature that her relatives and friends clung trustingly to the idea that she would be spared to them. Her passing away brings rest after a prolonged illness and suffering of nearly twelve months' duration. The anxiety of her husband, parents and friens during this time has been distressing—as month after month all that could be done seemed to fail in relieving the complicated character of her trouble. Mrs. Podger was a Christian woman of high character and was much beloved by all who knew her. The bereaved husband will have the sympathy of the public in his parting with so young and promising a wife and companion and the parents in their loss of so kind and effectionate a daughter. Deceased was only 30 years of age, she was married to Mr. Podger on the fourth of October, 1904, but their union was not blessed with any issue. The funeral will take place from the family residence, North Monaghan, on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 27th, at 3 p.m., to the Little Lake Cemetery.

CONTRACT HAS BEEN AWARDED

The contract for the construction of the new gallery in Knox church has been awarded by the Board of Managers to Messrs. McIntyre Bros., and work will be commenced at once. It is the intention of the Board of Managers to have the work completed this fall and with this in view the contractors will proceed at once.

Engine And Baggage Car Jump Rails, Then Returned

Remarkable Accident to the Special Train Bearing Insurance Men to Stony Lake.

THE CAR WAS DAMAGED

One of the most remarkable accidents in the history of Canadian railways occurred on Saturday morning to the special train bringing from Toronto 120 members of the Life Underwriters' Association to be the guests of Hon. Geo. A. Cox at Stony Lake. As the train was nearing Bowmanville on its way from Toronto, going at fifty-five miles an hour, the engine and baggage car suddenly jumped the track and for two hundred yards ploughed along on the ties until the engine struck a switch and was thrown onto the track again.

The escape from injury was a miraculous one. The train crew and passengers are at loss to explain just what happened. The insurance men did not know the danger they had escaped until the train was once more safely back on the rails.

Little damage was done to the train although the air brakes on the baggage car were smashed and the car sustained other injuries. The path of the train could be traced on the ties and pieces of steel were ground off the wheels, which a number of teh passengers picked up as souvenirs.

The engineer of the train as soon as he had realized what had happened put on the brakes, but had to do so gradually as there was danger of buckling.

The escape of the train and its passengers may be rightly considered marvellous, as such an accident is very rare. With the speed at which the train was travelling it was a miracle that the cars were not hurled into the ditch in which case the loss of life would have undoubtedly been frightful.

Wild Dogs' Prowlings In Ops Township Alarms Farmers

Many Suffer From Savage Canines Which Roam the Township in Herds—Are Half Starved and Attack Fowl.

THE LOSSES ARE HEAVY

Lindsay, August 26th. — A pack of savage, half-wild dogs has infested the farms and woods of North Ops, and are over-running the country, subsisting on the domestic animals and flocks of the farmers, and are causing the latter endless trouble and worry.

The canines hunt in packs, and the victims of their carnivorous appetites are generally chickens, ducks, geese, small pigs, etc. Mr. John Jackson, one of the farmers who is losing considerably by these depredations, made a complaint to Chief Vincent recently. He stated that several farmers had suffered to some extent from the ravages of the dogs. Mr. W. J. Lee had 24 ducks killed; Mr. T. Helm had one killed, and Mr. Jackson said that he had actually seen a turkey being carried off by a lean-looking hound. Pigs, calves, and not even cattle, are immune from the savage attacks of the marauding pack. The farmers have endeavoured to shoot them, but with little success, the dogs being extremely sly and wary. They hide in the grain pushing their heads up to see if the farmers are approaching.

One theory that has been advanced is that the dogs are the half-starved animals that infest the streets of Lindsay. It is thought that when hungers presses them they form into a pack and go hunting for prey. The nuisance is one that the farmers are determined to stamp out, because if the town dogs once form the habit of visiting the country barnyards and sheep folds, the situation will be intolerable.

Twelve-Year-Old Boy Who Landed Eighteen Inch Bass

A NARROW ESCAPE

Fish are apparently becoming more plentiful in the river. Inspector Watt stated to the Examiner on Saturday that he did not remember when there were more bass than at the present time. That afternoon George Bain, the 12 year old son of Mr. George Bain, got four beauties at the Auburn dam, one of them measuring 18 inches long and weighing about four and a half pounds. The others were all of good size, although not as large as the one mentioned. He was unable to land the big one, his father, who was fishing with him, having to come to his assistance.

Mr. Watt stated that there were a great many very small fish, fish do not measure up to the standard required by law, which states that bass must be ten inches and 'lunge twenty-four inches, in length, being caught. The majority of the fishermen respect the law, and throw back those caught under the limit, but occasionally there is one who disregards the law. One of these was caught by Mr. Watt on Saturday. He had a bass which did not measure more than seven inches when the Inspector happened along. Fortunately the fish had only been out of the water a few minutes and Mr. Watt was able to revive it, saving the fisherman a fine, which would have been imposed had the fish died.

Stony Lake Waves Are Too Strong For Rochester Youth

Canoeing With Peterborough Lady Yesterday When Boat Was Overturned—Clung to Canoe and Drifted Ashore.

FRIENDS UNABLE TO ASSIST

Stony Lake residents have been continually congratulating themselve this season upon the few accidents at the lake. Not a drowning accident has so far occurred, although there have been many narrow escapes, and the rough lake yesterday was almost responsible for a tragedy above Bosobink.

A party of two canoes and a skiff went across from one of the islands to visit White Lake, which was reached after some difficulty in safety. Returning a canoe containing Mr. Lawrence Bohanket, of Rochester, and a young Peterborough lady, was upset some distance from the shore. The frail craft was brought in safety as far as Dodsworth's island, but on turning the point the young man was unable to guide it against the strong wind, and the two upset.

The remaining canoe and skiff were not able to render any assistance on account of the rolling of the waves, and before help could come from other quarters the canoe to which the pair clung for their lives, had drifted into the shore.

The escape was a narrow one, but fortunately there were no bad effects other than some shrunken clothing and watersoaked shoes.

Crop Reports From West Are Favourable

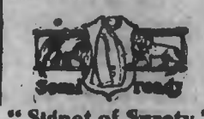
The Peterborough people who are interested in land in the Canadian Northwest will be pleased to learn that the crops are looking well. In the Winnipeg Free Press of Friday a report was published, showing the condition in 146 different points, and it stated that while there was some frost no damage had been done. The Postmaster in Prairie Siding, of the same day states that the weekly crop report which was handed out by the C.P.R. on Thursday indicates that no damage has been done by the frost which has been reported during the past few days from a number of places in the west. The night of the 20th inst., was very chilly and in many localities the mercury hovered around freezing point, but the weather bulletins received up to date reports that the crops did not suffer to any extent. The same source of information also assures us we can look for higher temperature in the next week or two than we have had lately. Railway officials and grain men are of the opinion that the crisis is passed and that there is not liable to be another visitation of frosty weather for some time.

SEMI-READY WARDROBE

Does your Suit Speak Well of You?

Among your friends; in business or in society do your clothes give you your right standing? It is an old saying and truthfully too that "the clothes don't make the man" but, they have a great deal to do in securing a good standing in this world for him.

When a man wears a suit with this



"Signet of Surety" label on it.

He will insure himself against any attack on his dress—style, fit and general dressy appearance are the chief features that give "Semi-Ready" Tailored Garments precedence over all other makes, and places it on a par with the highest grade of tailor made clothing.

THE VOICE OF SANITY

Mr. R. L. Borden in his anxiety to concoct a political menu that would tempt the taste of the people accustomed to fat living under Liberal rule, has devised many things. Among these is the proposal to nationalize the telegraph and telephone systems of the country which would involve an immense expenditure of money. This proposal may appeal to some public ownership faddist, but sober common sense, the voice of sanity decides adversely to his proposal. The Montreal Gazette, the easily foremost organ of the Conservative party in Canada, thus throws cold water upon Mr. Borden's hot air:

"The telegraph and telephone lines of Canada represent a heavy investment of capital. In many parts of the country they have only begun to spread. Their purchase would involve a heavy outlay of capital, which would have to be borrowed, and there would have to be continued capital expenditure on extensions as the country increased in population and commerce. There will be all through the country and especially among Conservatives, those who will think that private enterprise and private capital, which have provided this continent with as efficient a telephone and telegraph service as one to be found in the world can be left to carry on what has been so well begun, at least until the country has less to do with its credit and until there is a general complaint that the services as now managed are inefficient or unduly costly. It is not part of a government's duty to do that which other are doing well."

One would have expected that this apparently radical proposal of Mr. Bordeen's would have appealed to the Toronto World, a public ownership faddist of the first water, which, however, damns it with faint applause. It points out that his declaration is qualified, being limited to telegraphs and telephone, and then only "after due investigation" and "without prejudice to capital already invested," something which the World says, Sir Wilfrid Laurier will also say, Mr. Borden's campaign of breaking into office is rather discouraging.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE

Outside of political five-o'clock tea scandal, the Conservative Opposition seems to have little success in finding legitimate fault with the administration of the Laurier Government. It is true that Mr. Borden, the leader of the Conservative Opposition, takes the stand that fiscal reform is needed to give Canada true prosperity. He wants a new fiscal system, and declares for "adequate protection," whatever that may mean. If a merchant is doing a thriving business, if his trade and prosperity are far in excess of any period in his past business experience, that merchant would listen coldly to any suggestion that he needs a better business system. The people will be inclined to regard coldly Mr. Borden's plea for a better fiscal system. The results of the Liberal policy seem to be exceedingly satisfactory. Without doubt, the present policy of the Liberal Government seems good enough to keep. Ever since the party came into power there has been an increase all along the line, an increase in revenue, an increase in production, an increase in total trade, an increase in manufactured products, and the pace is still being kept. An increase in exports for three months of this year of 11 per cent., an increase for the month of July of 45 per cent., including farm products, produce of mines, fisheries, lumber and manufactured articles, is not a bad showing. Mr. Borden calls for a return to the old system, under which the country was drifting—drifting backward. He demands "adequate protection," a euphemism for the so-called National Policy. The National Policy of the Liberal party not only protects, but helps manufacturing industries. Under that policy our manufacturing interests have thriven as they never throve in the palmiest days of the so-called national policy. Mr. Borden says the country is prospering under the protective policy of the Conservatives, which, he says, the Liberals have retained, yet he wants to improve it. If the Conservatives could not use the National Policy to good advantage, would they use a policy of "adequate protection" to any better advantage? If the Liberals have, as Mr. Borden declaims, retained the National Policy, they are making too good use of it to disturb its present users, to entrust its administration to the same hands that made a dismal failure of it, after an innings of eighteen years. Would it be wise to exchange the full dinner-pail for Mother Hubbard's larder?

EDITORIAL NOTES

Canada is not doing badly under the administration of a live, energetic Government. The state of trade is an indication of a satisfactory or unsatisfactory condition of public interests. Judged by this standard, the condition of Canada is eminently satisfactory. For the three months of April, June and July the foreign trade of this country amounted to $214,156,015, an increase of $22,098,054 over the corresponding months of the preceding year. The total exports of Canada for the single month of July this year amounted to $27,723,599, an increase of $11,174,051, or nearly 45 per cent. over the same month of last year.

MEETS AWFUL DEATH.

Young Man Decapitated In Elevator While at Work.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—While the body of Thomas Davidson descended down the elevator shaft of the Traders' Bank building, his head rested on a cross-beam on the ninth floor, having been severed as though by a guillotine by one of the heavy weights of the elevator.

Davidson, who had been but a short while in this country, engaged at the Traders' Bank building about two weeks ago, to do general work about the building.

Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock he was washing windows and cleaning about one of the elevator shafts, and to do this had to stand on top of the elevator and move it down as he cleaned.

He had reached the ninth floor, when in some way he stuck his head too far out and the weight of the elevator in the next shaft struck him on the back of the neck. His head was severed by the blow, and the headless trunk fell down the shaft, while the head remained on a cross-beam at the ninth floor.

Nobody seemed to be aware of the accident at the time it happened, but a young man who sells papers in the building on the ground floor heard the body fall to the bottom of the shaft and gave the alarm.

Davidson was 23 years old.

FOUR KILLED—MANY INJURED.

Panic Follows Explosion at Powder Works In 'Frisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Four persons were killed and many injured in an explosion at the Dupont Denemoures powder works at Seblante, 16 miles from Berkeley yesterday, and the plant set on fire. When the three thousand employes in the plant of the California Fruit Canners' Association, in this city, heard the explosion they thought there was another earthquake, and rushed wildly for the street. Many were trampled upon and injured, none fatally.

At least thirteen persons were severely hurt at the canner panic. Ten women were removed to hospitals, and three other women were treated at the cannery.

When the shock of the explosion was first felt, several Italian employes went into the street to investigate. On re-entering the building they said it was an earthquake and this started a stampede.

During the efforts to get outside a few men drew knives and wounded several persons. Others jumped into a chute used to send boxed cans from the second floor of the establishment, and were landed in a heap at the bottom.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Sir Frederick Borden presided yesterday at a luncheon at the Hotel Victoria, Aylmer, to the visiting British provincial journalists.

He advocated that more attention should be paid to the Maritime Provinces as a field for immigration.

Tot Losses Eye.

London, Aug. 26.—Edith McGuffin, the three-year-old daughter of John McGuffin, Dufferin avenue, while playing in the street, was struck in the eye by a piece of metal, and it was found necessary to remove the member. The metal was thrown by a boy playmate.

Farmer Struck by Bolt.

Belleville, Aug. 26.—During a thunderstorm yesterday morning, George Ketcheson, a farmer living near Corbyville, was struck by lightning and badly shocked. A valuable horse, which he was driving, was killed at the same time.

GOVERNMENT CRITICIZED.

Hostile Papers Take Advantage of the Fisheries' Dispute.

London, Aug. 26.—The conclusion to submit the Newfoundland fisheries dispute to arbitration at The Hague, and the negotiations pending with the view of a renewal of the modus vivendi to cover this year's fishing season, have called forth little comment here, except in the newspapers opposed to the Government, which attempt to make political capital out of the question, alleging that the Government is prepared to sacrifice the interests of the colony to maintain the good-will of the United States.

Even these papers, however, admit that the submission of the question to The Hague is the best solution available of the "wearisome controversy," and that some temporary arrangement must be made until the arbitrators render a decision.

The other papers apparently are awaiting some announcement from Foreign Secretary Grey, who thus far has declined to be drawn out by the members of Parliament, confining himself to the same reply to all questions on the subject, namely, "the negotiations are proceeding."

The officials of the Foreign Office are confident that an arrangement, covering the present season and acceptable to all parties, shortly will be concluded.

The Newfoundland Premier, Sir Robert Bond, already has shown a more conciliatory attitude toward the proposal to renew the "modus vivendi," with modifications, which the Associated Press is informed, are not of a radical nature. The Foreign Office is now awaiting Sir Robert's definite proposals, which will be submitted to Secretary of State Root immediately after their arrival.

WINNIPEG MAN WANTED.

R. G. Morley Escapes His Creditors In an Automobile.

Winnipeg, Aug. 26.—Anxious creditors are looking for R. G. Morley, who is supposed to be somewhere between Winnipeg and the United States boundary, in an automobile, which is not his property.

Morley has been running a garage here, and by representing that he was backed by Premier Roblin, and other influential Winnipeggers, he secured large credit. Suspicions were aroused and writs issued. On the execution of the writ it was ascertained that Morley had left for parts unknown and now the garage is locked up by the order of the sheriff. Morley secured from the American consul a clearance for two autos across the border, but as far as can be learned, one of the machines went bad on him and he got away with only one.

SUSPECT FOUL PLAY.

Canic's Son, Found Dead, Was In a Kneeling Position.

Maniwaki, Que., Aug. 26.—The family of Evangelista Canic, aged 15 years, who was pronounced to have died of inflammation of the lungs, claim that he was murdered. The young man was found near the C. P. R. tracks, about 300 yards from his home, in a kneeling position, with his face on the ground.

There was blood on his face and back of his neck and his hat was several yards away, also with blood upon it.

Dr. Decotret states that although a few bruises were visible on the head, hands and lower body, none was sufficient to cause death.

ALLOTMENT OF JUDGES.

Union of American Continent In Arbitration Court.

The Hague, Aug. 26.—Joseph H. Choate is working on a new plan for the allotment of judges for the international high court of justice under which the representatives of the United States and those of all the Latin-American countries will form one group. This plan, it is believed, will dissipate any feeling arising from the previous proposed allotment.

This union of the whole American continent, it is considered, would be of great importance, not only in the establishment of the court, but as a great political move, rallying around the United States, as it would, all the states of Central and South America. Such a plan would insure to the court the immediate adhesion of 21 countries. Adding to these countries Germany, Austria, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan and Russia, which are also favorable to the proposition, this would give the court the adhesion of two-thirds of the countries of the world, without taking into account other countries whose support is most likely, such as the Netherlands, Spain, Turkey and Switzerland.

TRUCK CO. BURNED OUT.

Big Blaze In Toledo Caused $200,000 Damage.

Toledo, O., Aug. 26.—Fire of unknown origin which started in the upper storeys of the Moreton Truck and Storage building, a four-storey brick building, at 234-236 Huron street, caused a loss last night estimated at about $150,000 to $200,000.

The building was occupied by the International Harvester Co., a restaurant and other small concerns. The fire made rapid progress. The building occupied by the Toledo Club and the newspaper offices of The News-Bee and The Times were filled with smoke and threatened with destruction.

The loss is well covered by insurance.

Girls In Factories.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—At the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council of Ottawa the statement was made that girls of 10 and 12 years of age are employed in local mica factories to the detriment of their health and in contravention of the Factories Act, and that in one case at least the reward for eleven days' service amounted to only $2.13.

The Ottawa delegates to the next Dominion Trades and Labor Congress will urge for united action on the part of the Federal and Provincial authorities for an increase in the appointment of factory inspectors, and that the latter be given unlimited powers both in regard to inspection and prosecution.

Headaches Mean Your Blood Is Poisoned

If your bowels, kidneys or skin are not ridding the system of waste-matter, the blood is laden with impurities, which inflame the nerves. It is these irritated nerves that make the head ache.

Powders and pills won't cure, they merely drug the nerves into unconciousness and relieve for a short time.

because they purify the blood. They act directly on the three great eliminating organs—Bowels, Kidneys and Skin—and restore them to healthy action, thus ridding the system of all poisons.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices—chemically changed, by the process of combining them, into a far more effective medicinal compound than the natural juices. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all dealers' or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Labour Is Over-Crowded In Some Lines In The City

Report of Correspondent to Labour Gazette States This—Activity Recorded in All Branches in July.

MANY BUILDINGS ERECTED

Labour conditions in this city and district are described in the current issue of the Labour Gazette by the local correspondent, Ald. Johnston. He says:

Employment during July has been active, although there were indications that the labour market was being over-supplied with men in some lines. The large transformer building of the Canadian General Electric Company has been completed, and the men recently employed in its construction are now looking for employment. Many houses were being constructed in all parts of the city. Considerable alterations are being made to certain stores. The Bell Telephone Company has let a contract for the building of a new exchange, to be completed by December 1, at a cost of $12,500. The Brinton Carpet Company is erecting houses on its land for its employees. If the house project proves a success, the company will continue the construction of houses next spring. Messrs. Oke and Oke have begun operations in their new furniture factory and have large orders ahead. A new industry, "The Excelsior Fruit Clearing Manufacturing Company" will manufacture hand and power machines for cleaning all kinds of fruit. Transportation facilities, both by rail and water, were taxed to their utmost capacity. Wholesale and retail trade was never better. Wages remain as previously reported. The harness-makers who went out on strike at B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co., are still out.

The cost of building has almost doubled during the past ten years. The number of houses, constructed, however, is ten times greater. The condition of the labouring man and the mechanic is much changed. Wages were, in 1897, for carpenters, $1.50 to $1.75 per day, now they are $2.50 to $3; bricklayers and masons received 25 to 30 cents an hour, they now receive 45 cents. Building material has greatly increased. Lumber that was sold for $8 and $9 per thousand feet in 1897 to-day costs from $17 to $24. Brick laid in the wall which cost from $11 to $12 now costs $20; for a solid wall the price formerly $7 to $8, is now $16 to $18. Stone work was formerly $1.50 per perch; it now costs $3. Houses that rented for $4 and $5 now rent for $9 and $10 per month.

The bakers have raised the price of a four pound loaf of bread to 15 cents, and of a three pound loaf to 10 cents. The price was formerly 9 and 12 cents respectively.

The opening of the Lift Lock at Kirkfield has added another link to the great Trent canal waterway.

Condition of Local Industries

Agriculture. — Farmers were attending to the hay.

Lumbering. — Active operations prevailed.

Manufacturing. — Activity prevailed.

Other Industries. — The Canadian General Electric Company has increased its stock from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000. The Wm. Hamilton Co. has been given incorporation papers with a capital of $300,000. The Bell Telephone Company is about to put its wires underground on the principal streets of the city. The Central Foundry Company of Port Hope has so much work on hand that it will require one hundred men by August 15th.

Railroad Construction and Employment. — A large bridge is being built on the Grand Trunk Railway about five miles west of Peterborough.

Condition of Particular Trades

Building. — All branches were busy and some particularly busy.

Metal, Engineering and Ship-building. — Iron moulders and tool sharpeners were active. All other branches were busy except bicycle workers, who were somewhat dull.

Woodworking and furnishing. — Active conditions prevailed with carriage and wagon workers very busy.

Printing. — The allied trades were well employed.

Clothing — Journeymen tailors, garment workers and hat makers, were not very actively employed on account of the holidays. The other branches were busy.

Food and Tobacco Preparation. — Bakers, confectioners, butchers and meat cutters, cigar makers and tobacco workers, had active employment.

Leather. — All branches are well employed.

Miscellaneous. — The miscellaneous trades were actively employed. Delivery employees were busy. The furriers were somewhat dull.

Railway construction and employmentt. — Traffic on all lines was never better. The tourist traffic to the various summer resorts has been heavy. Steamboat workers were taxed to their utmost. Street railway men were very busy, also cabmen, hackmen, carters, draymen, temsters and expressmen.

Unskilled. — Busy conditions prevailed.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the deseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. when this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases ou of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. A RECORD GATE AT RIVERSIDE

Attendance at Baseball Game on Saturday Was Nearly 1,000 and Gate Receipts Were Over $200

Saturday's gate receipts at the ball game between Peterborough and Cobourg constituted a record for Riverside Park, and recall the early days when the games were played on the old P. A. A. A. grounds. The gate on Saturday was over $200, and the attendance was nearly 1,000. The next best gate was at a rugby game two years ago.

WANT A SIDEWALK ON AYLMER STREET

Residents of North End of City Complain That Present Walk is Unsafe

Residents of the north end of the city along Aylmer street are anxious to secure the construction of a cement sidewalk over the hill. They claim, and a visit to that section will demonstrate the truth of the claim, that the present board walk is not only unpleasant and uncomfortable to walk on, but it is unsafe.

WILL ORGANIZE A NEW TENT

Maccabees a Flourishing Organization in Peterborough

The Knights of the Maccabees Order in Peterborough is a flourishing organization, and no better evidence of that can be found than the fact that a second Tent is to be organized in Peterborough. The ceremony will take place to-morrow night in the Orange Hall, and an invitation is extended to the members of Peterborough Tent No. 69 to be present on the occasion. The name of the new Tent has not been decided on. It will start under most encouraging conditions, and should prove as successful as its companion Tent.

To Keep the Skin in Health

AOVID PORE-CLOGGING POWDERS AND CURE ALL SKIN IRRITATIONS AND ERUPTIONS WITH

Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is quite possible that, while you know of Dr. Chase'b Ointment as a cure for eczema psoriasis and the most severe forms of itching skin disease, you may have overlooked its value as a beautifier of the skin.

There are minor forms of skin trouble, such as rough, red, skin, chafing, chapping, pimples, blackheads, blotches, irritation, or poisoning from the clothing, etc., which disfigure and form a starting point for serious trouble.

A few applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment at such times not only remove these blemishes, but also restore the health and beauty of the skin, and positively prevent further development.

Miss C. Stanley-Jones, professional masseuse and nurse, 283 Simcoe street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "In my occupation as a nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I recall was that of a child of sixteen months, who was in a bad way with scaly head. It was a really nasty case, causing the child to suffer very much and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in ten days the child was entirely cured.

"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly troubled with eczema on the face. The doctor was doing her with medicine, which was doing no good. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is delightfully pure and creamy, is pleasant to use, and is rapidly absorbed. It acts as a food for the skin, making it soft, smooth and velvety. By its soothing, antiseptic and healing properties it allays inflammation, relieves itching, and heals sores, wounds and ulcers; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PREACHER'S DAUGHTER PROVES TO BE SUCCESSFUL FISHER

Examiner Special.

Hiawatha, Aug. 26.—Fishing has been excellent this year, and many large lunge have been caught; more than for years past.

The Misses Dunkley, of Picton; A. W. Dunkley, M.A., of Orangeville, and J. B. Dunkleey, of Queen's University, have been spending the past two months at the Mission House with Rev. Geo. Dunkley.

Miss Mary Dunkley has become an enthusiastic fisher; her second lunge weighing fifteen pounds. This she caught and landed without aid.

Rev. Mr. Elliott is back at Poverty Camp spending part of his vacation.

Mr. Peter Thomson visited Cobourg and took in the Horse Fair.

The summer hotels on the lakeshore have been well patronized this season.

Mrs. Henry Cowle, who was quite ill for a time, has fully recovered.

The lawn social held on the sixteenth was a great success in spite of the wet night. The supper was served in the Council Hall, ice cream in the old school house and the concert in the church. The choir did excellently, and the Indian singing was enthusiastically encored.

SIXTY-SIX YEARS A PREACHER; REV. T. M. JEFFERIES STILL ACTIVE

Sixty-six years preaching the Gospel sixty years of that time in Canada is the record of Rev. T. M. Jefferies, of the Hamilton Conference, who preached last night in the Charlotte street Methodist church. Mr. Jeffries, though he is over eighty years of age is still vigorous, and his sermon last night demonstrated that he is forceful and earnest in his presentation of the truth.

Thirty-one years ago, Mr. Jefferies stated last night, he was in Peterborough attending a session of Conference held here, and cherished pleasant memories of his visit to this place, then a small town.

A solo was sung at the evening service by Miss Belleghem, and Mr. Rodger Manning, of Toronto sang in the morning, when a duet was also given by Miss Belleghem and Miss Sperry.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST PRESENTS CASE

Their Side of the Suit Given in Statement Prepared by Publicity Department of Church

THEY CALL IT A FARCE

In connection with the dismissal of the suit brought against Mrs. Eddy, the head of the Christian Scientist church the publicity department of that church has prepared a statement for publication, giving the view of the case from the standpoint of the Christian Scientists. In part the statement is as follows:—

The famous so-called suit in equity which was instituted through George W. Glover and his daughter, Mary B. Glover, and others, charging that Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy, discoverer and founder of Christain Science, has been incompetent to manage her business affairs and that she has been controlled and dominated by certain of her followers, has suddenly collapsed by a motion to the plaintiffs.

For some months glaring charges concerning the condition of Mrs. Eddy and the conduct of her near supporters have been blazoned forth to the public and counsel for the so-called next friends have given out the impression that startling disclosures were to be made that they would be able to prove that Mrs. Eddy is in a helpless state and in the hands of designing men who were not giving proper account of her income.

After months of noisy boasting it now turns out that the so-called "next friends" and their counsel are not able to produce a scintilla of evidence in favour of their allegations but that they have made their charges without the slightest provocation; that they never have had the slightest evidence, but have manufactured their charges out of whole cloth.

There has been and is much speculation as to the real plaintiffs in the case, as to who originated this gigantic farce, and it now appears to have been simply an effort to annoy and discredit Mrs. Eddy and stigmatize the religion of which she is the founnder and that probably the so-called "next friends" were themselves the "tools of designing men," and that they probably never would have instituted this suit of their own volition had they not been solicited and misled.

A few days ago in the course of the hearing which has just closed, the three masters who had been appointed by Judge Chamberlain to determine the question of Mrs. Eddy's business capacity on the second of March last, when she executed a deed of trust together with the leading counsel on both sides of the case, visited Mrs. Eddy at her home and it was found that Mrs. Eddy was not only thoroughly competent but exceedingly alert and quite a match for the gentlemen who visited her. Even the counsel who was seeking to prove her incompetency was heard to remark that "she was as sharp as a steel trap."

The result of this interview, which has been published all over the country, has established beyond any doubt the fact that Mrs. Eddy is not only physically strong for one of her years, but one of the most alert women of her age who lives at this period.

Ever since the filing of the bill, the "next friends," through their counsel have made repeated statements to the public press as to what they expected to prove and the evidence they claimed to have in hand but which they asserted could not be disclosed at that time but when opportunity arrived would be offered and would sustain and prove each and all of the allegations in their bill relating to the incompetency of Mrs. Eddy and the imposition and restraint that was imposed upon her by all those who were surrounding her.

Since the beginning of the hearing by the masters appointed by the court, the fullest opportunity has been given them and the greatest latitude and indulgence has been shown them by the masters, and yet each succeeding day has shown their inability to produce any material or competent evidence that would tend to show in any degree that Mrs. Eddy was not fully competent and able to manage her affairs, or, as a matter of fact, that there was any ground or foundation whatever for any of the charges that they so audaciously set forth. And, after days of reiteration and repetition of what they intended to show, they have finally admitted, by their own motion to dismiss the proceedings, their utter inability to produce the slightest evidence in support of these grave, unjust and unfounded charges that they so emphasized and proclaimed at every opportunity through the press and in all other public ways.

There could be no more complete and higher vindication of Mrs. Eddy and no stronger admission of failure on their own part than their voluntary act of asking dismissal of the case that they had themselves instituted. Such a disposition of the case must have greater weight in the minds of all fair minded persons than even a finding of the masters in favour of Mrs. Eddy could possibly have—to concede that the evidence they had offered was so slight that they themselves recognized that it was not even sufficient to submit to the masters for their consideration.

During the time which has elapsed since the institution of this suit, it has developed in various ways that with the exception of Mr. Calvin A. Frye, Mrs. Eddy's faithful secretary, none of the ten defendants had the slightest knowledge of Mrs. Eddy's business affairs nor had ever handled a dollar of her money. It was also shown by the affidavits of expert accountants that Mr. Frye had very carefully given account of Mrs. Eddy's affairs and that when he closed them up he had made errors against himself so that there was due him something over six hundred dollars.

It was also discovered that Mrs. Eddy had manifested a shrewdness in her investments and in her general management of her affairs which is seldom equalled even by the most painstaking and careful business men.

Another point of interest to the public is the disclosure that Mrs. Eddy is surrounded by trusted friends of her own choosing, who are unusually attentive and careful regarding her wants.

The case was defended by General Frank S. Streeter, his partner, Allen Hollis, General Edmund C. Eastman, Samuel J. Elder and Hon. Wm. A. Morse. Great credit is due these men for the calm, considerate, indulgent and judicial manner in which they conducted their case.

During the progress of the case it had been thought advisable by Mr. Streeter, counsel for Mrs. Eddy, that an expert alienist, whose honesty, reputation and competency could not be questioned, make a thorough study of the case and be prepared to pass judgment thereupon if it became necessary. It was thought advisable that this alienist should be the very best which this country affords, in order to make the testimony as strong as possible according to the justification which he might find, and to this end Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton was chosen.

Dctcro Hamilin had fourmerly testified against Christian Science in a New York case, but his sterling character and veracity is of such a nature that it was believed by Mr. Streeter and the Christian Scientists whom he consulted that the doctor's belief in some of the teachings of Christian Science would not in any way interfere with his making a just and fair estimate of Mrs. Eddy's condition. He visited Mrs. Eddy and has decided to submit his finding for publication.

Ninety-Two-Year-Old Traveller Gives Diary

Mr. Washington Morse Tells of His Journey Through United States —Peterborough Man on a Long Trip.

SOME OF THE INCIDENTS

Mr. Washington Morse, a Peterborough resident, who has reached the advanced age of 92 years, is on an extended trip through the United States, and has written for the Examiner an interesting recital of the incidents of his trip since he left Peterborough. It is as follows:

Battle Creek, Mich., July 11.

Dear Friends, — After parting with you at the G. T. R. station, I was soon in Toronto. Halting there an hour or more I boarded a "Limited express," which brought me to this city five or six hours earlier than I had planned. It was 2.10 a.m., when I stepped from the train out into a heavy rainstorm. The station being some distance from the city, no conveyance was in sight; however, I took "shank's horses," walking three blocks to the nearest hotel, where a good bed was secured till full daylight should start the street cars.

Refreshed by sleep and the toilet, the street cars quickly landed me at that justly world-famed institution, the Battle Creek Sanitarium, where I soon found my son at his office, reading my post card from Peterborough, which told the hour that I had planned to arrive here. Escorting me to their apartments in "East Hall," a nice breakfast was soon brought in. Dr. J. F. Morse and Dr. Jean Whitney-Morse, soon came, and later, Mrs. William M. Morse, (whose husband perished in Muskoka waters at manhood's noon.) All seemed glad to see the old man of four score and eleven.

With hundreds of guests, patients and physicians, I took dinner at the Sanitarium. Everything was most delicious, but no beef steak, beef roast, veal, lamb, turkey, chicken, duck or pig to be seen. At 3 p.m., I went to the chapel service, where Eld. A. T. Jones conducted Bible study, that was fine! A hearty salutation awaited me there. Eld. Jones thought me good for the century mark, if Jesus does not come before.

My baggage will go to Dr. Morse's residence, which will be my temporary home, though at dinner and supper I must be at the Sanitarium table, the guest of my son and family.

WASHINGTON MORSE.

July 12th.

To-day I have been through the magnificent Sanitarium, but will make no attempt to speak of its wonders. The chapel contains a twelve hundred dollar piano, which is the gift of a rich patient. This morning I accompanied my son to the banks, as all papers pertaining to the Sanitarium business bear his signature, and all money for that huge institution is drawn from the banks by him every day; the rapidity of his business methods bewildered me.

July 15th.

I am meeting unexpected things. Yesterday, Sabbath, I attended the chapel service, which, however, is held in a large pavilion now, on the Sanitarium campus. There was a morning service, ably led by some minister who was a guest at the Sanitarium. At 4 p.m., the medical superintendent of the Sanitarium, Dr. J. H. Kellogg, spoke an hour and thirty minutes. It was the most interesting sermon that I have ever listened to. At the close a delegation from the Tabernacle met me with the following message, "You are urgently invited to address the Tabernacle congregation next Sabbath," Now I am writing thus early, asking you to pray for me, that God will strengthen me beneath this heavy cross. To me it is the most important part of my life and stay here.

To-day I have visited by invitation at three places where friends came in to see the old man of 91. Some of them were old acquaintances from the State of Vermont. As we were returning voices called for us to wait. Two ladies soon overtook us, while one grasped my hand, exclaiming, "I know you; my mother was converted as a result of God's blessing upon your labours many years ago!" This lady proved to be the wife of Rev. G. C. Tenney, and the circumstance to which she alluded occurred fifty-three years ago when the lady addressing me was a babe in her mother's arms. If that Peterborough lady who thought that I was a Jew could be here a short time, she would conclude that I am a full believer in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

July 17.—Yesterday was full of interest to me. At our dinner table were seated some members of four generations. The old man at head of table and my great grand child at the foot, and three of my children and grand children each side, with a delicious dinner served by my daughter-in-law.

I meet many persons who declare themselves acquainted by having perused artioles from my pen, appearing in different papers.

July 18.—We have just returned from Lake Gognac; this lovely resort has become like a village since I was there 32 years ago. Yesterday I was invited to several places; one of them was the home of the sister of I. S. Sherwin, the latter so well known in Ontario as former owner and proprietor of that charming summer resort, "Island H," and the "Sherwin House," Muskoka.

July 21.—Dear ones at home;—I am happy to say that I have passed yesterday, one of the most important days of my life, in view of the cross laid upon me—to speak before the "Tabernacle" congregation. When the rolling partitions are raised the church will accommodate about five thousand, being the largest church edifice in the State of Michigan.

The entire week had been one of trepidation and trembling, as I thought of my advanced years, and necessarily impaired faculties; but when arriving at the church it seemseemed to me that an angel took me up, cross and all, bearing me along for one hour and thirty minutes. Elds. Bordeaux and Amadon were seated at my right and G. W. Morse at my left, the latter offering opening prayer, and also addressing the audience briefly, prior to the closing hymn and benediction; in referring to his aged parent tears rolled down many faces. (I find that both himself and Mrs. M. are much esteemed by the Tabernacle people, as well as by the Sanitarium people.)

Heb. 10; 35—39 was my text recited from memory. The large auditorium was filled with candid listeners. The time which had been so dreaded was to me, most glorious; all was light and freedom, though many eyes were at times wet with tears. The Lord enabled me to bring things new and old from the rich treasure-house of His Holy Word. At the close, hundreds rushed forward to shake hands; sometimes they had hold of both hands. Many congratulations were uttered.

I have been lovingly and most bountifully received and treated on every hand and much more respect and honour have been showered upon me than I deserve. To-morrow morning my son will accompany me to Chicago.

Chicago, July 23.—Dear ones at home,—I reached the stately residence of my nephew, Dr. Freeman, at noon to-day, after a hard forenoon's work in calling on former neighbours and friends who now reside here. Last night we stayed at the Chicago Branch of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. To-morrow we must part; my son returning home to Michigan, while I proceed to Minnesota to visit other of my children.

Mankato, Minn., July 29.—My dear daughter,—I am enjoying the best of health, and am happy. We had a wonderful visit at ——, that last night in Chicago. At 8 a.m. we started in a shower of rain. My energetic guide seated me in the railway coach, then we had a few minutes to speak adieux and take a lingering look of the noble son who had so faithfully stood by me for ten days. Well, I tried to banish the memories of ten years ago, when your loved mother was by my side, but the burning tears would blind my eyes.

We reached Madison, Wis., about 2 p.m., where I ate my good dinner, so daintily put up by the Chicago friends. From Madison onward to Winona, Minn., we saw the effect of a cloudburst, which took place the previous Sunday. It was, indeed, a terrible disaster. From West Salem, Wis., through to Winona, not a train or engine, previous to ours, had passed over the road. Had I started earlier, as first intended, I would have been much delayed. In this I recognize the care and guidance of my Heavenly Father, and that thought comforts me. After crossing the long bridge over the Mississippi River, we were in the city of Winona and the State of Minnesota, the land of the free and the home of the brave! Here we halted 20 minutes, and I watched the beautiful sunset, while another scene arose before me. My mind reverted to that other time when I witnessed the sunset at this self-same place, but, oh, how changed my surroundings! That was 50 years ago; we had just crossed this mighty river with our eight lovely children and your dear mother, the queen. Unbidden tears streamed down my sunburnt cheeks until a realization came to me of the fact that I am not alone, even now, but the same God that has stood by me all through those fifty years is with me still; then the tears gave place to praise and gratitude to One Who deigns to hear and help all who trust and truly love Him.

We reached Mankato at midnight, where my grandson, Claude Morrison, met me with a hack, which soon brought me to the arms of your dear sister. The dear grand-children were impatient, next morning, for me to be ready to see their faces. I must say that I am proud of such grandchildren! I am very busy all the time with the friends here, and with meeting so many that I used to know.

On Sunday, I walked to the nice church on State street which you helped to build. Sabbath school, including all adults, as well as youths and children, was in progress. I was soon met by our old friends, Elder Pettis and wife, and proposed the postponement of the missionary meeting so that I might speak to them. On Thursday I was again pressed into service. Had you been present you would have known that a higher Power than mine aided a weak, erring mortal. At the conclusion, scores of fellow- churchmen and churchwomen flocked around the desk with many words like these: "Do you remember me?" "I am astonished to see and hear you!" "What a memory you have!" etc., etc.

Thursday night I was entertained at the pleasant home of my youngest son, Franklin Morse. Such love and tenderness as this son and daughter-in-law manifest, neither you nor I ever experienced from them before; they can hardly keep their hands off me; their only child is a beautiful and talented young lady; her works of art reveal much of her father's fine genius.

On Sunday, all of my daughter's family, together with the writer and your cousin, Mr. Cobb of Duluth, walked two and two down to the Christian Church, as it is called. There were nine of us. After service, many that I used to know seemed glad to meet me with a hearty hand grip.

As I will not be needed to join our party en route for Florida until October, I will have ample time to visit the friends in Minneapolis and Sauk Centre. I think of you much and often recall scenes in pleasant Peterborough. Remember me to many friends there. May God uphold and guide you in all things.

Affectionately your father,
WASHINGTON MORSE.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for Sthee strong and alert — for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health and for this reason and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Stony Lake, Aug. 26.—The waning days of the summer resort season are apparently here, and although the great cosmopolitan population of Kawarthadom is still large, it is decreasing at a more rapid rate than the gain by the influx of tourists. The up steamers on Saturday did not carry the usual number of passengers as on similar days of the past. However, the approaching autumn days are by no means repellant to all. There are hundreds yet who will taste of the pleasures of Kawarthadom during the "melancholy days," and who regard them as the pleasantest of the season.

Sunday was a day quietly spent. On few occasions did old Sol condescend to shine and a high gale blew all day long, giving the lake a dreary appearance. Therefore, instead of the customary boating and sailing, the cottage stove or hearth was the attraction of the day.

The week-end hop at the pavilion was one of the most enjoyable of the season, and a fitting close to the large and popular Saturday evening dances. It was probably the last of the big social events at Juniper, and many came from all directions on the lake to take advantage of this and to join the merry throng in tripping the light fantastic. Piano music was delightfully rendered by Miss Mollie Meldrum and Mrs. H. Thompson of Peterborough, Mrs. Harris of Cleveland and Miss Hall of Peterborough. Guitar and mandolin music was provided by Messrs. McCabe and Howard Cook of Pittsburg.

Among those who participated in the dance were Misses Helen Hall, Alberta Gooding, J Cameron, Ola Cavanah, E Aylmer, Mollie Meldrum, Mrs. Harry Thompson; Miss Acton, Miss Gouinlock, the Misses Kidney of Toronto, Miss Marley Hall, Miss Gertrude Talon of Pittsburg, Misses Kathleen Wallis, Marguerite Burnett, the Misses Robertson, Miss Lee, Miss Rice, Misses Edna Knox and Effie Munro; Miss Lindsay and Miss Stearns of Cleveland, and Miss Seitz of Rochester; Messrs. W A Beaton, Ottawa; A P Earle, Pittsburg; Harry Macdonald, Toronto; E S Clarry, Jas Bogue, Hague Sawyers, Keith Leech, Cyril Leech, Gordon Cox, Clarke Acton, A E Talon of Pittsburg, Jno Henderson, Jno Davis, H McKinley, R Powers, Harry Hall, C Piper, Charles Kingan, O Hatten, Reid Munro, G Rackham.

Deer at McCracken's

During the past week a doe and two fawns have been seen on several occasions a short distance south of McCracken's Landing. They have apparently been driven from their northern haunts, among the tall timbers, by dogs, and have sought more peaceful spots on which to feed.

A cable rope tangled in the screw of the steamer Empress on Saturday afternoon gave the crew considerable trouble in getting back to the channel off Hendren's Island. The high wind was principally the cause of the slight accident, which also caused the boat to float on a rock. With the assistance of the supply boat, Bobs, she was able to continue the down trip, and reached Lakefield in time to connect with the first afternoon train for Peterborough.

The steamer Otonabee also had a mishap Saturday night. In backing into dry dock she swung on a rock, remaining there until yesterday morning, when the Empress pulled her off.

Mr. Walter Curry, son of Mr. J. W. Curry, of Ballyraggit cottage, had an exciting experience on Saturday afternoon while out in his sailing yacht. The western gale blew the waters into gigantic waves, which swamped a canoe he was towing behind. With difficulty, he kept the yacht above water and reached shore in safety.

Mr. Geo. Cochrane has been one of the most successful anglers of the past week. One morning he landed a fine lunge, and the next day followed up his good luck with two more. He states that the lunge are biting better now than at any time before since the season opened.

The tea and concert at St. George's Church, McCracken's Landing, was among the most successful ever held at that church. The programme chiefly consisted of numbers given by summer visitors at the lake, and was one greatly enjoyed. The net receipts amounted to over $110.

Personal Mention

Mr. Hague Sawyers, of the Bank of Montreal staff, spent Sunday at Burleigh Falls.

MILLBROOK PREACHER AT KNOX

Rev. W. Johnston Preached at Local Presbyterian Church Yesterday

The Rev. W. Johnston, of Millbrook, occupied the pulpit of Knox church at both services yesterday, and delivered earnest, practical sermons to good audiences. At the morning service Messrs. Campbell, Burns, McCannon and Davenport sung a very appropriate quartette in good form. The Rev. Mr. Johnston at the evening service delivered an address from the text question, "Is this the Carpenter's Son?" and from the answer text, "This is My beloved Son in Whom I am well pleased." In the course of his remarks, he said that it had been argued that only men delivering the Gospel from the sacred desk were in holy orders, but he most emphatically contradicted this, as any person at their daily occupation who were filled with the Christian spirit and doing their work faithfully in God's sight, were in holy orders also. Mr. Campbell and Mr. Davenport sung a duet in good voice. The choir also rendered in an appropriate manner an evening dismissal song after the benediction. Rev. H. J. Keith, the pastor, who has been away for a month's vacation on the Rideau River, is expected home by next Sunday.

THE WEATHER

That the rainfall of this summer has been lighter than usual, is shown by a comparison with the corresponding months of last year. The totals for the first two months in each column include a certain amount of snowfall, which has been reduced however to its corresponding equivalent in rain. The amount given for August of last year is for the whole month; for August of this year the amount to date:

AMERICAN LADY LANDS A BIG 'LUNGE

Mrs. G. H. Dawson Successful With the Trawl Near Young's Point

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Dawson, Fort Madison, Io. Miss Lila and Master Hartman, Mr. Richard Dawson, San Francisco, and Mr. Joshua Dawson, and daughter, Miss Marjorie, of San Francisco, were on the city to-day on their way home from the Lakeview House, Young's Point, after spending a three weeks' holiday there.

Mrs. George H. Dawson, who was in Canada for the first time, was the fortunate angler of the party. On Friday last she captured and landed a fourteen pound lunge, near Polly's Island, a short distance below the Point. It was the first of the finny tribe that she had ever landed and it was certainly a good beginning.

Insure Against Serious Colds

Of the many forms of insurance probably that which protects you against the serious results of colds is the most valuable at this time of the year, when so many are becoming victims of la grippe and pneumonia. By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can keep the loose, prevent further development of the cold and cure it in a few days.

"BLOSSOMS" ENJOY THEIR TRIP

Miss Birdie Thompson, Peterborough's Representative, Expected Back on Wednesday—How They Spent the Time in London

SHOPPING EXPEDITION

Miss Birdie Thompson, the representative from Peterborough on the Toronto World's trip to London, is expected to reach the city on Wednesday. The party arrived in Montreal on Saturday, and some of the members passed through yesterday morning to Toronto.

A recent issue of the London Daily Mirror, just received in the city, has an interesting article in reference to the arrival of the "Blossoms" in London. The Mirror says:

Canada's "Maple Blossoms" spent their first day sight-seeing in London yesterday.

"Sunday didn't count; everything seemed so awfully sleepy," explained one "Blossom" to the Daily Mirror, and, of course, we only arrived here on Saturday afternoon. Saturday evening we went to the Alhambra. It was first-rate fun."

The "Maple Blossoms" are a party of eleven Canadian girls who, like the "Buck-Eye Daisies," have been selected from a voting competition in a newspaper. The newspaper in this case is the Toronto World, and the eleven have been adjudged the most popular girls in Canada.

The party is in charge fo Mr. Albert E. S. Smythe, fo the World, and he has a position of the greatest responsibility, for the "Maple Blossoms" are as pretty as the flower, and as sweet as the sugar of the tree from which they take their name.

Young Bride v. Old Masters

Yesterday's programme started them off from the Hotel Cecil at 9 in the morning, and in due solemnity the Tower, Westminster, and St. Paul's were visited. Then came lunch at the Covent Garden Hotel, and at 2.30 another start was made in the char-a-banc.

The National Gallery was first visited, but the sight of a crowd congregated on the steps of St. Martin's Church attracted most of the "Blossoms" to the sacred precincts, in the hope of seeing an English bride, and those who did enter the gallery rushed out as soon as the wedding bells began pealing.

From Trafalgar Square the Canadian girls were driven the usual tourists' round by Victoria, Belgravia, South Kensington Museum and Kensington Gardens.

At Marble Arch they drew up and alighted to go through the dogs' cemetery. This they thought just too cute for anything, and all the longer epitaphs were jotted in the "Blossoms'" notebooks, while the old woman with postcards did a roaring trade.

They go Shopping

"Now, there's only one thing we want!" cried a vivacious 'Flower,' "and that's to go shopping. Say, you Daily Mirror, why don't newspapers in this country send women reporters, and then we'd go shopping?"

This, however, the Daily Mirror was equal to, and, accordingly, the char-a-banc disgorged at Piccadilly-circus those of its occupants who had money to spend. Then the Daily Mirror felt the responsibility of chaperoning the Canadian girl on a "tear."

"You'll be our 'barker' now," said one in confident tones to the Daily Mirror. "Barker," it must be explained, is the American word for conductor or guide. "We want gloves, side-combs, handkerchiefs, and some blouses."

Other requirements grew with view, and it was just upon 7 o'clock and dinner time that this section of the party reached the Cecil. On the way there the shopping expenditure was discussed.

Cheap Gloves

"Blouses are ugly, and double the price they are in Toronto; silk skirts we'll buy in Paris, but gloves—well, there, what'll buy two pairs here wouldn't buy one pair in America. It's just fine!"

London is "just finer" than they anticipated, but the shops are smaller than their own "stores." The women, they think, are all right as to looks, but they dress badly; the Englishmen they have seen, they think, dress well.

To-day the party goes to Paris, returning to London on Thursday morning, when Hampton Court will be visited in the daytime, and the Haymarket Theatre at night. Last night they went to the Savoy and had their first experience of Gilbert and Sullivan opera.

"But, ho, me! I'm tired!" said one at supper. "Guess when I get home to Toronto again I'll sleep for a month."

INSURANCE MEN TO HEAR REPORT

Important Meeting of Local Life Underwriters Will be Held To-night in Canada Life Offices

To-night at eight o'clock an important meeting of the Life Insurance Underwriters' Association will be held in the offices of the Canada Life Assurance Company, when a report of the recent convention of Insurance men held in Toronto, will be presented by Mr Salls, who attended the convention as the delegate from the local association.

Some Shearer Cheese Found To Be Too Light

Mr. Whitton Made Discovery This Morning at the Market—Ordered Extra Cheese Weighed.

SHRINKAGE NOT COUNTED ON

Some trouble was caused at the market this morning over the weights of some cheese brought into the city for shipment from Shearer factory, Otonabee. Mr. Whitton, one of the buyers of th elocal board, was there and saw four cheese weighed from the back of one wagon all of which tipped the scales at least half a pound heavier than the factory weight marked on the box. Mr. Whitton requested the driver of the wagon to weigh a few from the front, but this was refused.

The cheese buyer, however, apparently suspected that something was wrong and instructed a carter to bring back some of the cheese from the station to be weighed. This was done twice, and it was discovered that out of ten boxes weighed, seven were some ounces short. Two, in particular, whose factory weights were given as 80 lbs., only weighed 85 3-4 lbs., which was 3-4 of a pound too little.

The factory weight of each cheese must at least be one-half pound more than the market weight, as that weight is allowed for shrinkage.

NEW WATER MAIN ON BARNARDO

Staff of Pipe-Layers Worked Yesterday to Lay 50 Feet of New Pipe

Yesterday the Peterborough Commissioners had a staff of men at work laying the new twelve inch main on Barnardo avenue, under the G.T.R. tracks. The cooper shop, north of the avenue, has a contract to supply the Quaker Oats Company with a large number of barrels each day, and the portion of the trench digging opposite his entrance had to be completed on Sunday in order that the operations of the shop might not be interfered with.

MASQUERADE AT SOUTH BEACH HOTEL

Many in Special Costume For the Interesting Event

A masquerade ball was held in the pavilion at South Beach Hotel, Clear Lake, on Friday evening of last week, and proved to be a social event oof unusual interest at that resort. Those in special costume included the guests at the hotel and a number of their friends. Dancing held sway among the young people until midnight, when the merry gathering dispersed.

VALUABLE IRON ORE FROM COE HILL

Thirteen Cars Passed Through City Yesterday for Midland

Yesterday there were 13 cars of iron ore passed through the city from the Central Ontario Iron mines at Coe Hill. A couple of small pieces dropped off near the G.T.R. station and were picked up by an old iron collier who states that one of them contained at least 90 per cent. of the metal. The other was less valuable containing only about 50 per cent. iron.

The train went to Midland where the company has a smelter.

A GERMAN SHIP CAPTURED

Was Carrying Cargo of Rifles Under Cover of Spanish Flag—Desperate Encounters With Tribesmen—Arabs Display Reckless Courage—Mowed Down by Hundreds—Europeans Ask for Warship.

Casablanca, Aug. 26.—Absolute fearlessness continues to characterize the attacks delivered by the tribesmen upon the French forces encamped here, and Friday bands of Arabs made isolated reckless advances. A detachment of one hundred natives, while stealing in toward the city, were ambushed near the beach by the French, A merciless fire mowed them down. Those who were not killed fled precipitately, but many dead were left behind. Those who face the French shell fire do not return.

Continuing his offensive campaign, Gen. Drude Saturday pushed his reconnoitering parties four miles out from his centre. The main body of the enemy was not sighted.

Mulai Hafig's Plans.

Tangier, Aug. 26.—A courier from Morocco City, who arrived here Saturday, confirmed the reports that Mulai Hafig, a brother of the Sultan, Abd Hel Asiz, had been proclaimed Sultan on Aug. 16. After announcing his assumption of the throne by a salute of four guns he immediately formed a court, with Ben Jabbao Ouresk, Pasha of Kasbah, as Vizier.

The influence of Abd Hel Asiz in the south is disappearing, and Mulai Hafig has declared his intention to appoint his brother, Mohammed Kalifoffez, and then proceed to take command of the Moorish forces besieging Casablanca.

The Europeans who are leaving Fez have asked that a warship meet them at El Araish Aug. 30.

German Vessel With Rifles.

London, Aug. 26.—A despatch from Tangier to the Central News says the French cruiser Du Chayla arrived there yesterday with a German sailing ship which she had captured off the Moroccan coast.

The sailing vessel was flying the Spanish colors when the Du Chayla sighted her.

The captain of the cruiser did not like the appearance of the ship and sent a party to board her. They found that the vessel, which was a German, was carrying a cargo of French rifles of the Gros pattern. It is stated that the arms are the property of the Moroccan Government, and were being taken to Mogodor.

REVOLT IN ARGENTINA.

Governor of San Luis Is Taken Prisoner and New Governor Appointed.

Buenos Ayres, Argentina, Aug. 26.—A local revolution broke out Saturday night in the City of San Luis, capital of the Province of San Luis, a town of 11,000 inhabitants, and situated about 140 miles southwest of Buenos Ayres.

The chief of police was the leader of the insurrection, and the governor and other provincial authorities were made prisoners. The insurrectionists immediately chose a new governor, named Adare and installed him in office.

News from San Luis last night reports that complete quiet has been restored and further disturbances are not anticipated.

Killed In Auto Accident.

Sanderstown, R. I., Aug. 26.—W. Waldo Merrill, a Boston stock broker, and Eric Landstrome of Mattapan, Mass, a chauffeur, were killed yesterday by the over turning of an automobile, which crashed into a stone wall at a sharp curve in the road leading to Narragansett pier. Four other occupants of the touring car, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Milliken of Milton, Mass., their daughter, Miss Rita Milliken, and Mrs. Merrill, wife of W. Waldo Merrill, escaped with slight injuries, although Miss Milliken is believed to have sustained a fracture of the wrist.

RAISULI MORE REASONABLE.

Asks Only Guarantee of Life For Release of Caid MacLean.

London, Aug. 26.—It is understood that Raisuli, the Moroccan bandit who is holding Caid Sir Harry MacLean a prisoner, has sent a communication to the British Government, in which he greatly modifies his previous demands for the release of the Caid.

The only condition he makes now is that his own life and the lives of the members of his family be guaranteed. He makes no suggestion of ransom or other concessions.

Heart Disease Kills Cardinal.

Ascoli, Italy, Aug. 26.—Cardinal Emilio Taliani died here Saturday of heart disease. He was born in Italy in 1838, and was created a cardinal in 1903. He formerly was papal nuncio at Vienna.

BRITAIN AND PREFERENCE

Chancellor of Exchequer Says None Can Be Given on Staple Foods or Raw Materials—Colonies Cannot Admit Competition on the Same Level With Their Own Industries—Praises Sir Wilfrid.

London, Aug. 26.—Mr. Asquith, speaking on Saturday night, referred to Laurier's pronouncement that none but British would have given autonomy to South Africa. Laurier, he said, then spoke with the voice of empire, not with the voice of the small, disappointed faction at home.

Alluding to preference, Mr. Asquith said the United Kingdom couldn't adopt any form of preference involving taxation on corn, meat and raw material and the colonists, on their part, could give no form of preference which would admit the British manufacturer on level terms nto competition with their own protected industries. That was the principle upon which the Canadian, best of all colonial tariffs, was based.

Its principle is still more conspicuous than the new Australian tariff.

If the Government left office to-day he would wish them to be judged by whether they hadn't justified the confidence of the nation in colonial administration.

UNIONIST TRIUMPH.

Bury St. Edmunds, Eng., Aug. 26.—The Unionists scored a triumph here Saturday when their candidate for a seat in the House of Commons, Hon. Walter Guinness, received 1,631 votes as against 741 cast for W. E. Yates, the Liberal candidate. This is a majority of 890 as against the majority of 1890 as against the majority of 434 obtained by Capt. F. W. G. Hervey, Unionist, in the last general election.

Capt. Hervey succeeded to the peerage upon the death of the Marquis of Bristol, and the seat consequently became vacant.

The campaign attracted a great deal of interest, and was fought out on the question of tariff reform. Mr. Guinness is an out and out protectionist.

TRIED TO JUMP TRAIN.

Falls Under Wheels and Was Horribly Mangled.

Hamilton, Aug. 26.—J. Culp was instantly killed and his body horribly mangled just east of the G. T. R. station at Beamsville Saturday. The unfortunate young man is about 20 years of age, and his home was in Beamsville.

He, with a number of other young men about the town, were employed for the day by the Woodman Bros., the contractors who have charge of the Cataract Power Co.'s system of wires, the main line of which runs on the G. T. R. right of way. A freight train came along and Culp tried to board it. He fell under the wheels and his body was horribly mangled.

PASSENGER TRAINS COLLIDE.

Despatcher's Mistake Results In Loss of Four Lives.

Sapulpa, I.T., Aug. 26.—Four persons were killed and thirty injured Saturday, when two St. Louis and San Francisco passenger trains, both loaded heavily with excursionists, collided head on near Sapulpa.

The wreck is said to have been due to the failure of the despatcher at Sapulpa to issue an order to the eastbound train to take the siding at Redfork.

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED.

Niagara Falls., N. Y., Aug. 26.—Miss Laura K. Sheehy of Pittsburg was fatally burned Saturday night at the Thurecht Hotel on the riverway. She was eating luncheon in the summer garden of the hotel when her dress caught fire from a lighted match thrown to the floor by a careless smoker.

Douks Causing Trouble.

Kenora, Aug. 26.—The question of what to do with the Doukhobors is growing serious. Saturday the charge of wilfully trespassing on the C. P. R. tracks was brought against the party of 34 at the police court. They pleaded guilty and were remanded in custody until to-day, when it is thought the Government will have to come to some decision in regard to deporting them.

Women and children are allowed their liberty, but they herd around the prison.

Villages Submerged.

Tokio, Aug. 26.—Floods, which are believed to be the heaviest that have been experienced for years, are reported from Central Japan. Some villages have been completely submerged. The extent of the damage done is not known, but it is believed to be very heavy.

TO TEST POWER OF THE LORDS

Question to Be Forced to an Early Issue.

FEW MEASURES ARE PASSED

Serious Political Problem In Britain—Cabinet Ministers Make Vigorous Speeches—Will Ask the Electors for Verdict — Bills Thrown Out by the Upper House — Campaign for Reform Outlined.

London, Aug. 26.—Of the many measures promised in the King's speech at the opening of the present session of Parliament, which will be prorogued next Wednesday, but few have reached the statute books.

Like the education bill and the plural voting bill, the most prominent measures of the last session, and which were thrown out by the House of Lords, the Irish council bill, which was to have been the most important piece of legislation at this session, met with early defeat, but in a different way. The education and plural voting bills gave the Liberals an opening for a campaign against the House of Lords, which as indicated in the speeches of Herbert H. Asquith, former Home Secretary; Richard B. Haldane, Secretary of State for War; Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell, Winston Churchill, at various meetings throughout the country Saturday night, is to be carried on vigorously during the recess.

A licensing bill, the object of which was to have been to diminish the evils of drink—another question on which the two Houses promised to clash, and on which the King's speech intimated would come up during the session—was put off on account of the pressure of work; but the Government found in the Scotch small landholdings' bill, which Lord Rosebery made his reappearance to attack, a substitute which the House of Commons passed by a large majority, but which was withdrawn by the Government on account of the antagonistic attitude of the peers and the antagonism shown in Scotland and throughout the kingdom by the Labor party. This action of the House of Lords becomes a weapon for attack in the campaign for the reform of the Upper Chamber.

The Irish universities' bill, which also was catalogued in the King's speech, was not introduced.

Among other bills which came up was the Irish evicted tenants' bill, which the House of Lords so radically amended that there is little likelihood of the House of Commons finally accepting it in its altered condition.

London, Aug. 26.—That it is the intention of the Government to force the question of curtailing the power of the House of Lords to an issue was made apparent in speeches delivered in various parts of England Saturday.

Herbert H. Asquith, former Home Secretary; Richard B. Haldane, Secretary of State for War; Chief Secretary of Ireland Birrell, and Winston Churchill, all emphasized in their speeches that the claim of the House of Lords on equal legislative rights with the House of Commons was the most serious political question of the day.

Mr. Churchill, in speaking at Cheadle, near Manchester, said that the bills rejected by the House of Lords would be re-passed by the House of Commons without delay until the time came to ask the country for a verdict.

Speaking at Corsham, Mr. Asquith asked if the people intended to allow the leader of a discredited minority in the House of Commons to strangle their bills and aid the Lords, and Mr. Haldane, at Kippenhouse, Perthshire, declared that the Government proposed to give the ultimate power to the House of Commons, making its will prevail during the course of a single Parliament.

YOUNG LAD SUICIDES.

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Blows His Head Off.

The boy bade his mother good-bye and walked away, but nothing was thought of it. A little later the report of a gun was heard near the house, and upon rushing out Mrs. Lawson found her son with his head almost blown off.

No cause for the suicide is known.

Pinned Under a Ton of Iron.

London, Aug. 26.—While loading a heavy cylinder on a lorry Saturday afternoon, Charles Ross, son of T. L. Ross, a grocer, was pinned beneath the ton of iron when it rolled toward the part of the way. He was taken out alive, and physicians in attendance say, although his limbs were horribly crushed, he has a good chance of recovery.

The boy was taking the place of the regular man, who was away on an excursion.

Killed Playing Baseball.

New York, Aug. 26.—Arthur Clemens of Brooklyn was killed Saturday while playing baseball at Glencove, L. I. Clemens was playing with the Glencove team in a game against Oyster Bay. He was at bat, when a swift ball pitched by Pitcher McKenna struck him on the head. Clemens fell unconscious and soon died. McKenna was arrested, but was later released by the coroner.

O'K Over in Bohemia

about 52 miles from Prague, lies the town of Pilsen. It was at Pilsen that Pilsener beer was originated.

If you have travelled through that part of Germany, you probably recall with pleasure the delicious light beer which was served.

When you drink O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager, you will instantly recognise the delicious lager of Bohemia. It's brewed from the same formula used by the brewmasters of Pilsen. Being brewed here in Canada, of course there is no duty to pay on it. That's why it costs so much less than imported lagers, not as good.

Montreal School Burns.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—Ann street school, one of the oldest school buildings in Montreal under the Protestant board of commissioners, was badly damaged by fire last night.

The interior was burned out, and the loss will amount to $15,000.

As the building is old and poorly laid out, had a fire started with the school children in classes, the loss of life would have been heavy.

Peterboro' Batted Barry Hard Beating Cobourg Nine Easily

Despite the Efforts of Big Providence Pitcher and Foxy Jack Toft, Johnston's Pirates Put Sailors Out of Running.

LOCALS HITTING A FEATURE

Jimmy O'Hearne Made Five Hits —Two Cobourg Twilers Were Driven to the Woods—Local Fans Went Crazy.

It's Port Hope or Peterborough for the Midland League championship. The Cobourg Club ring in an Eastern League battery and two Rochester players in Saturday's game at Riverside Park, but Manager Johnston's pets won an easy victory, the score being 14-6 in favour of the locals.

With the persuasive aid of $100, Cobourg had induced one, Barry, of the Providence Eastern League team, to take a little jaunt into Canada to show the bush leaguers what a ball player looked like. Mr. Barry, who is one of the star throwers of Hugh Duffy's pitching staff, is a neat little thing of about 200 pounds in weight and six feet two in length. He looked as big as a house to Peterborough, but the local hitsmiths showed a deplorable lack of respect for Mr. Barry's size and reputation. Corney Burns broke the ice by planting the first ball pitched into left field for two bases, and from then on the merry crack of bat meeting ball resounded across the battlefield.

If Manager Duffy had seen what Peterborough did to his big twirler he would surely have decorated him with the order of the tin can at once. It was a shame, a disgrace, to bang the gutchpaw's pet curves all over the ... that way. It took a little less ... six innings to show Cobourg that they had been gold-bricked, and Mr. Barry was yanked out of the box. Meantime, Peterborough had landed on him for eleven hits and nine runs. Two triples and a double were included in the slaughter.

Thus, with one gone in the sixth, the Eastern Leaguer was relegated to the bench by Manager Mulhall, and a nice young fellow by the name of McKinnon, who really hails from Cobourg, was substituted. The appetite Barry had given the locals was not appeased, and in less than three minutes they had made three hits and a sacrifice for a total of three more runs. Once more a change was made and Ford, of Rochester, who played under the name of Moffitt, was sent in to try and stop the club-swinging of the locals. Two were gone when he went in, and he succeeded in getting the third one after one more run had crossed the pan, making a total of seven in that eventful innings. The crowd of bugs and bugettes was simply delirious with joy, and the innings was one long chapter of unadulterated bliss to the local audience.

In addition to Barry, another well-known ex-Eastern Leaguer was in the game for Cobourg, Foxy Jack Toft, last season, and for several years before, the idol of the Toronto fans. It is said that he received $50 for catching the game for Cobourg, and, while we like Jack all right, it is necessary to state here that he did not do much to earn his money. He dropped a throw to the plate that let a run, he failed to get anything that looked like a hit, while the locals managed to pilfer three bases on him.

The game was one of the most interesting and exciting ever seen on the local diamond, and was witnessed by far the biggest crowd of the season. It was a glad crowd, too, especially in the sixth innings.

"Yebbie" Flaherty was on the firing line for Peterborough and pitched a brilliant ball, holding the hard-hitting Cobourg bunch to eight hits, keeping them well scattered, except in the fourth, when they got three singles in a row. He had speed, control and curves, and had the game well in hand all the way, although bad errors in the first innings got him into trouble and gave Cobourg a number of runs that they did not earn. Flaherty was easily the best of the four pitchers who performed on Saturday.

It was a see-saw battle up to the sixth innings. Errors after two were gone in the first innings gave Cobourg two runs. In their half, Peterborough made four hits, netting them three runs. Cobourg took the lead in the first half of the fourth, getting three hits and a sacrifice for a total of three more runs. Burridge's triple and O'Hearne's single gave Peterborough a chance to tie the score in their half.

In the fifth Cobourg scored their last runs on two hits and a dead ball, giving them two of a lead. Peterborough, with two hits and an error, tied the score. Then came seven runs in the sixth, as already related, and another in the eighth on O'Hearne's four-sacker.

O'Hearne's hitting was one of the outstanding features of the game. The little centre-fielder was up five times and had a perfect average, getting four singles and a home run. All pitchers looked alike to him. He cracked them out on a line and drove in runs ahead of him every time he stung the ball. Jimmy's hitting was a revelation to the local fans and they gave him an ovation as he crossed the plate in the eighth, after driving the ball into the brewery creek for a home run.

The locals nearly all fattened their batting averages at the expense of the three Cobourg twirlers. Anderson had a double and two singles, Burridge lined out two corking three-baggers, one of them with two men on bases, and Burns and Cheatham got two hits each. For Cobourg McInberg and Turpin were the lead-stickers each getting a double and a single.

The contest was a spectacular one with plenty of hard hitting and fast fielding. Anderson the big second baseman of the locals contributed the feature play of the day, making the most seensational catch ever seen on Riverside Park. In the sixth Moffitt hit a high fly into centre field which looked to be dropping safe. Anderson went after it, however, and running at full speed with his back to the home plate, struck up his bare hand and gathered in the ball. For a moment the crowd was too petrified with astonishment to yell, then they broke loose and the noise was deafening. Anderson also made a pretty one-handed pick-up of a grounder that looked to have him beat.

Cheatham's snappy work at short stop for Peterborough was another fielding feature. He made four pretty catches of flies and stopped some difficult bounders. Hickey, of the Toronto Wellingtons, was on first and covered the bag in finished fashion.

McKinnon and Moffitt did the best fielding for Cobourg. The short stop retired the side in the seventh by three nice catches, going back into left field for all three. Moffitt accepted nine chances without an error. Burge made a pretty catch of Burns drive in the fifth that brought forth applause from the crowd.

By Innings

The story of the game by innings follows:

First—Bentley fanned, Toft grounded out to Hickey. With two gone Moffitt hit to Haliburton, but Hickey missed the throw; Meinburg hit to centre field for two bases, scoring Moffitt; Turpin lifted a high fly to left which Callaghan dropped and the Dutchman scored. Floyd went out Flaherty to Hickey.—Two runs.

For Peterborough, Burns hit the first ball to left field for two bases; Cheatham followed with a pretty single and stole second on the first ball; Burridge fanned, but O'Hearne was there with the needful, driving out a slashing single over second, on which Burns and Cheatham crossed the pan; Hickay's grounder to first advanced O'Hearne to second and Anderson scored him with a pretty single; Callaghan hit to Moffitt and Anderson was forced at second.—Three runs.

Second innings—Burge went out on a grounder to Anderson; McKinnon's bounder to Hickey was neatly handled and Barry died on a grass-cutter, going out the Anderson-Hickey route, the former making a pretty stop. No runs.

Haliburton struck out; Flaherty's high fly was taken care of by Moffitt and Burns grounded out to Barry. No runs.

Third innings—This was Cheatham's innings. Bentley and Toft both died on flies to the local short stop, and Moffitt's grounder to the same player resulted in an easy out at first. No runs.

For Peterborough, Cheatham was out on a grounder to third. Burridge trippled to left field and came home on O'Hearne's slashing single over second. O'Hearne was caught off first by Barry and Hickey fanned. One run.

Fourth Innings.—Meinburg flew out to Cheatham; Turpin singled to centre and Floyd sacrificed him to second; Burge singled to centre and Turpin scored. Burridge threw the ball into centre field in an effort to stop Burge and the Cobourg player cantered home; McKinnon singled, but Barry failed to connect with Flaherty's shoots. Two runs.

For Peterborough Anderson was safe on McKinnon's error, but Callaghan grounded to third. Haliburton fanned, and Flaherty went out, Barry to Turpin, no runs.

Fifth Innings. Bentley led off with a single, and Taft did his old stunt of stepping into the ball. Anderson made a sensational catch of Moffitt's fly to centre. Meinberg hit to Cheatham, and Toft was forced at second. Then Turpin drove one to left centre for two bases, and Bentley and Meinberg scored. Floyd flew out to Cheatham. Two runs.

For Peterborough Burridge flew out to centre field; Cheatham made a pretty single, and stole second; Turpin fumbled McKinnon's throw, and Burridge was safe. Then O'Hearne made his third consecutive single, and two more runs crossed the pan. Hickey fanned, but McKinnon fumbled Anderson's grounderr, and both base runners were safe. Callaghan hit to third, however, and O'Hearne was forced. Two runs.

Sixth Innings. Haliburton fumbled Burge's grounderr but he was doubled up a minute later when Flaherty captured McKinnon's fly and snapped the ball to first. With two strikes on him Barry drove the ball to centre field for three bases, but the big Providence pitcher died on third, Bentley grounding out to Flaherty. No runs.

The deluge came in Peterborough's half. Haliburton smashed one down the first base line for a single; Flaherty sacrificed him to second. Burns singled; Cheatham hit to Barry who threw to the plate to catch Haliburton. Toft dropped the throw and everybody was safe, with two on the bases. Burridge hit to deep centre for a beautiful three bagger, and Burns and Cheatham scored. This is where Mr. Barrry of the Providence Grays, made his exit from the game. McKinnon was substituted and Jimmy Bulger went to short. O'Hearne cracked out his fourth single, and Burridge scored; Hickey died on a grounder to Bulger, but O'Hearne was safe at third. Anderson doubled to left, scoring O'Hearne, and scored himself on Callaghan's pretty single over shoot. This was enough for McKinnon and he was hauled out of the box to make way for Moffitt, Meinberg going to third, McKinnon to short and Bulger to second. Haliburton reached first on Bulger's errror, and Callaghan, who had stolen second, scored on the play. Haliburton was caught off first by Moffitt, retiring the side. Seven runs.

Seventh Innings. Anderson allowed Toft's easy grounder to get away from him and the ex-Toronto player stole second. Moffitt hit one down the third base line that looked good for a homer, but umpire Weeks called it a foul. Moffitt fanned, Meinberg singled to centre, and Toft tried to score on the play, but O'Hearne made a perfect throw to the plate and Jack was an easy out; Callaghan gathered in Turpin's high fly. No runs.

For Peterborough, Flaherty flew out to McKinnon and Burns did the same. Cheatham was safe on Turpin's error, but McKinnon made a pretty running catch of Burridge's fly to short left and the side was gone. No runs.

Eighth Innings. Hickey made a pretty catch of Floyd's fly to first. Burge flew out to O'Hearne, and McKinnon grounded to Anderson. No runs.

For Peterborough, O'Hearne made a beautiful drive to the raceway, for a home run, his fifth hit in a row, and received an ovation from the crowd. Hickey died on a fly to the pitcher; Anderson singled but was caught off first by Moffitt. Callaghan drew a base on balls, the first pass of the game, but Haliburton died on a grounder to McKinnon. One run.

Ninth Innings. Bulger flew out to Callaghan; Bentley was passed, but Toft grounded to Flaherty, and Moffitt to Cheatham, and the game was over.

In statistical form, the story of the contest is as follows:

JUST TROUSER TALK

For economy's sake, if for no other reason, every man should have a pair or two of extra Trousers. Besides relieving the monotony of a man's attire, they serve as a saving to the continuous wear of a pair that matches his best suit, giving them in this way as long a life as the Coat and Vest.

SUMMER and OUTING TROUSERS

In Flannels, Homespuns, Light Tweeds and White Ducks, etc., with or without cuffs, belt bands of same material—$2.25 for 89c., $3.50 for $2.48, $4.00 for $2.90.

BUSINESS MEN'S TROUSERS

In Striped Worsteds (Medium and Fancy), Plain and Striped Tweeds, etc., artistically cut, and as good as any man can make at $2.48, 2.90 and 3.90.

WORKING MEN'S TROUSERS

In strong, durable Fabrics stoutly sewed — buttons put on to stay — and cut on easy and comfortable lines at $1.25, 1.50, 1.90 and 2.48.

For this week you will get more for your Trouser Money than you have been in the habit of getting.

ANOTHER TEACHER HAS RESIGNED

Mr. F. E. Kerr, Principal of Menzies School, Will Study Pharmacy

Mr. F. C. Kerr, principal of the Menzies public school, sent in his resignation to the school board on Saturday, which will probably be considered by that body in the near future.

Mr. Kerr has decided to give up the teaching profession and will study pharmacy with Mr. Wm. Madill, corner of George and Hunter streets.

Mr. Kerr has taught for more than seven years, four of which were spent in Peterborough. For three years he was the assistant principal in the South Central School, and last year was principal at the Menzies school. He has been a very successful member of the local staff, and the vacancy caused by his resignation will be hard to fill.

By permission of Lieut.-Colonel J. W. Miller, the Non-commissioned Officers of the 57th Regiment will hold their annual excursion the last Thursday afternoon in August, the 29th, to Idyl Wyld, per steamer Otonabee. The boat will leave the Wolfe St. Wharf at 1.30 o'clock, and the Street Car Wharf at 2.00 o'clock. Tickets — Adults 50c., Children 25c. 3d-47

IMMIGRANTS REACH PETERBOROUGH

Two Trains Passed Through Yesterday —Newcomers to the Country are Welcomed

Yesterday morning about 8 o'clock a special immigrant train passed through the city on the C.P.R. It was composed of five coaches, which were all well filled. Two passengers disembarked at Peterborough and were looked after by Mr. Alex. Reid. At 12 o'clock another combination train passed through over the same road. It was composed of passenger and stock coaches.

MR. LARMONTH IS INDIGNANT

Because the Fire Brigade Did Not Turn Water on the Sawdust Fire

Mr. J. H. Larmonth is very indignant because Chief Rutherford and the fire brigade refused to turn any water on the fire in the saw dust pile on Tuesday. He has written to the Mayor, stating that he will claim damages from the city in the event of any damage to the company's property.

The Mayor has requested Chief Rutherford to report on the affair at the next meeting of the Council which will be held on Tuesday evening of next week.

P. C. M'GINTY ARRESTS MAN FOR MISCONDUCT

Creating Disturbance at Corner of Stewart and Simcoe Streets

P. C. McGinty to-day demonstrated that he was yet capable of performing his duties as of old. He gathered in a drunk at the corner of Stewart and Simcoe streets, whose conduct was more boisterous than the residents in that vicinity could bear. He attempted, among other things, to tear the shutters off a house. His case will be heard in the morning, when the charge will be drunk and disorderly.

He spent the afternoon in peaceful slumber in the first cell at the police station, rocked in the arms of Morpheus.

Removes Poison From the Blood

There's a need in every home of a medicine that by cleansing and invigorating the liver, kidneys and bowels, will remove all poisonous waste matter from the blood, cure biliousness, kidney derangements, and constipation and by so doing prevent fevers, colds, dropsy and Bright's disease. No medicine satisfies the need so well as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, as is proven by the testimonials appearing

CANOE UPSET IN THE LITTLE LAKE

Young Couple Had a Narrow Escape From Drowning Yesterday Afternoon

WERE RESCUED IN TIME

Little Lake came very near being the scene of a double drowning accident yesterday afternoon when a canoe containing Miss Primeau, of East City, and Mr. T. Henderson was capsized, throwing the two occupants into the water. The lake was very rough and the big swell upset the canoe. Several boats went to the rescue, including canoes containing Aid. Duncan and Allan Ray and the two were quickly rescued from their dangerous predicament. They clung to the canoe until help came.

DIOCESAN PRIESTS IN RETREAT

Will Go Into Retreat To-night Until Saturday

At nine o'clock to-night the priests of the Diocese of Peterborough will go into their annual retreat, which will continue until Saturday. There will be about twenty-five priests present from all parts of the diocese and the retreat will be preached in by a Redemptorist priest, who will come from Toronto for that purpose. A number of those who will participate in the retreat are already here, but the majority will come in to-night by the later trains.

COURT CASES WERE PROFITABLE

Drunk and Disorderlies Contribute to the City's Exchequer

Four offenders against the law crowded the prisoners' box at the Police Court this morning, all charged with being drunk and disorderly. Chas. McGrath was fined $2 for his offence. Jas. Malcolm, Alfred Dobos and Jno. Baker were each assessed $5, and $2 extra was added to the latter's fine for destroying property. He smashed a bicycle bell, and a window in a cell at the police station.

Meat Drivers' Strike.

New York, Aug. 26.—Yesterday was one of peace so far as the striking meat wagon drivers was concerned. The strikers gathered in the vicinity of the packing-houses, but were kept moving by the police and created no disturbance.

Both the strikers and the packers held meetings during the day, but there were no definite results announced. The men claim to have the delivery of meat tied up completely, but the packers state they have a large number of men, and that their business will go on to-day practically as usual.

Denver Train Wrecked.

Grand Junction, Col., Aug. 26.—It was reported last night that the second section of a Denver & Rio Grande passenger train, bound from Salt Lake City to Denver, was derailed near Provo, Utah, yesterday afternoon, and that several passengers were killed and injured.

A severe storm prevails and details are lacking.

THE WINTER GRAIN CONDITIONS

Generally Speaking They Went Through the Winter in Good Condition—Some Notable Exceptions

A CROP BULLETIN

Guelph, Aug. 24.—The area used for sowing wheat and other autumn crops was somewhat greater throughout Ontario in the fall of 1906 than in that of 1905. At the Agricultural College this year winter wheat and winter rye have produced large yields of grain, which is above the average in quality, but the winter barley and the hairy vetches have given results somewhat lower than those of 1906.

Generally speaking, white wheats, as compared with red wheats, yield more grain per acre, possess stronger straw, weigh a little less per measured bushel, are slightly softer in the grain, produce a more popular pastry flour, and furnish a somewhat weaker flour for bread production.

Of the white wheats, Dawson's Golden Shaff and other very similar varieties, such as Abundance, American Banner, Beardless Rural New Yorker No. 6, American Wonder, Superlative, Forty-fold, Prize Taker and Extra Early Windsor, and of the red wheats Imperial Amber, Paramount and Crimean Red have produced the highest yields of grain per acre in the college experiments. In the following characteristics the varieties mentioned below are very prominent: stiffness of straw, Dawson's Golden Chaff, Prosperity, Economy and Early Ontario; hardness of grain, Buda Pesth, No. 5 Red, Crimean Red, Banatka, Tasmania Red and Geneva; weight of grain, Northwester, Auburn and Geneva; and milling quality of grain, Tasmania Red, Ruddy, Onigara, Crimean Red, Yaroslaf, Turkey Red, Early Genesee Giant, Banatka, Northwester, Geneva and Imperial Amber.

We are endeavouring to improve some of the best varieties of winter wheat by means of systematic selection and by cross-fertilization. Each of eight different selected strains of Dawson's Golden Chaff wheat gave a yield of over 70 bushels of grain per acre in 1907. Some of the most promising hybrids, which are constant in type this year, are those produced by crossing the Dawson's Golden Chaff with the Bulgarian and with the Turkey Red. The object in crossing is to originate new kinds which will combine the good qualities and eliminate the undesirable features of the parent varieties.

The results of many tests conducted at the college indicate the importance of sowing with a grain drill, large, plump, sound, well matured seed wheat at the rate of about a bushel and a half per acre on well prepared clover sod, and earlier, if possible, than the 10th of September. Smutted wheat should be immersed for twenty minutes in a solution of one pint of formalin and forty-two gallons of water.

The recent tests at the college of other classes of autumn sown crops show the following varieties to be the heaviest average yielders of grain per acre: Mammoth White Winter Rye, 62 bushels; Tennessee Winter Barley, 53.4 bushels; Hairy Vetches, 5.7 bushels and Black Winter Emmer.

In the co-operative experiments, conducted throughout Ontario in 1907, under the direction of the Experimental Union, the average yields of grain per acre were as follows: Winter Wheat—Imperial Amber, 22.2 bushels; Abundance, 21.7 bushels; and Michigan Amber 20.3 bushels and of Winter Rye—Mammoth, 26.4 and Common, 21.4 bushels.

Distribution of Material Experiments

As long as the supply lasts, material will be distributed free of charge in the order in which the applications are received from Ontario farmers wishing to experiment and to report the results of any one of the following tests: 1. Hairy Vetches and Winter Rye as fodder crops; 2. three varieties of Winter Wheat; 3. five fertilizers with Winter Wheat; 4. Autumn and spring applications of nitrate of soda and common salt on winter wheat; and 5. two varieties of winter rye. The size of each plot is to be one rod wide by two rods long. Material for numbers 3 and 4 will be sent by express and that for the others by mail.

Diversion Of Creek Is Finally Settled

Deputation of Those Interested in the Downie Street Tronble Was Present at the Board of Works Meeting.

REPAIRS TO THE STREETS

The diversion of the Downie street creek was the principal matter that came up before the Board of Works at their meeting last night. A deputation, consisting of the property owners interested, was present, and Mr. G. N. Gordon, on behalf of Mr. Blodgett, one of the property holders, made a proposition to the board that was agreed to by that body, and was satisfactory to the other members of the deputation. The portion of the diverted stream through Mr. Blodgett's property, will be cribbed.

There were present Ald. Duncan, chairman; the Mayor, Ald. McIntyre, Johnston and Wilson; Messrs. G. N. Gordon, A .E. Dixon, R. L. Tamblin, T. J. Begley, A. Spenoley, and T. Blodgett.

A letter was read from Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon, on behalf of Mr. Thomas Blodgett, threatening an action against the city for diverting the Downie street creek, which the letter stated, would seriously injure Mr. Blodgett's property. In the event of the work being proceeded with the writer threatened to apply for an injunction against the city.

Chairman Duncan said that a new bridge was being built on the intended course of the stream.

The Mayor stated that the city engineer had thought that in repairing the old bridge on Downie street, it would be better to build the bridge over the new course. It had not been intended to divert the creek until all those interested had signed the agreement.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, who was present on behalf of Mr. Blodgett, said that the only difficulty was that Mr. Blodgett was afraid that the work would not be done in a proper manner, and that the water would thus overflow his land. Mr. Blodgett was willing to deed to the corporation eight feet of his land on the westerly limit provided the city built a drain 6 feet deep and 6 feet wide at the top, properly cribbed, so as to carry off the overflow in the spring.

Mr. Hay said that in digging the new channel they were keeping the same depth as the old ditch, about 4 1-2 feet.

Ald. Wilson remarked that if the Board cribbed the creek on Mr. Blodgett's property they would have to do it all along the creek.

The deputation said that they were willing to help in the work of cribbing if the city would send a competent man to superintend the work.

Ald. Johnston moved that the Downie street creek be diverted, and that cribbing be put through lot 18; that the city provide the material, and a competent man to superintend the work, with the assistance of those interested, provided that all the property owners affected sign the agreement. This was seconded by the Mayor and was carried.

Ald. Wilson moved that the City Engineer be instructed to have men and teams to draw the stones off the streets of the city. This was seconded by Ald. McIntyre. — Carried.

Ald. McIntyre wanted to have a motion passed, authorising the filling in of the holes in the streets with broken stone, but the board thought that there was so much work on hand that this had better be left over. The motion was therefore withdrawn.

It was moved that the engineer be instructed to build a wire fence bounding Mr. Leplante's fence on the east side of Aylmer street as agreed.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Wilson and Ald. McIntyre, the Mayor and City Solicitor Hall will be a deputation to go to Ottawa to represent the city before the Railway Commission, in reference to the extension of George street across the G. T. R. tracks.

Victoria House Proprietor Contradicts The Inspector

Says Sanitary Inspector Ball Made Misstatements to Peterborough Board of Health Regarding Typhoid Fever Cases.

SOURCE OF WATER SUPPLY

Mr. Ernest Carveth, one of the proprietors of the Victroia House, McCracken's Landing, is indignant over the report presented to the Peterborough Board of Health by Sanitary Inspector Ball. In an interview with Mr. Carveth yesterday, he stated to the Examiner that the inspector appeared to have very little regard for the success of the business at the Victroia House, in view of the many misstatements he made to the Health Board. The inspector, he said, spread reports that were untrue, and he further said that Mr. Ball knew very little about the conditions existing around McCracken's Landing, but seemed to be content to form ideas in a moment or two, and to reach conclusions immediately, at variance with those which intelligent men had come to after twenty-five years' intimacy with the situation.

"When Mr. Ball first arrived at the Landing," said the proprietor, "he told me that there could not possibly be anything wrong with the spring water." The spring had been closed that day, but the inspector cleared away some stones and took a deep draught of the water himself, stating that if he were staying at McCracken's Landing he would drink the water from the spring.

Mr. Carveth farther contended that a few hours after the inspector had condemned the spring, making it responsible for all the typhoid fever cases reported. He went up the hill and saw a spring at the top, where cattle watered, and immediately pronounced it the cause. The water, Mr. Ball stated, was contaminated there, and was not properly filtered coming down through the rocks.

In his reprot to the Health Board, Inspector Ball informed them that the spring below the hill came from the one above, and that the contaminated water flowed out into the lake.

"I do not mean to say that the water is above suspicion," said the proprietor, "but if Mr. Ball is so capable as to locate the source of that spring in two hours, why does he not make the contaminated water run up hill instead of into the lake?"

Mr. Carveth does not believe that the two streams are connected in any way. The water from the one rising at the top of the hill has a distinctly different course. It follows a creek down the hill and empties into the lake 75 feet north of the drinking fountain. This season the creek has been dry but Mr. Carveth affirms that the water from the upper spring is almost all drunk by the cattle. What little remains sinks into the earth on the top of the hill.

"But Mr. Ball's most glaring mistake, and one that has a tendency to do me harm, is his statement that all the typhoid fever cases can be traced to the vicinity of McCracken's Landing. I can prove to Mr. Ball beyond a doubt that he knows absolutely nothing of what he is talking about. I can prove to him," went on Mr. Carveth, "that persons have been ill with the fever at Boschink, who have never been at the Landing (except on the steamer) and also that there are cases of it Peterborough, which I am positive, cannot be traced to the spring."

In conclusion, Mr. Carveth considered that the Inspector should not be allowed to state, and more particularly, he should not be allowed to have published, false reports detrimental to any place.

"Mr. Ball took samples of water from the spring and lake," he stated, "and I am told that he never sent them to Toronto for analysis. If this is not true, let him deny it," he concluded.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil

Did you ever see a gooseberry bush which—despite the most beneficient environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere,—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth?

A ton of manure will not help the plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure dandruff and baldness by rubbing on hair lotions and rubbing in vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

FLORICULTURIST WANTS EXPERT INFORMATION

To the Horticultural Editor of the Examiner:

Sir, — Will you kindly inform me and at the same time several of my friends, why flowers, (take, for example, the tiger lily) open their blooms at the top of the plant last instead of first?

I always imagined that the sap was responsible for the opening of the buds, but in some cases, I imagine the strength to open, must come from the roots.

PETUNIA.

This is something a little outside of Horatio's philosophy. But it seems that "Petunia" is on the right way to a rational solution of his own question? Does it not seem probable that the sap rising from the roots exercises its influence upon the first bud points with which it comes in contact, that is, those lowest down upon the stem, and nearest the roots? If this suggestion is not satisfactory some of the Examiner's horticultural experts are at liberty to use the columns to offer a better explanation.

TOLD OF CANADA'S CHARMS.

Advantages This Country Offers Related by Mr. Oliver.

"Western United States is good and and all right, but Western Canada is better and all right," said Frank Oliver, Canada's Minister of the Interior, who has been making a general tour of the American West, and who stopped recently in Omaha to attend a banquet and reception in his honor given by prominent members of the Omaha Commercial Club. In Mr. Oliver's party were his wife and two daughters, and Commissioner of Immigration White. This was Mr. Oliver's first visit to the Central West, and he was greatly pleased with what he saw.

"This Western country is fine, and it speaks mighty well for our Canadian West when we see the country that so many people are leaving in order to settle in our own Canadian West. But, then, comparing the two, I think everything is in favor of Canada.

"Specially is this true of the opportunities afforded a poor man. I see that the American West has become a country of rich people, due to the great prosperity which has come to your country. The good farming lands are now worth from $65 to $90 an acre—and they rent at from $3 to $3.50 an acre. After paying taxes, that nets the owner of the land only about 2 to 3 per cent. on his money. Land near the cities sell for $125 an acre, and rent for $4 to $5 an acre. But the interest return is very low.

"Now, over in Canada, it is very different. The same grade of land that sells down here for $90 an acre can be bought up there at from $15 to $25 an acre. It rents for one-third of the crop and brings from $3.50 to $7 an acre, making a high percentage to the owner. The Canadian land will soon pay for itself; the American land never will. And there are so many business opportunities in Canada. Down here there are old-established businesses and a new-comer must spend years before he can secure a stable footing. In Canada everybody is new, and the very newest man there has an equal show with those who have been there for some time. Practically all are new and everyone has an equal show.

"Because of the late spring in the American West, we expected a great falling off in immigration in the Canadian West, but in this we have been pleasantly disappointed. There has been no let up in the rush to Canada, and from all I can see the prospects for this fall are particularly good. All our Government agents in the United States tell me they are simply swamped with requests for information concerning Canada, and we expect a greater rush to the Canadian West this fall than for any fall since the emigration begun.

"In schools, I can't say that we are ahead of your West, but we are just as good. Our school system is something the same, and we have every advantage found in the American West.

"Perhaps we have not as many laws as the Americans have, but I believe we observe what laws we have just a little better than your people do.

"But, when it comes down to opportunities, both for the poor man, the average well-to-do man, and the wealthy man, I believe Canada is far, far ahead of your American West."

MOTHS STOP C. N. R. TRAIN.

Ran Into Cloud of Mosquitoes In Rainy River Valley.

The Ontario legislators who were up in the Rainy River district recently, met with several unusual experiences. The first incident of the journey occurred on the Canadian Northern line, when the trainmen were obliged to stop owing to the track ahead being covered for several hundred yards with moths causing the wheels to stop. After sweeping the track the engineer opened the sand box and got the train under way again.

At Oxdrift mosquitoes swarmed the private car Temagami and drove Dr. Smellie and W. R. Smyth to the open. Mr. Smyth unfortunately locked the door after him, and as he was the length of a car removed from the other sleepless member, and had nothing on his feet to tread the cinder path, he could not make his discomfiture known till a freight train arrived and a brakeman got him safely housed.

Another night, at Dryden, there was a cloud of black flies. A football match was scheduled between Dryden and Keewatin, and the black pests were so numerous and withal so sticky that it was 8 o'clock before the game could be started. They had to be wiped off the ball as a bee-keeper brushes the swarm from a branch while the game was in progress.

SUMMER COMPLAINT.

Everyone Should be Prepared for it with a Bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Very few people escape an attack of Summer Complaint. It may be slight, or it may be severe, but nearly everyone is liable to it.

You cannot tell, when it seizes on you, how it may end.

Let it go for a day or two only, and see how weak and prostrated it will leave you.

There is only one safe way to cure it and that is by DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY. It has been on the market for sixty-two years and has been proved and tried so you are not experimenting when you buy it.

Do not accept a substitute or imitation, as many of these are positively dangerous to life and health. Insist on having DR. FOWLER'S.

Mrs. Norman H. Eisau, Ship Harbor, N.S., writes: "Last summer my baby was very bad with Summer Complaint. I tried most everything for him, but nothing seemed to help. One day a neighbor called in and told me to try DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY, so I got a bottle and after a few doses my baby was cured. I shall always keep it in the house."

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

When your spirits are low, take the elevator.

A cheerful disposition never gives out, even when taken in on every hand.

Ignorance of the law enthuses a great many people.

If people want you to take their advice, ask them to give you a green trading stamp to go with it.

Why can't money be trained so that it will not always fly in the wrong direction?

Everybody is anxious to make the acquaintance of the willing worker, hoping thereby to work him.

You can't tell a wise man by the way he looks or a fast horse by the way his jockey loses.

The lure of the summer resort is too often antidoted by the scarcity of the needful.

A genuine knocker never grows weary, but beats opportunity to your door every time.

You can judge of a man's stubbornness by the amount of self conceit he displays.

Self Appreciation.

I may not be as good a man
As any one you know.
I am not laying claim to that
Or making any show,
But all the same, my pretty one,
I'd have it understood,
While I'm no better than the rest,
By ginger, I'm as good.

Some men perhaps have greater wealth,
A larger roll of bills,
More lands and houses and a lot
Of cattle on the hills.
And they may put on loads of airs
And think that wealth is wit
But I serve notice on them now
They can't bluff me a bit.

And other mighty men may hold
Positions with the state—
Good offices that look as though
The holders must be great.
And possibly they are the stuff,
But will the tribe please note
That I have just as much to say
When it is time to vote.

I hold that I am just as good
As any one in sight;
My wife will back me up in that;
She says I am all right.
And that, I guess, should make it so,
No odds what some may say,
For it's all, when you size it up,
In thinking, anyway.

Much Simpler Way.

"Isn't it wonderful what they do with the X rays?"

"What can they do with it?"

"See what is inside of a man."

"That's nothing hard."

"I guess it is."

"Then you have another guess. My brother had a pain in his stomach years ago, and the wise old family doctor saw what was in his stomach by looking through the pain.

On Both Sides.

"I do, and I don't,"
Hear the fence rooster's bush.
Admit it he won't,
But his talk is all bosh.

"I don't, and I do."
Now, pray what does it mean?
Are two and two two?
Is it plain to be seen?

"I do, and I don't,"
Says the man on the fence.
Admit it he won't,
But he hasn't got sense.

A Bright Solution.

"Everybody should learn to swim, and yet I hate to allow my children to go into the water," said the timid mother, "because there are so many drownings every year."

"How are they going to learn, then?"

"That is what I don't know."

"Ha! I have it. Let them learn in the bathtub."

Plain.

"Why are drinking men so fond of sorrow?"

"Give it up."

"That's what they never do."

"Explain."

"It is so hard to drown sorrow."

Hit Hard.

"He acts as though he had been crossed in love."

"Yes, he acts as though he had been double crossed in it."

Sure Sign.

"He is making his last year's straw hat do this season."

"I didn't know he was married."

Capital Offence.

There are five capital offences under British law—murder, high treason, piracy, arson in the port of London, and attempts to destroy public animals.

RED ROSE TEA

THE OLD-TIME GRIZZLY.

Great Hordes Formerly Roamed West —Is Now Fast Passing.

It is noticeable that the early western travelers speak of the grizzly as the "white bear." It is so described by Lewis and Clark, and Jas. O. Pattie, narrating his father's expedition in 1824, spoke of the great number and unusual ferocity of these "great white bears." So great were their numbers in that early day, that in a single day's journey Pattie counted two hundred and twenty of them, eight of which had attacked the party and were killed. This was on Sept. 15, 1824, while the party was passing through the territory now occupied by Cheyenne county, Colorado. A few days later, further south, the grizzlies became so numerous that twenty men were required to guard the camp from their onslaughts each night. So much for the "solitary" nature of the grizzly back in the twenties.

Was Once Monarch.

Writing of the period of the early "forties," Gen. Fremont, in his memoirs, speaks of having seen great herds of these monsters feeding gregariously under the oaks of San Bernardino, California. Such testimony tends to show that this great grizzly was not always the lone wanderer that we now know him to be, and tends to show, moreover, that he once liked the valleys better than his present dreary and solitary abode. Indeed, the explorers of the West found him equally at home in the parched fastness of the Great Basin, in the fertile valleys or among the ice-bound peaks, whether feeding upon berries or bison, herbs or human flesh, and everywhere, at all times, "monarch of all he surveyed."

Making Last Stand.

But he is passing. In the places where, seventy-five years ago, two hundred of his powerful tribe could be counted in a day's journey, he is now but a tradition and a memory, and he is a lucky sportsman who gets one shot at a grizzly in a lifetime. Driven to the inaccessible retreats of the mountains, he is making his last stand against a race which has already robbed him of those myriad herds of buffalo, antelope, and elk, which were once his prey, and from his icy summit, where only the American eagle sours, in solitary grandeur he looks down upon a hereditary dominion which is to be his no more forever.

We have known him but a hundred years. Was there ever so mighty a monarch with reign so brief? We cannot compute the exact rate at which he is disappearing (it is far easier to get at the mortuary statistics of his enemies), but, as events go, it is likely that there will still be tigers in India and lions in Africa long after the last echoes of the grizzly's howl has died among the peaks and precipices of his mountain home. But he will die as he lived—die as becomes the American monarch—"the gamest of the game."

FLIES AS DISEASE BEARERS.

The Common House Variety Are a Menace to Health.

The United States Department of Agriculture has started a crusade against the common house fly and is carrying on extensive experiments as to the best way of banishing it from the abodes of man. The fly has been found to be not only a nuisance, but a menace to man's health. Its hairy body carries both disease and death. Many epidemics which sweep over communities in the hot season have been traced to the fly. Having its origin in filth, it brings with it the bacteria which breed in filth. And as it moves about, now crawling over refuse, now over the food on the table, flying from the lips of the sick to the lips of the healthy; it is said to be more dangerous to modern society than were the wild beasts to primitive man.

The high mortality among the children in the congested districts of a city, where families are closely crowded together, where refuse accumulates fast, where food is often kept in living rooms, is due to a large degree, so scientists now say, to the fly. Infant diseases chiefly prevail in the hot season, when the flies abound. Dr. J. T. C. Nash, in The Journal of the Royal Sanitary Institute, giving his experience as an English health officer, says that the fly is responsible for the death of many children because of polluting the milk which they drink.

"It is a matter that has been entirely overlooked," said Dr. C. O. Probst, recently, "but we now know that the common house fly is an agent of importance in carrying the germs of typhoid fever. It was formerly believed that the germs were only carried in water, milk or other liquid food. Flies both breed and feed in places where the germs are to be found, and then, flying into our houses, no doubt often carry the germs and deposit them on our food.

Sun Worshipers.

The Moki Indians are sun worshipers, and their Christmastide festival is a sun dance. It is much like the snake dance of the midsummer season.

Just Like They Brew It In Pilsen

"Pilsener" Lager was originated in Pilsen, Bohemia. We introduced it into Canada.

O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager is brewed by the same formula—of the same choice hops—as the brewmasters in Pilsen use.

But—there's no duty to pay on O'Keefe's "Pilsener." That's why it costs only about half as much as imported lagers—while really being better.

Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, is pronounced by a prominent physician to be the best mixture for the cure of the kidney, bladder, and all urinary troubles.

This says the doctor, is the most simple though remarkable prescription ever written to cleanse the system of impurities and waste matter. It acts as a powerful tonic to the kidneys, forcing them to filter out the acids and poisons, overcoming rheumatism, lame back, sciatica and other afflictions arising from sour, impure blood.

The ingredients can be procured at any good drug store, and being purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can easily be mixed at home.

If you have a suffering friend show this to him, as he will undoubtedly be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended a remedy.

THE LATEST IN FASHION'S REALM; ITEMS OF INTEREST TO THE LADIES

WHAT IS WORN.

Panama Hats Very Smart For Morning Wear—Blouse Traveling Suits.

The scarf trimmed panama hat is in most of its forms a rather youthful type of headgear, but when cleverly bent and trimmed it is peculiarly piquant for morning wear. Long chiffon scarfs knotted behind and falling low on the shoulders are very often substituted for the scarfs of silk and form a becoming background for a pretty face.

Black and white striped muslin will make many smart afternoon frocks. An attractive model has a skirt of seven or nine gores gathered into the belt. At the bottom is a decoration of three ruffles edged with cluny lace tucks or narrow black velvet ribbon.

Blouse suits are to be much worn for traveling this summer; they are so much more sensible than a coat and skirt gown, for when the weather is really warm the jacket has to be carried on the arm.

A pretty use for short ostrich plumes is an arrangement at the back of the hat, which is of course turned up in front. The round crown is encircled by a soft satin ribbon, and far back on the side is a stiff bunch of roses.

Old fashioned stockings of white lisle thread, such as were worn in our grandmothers' days, are to have a great vogue this summer and are prominently displayed in the shops.

A STYLISH LINEN GOWN—5424, 5664.

French tussore is making many stunning tailor made suits. This material is expensive, but is much handsomer than the domestic materials of the same class. It comes in delicious shades of pink, blue, lilac, etc., as well as in the dark colors.

White linen made in shirt waist style and braided with soutache is one of the smartest things for morning wear and has the merit of being both durable and fashionable. Illustrated is a model that is exceedingly simple and smart. JUDIC COLLET.

FASHION STRAWS.

Economy In the Cretonne Parasol. Bridesmaids' Yellow Gowns.

This year one of the unwritten laws of fashion is that a special parasol in colors to match the dress and hat must be designed for each toilet and that the old idea of becoming possessed of a white or red sunshade which is destined to do duty on every occasion is no longer permissible where the well dressed woman is concerned. A compromise has, however, been made to economy in the case of the cretonne parasol, which accords admirably with any of the new gowns of flowered muslin or chiffon. This parasol is lightly veiled with drawn white or ivory net to give a softness and illusion to the scheme.

It is indeed strange that the decorative value of sunshine yellow is so often overlooked by the bride who is planning the color scheme for her wedding. Pale yellow is essentially a cheerful color and really presents more possibilities for artistic effect than the more commonplace and meaningless pink. This fact was illustrated at a recent wedding. The bridesmaids wore sunshine yellow hats of neapolitan straw which shaded from pale yellow at the edges to a vivid corn color at the crowns. They were empire shaped, having the fronts rolled up and caught with yellow ribbons and tulle. From this bow on each hat was a long ostrich plume which shaded from corn color to pale yellow at the tips. The gowns were of yellow striped chiffon, and the effect was good.

RUSSIAN BLOUSE SUIT—5143.

The suit seen in the cut is a Russian blouse affair in very good style for the little boy. It is of khaki cloth, and the belt is of brown leather.

MODISH CONCEITS.

White Panama Hats For Late Summer Wear—Attractive Fabrics.

Pretty hats for the late summer are of white panama trimmed with sashes of white crape, with tasseled ends falling to the left side and a cluster of roses under the dented brim where the ends fall over.

The fancy for long, simple lines of either Greek or Japanese draperies that are attracting us at present is affecting our evening wraps and coats in a marked degree. The long lines of these wraps give height and gracefulness of carriage in a most noticeable way and are a relief after the fussy, overtrimmed wraps we have been accustomed to for some years.

Dyed lace appears upon the smartest French frocks and is much used for the decoration of ninon or chiffon dresses. The very thick and heavy makes of lace are most satisfactory when dyed and should be of rather a bold design. Lace of this kind looks well inlet as a heavy hem in a dress of some thin material and forms excellent bands for the fronts of long, plain skirts. A great deal of lightweight silk and many thin wool materials such as marquisette will be worn on cool days throughout the summer. Some of the new foulards and novelty pongees that are made in openwork effect make charming gowns for visiting, church and all occasions of the sort.

THE LATEST IN NEGLIGEE—5639, 5425.

Negligees are essential to summer comfort. Here is one that is simplicity itself and is worn over a pretty petticoat. Both are made of batiste with embroidery, but every material of the sort is appropriate.

Lady Baltimore Cake.

One cupful of butter, two of sugar, three and a half cupfuls of flour, one of sweet milk, the whites of six eggs, two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of rosewater.

Butter and sugar gradually, beating continuously, adding the sugar as you go on, then the milk and the flavoring, next the flour, with which the baking powder has been sifted. Lastly, fold in lightly the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs with long, horizontal strokes of the beater; loaf and bake in three layer cake tins. The oven should be hotter than for layer cake.

Filling.—Dissolve three cupfuls of granulated sugar in one of boiling water. Boil until the sirup "threads" and pour over the stiffened whites of three eggs, stirring constantly.

To this icing add a cupful of chopped raisins and the same of chopped nut meats—pecans are best—and five figs shred into thin strips. Ice the tops and sides of the cake with this after filling it between the layers.

Homemade Floor Polish.

A good floor polish of home manufacture can be made as follows: Cut up half a pound of beeswax finely, place in a pot and cover with turpentine. Let this stand on the stove until dissolved. Apply to the floor with a piece of flannel and thoroughly rub it in with a stiff brush.

SNAPSHOTS OF FASHION.

The Parisian Fancy For Violet—Charming Costumes of Filet Lace.

Parisiennes have for some reason taken a sudden and violent fancy for violet, the color of penance and ecclesiastical mourning, but it is applied so daintily and jauntily to hats that the fancy is justified by the effect. Many of the bell hats which are the fashion in the Rue de la Paix just now are made of violet straw and covered with a bunch of Paul Neron roses. They are most becoming and give the face an air of distinction. Very distinguished, too, for the races are the bell shaped violet straw hats. Other hats even more striking in some ways are those of white straw—a bold whiteness—garlanded with lilies of the same color.

There is something decidedly charming about a gown of white filet lace made over a white silk foundation. The lining makes the figures stand out in bold relief, and the rich cream color lends itself more favorably to the combination than almost any other tone. The filet lace dress may be made as costly as desired.

FOR WARM DAYS—5692.

The most popular evening gown of the moment is the one painted in Louis XVI. style. There is a new method of painting on fabrics which does not suffer in the cleaning.

The frock with low neck and short sleeves is the ideal one for summer days for the small girl. Here is a fascinating little model that can be made from embroidered flouncing combined with plain lawn. A smart effect is carried out in pale blue lawn.

DOUGH RAISER.

Easy Method of Hastening the Bread to Rise.

A heater especially intended to raise bread by means of the heat of a lamp has been recently patented by a Wisconsin man. As shown in the illustration, the casing is of sheet iron, the lower portion having openings for the admission of air. The casing is bottomless. A partition having an opening in the center divides the upper and lower sections, a lamp being placed below this opening when the heater is in use. Supported above the opening is a deflecting cone, the point of the cone being directly over the lamp. Near the top of the upper flared section are a number of holes. The sides of the bread pan are flared, the edges of the pan neatly resting and fitting on the edge of the casing. The supposition is that the hot air from the lamp rises and is deflected by the cone, so that it reaches the sides of the bread pan and escapes through the holes at the top, preventing excess heat around the pan. The time saved by the use of this heater will be instantly recognized.

FOR SUMMER COTTAGES.

Fascinating Rattan and Willow Furniture In Artistic Guise.

There is a fascination, an attractiveness, about the new rattan and willow furniture that is irresistible. Never have furnishings for cottages, bungalows and porches been presented in such an artistic guise without in the least detracting from the simplicity that is their chief charm. And it is not merely a question of old friends in new dress. In many instances it means entirely new designs or combinations of materials and colorings.

BRASS HATSTAND.

A willow chiffonier is one of the distinctive novelties, and its compactness and fine lines impart a note of attractiveness not characteristic of willow furniture; also in the willow group is a new table with leather top, the color scheme of this piece being exceptionally good. Maple and cane in combination have been so skillfully blended that they resemble bamboo, and in settees and armchairs they will contribute this summer to the decorative furnishing of many a porch and home, judging by the attention they have called forth.

For summer cottage use, though not in the willow, reed or bamboo class, is the hatstand here shown. It is of brass, arranged in tiers and intended for the main hall as a substitute for the old fashioned hatrack. Another artistic addition to cottage furnishings is a lamp on the order of the handsome one on view in the accompanying sketch. It is of copper in antique finish, with paper shade decorated in typical Japanese fashion.

COPPER LAMP SHADE.

Dodged the Mustard Pot.

During the rehearsals of a pantomime in a Scottish town (Glasgow, I think; Glasgow has always been an eventful place to me!) a child was wanted for the Spirit of the Mustard Pot. What more natural than that my father should offer my services? I had a shock of pale yellow hair, I was small enough to be put into the property mustard pot, and the Glasgow stage manager would easily assume that I had inherited talent. My father had acted with Macready in the stock seasons both at Edinburgh and Glasgow and bore a very high reputation with Scottish audiences. But the stage manager and father alike reckoned without their actress! When they tried to put me into the mustard pot I yelled lustily and showed more lung power than aptitude for the stage.

"Put your child into the mustard pot, Mr. Terry," said the stage manager.

"Hang you and your mustard pot, sir," said my mortified father. "I won't frighten my child for you or any one else."

But, all the same, he was bitterly disappointed at my first dramatic failure, and when we reached home he put me in the corner to chasten me. "You'll never make an actress!" he said, shaking a reproachful finger at me.—Ellen Terry in McClure's Magazine.

DELIGHTFUL MRS. BRYCE.

Just How She Comes to Be "Part American."

It is quite essential for a diplomat who would be successful to have a wife. More than that, it is highly important that she should be a woman of tact.

The present ambassador, the Right Hon. James Bryce, is already very popular in the United States on account of what he has written about their institutions and because of what Americans know of his character as a statesman and scholar.

Mrs. Bryce, who has most important duties in the capacity of hostess at the British embassy, is a woman of gracious manner and lovable character. She was Miss Elizabeth Marion Ashton, daughter of the late Thomas Ashton of Manchester, England, and of Elizabeth Gair, daughter of the late Samuel Stillman Gair of Boston. On her mother's side she is descended from John Greene of Salem, who went thence with Roger Williams to found the colony of Rhode Island.

Mrs. Bryce is some years the junior of her distinguished husband, and is a woman of fine appearance and graceful bearing. She has been a leader among Englishwomen of Liberal politics and has been president of the Woman's National Liberal association.

Directions For Making Rag Rugs.

Women with the artistic eye have lately been using in their homes rugs and floor mats woven of rags such as old fashioned carpets used to be made of.

A weaver of rag carpets and rugs gives the following information for those who wish to change their rags into handsome rugs: First, sort all the garments, odd pieces, etc., laying them in heaps according to their color, white in one, anything in blue predominating in second, black in a third, all remaining scraps, no matter what color, in another pile.

The next step is to tear them into strips a little over half an inch wide. It will take one and a half pounds of these strips to make one yard of rag carpet, and after tearing these should be sewn together. Start the ends and join with an overlapping arrangement, just as you sew crinoline, to avoid a seam mark. Stockings should be cut round and round, beginning at the top of the leg, and unless a black border is desired should be sewn alternately with a color. Old outing flannel, cotton blankets and, in fact, woollen ones, too, make up into substantial, comfortable mats for the bathroom, while those made up of blue and white rags are dainty for bedrooms.

There are a number of good dyes on the market, with instructions so clearly stated that the veriest amateur may expect success in the coloring, and if different tints are desired, then the rags must be dyed before going to the weaver. The rugmaker will, however, supply a little coloring, if asked for, at a slight advance of his regular charge of 25 cents the square yard. Buying a yard or two of anything very bright or particularly pleasing will be an economy, as it need not be expensive and it will add so much to the beauty of the floor covering.

The pile of odd colors may be dyed in one shade—that is, they may be put into the one dye pot, but, owing to the diversity of colors and fabrics, will not all come out the same shade. However, a most artistic rug will be the result when woven, and perhaps greens and browns are the best colors to be chosen. In the hall or living room such a rug will be most practical as well as restful looking.

PILES

"I thought I must go on suffering from piles until I died; but Zam-Buk cured me," says Mrs. E. Reed, of Steenburg (Ont.), and adds:—"I was so weakened that I could hardly move about, and a little work caused me great agony. Then I heard of this grand balm, and I am thankful to say that it has cured me."

Zam-Buk also cures rash, burns, bruises, eczema, ulcers, chafed places, sore feet, rough red skin, pimples, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores at 50c. a box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 3 boxes for $1.25.

self than to make the dozens of sachet bags needed for the purpose. To do this measure a piece of cheesecloth to reach from one end to the other, full length of the closet wall; double and put in two sheets of wadding, well dusted with orris root, tacking as closely as is needed to keep in place. Sew rings to the side, that the whole sheet may be hung up. If necessary, sew two lengths together to make it skirt length. Then, the hangers may also have perfumed wadding on them, and nothing more will be needed to enjoy the delicate, evanescent yet lasting odor of violets on all gowns and wraps kept in such a closet.

If boxes are to hold party gowns, they may be piled in this closet, but each should have its own lining of perfumed wadding, covered with either five cent cheesecloth or more expensive thin silk. It is a good plan to make the linings long enough to fold over, as this allows the perfume to permeate the more.

A perfumer will charge half a dollar for an ounce of sachet powder with a beautiful label and attractive shape, but one can make a pound of the same or better for perhaps three times that amount by purchasing the ingredients separately and blending them at home.

Buy two ounces of gum benzoin, a quarter of an ounce of dried orange flowers, three-quarters of an ounce powdered rose leaves, four of powdered orris root and blend them well. Then get five grains oil of lemon grass, the same of musk and of oil of bitter almonds; mix these together and work into the blended powders. The dried rose petals and orange flowers should be added last.

A more expensive powder calls for an ounce each of powdered rose petals, powdered black currant leaves and powdered orris root, one of powdered musk pods, half an ounce gum benzoin and ten drops of oil of bitter almonds. Mix well and keep in glass jars with metal covers. These should ge kept air tight for a few weeks as they need to "ripen" before using.

The Origin of Crochet.

Few people are aware how the art of crochet originated, and, like most arts, it owes its invention to nature.

In the early part of the nineteenth century Mlle. Riego, a French lady, was walking one day in the harvest fields. Her attention was struck by seeing the harvesters making a chain from the long straws which they knotted together on the points of their reaping hooks, and when finished they tied the sheaves together with this novel binding. Mlle. Riego was ingenious enough to evolve the art of crochet from this idea. She procured a small hook and tried what she could do with a chain of cotton, and gradually—thanks to her artistic skill and unwearying patience—crochet became a reality.

Mlle. Riego was very friendly with the nuns at the Black Rock convent, Dublin, and taught them how to crochet the many beautiful designs she created, in which patterns of the finest antique laces were reproduced, and these patterns are still used at the convent, where the nuns have established workrooms where the crochet industry gives employment to many Irish girls.

An Emergency Bag.

A very convenient addition to the medicine closet is an emergency bag. It should be made of two strips of heavy linen or denim, about six or seven inches deep, the back piece to be made about eighteen inches long and the front twenty-seven inches. The two strips should be bound together at the ends and across the bottom, then stitched, to form several pockets. A flap should be buttoned over the top and each pocket labeled with indelible ink.

One pocket should contain rolls of bandages, another bits of old soft linen, another lint from wornout napkins. Other pockets should be made to hold bottles of arnica, witch hazel, carbolic, Jamaica ginger, absorbent cotton, a box of healing salve, a piece of castile soap and half a dozen fingers cut from old large kid gloves.

For the Sickroom.

One of the most convenient articles to be used in a sickroom is a sand bag. Get some clean, fine sand, dry it thoroughly in a kettle on the stove. Make a bag about eight inches square of flannel, fill it with dry sand, sew the opening carefully together and cover the bag with cotton or linen. This will prevent the sand from sifting out and will also enable you to heat the bag quickly by placing it in the oven or even on the top of the stove, says Woman's Life.

After once using this you will never attempt to warm the feet or hands of a sick person with a bottle of hot water or a brick.

Antony and Cleopatra.

Cleopatra was riding in her barge. "It is a beautiful view from here," she remarked in Egyptian words to that effect.

"Yes," responded Antony. "I took care to get you a Nile seat."

Whereat the rowers did laugh lustily.

Your friends' advice to you in a pinch is generally about as desirable and as effective as a misplaced switch.

THE MAGNETIC CARD.

An Interesting Experiment With Cardboard and Stick.

If we should tell you that a postal card may be turned into a magnet, you would be surprised no doubt, and yet it is true. Let us tell you how to do it.

The experiment that we are going to describe should not be made in damp weather. Balance a walking stick on the back of a chair and tell the spectators that you are going to make it fall without touching it or the chair.

Having thoroughly dried a postal card, preferably before an open fire, rub it briskly on your sleeve and then hold it near one end of the stick. The stick will at once be attracted to the card and will follow it as if it were a magnet. As it moves it will soon lose its equilibrium and fall from the chair.

Almost any kind of wooden rod will do instead of the walking stick, and almost any kind of card. Of course you understand the principle of the experiment. By rubbing the card you waken electricity in it, and it thus becomes a sort of magnet, with the power to attract light bodies.

Observed In Animals.

A zoologist thus writes upon a point in which he claims that the lower animals set an example to many men, says Chums:

"It has taken human beings many hundreds of years to acquire habits of neatness and cleanliness, whereas the animals have always possessed them. From the time when they first made their appearance on earth animals have washed and combed and brushed themselves with tongue, claws and tail. Many of them grow wretched and languish if deprived of any opportunity of taking a cold bath. As for the apes, they are such sticklers for cleanliness that they expel any member of the tribe who shows a disposition to shirk his duties in this respect. Even the insects show a scrupulous regard for neatness, as anybody who has watched a fly brushing itself with its feet, for instance, will readily admit."

The Lobster's Shell.

Perhaps most boys and girls have heard of the young housekeeper that refused to buy some lobsters in the market because they were not red. When the dealer told her that they were just out of the water, she said that might be true, but it was the red kind she wanted. It should not be necessary to point out the joke to the boys and girls, for they know, of course, that the red color of the lobster is produced by boiling, but do they know why it turns red? If they will notice the shell of a fresh lobster closely, they will see that it shows the mingling of two pigments, red and blue. Now, when the lobster is plunged into hot water the blue pigment fades out and the red remains. That is the whole story.

Bees Faster Than Pigeons.

It is not generally known that bees are swifter in flight than pigeons—that is, for short distances. Some years ago a pigeon fancier of Hamme, Westphalia, laid a wager that a dozen bees liberated three miles from their hives would reach home in less time than a dozen pigeons. The competitors were given wing at Rybern, a village nearly a league from Hamme, and the first bee reached the hive a quarter of a minute in advance of the first pigeon. Three other bees reached the goal before the second pigeon. The bees were also slightly handicapped, having been rolled in flour before starting for purpose of identification.

Fooling a Wolf.

A boy twelve years old, the son of a pioneer in Montana, observed a wolf sneaking about one day last winter. He took a sheepskin and spread it over a low bush in such a way that it resembled a live animal, and after a time the wolf made a dash for it. He detected the fraud at once, and instead of galloping away at once with the pelt, which would have made a good dinner for him, he dropped it and sneaked off with his tail between his legs. He realized that he had been made the victim of a joke, and he felt the same as a boy who had been April fooled.

Nuts to Crack.

Which is the leading city in America? Boss-town (Boston).

Which has it the hardest—coffee or tea? Tea, for, while coffee can settle down, tea is compelled to draw.

Why are pianos the noblest of manufactured articles? Because they are grand, upright and square.

Hats In Olden Days.

The felt hat is as old as Homer. The Greeks made them in skullcaps, conical, truncated, narrow or broad brimmed. The Phrygian bonnet was an elevated cap without a brim, the apex turned over in front. It is known as the cap of liberty. An ancient figure of Liberty in the times of Antonius Livius, A. D. 115, holds the cap in the right hand. The Persians wore soft caps. Plumed hats were the headdress of the Syrian corps of Xerxes. The broad brim was worn by Macedonian kings. Castor made of beaver. The Armenian captive wore a plug hat. The merchants of the fourteenth century wore a Flanders beaver. Charles VII. in 1469 wore a felt hat lined with red and plumed. The English men and women in 1510 wore close woolen or knitted caps. Two centuries ago hats were worn in the house. Pepys in his diary wrote, "September, 1604, got a severe cold because he took off his hat at dinner," and again in January, 1665, he got mother cold by sitting too long with his head bare to allow his wife's maid to comb his hair and wash his ears, and Lord Clarendon in his essay, speaking of the decay of respect due the aged, says that in his younger days he never kept his hat on before those older than himself except at dinner.

Summer Needlework.

For those who do not "bridge," a piece of embroidery will help to while away odd moments on the club or hotel piazza during the summer days. Let this be a flounce for a fine cambric petticoat. Scallop the edge and work about it some pretty sprig or flower or a conventional wreath or bowknot. The work grows rapidly, and the result is sure to be satisfactory. If not a beautiful specimen of hand work there is the knowledge that it will not be too closely viewed. An effective pattern should be chosen.—Vogue.

Simple Insecticide.

Hot alum water is the best insect destroyer known. Put the alum into hot water, let it boil until it is all dissolved and apply with a brush to all cracks in beds or other places where any insects are found. Ants, bedbugs, cockroaches, etc., are killed by it, while it has no danger of poisoning the family or injuring any property.

Indian Bug Eaters.

A reporter went over into the Indian Territory and ate locusts with the full bloods. He says: "The insects are caught at night just before they are strong enough to fly away. The Indians select a smooth spot of ground where they have ascertained that the grubs are plentiful and clean it off nicely. When it is dark they go to the place thus prepared with torches and beat the ground with a maul or jump up and down on it, with the result that the young locusts swarm out and are swept into bags and baskets, where they are salted, put in an oven and browned. Impelled by curiosity, the writer took a helping of the suspicious looking bugs and bit gingerly a plump one in the middle and then ate the whole bug and helped himself to more, for he found that the locust was not a bad tasting bug at all. It has a flavor somewhat like that of a dried herring or salted peanuts, and the crisp, brown bugs make very good eating."—Joplin (Mo.) News-Herald.

Character In the Eyes.

Character reading from the features is an interesting study in which most people indulge, though perhaps unconsciously. A man is heard frequently to remark that he never judges a person by external appearances, but let a person apply to this same man for a position and the first thing he will do will be to make a mental estimate of the character, ability and general condition of the applicant. And he does this from outward appearances entirely. When a man applies for a job, look at his eyes. More signs of character are expressed through the eyes than any other feature. The eye is the window to the brain, and through it an expert character reader can often see many a tale that would be lost to the average person. A guilty eye has sent more than one criminal to meet his fate, and a steady, unflinching one has helped many a man through a serious difficulty.—Frequenter.

Put the Blood In Condition

BY THE RESTORATIVE BLOOD-FORMING PROPERTIES OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

It is weakness that causes most of our sufferings — weakness of the heart, weakness of the stomach, weakness of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

The result is feeling of langour and depression, and impaired action of the vital organs, headaches, indigestion, spells of dizziness and weakness, sleeplessness, irritability, and a general rundown condition of the system.

Put the blood in good condition by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you have a foundation for health to build on. Weakness and disease will give way to new strength and vigor, and angour and discouragement will yield to ne hope and happiness.

Mr. Fergus Conn, Lily Oak, Ont., writes:—"As a result of the severe winter and an attack of la grippe, I was all run down this spring. I soon improved very much by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. My appetite is better than it has been for years, and though sixty years of age I am able to do a man's work on the farm following a team. I believe that I owe my good health to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Mrs. Geo. Battie, Carr's Brook, Colchester Co., N.S., writes: — "Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends.

"We always keep Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house to be used for constipation, pains in the back and stomach troubles."

By means of good blood only can Nature make weak people strong, and Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the most powerful blood-forming elements known to medical science. Every dose is bound to be of some benefit to you; 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PETERBOROUGH, July, 6th, 1907.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Insurance Agent.

Dear Sir:—Kindly convey my thanks to the Perth Mutual Fire Insurance Company for the prompt and satisfactory settlement of the loss of my barn and contents by fire, on June 19th, (insured under policy 184814 - 15) not only was the full amount of the insurance on the barn paid but every cent claimed by me on contents was allowed.

I have great pleasure indeed in recommending this company to my fellow farmers or anyone else requiring insurance.

Yours truly,

JOHN STOTHART.

TO RESTRICT EMIGRATION.

Steamers Must Receive Official Permission Before Leaving the Orient.

Tokio, Aug. 27.—The Claussen protection law, making ships carrying immigrants subject to official permission, which hitherto has been limited to vessels destined for Hawaii or South America, will be made to operate in regard to similar ships destined for Canada on and after Sept. 1. This will have no effect in reducing the volume of immigrants, who already are under certain restrictions, but is aimed principally toward assuring the safety of the interests of officially recognized immigrants.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 27.—The situation with reference to the arrivals of Asiatics reached an acute stage Sunday night, when men cried at the meeting of the Oriental Exclusion League: "Let us go to the next boat which brings in Orientals with guns in our hands and prevent them landing."

This cry was taken up vigorously, though no official action was taken.

Further, it was urged that a strict boycott should be established against all lumber sawed by orientals, all mines worked, and all fish handled. All the canneries are worked by these people.

The situation daily is growing more critical in all British Columbia.

WIARTON SHOOTING CASE.

Woman Admitted to Bail—Raiders Will Testify At Trial.

Walkerton, Aug. 27.—County Crown Attorney Dixon has received a communication from the Attorney-General in reference to the Wiarton shooting affair.

Although the nature of the instructions has not been made public, it is stated on good authority that the department at Toronto have taken no action whatever in the matter, beyond suggesting a course for the magistrate to pursue when Mrs. Thomas, the accused woman, comes up for trial.

It is said on authority that the magistrate's instructions will be to allow the Thomas woman out on bonds until the sitting of the next court, when the bill will be presented to the grand jury for their consideration.

The feeling against the Thomas woman grows stronger daily, and it is doubtful if the case will be allowed to go by default. There are some of the midnight marauders willing to come forward and tell what they know now, according to stories that come here from the north.

The feeling through the county in general is in sympathy with the woman.

"KING EDWARD" WRECKED.

Steamer Goes On Rocks At Thessalon —Passengers Rescued.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 27.—While endeavoring to make the dock at Thessalon, in a high wind, on Sunday, the steamer King Edward, of the Algoma Central Line, was forced on the rocks a quarter of a mile out and was badly damaged, a large hole being stove in the boat, into which the water poured.

The hundred or so passengers on board were taken off in tugs and taken to land, where they were given hotel accommodation at the expense of the company, and were brought to the Soo at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, and most of them sheltered at the International Hotel.

The King Edward was pumped out and taken to the dock at Thessalon, where she was inspected by a diver, who made temporary repairs.

It will be necessary to send the boat to the drydock at Detroit for repairs. She will make the trip under her own steam, in the company of a tug.

The passengers were brought to the Soo by the steamer Fortune, another of the company's boats.

MARRIAGE BILL PASSED.

House of Lords Legalize Union With Deceased Wife's Sister.

London, Aug. 27.—Marriage with a deceased wife's sister has finally become legalized in Great Britain, the House of Lords last evening having by 98 to 54 votes, passed the bill making such marriages legal.

Goderich Branch Opened.

Goderich, Aug. 27.—The opening of the railway service on the Guelph and Goderich branch of the C. P. R. took place yesterday morning.

The whole town was en fete and the station platform and river banks crowded with citizens as the first train glided around the high banks of the Maitland, Goderich's "scenic route."

The conductor in charge of the train was Peter McDonald, and the engineer Hugh Davidson. A large number of passengers left for Toronto and Montreal on the first train.

Rain Saves Village.

Kingston, Aug. 27.—A much-longed-for rain fell on Saturday and stayed the bush fires ranging about Parham, and gave the residents a breathing space after 48 hours of constant watchfulness and fighting of the flames.

The fires kept creeping towards the village, and barns and buildings were constantly in danger, but heroic work kept the fire back.

Like Fife In Wheat.

London, Aug. 27.—(C. A. P.)—It is stated that millers who have been endeavoring to raise the milling quality of English wheat to the Canadian standard are approaching the achievement of their object. Fife wheat has been found most suitable for this purpose. It promises to become the leading wheat in the United Kingdom. Millers pay two-thirds a quarter more for Fife than for other varieties.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—London cables are steady at 11¾c to 12½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Aug. 26.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 98 car loads, consisting of 2103 cattle, 2 hogs, 292 sheep and lambs, 57 calves and 5 horses.

Exporters.

Space on ocean boats not being scarce, caused a little more activity, but prices were no better. Exporters, in the true sense of the word, sold from $5 to $5.35 per cwt., the bulk of the best class selling at $5 to $5.25 per cwt.; common unfinished lightweight exporters sold from $4.65 to $5 per cwt. Bulls sold at $3.75 to $4.40 per cwt.

Butchers.

Outside of two or three loads that were bought for export, there were few good well finished butchers' cattle on the market, and more of the finished class would have sold readily. Picked lots of prime cattle sold at $4.75 to $5.10 per cwt., but they were scarce; medium mixed loads $4.25 to $4.50 per cwt.; common $3.25 to $3.85; cows $2 to $4 per cwt. One load of the best heifers seen on the market for some time, 1160 lbs. each, that cost $5.25 in the country, were not sold, as nobody seemed disposed to pay the price paid to the farmer.

Feeders and Stockers.

One load of 900 lbs. feeders sold at $3.25 per cwt., which were reported to be good quality steers.

Milkers and Springers.

There were 3 choice milkers sold at $55 each, and another lot of 10 milkers and springers, at $30 to $50 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices of veal calves ranged from $4 to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export sheep sold at $4.50 to $4.75 per cwt. for ewes; bucks at $3.50 to $4; lambs at $5 to $6.15 per cwt.

Hogs.

H. P. Kennedy reports selects at $6.50 with lights and fats at $6.25 per cwt.

FATHER STEALS HIS CHILD.

Girl Taken From Mother's Custody At Brockville.

Brockville, Aug. 27.—There was considerable excitement when it became known yesterday that Florence Stewart, a bright little girl of ten years, was missing from the home of her grandmother, Mrs. McMullen, widow of the late John Mercier McMullen, the well-known Canadian writer.

Suspicion pointed to kidnapping by the child's father and last night Stewart telegraphed from Ogdensburg, New York, that he had the child.

Mrs. Stewart, with two daughters, one of them Florence, has been spending the summer here, but when at home lives in New York City. She is separated from her husband, who resides in California.

The child went for the morning mail yesterday as usual. She also had another errand to perform and Mrs. Stewart was not anxious concerning her until two hours or more had elapsed. A cabman told of driving a man and a crying child from opposite the Brockville club-house, adjoining the postoffice, about the time the girl was due at the latter place. He took them to the C. P. R. dock, where another man was found, who saw them taking a boat for Ogdensburg. The child was crying and resisting and the man was tugging her along by the hand. Stewart has relatives living in Rochester, and thinking Stewart had gone there the police were instructed by Mrs. Stewart to communicate with the authorities to locate him pending her arrival, she having taken the night train for that city.

There is some question whether the woman can regain possession, Stewart having a claim on this and the other child for ten months in the year, the mother being privileged to keep them for the remaining two.

WELLMAN IS DELAYED.

Not Yet Ready to Start Balloon Trip to Pole.

London, Aug. 27.—The Hammerfest correspondent of The Daily Mail says that Walter Wellman did not start from his camp at Spitzbergen for the North Pole in his airship on Aug. 23 as he hoped to do. The last two tourist steamers of the year arrived at the camp at Virgo Bay on Aug. 20. They saw the balloon high in the air, confined by anchor ropes.

Mr. Wellman said he was not able to start as the breeze was wrong. He could not start in a southeast wind. The tourists banqueted Mr. Wellman and his companions. Mr. Wellman said to them:

"If I am lucky you will hear from me and the North Pole in a week. If I am less lucky in a fortnight. If you do not hear from me in three weeks you will never hear from me."

The steamers left twenty-four hours later. It was then remarked that the balloon seemed gradually being deflated. They passed Virgo Bay for the last time on Aug. 23, and no start had then been made, although the weather was calm and bright. The passengers doubt if Mr. Wellman will or can start this year.

MURDERER LYNCHED.

Twenty Men Take Morris Higgins From Sheriff.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 27.—Morris Higgins, who murdered W. L. Coppland and wife, near Rosalie, Neb., May 12, was lynched at Bancroft yesterday. Twenty men took Higgins from the sheriff, hauled him off in a dray and hung him to a tree.

When the sheriff left for Omaha Sunday he was accosted by citizens at Bancroft, who asked him what he would do if they should attempt to lynch Higgins.

"Shoot the first man who tries it," he said.

"Well, we just wanted to know—chances are you will have some shooting to do."

Dominion Shooting Matches.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—The Dominion Rifle Association matches began yesterday in the very best shooting weather. There was a variety of light and wind and the result was that many went to pieces. There were others who showed up well. This was where the British team shone, as of 16 men in the MacDougall match there were 14 in the prize list. The Sir Charles Ross match was won by N. Brownlee of the G. G. F. G. Rifle Association, who divided with Sgt. Marden (90th), with scores of 30, winning $19 each, and Col. Sgt. Freeborn (13th) got $15, with a score of 30. Pte. Keating with 24 won $5 and Pte. Whitehorn (10th R. G.) won $4.

Our Trade With Japan.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—Reporting to the Trade and Commerce Department from Yokohama July 30, M. A. MacLean, commercial agent for Japan, gives the total imports of Canadian flour into that country during the six months as valued at $62,212, an increase of about $20,000 over the imports for the corresponding period of 1906.

Exports of Japanese goods to the Dominion during the six months of 1907 amounted in value to $489,189, as against $495,541 worth imported in the six months of 1906, showing a decrease of $26,354.

Gaynor Leaves Prison.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 27.—The United States circuit court of appeals had ordered Col. John F. Gaynor, under sentence for the Savannah Harbor frauds, and in jail here, pending appeal to be allowed to visit Indian Springs, for the benefit of his health, which is failing under confinement.

Col. Gaynor will be accompanied to the Springs by two deputy sheriffs, and will bear the expenses of the trip.

The change is necessary, Col. Gaynor's physicians say, to preserve his life.

PANDORA RANGE

A convenience much appreciated by every owner of a Pandora is the towel rod attached to the range.

As one-third of the rod is made of emery, it makes a splendid knife sharpener, too.

It's always there handy for you. You need waste no time hunting around for the easily misplaced "steel." Bright idea, eh?

An accurate thermometer is a reliable guide to successful baking, while an inaccurate one is a "cheat" of the worst kind.

Every Pandora thermometer is carefully adjusted and undergoes a practical test by heat—is proven correct before being sent out.

The figures, which show the required degree of heat necessary for the successful baking of bread, cakes, pies, etc., are plainly inscribed in black on a white enamel surface, so that they are easily readable, even when the day is dull.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora, write direct for free booklet.

IRISHMEN HAVE MADE PROTEST

Resent Mutilation of Evicted Tenants' Bill by the Lords.

LEAVE THE HOUSE IN A BODY

Decline to Have Anything More to Do With the Measure—Mr. Redmond Accuses Government of Broken Faith—Threatens Menacing Agitation—Scores Lord Clanricarde.

London, Aug. 27.—The Chief Secretary for Ireland, Mr. Birrell, announced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that the Government was prepared to accept some, but not all the amendments of the House of Lords to the Irish evicted tenants' bill, whereupon John Redmond, chairman of the Irish Parliamentary Party, said he declined to take any further part in the discussion of the measure.

Mr. Redmond accused the Government of failure to carry out its promises to the Irish people, and said the bill, as it now stood, provided for the compulsory removal of tenants who had taken farms from evicted persons, and, therefore, was a victory for Lord Clanricarde, whose evicted tenants had for twenty years been waiting at the roadside for an opportunity to return to their homes, but who would not be able to do so under the bill as amended by the House of Lords.

It was evident, continued Mr. Redmond, that the Irish must close their ranks and recommence a strong, menacing agitation as the only means of securing proper land legislation.

The Irish Nationalists then left the House in a body, and another committee of the House of Commons was appointed to confer with the House of Lords to see what could be saved of the mutilated measure.

JAPS STEAL A MARCH.

Purchase $5,000,000 Worth of Torpedoes While Uncle Sam Thinks.

New York, Aug. 27.—While the United States has been secretly negotiating with the Whitehead Torpedo Co. of England for the purchase of fifty of the newest and most approved English torpedoes, Japan has stepped in and bought 1,000 of the weapons at an expense of $5,000,000.

The torpedoes were purchased by the Japanese at $5,000 each immediately after the first negotiations of the United States Government.

It is believed the enormous purchase by the Japanese practically takes the Whitehead torpedoes from the market, and that in case the U. S. Government wishes to lay in an additional supply, it will have to wait sometime for the torpedoes to be delivered. The new Whiteheads are declared the most improved torpedoes now manufactured for naval warfare. They are guaranteed to go four thousand yards, while the best torpedoes in the United States navy can only cover 3,500 yards.

SLAUGHTER OF VILLAGERS

Invading Troops Run Riot—Kill Prisoners—Women Carried Off—Children Murdered—Wanton Destruction of Property—Infidels Defile a Church—Much Grain Stolen—Persians May Appeal.

Teheran, Aug. 27.—General Samsam Dowlh and other Persian officers, according to reports received here, have been killed by the invading Turks, after having been taken prisoners.

Many inoffensive villagers, including women and children, have been slaughtered, a number of women have been carried off, a church has been defiled and much grain and other property has been taken or destroyed.

Turkish regular troops, with artillery, were within four miles of Urumiah, Aug. 15. There are no signs of the withdrawal of Turks from Persian territory.

Another report says that the Turks have occupied Merivan, in Persian Kurdistan, Isle of Suleimania. In a telegram asking for help the clergy and inhabitants of Merivan add that if the Persian Government is powerless the people must beg Russia for assistance.

HARVESTING DELAYED.

Heavy Rain In the West—Crops Will Be Late.

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—A drenching rain fell throughout western Canada all day yesterday, delaying harvest operations materially. However, wheat is reported to be filling splendidly, and if the frost is avoided some excellent samples will be reaped. Reports sent in by The Free Press special staff of inspectors indicate that the best crops are very late and backward. The weather is causing great anxiety. Cutting in some sections will not be possible before September 20 or 24, but in other localities it will be general two weeks earlier. Around Gladstone the crop is magnificent, and the yield will run all the way from twenty to forty bushels per acre. These heavy yields in the northern parts will go a long way to offset the light crop south. Frost has already done considerable damage.

Hanged Himself In Barn.

Caledonia, Aug. 27.—Walter Whitelaw, son of James Whitelaw, Seneca Township, employed by John Barrington, farmer, committed suicide by hanging in his employer's barn. The act was committed just before the non-hour, and, it is supposed, while in a state of temporary insanity. Deceased was about 30 years of age and unmarried.

SULTAN HAS DECIDED TO FIGHT

Is on the Way to Meet the French Troops.

FRANCE GETS A FREE HAND

Germany Appreciates the Position and Will Not Embarrass Her—New Sultan Not Recognized—Regarded As Pretender Only—Spaniards At Tangier Seek More Protection—Ask For Warships.

Paris, Aug. 27.—France's attitude toward Mulai Hafig, the Sultan's brother, who recently was proclaimed Sultan, is one of complete non-recognition of his authority as Sultan.

It is officially pointed out that, although Mulai's power seems to be growing in the south, the people in the north appear to be loyal to the reigning Sultan, and until decisive events demonstrate that Mulai is actually the choice of the people, France is forced to regard him as a pretender and revolutionist.

It is officially stated that the most cordial exchanges of views occurred between Ambassador Cambon and Chancellor Von Buelow on the subject of Morocco, and that Germany appreciates the difficulty of France's position.

The Echo de Paris yesterday published a despatch from Berlin declaring that the impression caused there by the interviews between Ambassador Cambon and Chancellor Von Buelow, and between Premier Clemenceau and King Edward is "that the peace of Europe is solidified."

Berlin, Aug. 27.—Jules Cambon, the French ambassador to Germany, returned here yesterday from Norderney, satisfied with the results of his visit to Chancellor Von Buelow.

Possibly the most interesting subject to the French Government at present was the Moroccan situation, upon which the chancellor talked freely, repeating and elaborating Germany's willingness that France should use her own discretion at Casablanca, with the knowledge that Germany will not raise embarrassing questions or seek in any way to place difficulties in her way, or hinder the French work of restoring order and securing the future safety of Europeans in Morocco.

Paris, Aug. 27.—The correspondent at Casablanca of The Matin telegraphs that a letter has been received in the Arab camp from Mulai Hafig, the newly proclaimed Sultan, announcing that he is marching to attack the French with numerous forces and several cannon.

He instructs the besiegers to refrain from action until his arrival.

Ask for Spanish Warships.

Tangier, Aug. 27.—The Spanish colony here has voted to petition Spain to send additional warships to Tangier, on the ground that Spanish citizens have not sufficient protection.

FREIGHT TRAINS SMASH.

One Killed, Six Injured In Ohio Collision—Train Derailed.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Conductor Robert Gilmore of this city, and Engineer J. C. Purdy of Batavia, Ohio, were instantly killed and six or more trainmen seriously injured in a head-on collision between two Norfolk and Western freight trains near Reardon early yesterday. A relief train bearing physicians and medical supplies was rushed to the scene from here.

Entire Train Derailed.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 27.—Twenty-one persons were injured, none seriously, by the derailment of a northbound train on the Southern Railway at Red Hill yesterday. The entire train except the engine and tender turned over. The accident was caused by a broken rail. The train fortunately was running at moderate speed.

BANKS VICTIMIZED.

Two Men Worked Smooth Game At Orangeville.

Orangeville, Aug., 27.—George J. McDonald, a supposed deserter from Stanley Barracks, and Thomas Giles, were charged in the police court yesterday with discounting notes of no value, representing themselves as prosperous farmers.

Giles appears to have signed his own name. His knowledge of writing is confined to making his own signature, but McDonald seems not to have been so particular, for he is alleged to have signed several names.

Both pleaded not guilty, and the evidence disclosed a pretty smooth game to have been worked on the various bank managers, and the cash was handed over in every case. Banker Charles Mason of Shelburne was touched up three times.

Both prisoners were remanded to jail.

FLEET GETS PERMITS.

Fishing Smacks On Their Way to Newfoundland.

Washington, Aug. 27.—In view of the fact that the open season for Newfoundland fisheries is beginning, while American fishing smacks have been lying at considerable expense at Gloucester, Mass., awaiting the conclusion of negotiations in London between Ambassador Reid and the Foreign Office, the State Department yesterday determined to allow these vessels to proceed to the fishing grounds and begin fishing.

This is with the understanding that, although the modus vivendi of last season has not yet been renewed, the state of the negotiations in London warrants the department in the opinion that it will be so renewed, even in a modified form.

Tug Rammed; 5 Drowned.

Baltimore, Aug. 27.—British steamship Barnstable, Captain Davidson, from Port Antonia, for Baltimore, late Sunday night, ran into and sank the tug Gerry, Captain McCoy, of Wilmington, Del., in the ship channel off Sparrow's Point, Md. Five men were drowned.

FRACTURES HIS SKULL.

Conductor Fell Off Street Car and May Die.

Hamilton, Aug. 27.—Fred Raven, 117 Tisdale street, a conductor, fell off his car on East Barton street last evening and was perhaps fatally injured. He was taken to the hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull and concussion of the brain. The doctors could not tell first how serious his condition is. He was collecting fares on an open car and fell off the running board.

French Wine Frauds.

Paris, Aug. 27.—As proof of its determination to eradicate the wine frauds, the Government yesterday announced that there had been 4,203 prosecutions for violation of the law, and that they had resulted in 3,640 convictions.

The persons prosecuted included a mayor, who resigned as a protest against the Government's alleged inactivity in enforcing the law.

Escapes Death By Jump.

Chatham, Aug. 27.—While crossing the Michigan Central tracks, driving a team, a few miles south of this city, yesterday, A McGregor escaped death only by jumping, when he found that he could not cross in time to prevent a smash from a mile-a-minute express.

His wagon was smashed to kindling, and a valuable horse killed outright.

Two Young Men Lost In Woods For Seven Hours Near Buckhorn

Looking for Nearer Path Back to Hotel When They Lose Their Way—Separated From Rest of Party.

WORKING ON THE DAM

By Mere Chance They Discover Their Mistake and Are Found by Searching Party After Night Had Fallen.

Examiner Special.

Buckhorn, Aug. 27.—Hopelessly lost among the rocks and forests north of Buckhorn was the experience of two young men employed on the dam construction here while wandering carelessly on Sunday afternoon. When found, the men were travelling north at a rapid rate and getting farther and farther away from the village every minute.

In company with a number of tourists staying at the Pearson House, the two left shortly after dinner to visit beautiful Sandy Lake which lies a short distance north of here. The two young men who considered themselves masters of the various paths among the rocks and woods, decided to take a short cut home instead of going by the somewhat tedious but sure path on which they had made their journey to Sandy Lake.

Therefore on leaving for home about 2.30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon the pair, confident of success, separated from the rest of the party. When the second section arrived here, however, the men had not reported and were nowhere to be seen. A search party from Pearson's set out to look for them and on this side of Scotts Mills they were found at about 9 o'clock at night trudging along in silence.

Mr. Wm. Potter, who is in charge of a number of Presbyterian churches there, was the first to report at Mr. Pearson's of the whereabouts of the two men. He had been north of here attending a church service and on returning met them going north in the wrong direction. At that time they had wandered about 8 miles out of the proper way and were hopelessly lost. They asked him where he was going, to which he replied that he was on his homeward journey.

Without admitting they were lost they waited until he had passed when they changed their direction for home arriving here after the shades of night had fallen.

There is no doubt that, had Mr. Potter unconsciously not placed them on the right road they would have had to spend the night in nature's fields.

HEAVY COSTS IN INDIAN CASES

The costs in the recent County Police Court cases against the four Chemong Indians have been figured out, and will amount to a great deal more than the fines. Jonas Jacobs and Alex Knott had to pay, besides their two $5 fines, about $20.50 costs each. Isaac Johnston's costs amounted to about $17.60 and his fine to $10. Jonas Jacobs paid about $20 costs, besides his fine of $5.

HAVELOCK DECIDES IN FAVOUR OF EXTRA SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION

Examiner Special.

Havelock, August 26. — Eighty-two votes cast, 47 in favour, and 35 against, making a majority of 12, was the result of the vote on the by-law here to-day for raising $4,000 by 30-year debentures for the purpose of building an addition to the present school building, which is at present very much over-crowded. The following was the vote in each division:

	For.	Agst.
Division No. 1.....	20	22
Division No. 2.....	28	11

There was considerable interest in the voting by the school board, but on the other side there was nothing doing.

The new addition to the school will cost $4,000, and will be built of brick veneer. It will be about 33 feet square and will adjoin and be south of the present school building. The idea of the school board is to put up the addition now and in a few years to complete the structure by another building. The upper story of the building will be used for teaching High School work, for which there will be a special teacher. The pupils will now be able to prepare for matriculation and second class certificates without leaving Havelock.

Deputation To Visit Other Public Libraries

Property Committee and Members of Library Board Will Go on a Western Jaunt on Thursday of This Week.

A TWO DAYS' TRIP

On Thursday morning a deputation consisting of the members of the Property Committee, two members of the Public Library Board, and Mr. Richard Hall, trustee of the Nicholls estate, will leave on a two-days' trip to western Ontario, to inspect some of the best public libraries there for the purpose of gathering information for use in connection with the new library to be built here. It is probable that most of the members of the Property Committee will be with the deputation and that the Public Library Board's representatives will be Dr. Burnham and W. Pringle.

The itinerary of the trip is not complete. The deputation will inspect the libraries in Berlin, Paris, Brantford, Guelph and other places in Western Ontario, and may also take a jaunt to St. Catharines, where there is a new and beautiful public library.

Peterborough Young Lady Gets a Ducking at Juniper Island Wharf

THE EXCITEMENT GREAT

A well-known Peterborough young lady, who is staying at Burleigh Falls Hotel, Stony Lake, got a bad ducking at Juniper Island the other evening. With a young man, she had paddled down to the store. When the wharf was reached, her companion stepped out of the canoe, and, in doing so, managed to upset the frail craft, sending its fair occupant into the water. For a few moments, feminine shrieks echoed among the rocks, then the sadly dishevelled young lady was pulled out to terra firma, but little the worse for her adventure.

OBITUARY

THOS JOSEPH O'KEEFE

The death occurred yesterday of Thomas Joseph O'Keefe, a New York gentleman, who had spent five weeks here for his health. The deceased was 32 years of age and while here underwent two operations at St. Joseph's Hospital. His sister and his wife, who is a sister of Mrs. Clarence Snider, of Peterborough, were present when he passed away. The body left on the 11.45 train for New York to-day, where it will be interred.

BRAVE YOUNG RESCUER CARRIED TO SHORE ON RIVER DRIVER'S BACK

An amusing incident occurred on the shore of Little Lake yesterday, where a number of river drivers were at work on the logs, a short distance out. James Collins, one of the men accidentally slipped off a log and appeared to be in a precarious position to a small boy on the shore. The youth, whose name is Swanson, with the pluck and courage of an army veteran, although he has yet scarcely reached his teens, at once swam out to the big man's assistance.

On arriving at the supposedly drowning man he discovered his mistake. The little fellow was brought into shore again on Mr. Collins' back, to the delight and amusement of the onlookers.

Rumour at Ottawa Which Apparently Is Correct—Hon. Clifford Sifton Said to Have Been Offered the Portfolio.

PUGSLEY FOR RAILWAYS

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, August 27. — It is almost certain that the two new Cabinet Ministers will be sworn in on Friday, when Earl Grey gets back from Toronto. This morning Sir Wilfrid Laurier had a long talk with Mr. Aylesworth and Sir Richard Cartwright, and it is understood that the whole situation was talked over. The most reliable information is that Mr. Pugsley will get the Railways and Canals portfolio, and that Mr. Graham, M.P.P., of Brockville, is the Premier's choice for that of Public Works. It is said that Hon. Mr. Sifton was offered the latter, but declined to re-enter the Cabinet at present. Ontario Liberals are still very averse to losing Graham, so the situation is not positive yet. The best advices, right from inside circles to-day, at noon, prophesy "Pugsley, and Graham."

BIG BUCK AT STONY LAKE GAVE PARTY AN EXCITING CHASE

Animal Took the Water Near Mr. R. J. Winch's Summer Residence and was Pursued in Boats by the Nearby Cottagers.

ESCAPED INTO THE WOODS

It is not often that the summer residents at Stony Lake, have an exciting deer hunt added to the ordinary pleasures of the resort. Yesterday afternoon, however, the cottagers at the upper end of Stony Lake were able to indulge in that pastime, and it is pleasing to note that this particular chase ended happily for all concerned—including the deer.

The latter, a particularly fine buck, came from the woods on the Burleigh shore, and, swimming across Young's Bay, passed into the lake proper by crossing the narrow channel at Mr. R. J. Winch's cottage. Soon afterwards it was discovered by the occupants of a near-by island, and at once a boat put out in pursuit. The buck swam up the lake and landed on a small island near Kawartha Lodge, Judge Hudspeth's summer home. By this time boats from all the cottages in the neighbourhood had joined in the chase, and there was great excitement.

The buck was driven from its retreat on the little island and once entered the lake, the frightened animal making for Casement's island, dividing Stony Lake from Young's Bay, and succeeded in making its escape from its pursuers, no doubt returning to the mainland.

The cottagers of course did not chase the deer with any hostile intent. There were no guns in the party and although several boats got close enough to the deer to enable the occupants to strike it with a paddle no attempt was made to injure the animal.

Just what drove the deer into the lake is a mystery. It is a well-known fact that there are a goodly number of the antlered monarchs of the forest in the woods on the north shore of the lake, and some have been seen at Eel's Creek, but it is an unusual thing to find them coming down into the lake.

POLICE COURT OF SHORT DURATION

Two Offenders Before the Bar of Justice This Morning

The prisoners' box at the police court this morning was comfortably filled by two offenders of the law. Thomas Martin, who was arrested by P. C. McGinty yesterday afternoon, was the first to be called by Acting Magistrate Armstrong. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly and pleaded guilty, although he knew nothing of the connecting circumstances. He was fined $2, to be paid forthwith or ten days in gaol and chose the former.

Frank Meehan, a very polite middle-aged man of about forty winters, was the other individual. His alleged offense was vagrancy, although he was physically able to work.

In his reply he stated that he had been working until yesterday and that if His Worship would kindly let him go this time he would go straight to Cobourg. His request was granted and as he stepped out of the box he was "awful much obliged," and thanked the magistrate for his advice.

Insure Against Serious Colds

Of the many forms of insurance probably that which protects you against the serious results of colds is the most valuable at this time of the year, when so many are becoming victims of la grippe and pneumia. By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can keep the loose, prevent further development of the cold and cure it in a few days.

PETERBOROUGH SHOTS GET THERE AT OTTAWA

At the opening matches of the Dominion Rifle Association at the Rockcliffe ranges, two Peterborough marksmen scored prizes. Colour-Sergt. Moore captured a $4 prize in the McDougal match, a keenly contested event, and in the Sir Charles Ross match Private Geo. Fitzgerald got on for a $4 prize.

GREAT BALL GAME ON SATURDAY

Peterborough and Port Hope Clash at Riverside Park in Finals

Another great ball game is promised local fans on Saturday afternoon, when the first of a series of three games for the championship of the Midland League, between Port Hope and Peterborough, will be played at Riverside Park. The contest should be just as fast and spectacular as the game with Cobourg last Saturday, and if you were one of the 1,000 people there you will know what that means.

Port Hope will no doubt be strengthened for the occasion, while Peterborough will have about the same line-up that defeated Cobourg. Jack Connors' arm is better, and to get back into the game again on Saturday.

For the fourth time this season, Surphlis and Quinlan will be the opposing pitchers. So far, honours have gone to the local youngster, who has won two of the three games played, and it should be a great duel between the two on Saturday.

Manager Johnston has given the city about the fastest ball team that ever represented it, and the citizens should show their appreciation of his efforts by turning out in large numbers on Saturday. Help to break all attendance records and keep the boom going.

PLEA FOR A DECENT TREATMENT OF THE ENGLISH EMIGRANT

Havelock "Canadian" Writes the Examiner in Their Behalf—Tells How They Are Cheated at Almost Every Turn.

ILL-TREATED BY EMPLOYERS

Editor Examiner.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The influx of immigrants from England and other countries via Montreal, which, for the last few months has been much decreased for some reason or other, has begun again and daily trains pass through laden with large numbers who are trying to better themselves by seeking a home for themselves in Canada.

The idea seems to predominate among the general run of people that the persons flowing into this country from foreign lands are of low principles and birth. This may be the case with some, as it is in any city or community one may visit, for there is always a black sheep in the flock. But the people who are now immigrating into our country, are, on the whole, a healthy, sturdy, honest and industrious class, and will prove good loyal subjects, both to their town and country.

A good many people judge them by their appearance, as they pass through on trains en route to Toronto. It must not be forgot that they have been very many days on their way, and have been very much crowded. They present no worse appearance than Ontario citizens who go to the west by harvest excursions do when they arrive in the city of Winnipeg. When they have got off the train, washed themselves and changed their clothes, they appear very respectable and decent.

Large crowds meet them at every station where their train stops and try to "jolly" and make fun of them, because of their peculiar actions and manners, but we must not forget that they are strangers in a strange country, and that they are not acquainted with our customs, nor yet do some of them fully understand our language, and although we think them very peculiar, we are as much so according to their ideas.

Too Much Cheating

Because they are not fully acquainted with our coins and money many people try to cheat them, giving them wrong change, American nickels for 25 cent pieces and so on. We should do unto them as we would they should do unto us if we were a stranger in their country, without any knowledge of their manners or money. It is said that English people are much more accomodating to strangers in England than Canadians are to them when they first arrive in Canada.

There should be a rule made that immigrant trains will stop long enough at certain stations along the line to allow passengers to get food and provisions. The trains stop at a station and they make their to a store, and before they begi train starts again, and thus, though the train may wait enough to allow them to procure they are afraid they will get lef thus they become half starved.

The water supply in the train carry them is reported to be o very worst quality, and in the mer becomes warm and undrin and is seldom changed. As a of water is only put in every hu miles it is used before half the tance is covered.

When they arrive in Toron some other headquarters, the sent out to work for farmer often use them very indecently, times allowing them very board, bad lodging and very clothing, and sometimes ch them out of their wages and t them much as if they were t perty of the farmer. When a like this is reported it shou thoroughly looked into by th thorities and his fellow-country should cause a thorough examin

TRIBUTE TO BRAVE RESCUERS AT GORE'S LANDING SUMMER RESO

A Peterborough man who has just returned from Gore's Lan and Harwood, called on the Examiner to-day, giving some addit facts on the upset of Messrs. Conway and Cluney, near Gore's L ing, over a week ago. He said great stress on the bravery of two dents of the Landing, Messrs. Wallace and Henderson, who, in face of great peril from the waves, went out in a skiff and saved two men from drowning. The Examiner's informant further st that they accomplished a feat which the steamer Monarch refuse attempt, but which passed by the men.

On arriving at the shore, Mr. Wallace kindly took them to home, where he provided dry clothing and kept them over They spent an hour and a half in the water, and their strength almost gone before they were picked up by the sturdy rescuers.

College Youth Runs Away; Scared By Criticis

Chief Roszel Requested to Look Out for Him—Perents in Maine Are Almost Heartbroken.

HIS DESCRIPTION GIVEN

Chief of Police Roszel has received a communication from the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, referring to the running away from college of a youth of 21 years of age, who did not appreciate the criticisms of the college officials. His name is Albion Davis Pike. His home is in Lubec, Maine, and he has not been heard of since March 15, so that his parents are almost heart-broken over his disappearance, and are anxious for his return.

The communication from the tective agency, in giving his tion to the Chief, states that years of age, 5 feet 5 in height, weighs 140 lbs., and with a tendency to be da hair is inclined to be dark, has dark grey eyes. He is s to have worn a blue serge double-breasted coat, but wearing light grey, as he away two suits. He also pos light coloured leather suitcase

He neither smoked nor dra had no bad habits. He too interest in steamboats, steam gasoline boats, auto boats, s vessels of every description, his parents are inclined to beli he has obtained a position o these.

The only apparent grounds youth leaving the Junior Hav lege are that he did not like cisms of the college officials count of his unsatisfactory s

HARD TIMES COMING: BUT NOT IN CANADA: STATES FEEL FIRST STEPS

New York, Aug. 26.—Are conditions such throughout the country that hard times are coming? The World, through its correspondents, has asked this question of merchants, bankers, manufacturers, capitalists and farmers in every section of the United States. The answers given show a wide divergence of opinion as to the present situation. In the financial centres of the East a contraction in business is generally conceded. That it will lead to hard times is not believed. General manufacturing, however, even in the East, is reported to be enjoying high prosperity, the textile industry being especially favoured.

In the West the reports show that commerce is still going on at high pressure. Country on fairly good crops, the fear of hard times is generally scouted. In the Northwest, prosperity is relied on to continue.

The South also reports conditions looking to a continuance of good times.

Here and there a warning is sounded, and by the few the prediction is made that hard times are coming. In nearly all sections a reasonable conservatism is urged, and the remark frequently is made that the "pace has been too fast."

Lemon Juice For Toilet Uses.

On every washstand a lemon or two should be kept. Nothing is better for the toilet than the juice of this fruit. It is refreshing to the taste, and it is cleansing to the skin. A few drops squeezed into the water with which the teeth are cleaned not only will aid in keeping the tartar away from them, but it will also make the breath sweet and pure.

Lemon juice rubbed on the face aids in keeping the skin soft and fresh. If persistently used it will remove freckles, and when applied to the hands it will whiten them.

An excellent thing for the nails is to cut a lemon in half and dig the fingers vigorously into the pulp. This is a far better way of removing stains than by too hard rubbing or scrubbing with a brush, which injures the nails.

WELCOME THE IMMIGRANTS

In another column appears a contribution of a reader of the Examiner, in which a plea is made for the immigrants who reach our shores. There is a class of Canadians which doesn't appreciate the importance of the immigration movement, now, in such extensive operation. There are many who take a very narrow view of the situation. They regard immigrants as hostile to Canadian interests—they will tend to reduce wages and will constitute, to some, undesirable competition in the labour market. Every new immigrant who establishes a home becomes a consumer and creates new demands upon our commercial and industrial activities, and in this way compensates for the apparent competition in the labour market by furnishing a new market for industrial products, and increase of employment for the artizan and labourer. Canada has 3,745,574 square miles of country, exclusive of water, and this is peopled by only six million people, so that each man, woman and child has 600,000 square miles, or 384 million acres, to himself or herself. Of the millions upon millions of acres in Canada, not one hundred thousandth part is occupied. We must, therefore, depend upon immigration to people our vast areas, to develop them and make them tributary to the growth of the country. Governments invite immigrants, and politicians of both political parties clamour for them. We extend them an official welcome, but the popular welcome, as pointed out by our correspondent, "Canadian," is not what it should be. Divine Providence has bestowed upon Canada a great heritage, the raw material for millions of homes. Canadians who now occupy this country have a responsibility in respect of it. They cannot expect to selfishly hold it unimproved and shut our doors upon our fellow subjects of the Motherland, who are crowded out and forced down in the fierce fight for existence in over-populated centres. We must share our vacant acres with those of our brethren who need homes. The land speculator who gets hold of vast areas of national lands, and selfishly holds them until the industry of others adds to their value, is rightly regarded as a public enemy. What different is the attitude of those Canadians who would repel immigrants and deny them homes, when there are millions of homes ready for the taking!! These persons must remember that they themselves are the descendants of immigrants who were as much—no more and no less—intruders as the immigrants, towards which their descendants are showing the cold shoulder and discouragement to-day. Canada's great need, if she is to realize her destiny of becoming one of the greatest of the nations, is population. We should, therefore, welcome the immigrant, the future Canadian citizen, our future fellow citizen. Let us make them good citizens by showing them an example of good citizenship, by showing that we realize the need of the country—population—by showing that this is free, generous land, a fit home for the millions, a workshop in which good citizens are created. We must have population to furnish a home market for our products of field, mine and workshop. In the past three years—1904-5-6—there have come to Canada from the British Isles, 202,529 persons. All these are consumers of our products, all Canadian citizen the moment they cross our threshold and set foot upon our shores. They are entitled to the good treatment which we owe to each other. There may be some undesirables among them, but there are thousands of undesirables among native Canadians, and the persons who object most strongly to immigration are, perhaps, those who, idle and dissolute themselves, resent the presence of those who may compete with them in leading dissolute and idle lives and playing upon the industry of good citizens. We want population, we invite immigration, and when it come we are, in duty and in decency, bound to accord the new arrivals decent treatment.

CANADIAN DISTANCES

Canada is a country of magnificent distances, but almost every mile of the distance is something worth while—something demanding, and promising fruitful repayment of means of development by the railways now existing, under construction, and located. The Department of the Interior has just issued a railway map of the Dominion of Canada. This map contains a table of distances which will be of interest to all Canadians, who can see, in tabulated form, the distances that separate important parts of the country. Here is a table of distances, in statute miles, from Montreal to

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney General, is to leave the Whitney Cabinet. This removal of the refrigerating element will permit of free play to the hot air element.

Mr. Asquith's commendation of the Canadian tariff as the best tariff in existence will be information to Mr. Borden who contends that it is a mutilated replica of the Conservative tariff; it's the same he says, as the late lamented Conservative tariff, but different.

Mr. Borden says that he does not expect to lead the Conservative Opposition after the next general elections for the Dominion. If he doesn't "watch out" he may cease to be the leader before the election comes on—Sir Hibbert Tupper and Mr. McLean would not, it appears, be unwilling to relieve him. If he means that his party will regain power at the next election, he reckons without his host, very much.

The Brantford Expositor thinks that if Thanksgiving Day is made a day of prayer it is all right, but if merely a holiday, it might as well be done away with. The reason given is that "we have holidays sufficient already." This may apply to those who have the leisure and means to take protracted summer holidays, but there are many so situated that they can only get and afford an occasional holiday.

London the Less certainly has its full dose of elections. The record for a brief five years is as follows: Provincial General Election, May, 1902; Dominion General Election, November, 1904; Provincial General Election, January, 1905; Dominion bye-election, June, 1905. There is every probability that there will be added to this list a Dominion bye-election this autumn, with a Dominion General Election next year, and possibly a Provincial General Election in the same year.

The Examiner has received from the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, a railway map of the Dominion, which shows, in coloured lines, the Canadian railways in operation, under construction, under tender, and located. The total of the existing railway mileage of the country is 23,706 miles, of which 1,165 miles were laid in 1906. Of this there are 878 miles of double track, and there are, in addition, 4,085 miles of siding. Last year the total gross earnings were $126,322,865; the working expenses, $87,129,434, and the train mileage nearly seventy-three millions of miles.

The Lemieux Act seems to be gaining, daily, new laurels. In the case of the Valleyfield, Quebec, cotton spinners, the strike has, in one sense, failed, and the employees have returned to work. On Saturday afternoon, Mr. Acland, of the Dominion Department of Labour; Mayor Robb, of Valleyfield, and Mr. Paquette, representing the strikers, had a conference. The latter accepted the terms of the company, and, yesterday, 2,500 employees went back to work. The company will not grant a general increase in wages of ten per cent., but the mule spinners will get this increase, and the other points in demand will be submitted to a board of arbitration under the Act which has been applied for by both the company and the employees. This is the first instance in which the provisions of the Act have been applied for, except in the case of public utilities, and the application is regarded as a new triumph for the Lemieux Act.

During the second quarter of the current calendar year, comprising April, May and June, there has been, the Brantford Expositor points out, a remarkable increase in the wages in Canada. Statistics compiled by the Department of Labour show that there were 117 changes in wages for industrial groups during the period, of which 104 were increases of pay, two were decreases in hours, and eleven were both increases in pay and decreases in hours. Maintenance-of-way men on the C. N. R., G. T. R. and C. P. R., to the number of 14,000, were given increases; in building trades, 7,200 men got increases; in textile works, 2,000 employees. Coal miners in Alberta and British Columbia, to the number of 4,000, got increased pay, and the lumbermen of Ontario and the Maritime Provinces, numbering 10,000 men, got more pay. Only in 1903 have as many cases of increased wages been reported, and then not nearly as many men were affected.

The recent Colonial Conference in London represented a stage of colonial development which has reached a point which some may regard as incipient imperial disruption. At this conference, Sir Wilfrid Laurier unmistakably led in the expression of the sentiment that the self-governing colonies are essentially independent. They have ceased to be "colonies," and are now recognized by the Colonial Office, London, as "dominions." The term "colonial" is now officially applied only to Crown colonies. It is not at all probable that this significant change of nomenclature will have any effect in the direction of relaxing the bonds that unite the "dominions beyond the seas" with the Motherland. This recognition of new relations is but an extension of the policy of trust which Great Britain has employed in giving conquered peoples self-government. Invariably, this trust has been justified, and it will be so with the new relations of the independent "Dominions." Both interest and sentiment combine to retain the tie unweakened and intact.

Stabbed In Back.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 27.—As George Harvey, a sailor of Buffalo, N. Y., was passing a saloon on Commercial road Sunday night, an Italian rushed out of the door and without warning plunged a stiletto into Harvey, inflicting a wound which hospital surgeons say will prove fatal. The police have been unable thus far to find the Italian.

Harvey could give no explanation of the mysterious attack. He had been in Cleveland but a few hours.

Girl's Suicide.

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—With a bottle that had contained carbolic acid lying on her breast, Ethel Cornell, an 18-year-old German girl, was found dead in bed at the home of J. R. Watt, 235 Spence street, yesterday morning.

INDIANS TALK BLOODSHED.

Chief of Oka Tribe Resents Enclosure of Land.

A recent despatch from Oka, says: The fact that Chief Angus Corinthe has announced that there will be bloodshed in Oka if the fencing of public land is proceeded with, gives those who know the ways of the Indian here more concern than all the alarmist rumors that have been set afloat at different times during the last few years. Almost every year there have been, so to speak, pocket rebellions here, in the course of which, at various times, the provincial police and detectives, as well as those of the Dominion, have been called out for service. The outlook, however, has never before been so serious as at the present. Those who know Angus Corinthe know him as a careful, deliberate man, who would not openly proclaim such defiance as he has done unless he had thought the matter out carefully.

In connection with this it must be remembered that a little over a year ago he deliberately tried to bring things to an issue by cutting down a tree on the disputed domains to make a flagstaff for his property in the village. He defied the gentlemen of the seminary at that time to put him in jail, but, thanks to the moderation of the latter, who are somewhat tired of the constant trouble with the Indians, nothing serious happened.

In the present case, whatever occurs will not be at the instigation of the Board of Health of the province, which objects to cows and other animals roaming around through the village. The village authorities have been ordered by the Board of Health to enclose the meadows, and, owing to threats, have asked for the protection of the provincial police.

Is a Goose a Bird?

In a decision by Judge Waite, the Board of General Appraisers in New York have decided that Canadian geese are not wild, and hence are not to be deemed "birds" within the meaning of the Dingley tariff act. The issue directly affects the importation of the geese in the New York market. The collector assessed the geese for duty as "live poultry" with duty at the rate of three cents per pound, whereas the importers insisted that the geese should be admitted as "birds" free of duty. Their contention was that the geese are wild, or semi-wild. In denying the claim Judge Waite says: "The evidence shows that the geese are kept by the farmers on their farms very much as fowls are generally kept, allowed to run in the fields, and also kept within closures. The importers claim that they are of a wild nature, and are a hybrid, resulting from the mingling of the wild Canadian goose with the domestic goose. The simple fact that they may contain some wild blood and have some wild tendencies would not, we think, warrant us in finding that they are free of duty as claimed." The decision will probably have the effect of raising the prices of geese to hotels, restaurants and individual consumers.

Couldn't Be Done.

A colored preacher who had only a small share of this world's goods and whose salary was not forthcoming on several occasions became exasperated. At his morning service he spoke to his church members in this way:

"Bredern and sistern, things is not as they should be. You must not 'spects I can preach on u'th an' boa'd in heben."

The Naked Truth.

An old fable says that Truth and Falsehood went in bathing together. Falsehood came first out of the water and dressed herself in Truth's garments. Truth, unwilling to put on Falsehood's clothes, went naked.

A REAL SEWING ROOM.

Necessity For Some and Luxury For Others.

Happy is a woman who can have a real sewing room, a place where all stitching materials may be kept together in apparent disorder, yet each where she can put her hands on it in a moment when the season's rush is on.

If the room be no larger than to give place for machine, worktable and chair she may still rejoice, for scraps may fall to the floor unheeded, and picking up every moment is unnecessary. To be quite ideal there should be a place for a chest of drawers, and a long mirror should hang so that the bottom of skirts may be seen easily during a fitting.

Sewing is work that should be made as easy as possible, and the first step in this direction is to cover the floor and simplify cleaning. Best of all is a covering of unbleached muslin. This should be stitched in breadths and have loops at the corners only if the room is small. If fairly large more loops in between will be required. Put thumbscrews into the floor at spaces to correspond with the loops. Put down the muslin and fasten it to the screws. This will hold it firmly enough in place, and yet at the end of the day, when hundreds of tiny scraps and pieces have fallen, the muslin can be lifted easily and shaken into the trash barrel, thus entirely doing away with sweeping.

The sewing machine should be well placed for light, and an open mouth muslin bag hanging at one end will serve as a receptacle for scraps that might otherwise fall.

The machine chair should be a straight one and perfectly comfortable when the seamstress is sitting properly. A low rocker to use when doing hand sewing makes a pleasant and restful change from the stiff, straight one.

Canada Leading.

The Cobden Club issues a reply to the proposals before the Imperial Conference, and says: "The significance of the Canadian policy is that it represents the most fully conscious evolution of the colonial principle, an evolution not towards closer union, but consistently towards larger independence in political, military and economic action. Where Canada to-day stands our other self-governing colonies will stand to-morrow."

The pamphlet criticises the preference proposals and discounts the value of Canadian preference, which Canada cannot increase if she is consistent with her protective policy. It also states that the Canadian bounty policy is hostile to the validity of preference. The New Zealand and Australian proposals are merely instruments to increase the stringency of protection.

Lying.

It was said of Dr. Johnson that he always talked as though he were taking an oath. He detested the habit of lying or prevaricating in the slightest degree and would not allow his servants to say he was not at home if he was. "A servant's strict regard for the truth," said he, "must be weakened by such a practice. If I accustom my servant to tell a lie for me, have I not reason to apprehend that he will tell it for himself?" A strict adherence to truth the doctor considered as a sacred obligation, and in relating the smallest anecdote he would not allow himself the minutest addition to embellish his story.

Entered the Ministry.

Mother Hen after her brood of nine had obtained a firm hold on life called them together to counsel them on the duty they owed to one another, but particularly on the duty the eight girls owed to the one boy of her family. The girls were to be mindful of Willie's rights, to call him when a choice morsel was unearthed, to prevent him from quarreling and to bring him back when he wandered from the barnyard.

One day during a sisterly quarrel brother disappeared. His sisters had seen the minister enter the farmhouse on a visit, but thought nothing of it until they saw poor Willie meet his death by an ax.

Consternation ensued, and a council was held to devise a way to meet the mother hen and to break the news to her.

"Cluck, cluck, cluckety, cluck, cluck," said Mother Hen, breaking in on the council of the sisters.

"Cluckety, cluckety, cluck," answered the sisters in one voice, which translated means, "Where is your brother?" and they answered, "The minister visited the house, and brother got it in the neck."

Mother Hen was downcast, but she quickly recovered her composure and said:

"Cluckety, cluckety, cluck; cluck, cluck, cluckety," which is: "I am sorry for poor Willie. I rejoice, however, that he has entered the ministry, for he would have made a poor layman."

The Slow, Pottering Gordon Setter.

Years ago the Gordon setter was quite a favorite and much in use by sportsmen of this country. In later years, however, this really good dog was displaced in greater part by the pointer and English setter. The Gordon, says Ed F. Haberlein in Dogdom, is the largest and heaviest of all bird dogs, more clumsy and usually slow. Where most hunting is done in woodland and thickets and a slow working dog is needed so as not to get "lost" almost continually he fills the bill well—works close to gun, has good nose, is steady on point and if properly trained a very good retriever from land and water. The Gordon is easily trained and retains his training well, is also of good pleasant disposition and an admirable companion. At this age, however, when so very much stress is laid on speed and wide range, the Gordon is not "in it" because he is a slow, pottering dog as a rule.

Chatham Man Arrested.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—Albert Toulouse of Chatham was arrested here and taken to Chatham Sunday, charged with a serious offence against a young girl, daughter of B. Bellaire of Dover Township. The man was taken back to Chatham for trial.

Foot Badly Crushed.

Fun at Lenten Tea Meeting.

One of the ladies in fancy dress was, though fair enough, a trifle fat, and we will not say that she did not look well out of the thirties. And there spake to her a reporter:

"May I ask what character you represent?"

"Helen of Troy," she answered. "What did you think it was?"

"Well," he murmured, ungallantly enough, as weights and measures confused his brain and he gazed on her ample proportions, "I thought you might be Helen of Avoirdupois!"

One For the Debating Club.

A group of half a dozen physicists, all eminent; a sheet of paper; a pencil. With the latter one of the group draws a pulley, a cord over the pulley, a tree, a bough from which the pulley hangs. To one end of the cord is attached a stone; to the other cord clings a monkey. The stone balances the monkey. If the monkey proceeds to climb up the cord, what will happen? Will the stone rise or fall? Heated discussion; breaking of the party; no quarrel. Can any reader help to settle this question?

Mr. J. A. Ruddick Addresses English Audience On Cheese

States That The Green Cheeese Problem Will Rectify Itself in Time---Decline in Butter and Cheese ---Some Interesting Information

A recent issue of the Manchester Guardian, of Manchester, England, gives an interesting account of an address by Mr. J. A. Ruddick, who is in England representing the Canadian Government in matters of trade. Mr. Ruddick is well known to local dairy men, having been here on several occasions. The Guardian gives the following account of an address delivered by him:—

There was an interesting exchange of views yesterday between members of the Manchester Produce Association, and Mr. J. A. Ruddick, representing the Agricultural Department of the Canadian Government. The meeting took place in the Boardroom of the Association, and Mr. S. Harrop, president, was in the chair.

Decline in Butter and Cheese

Mr. Ruddick said that there was a decline in the exports of Canadian butter and cheese to Manchester and Liverpool. In 1904 Manchester received 8 per cent of the shipments of butter from Canada, but in 1905 the precentage fell to 2 per cent., and last year it was about the same low figure. Taking the shipments to Manchester and Liverpool, the precentage in 1904 was 37, in the following year it was 29, and in 1906 it was only 18. The shipment of cheese in the same years—to Liverpool and Manchester—was 33, 31, and 25 per cent. As to the cause of this falling off, it seemed to him that the lack of reliable, regular cold-storage steamers to Manchester was in some way responsible. He had been to the Ship Canal Docks and seen the excellent arrangements for the storage of Australian and New Zealand meat, and thought that similar arrangements might be made for the preservation of Canadian produce.

"Green" Cheese

Mr. Ruddick went on to say that he was aware of the the complaint that Canadian cheese had often been shipped in a "green" state, and that consequently it lacked weight when it got to the English purchaser. This was a matter, he thought, which would rectify itself in time, because the buyer would make allowance for shrinkage in the price he paid. All the same, the Canadian authorities appreciated the validity of the complaint, and were doing their best to remove all the cause for dissatisfaction, and in the most progressive parts the farmers had passed resolutions not to export cheese that not been in the factory ten days at least. Encouragement was at the same time being given to cool curing of cheese.

As to the butter exports, he thought they would soon increase. The price for cheese went up so much that farmers who had dual plant turned their attention to cheese-making. Then, the demand for butter in Canada itself had greatly increased, owing to the increase of population and the general prosperity of the people, which was indicated by the fact that over 5,000 miles of railway were in process of construction in Western Canada at the present time.

The Fruit Trade

The Canadian Government were anxious to foster trade in fruit as well as butter and cheese. The laws provided the absolute purity of these products, and it was now a penal offence to label apples as first quality when they were not of such quality, or to put good apples at the top of the barrel and poor ones below. The fruit sent out must be of the standard that was represented or punishment would follow. "We hope," Mr. Ruddick added, "by better organization of the fruit industry, to supply more first class apples, pears, and peaches. We have the climate and the area for fruit-tree cultivation to a very large extent.

Trade and Sentiment

Mr. J. B. Dowdall desired to assure the Canadians of English sympathy in their efforts to extend their trade, and at the same time to point out that in business matters sentiment was of little avail. He was not surprised to hear of the decline in the exports of Canadian butter. It was for want of facilities for steamers coming direct to Manchester fully equipped to carry the butter in the way that English merchants liked. Of course the Canadians were consuming larger quantities of butter. "We are not getting the amount we got years ago," Mr. Dowdall continued, "and before many years are over it is possible that America may be an importing country as regards cheese and butter instead of an exporter. And there comes in a chance for Canada."

Progress at Home

Mr. Dowdall quoted some remarkable figures to show the betterment of the people in Great Britain during the last two decades. In twenty years he said, the population had increased by several millions. And not only had the people increased in numbers; the consumption of food per person had enormously increased. In twenty years the imports of fresh and salted beef had increased from 600,000 cwt. to four millions. The figures as to mutton showed a similar advance. The consumption of eggs had gone from 9 per person per year to 53. Twenty years ago the consumption of butter and margarine was at the rate of 9 1-2 lbs. per head of the population. To-day it was 18 lbs. So that it seemed to him that the English people were not only increasing in numbers, but in their powers of consumption, or rather in their power to buy.

Trade Fellows Profit

With regards to bonds of brotherhood and the importance of supporting the Empire by mutual trade, his experience had taught him that business men put aside sentiment when it came to a question of profit. Price and quality were the determining factors, and not considerations of the flag. Of course, other things being equal, English people would prefer to do business with their kinsmen across the sea. Trade followed the invoice before any other thing.

Mr. Ruddick said he quite recognized the fact that questions of nationalism or Imperialism were of no account in trade matters. They could not hope to sell their produce anywhere unless they gave value for money. "We in Canada," he went on, "are loyal subjects to the King—none more so—but we are not foolish enough to depend on any feeling of brotherhood to help us to sell an inferior article. We are doing our best to get products of the right quality, believing that is the surest way to promote trade."

Mr. T. E. Marshall spoke of the falling off in the egg trade with Canada.

Mr. Ruddick said the demand for eggs in Canada had risen so much that the farmer could now get 10d. a dozen for them at his own door instead of the 5d. which he used to get. This increase of prices had had a stimulating effect on the egg-producing industry, and the output would soon be greatly increased.

Mr. R. Graham asked if the Canadian authorities were disposed to assist in the provision of a cold storage place at this side as the Australian people had done. Was it true, he further inquired, that Canadian farmers had combined to restrict supplies so as to keep up prices?

Mr. Ruddick said that there was no truth in the later suggestion. As to the first question, it was not the policy of the Canadian Government to establish storages outside the Dominion.

The Chairman remarked that there would be no need for Canadians to park bacon in borax if there were storage facilities at this end.

Mr. J. Lucas insisted that weight as well as quality must be considered in all shipments.

A vote of thanks was heartily accorded to Mr. Ruddick for his address.

WOMAN OF PARNELL ST. FAME RELEASED

Is Allowed to Leave Mercer on Ticket-of-Leave System

Mrs. Davy, the woman who was sentenced to twelve months in the Mercer Reformatory, Toronto, for keeping a house of ill-fame, at 24 Parnell street, has been released. An application was made to the Minister of Justice, and Mrs. Davey was given her freedom on the ticket of leave system.

Her husband, it will be remembered, came east from Winnipeg, shortly after her conviction, to attempt her release. On condition that she goes west with him and reports to the police headquarters there, she was allowed to leave the Mercer.

LOCAL BUYERS GOT NO CHEESE

Three of Them Present at the Meeting of the Victoria County Cheese Board Yesterday

There was a pleased lot of salesmen at this morning's meeting of Victoria County cheese board, the reason being the presence of five buyers, three being from Peterborough. They were Messrs. Brown, Clemes, (for Flavelles, Limited), Gillespie, Clark and Weir, Peterborough.

"We are after cheese," remarked Mr. Weir to President Robertson, after a hearty handshake. "The pastures are drying up down our way, and we've got to come to you."

"Glad to have you come often," responded Mr. Robertson; "somehow the demand seems keener when we have a couple of visiting buyers." And the home men looked at one another and smiled.

"Well, we've had a real nice visit," remarked Buyer Cook; "but I'm sorry to go away empty-handed. You have got a mighty good price, because I count it worth an extra sixteenth to inspect and ship cheese from this district." — Lindsay Post.

Mr. Clemes, Lindsay, secured all the cheese boarded, amounting to 1396 boxes, at 11 1-2 cents.

BEATS PETERBOROUGH PRICES

13 1-8 Cents is Being Paid for Cheese in Wisconsin

Dairymen in Wisconsin are apparently better situated than those in Ontario. Mr .W. J. Devlin, of Hunter street, received a letter the other day from his brother, Mr. P. Devlin, who lives in Black Creek, Wis., and he stated that at the last meeting of the cheese board there, cheese sold at 13 1-8 cents a pound, and that the lowest price for the season was 12 1-16 cents. Mr. Devlin has sixteen cows and for the last four months they averaged him $122.81 per month.

The weather there has been similar to that prevailing here this season, and as a result the crops are not generally as good, as they have been in some other years. There is, however, no cause for alarm at the conditions existing there. The farmers there raise sugar beets extensively and this year that crop, in common with all root crops, promises to be excellent. The crop of corn in Wisconsin is a partial failure this year.

Mr. Devlin has been living in that State for 37 years and is pleased with the conditions there naturally, or he would not have remained there so long. That part of the state is populated largely with Germans and Canadians, who are industrious and energetic.

Musicale At Belle Chasse Last Night

Delightful Concert at Mr. H. LeBrun's Stony Lake Residence—Rrogramme Was an Enjoyable One.

IN AID OF PAVILION

Stony Lake, August 27.—A delightful musicale was held last evening at Belle Chasse, the beautiful summer home of Mr. and Mrs. H. LeBrun of Peterborough, in aid of the Upper Stony Lake Cottagers' Pavilion Fund. Nearly all the cottagers in the neighbourhood were present and the affair was a success in every way, the programme rendered being a delightful one. Judge Hudspeth was present with his magnificent gramaphone, and the grand opera selections given added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Mrs. W. J. Morrow of Peterborough, was the accompanists of the evening, presiding at the piano in the efficient manner for which she is noted.

Following is the programme:

Gramophone, "Jolly Fellows," valse by Pryor's Band.
Vocal solo, "Mignon"... ....D'Hardelot
Miss LeCromier.
Solo, "Carissima."... ... . Perin
Mrs. R. W. F. Davidson.
Solo, "Happy Song."... ... . Regio
Miss Bernadette Hackett.
Solo, "O Think"... ... ...D'Hardelot
Miss Irene Pentland.
Solo, "O Dry Those Tears" ... ..Regio
Mrs. Davidson.
Instrumental solo, Valse Chopin, Op. 14.
Miss LeCromier.
Vocal solo, "Son Vergin Vizzosa"..... Bellini
Mrs. W. J. Morrow.

Some of the gramaphone numbers were as follows:

Toreador song, from Carmen, sung by Gorgoza.
Duet from Martha, sung by Van Sloss and Gorgoza.
Aria from Faust, sung by Caruso.
Ave Maria, Madame Eames.
Duet, "The Pearl Fishers," sung by Coruso and Amicia.
Solo, "I cannot Sing the Old Songs," Jose.
"The Whistlers," Sousa's Band.
Gypsy Love Song, Cowles.

The programme was very much appreciated. All the vocalists excelled themselves, and hearty applause followed each number.

Standing Committees Of The Y. M. C. A. Appointed

Many New Names Have Been Added From Those of Last Year—A Minister of a Local Church in Each.

PLANS TO BE OUTLINED

The following members of the Y. M.C.A. have been appointed to act on the different standing committees of the Association for the new season's work, which opens in September. Many of those named have served on committees previously, while a number of new names have been added.

A new feature has been introduced this year in having on each committee one or more ministers of the evangelical churches of the city. The help of these in an advisory capacity will mean much to the work.

The committees will all meet within the next week or two and outline the plans for the autumn and winter programmes. The prospects are very bright.

The first named in each case is chairman of the committee:

Religious Work—J. F. Thornton, chairman. This embraces the chairmen of the sub-committees, as well as the chairmen of the physical and the boys' work committees.

Sub-Committee on Evangelistic Meetings—A Northey, Jno. Tisdall, W Coleman, J C Shook, Geo Hamlin, W G McKee, Rev. A H Brace.

Sub-Committee Bible Study — W Shiner, L Hicks, W E McCann, J Vincent, W McLaren, Fred Hall, W Madill, Rev. J G Potter.

Sub-Committee Foreign Work — W D Morrow, J H Connal, E Dingman, J Carlisle, G Martin, Rev. H J Keith, J Evans.

Membership—Wm McLaren, P Redgrave, G Carter, H Cooke, B A Lillie, G A Hanna, R Baker, Rev. Wm. Lie, G A Hamlin, R Baker, Rev Wm Major.

Physical—Wm Richardson, G L Galley, E M Best, R Dobbin, R Best, W McLaren, A W Cressman, Rev. J R Webb.

Social—Chas Coleman, D Campbell, A E Walker, N Perry, H L Brace, A McCarroll, Rev. Canon Davidson.

Simple Bridal Gowns London's Newest Styles

Some Late Fashions in Weddings—Floral Favours for Men—New Information of Timely Interest.

MONTH OF WEDDINGS

September, the month of weddings is less than a week away. In view of this fact, and the additional fact that Peterborough will see a number of brides during the coming month the information concerning the newest fashions in weddings will be of interest.

In London it is the fashion at weddings to present boutonnieres to the guests generally as well as to the bridal party. These wedding favours are of course of natural flowers and consist of buttonhole bouquets for the men and bouquets a size larger for the women.

They are distributed at the conclusion of the ceremony, while the registry in being signed. The bridesmaids and the pages present them, carrying them in baskets slung on the arm. They are also distributed in the vestry.

In England lilies are a favourite flower for weddings; in America the orchid is preferred, except for the bridal party, for whom lilies of the valley or orange blossoms are generally provided, the bride carrying a large shower bouquet.

The bridegroom gives his left arm to the bride when conducting her from the vestry down to the bridal carriage.

The bride's mother leaves immediately after the bride and bridegroom, to be in readiness to receive the guests as they arrive. Indeed, when the crowd is great, for her to leave by a side door is not an unusual thing to do in order to hasten her arrival home.

She either receives the guests at the head of the staircase or in the drawing room. The bride's father joins her as soon as he returns to assist in receiving.

There is very little formal leave-taking at a wedding reception as in days gone by. Many of the guests leave from the dining room and do not remain to witness the departure of the bride and bridegroom unless they are intimate acquaintances.

The fashionable bridal gown of today is the simple one, which may be and frequently is far more costly than one laden with frills and furbelows, for a simple gown requires the hand of an artist and rich material. As to fabrics chiffon satin is very popular; in summer chiffon gauze is much used. Jewels, unless wedding gifts or much prized heirlooms, are not worn.

If a widow, the bride wears a gown of light elephant gray or pale lavender or London smoke, usually a travelling gown if she is going away.

WANTED TO BORROW THE ROLLER

The Modest Request of the Bell Telephone Company at Board of Works' Meeting

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night Mr. F. W. Dean, manager of the Bell Telephone Company, was present and asked permission of the Board to borrow the city's road roller, for use in the excavation work which the company is doing on the streets. He explained that the company believed that with its aid they could tear up the streets and put them back again in in shorter time than under the present system.

The Mayor said that there was no objection to making money for the city by renting the road roller, but he thought that the board could not spare its services.

City Engineer Hay was of the opinion that by putting spikes on one wheel of the roller as proposed by the company, it would strain the machine.

The request of the company was, therefore, not granted.

Pupils' Presentation To A Popular Teacher

Mr. T. J. Wallace Given Watch Guard and Gold Pin by Members of His Class in Central School.

A VERY PLEASING EVENT

Mr. T. J. Wallace, who leaves the city next Monday for Toronto, where he has taken a position as assistant to the principal in the new Queen Alexandra School was signally honoured last night, when a deputation representing the pupils in the classes which Mr. Wallace taught in the Public School here waited on him, and on behalf of the whole class presented him with a silk, gold mounted watch fob and a solid gold scarf pin, accompanied by an address in which the regret of the pupils at his departure was expressed. The gathering was a very pleasant one and took place at Mr. Wallace's home. It was a striking evidence of the popularity of the teacher who is leaving the city and will, doubtless serve as a pleasant reminder of his association with the Peterborough schools.

The address was as follows:—

Peterborough, Aug. 26, '07.

Mr. T. J. Wallace, city,

Dear Mr. Wallace, — We, the pupils of your last class, have heard with deep regret that you have severed your connection with the public schools of this city, and are about to remove to Toronto.

While we congratulate you on your promotion we wish to express our sorrow at losing a teacher whose associations with us have been so pleasant and profitable.

We have always held you in the highest esteem both as a gentleman and as a teacher; and if our childish indifference has at any time been trying to your patience, we trust you will over-look it, and by your kindly reproof of such indifference we have every reason to believe you will.

Before you leave us we would ask you kindly to accept this gift as a very slight token of the love and esteem of your late class. In bidding you good-bye we would ask you to accept our best wishes for your success in your new sphere of labour, and we trust that you may long be spared to fill your post of usefulness, being to many boys and girls what you have been to us. We are,

Yours, very sincerely,
Signed on behalf of the class,
VERNA MERRILL,
GLADYS PENTLAND.

Mr. Wallace, in acknowledging the gifts and the address referred to the very pleasant relations which he had experienced with his pupils. It was a genuine regret to him to break these ties which had bound him to his scholars. It was, however, he said, very gratifying to him to know that he was leaving with the consciousness of the fact that he was carrying with him the best wishes of his former pupils. He assured them that he should always prize very highly the gifts of which he had been made the recepient. The young visitors were treated to cake and ice cream prior to their departure, and a delightful evening was spent.

SEABROOK COPPER SAID TO BE VALUABLE

Prospector From Australia Has Been There—Prospects of Opening

Copper mines within three miles of Havelock is a dream of the residents of that village which will probably come true. Within the past few weeks indications point to the opening of the copper mines near Havelock, known as the Seabrook mines. Mr. Rodgers, an Australian prospector, has been there, and, according to his statements, the Seabrook mines are valuable. Three weeks ago he secured a sample of the ore, which appeared to contain copper, and a small percentage of gold, and sent it to experts in Toronto to be assayed. The piece of ore was found near the surface of the mine, and Mr. Rodgers believes that there is copper to the distance of 300 feet below the surface.

It is reported that one of the Seabrook brothers has disposed of his property. Mr. J. Sexsmith is an interested owner of property in the copper circle, and he is also waiting for further developments in the opening of the mines.

NEW SCHEDULE FOR THE EXHIBITION

C. P. R. Local Arrives at 8:40 Instead of 7:40 During the Next Two Weeks

Last night the C. P. R. Local ran an hour later than usual, the new exhibition schedule going into effect. By this new arrangement the train leaves Toronto at 6 o'clock, instead of 5, making its arrival in Peterborough an hour later, of course. During the next two weeks this new schedule will be adhered to.

REPAIR OF BRIDGES TO BE REPORTED ON

City Engineer to Look into Mr. Londerville's Complaint

It was moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by the Mayor that the recommendation of the city engineer to construct the bridge over King street of reinforced concrete be adopted. — Carried.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, the city engineer was instructed to report as to what it would cost to repair the King street bridge and put it in a safe condition. —Carried.

It was moved by Ald. McIntyre and Johnston that the city engineer examine as to whether any work done by the city has aggravated the conditions at Mr. Londerville's residence on Homewood avenue, where water is said to cause trouble, and that if so the engineer have authority to remedy it.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Wilson, the city engineer was instructed to put in an approach on Charlotte street at Thomas street. — Carried.

BARBERS UNION HAD A GOOD MEETING

New Member Admitted—Shops Closed All Day Monday

The local Barbers' Union held a very successful and enthusiastic meeting last night, when another berber was admitted into the union, and was initiated. The local union is very strong and is in a flourishing condition at the present time.

It was decided that the union shops should be kept closed all day Monday next—Labour Day—and the public is asked to remember this fact. Labour Day is the only holiday in the year coming on Monday on which the barbers have the day to themselves.

INSPECTOR BACK FROM TRIP

Mr. Ball Back After Investigation at Stony Lake

Sanitary Inspector George Ball, returned to the city on Saturday night, after spending last week at Stony Lake, where he was investigating the sanitary conditions. The inspector had engaged the steam launch "Evelyn," which enabled him to reach all parts of the lake. He declined to make public the results of his investigations, until he has made a report to the Board of Health, which he will do at the next meeting of that body. It is not likely that there will be much cause for worry, as the general condition seems to be sanitary.

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

Breathe Hyomei and Relief and Cure Will be Guaranteed

If you have catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, difficulty in breathing, raising of mucous discharge from the nose, tickling or dropping from the back of the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hy-o-mei at once.

Hy-o-mei is made from nature's soothing oils and balsams and contains the germ killing properties of the pine woods. Its medication is taken in with the air you breathe, so that it reaches the most remote part of the respiratory organs, killing all catarrhal germs, and soothing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00, and Mr. Madill, the druggist, gives his personal guarantee with each package that money will be refunded unless the treatment does all that is claimed for it.

Any Old Coach Goes
It was in evidence yesterday that the C. P. R. officials appreciate the importance of the Toronto Exhibition, for the reeason that they are calling into requisition all their available passenger coaches, and distributing them along the line between Ottawa and Toronto. A number were hauled through by freight trains yesterday to be left at the several stations, ready for the opening and rush to-day.

A New Way
A well-worn path, on the grounds lately filled in by the city, east of the market — on what was formerly called the water lots — shows that the many employees in the several factories appreciate the short cut it affords, it being a short cut to their work. Since the C. P. R. had several citizens in the court—and fined at that—the runway spoken of affords a pleasant relief from the police court.

Igorrotes at the Fair
Visitors to the Canadian National Exhibition will again have an opportunity of studying at close range the barbaric Igorrotes from the Philippine Islands, whose village last year created such a sensation in Toronto. more interesting than it was last The exhibit this year will be even year and visitors will see the world's most interesting wild people live as they live at home. Grass-thatched huts will dot the enclosure and all around the primitive industries of these strange people will be seen in operation.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?
Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for Sthes strong and alert — for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health and for this reason and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

SHOULD CALL A RUGBY MEETING

If the Club is to be in the Running at a This Year

The rugby feeling seems to be in the air in other places, but has apparently not struck Peterborough yet. If there is to be anything doing in the pigskin line here this fall an early start should be made, and the sooner the annual meeting is called the better it will be for the club. It behooves the officials of the club to get things under way at once, if the local kickers are to be in the championship race this fall.

BLOOD SUBSTITUTE.

Why Saline Solution is Sometimes Injected Into the Veins.

Occasionally in cases of serious wounds where there has been great loss of blood the published reports state that "saline solution" was injected into the veins to supply the deficiency. The average reader, however, has a very vague if any idea how a solution of salt takes the place of blood.

Not to go into a complete analysis of the blood, it is sufficient to note that of 1,000 parts, 780.15 is composed of water, albumen 65 parts, sodium and potassium 8.371, coloring matter (supplied by the red blood corpuscles) 133, leaving only some 12 parts to be composed of fibrin, fat, calcium and magnesium, etc. Where there is serious loss of blood a state of collapse sets in because, the normal weight of blood being reduced, the heart's action is diminished, there being less resistance for that organ to overcome.

To counteract the result of shock and collapse it is necessary to stimulate the heart by restoring the normal weight; in other words, to get it to work by giving it something to work on. As the analysis shows, of 1,000 parts of blood nearly 800 are composed of water and sodium, and therefore a plain saline solution makes a good substitute. The heart does not know the difference, and it goes to pumping away as usual as soon as this imitation blood gets in the veins. The saline solution serves to tide the patient over the danger point. As the food is converted into chyle, new blood is formed, the red corpuscles are supplied rapidly from the normal tissues, and the saline solution is thrown off through the secretions in the usual way.

Formerly transfusion of blood was the means employed, but this always objectionable method has been supplanted. The greatest objection to the transfusion of blood from one person to another was that to supply the necessary amount to restore the wounded patient it was inevitable that the volunteer should be almost as badly drained, so that the physician would have two patients on his hands where he had one. Besides, there was always the risk of transfusing disease to the patient with the other's blood. Dogs and sheep have been sacrificed to surgery for this purpose, but most people prefer to use blood of their own manufacture to any imported from beasts or their fellow creatures.

Women's Love of Ugly Men.

The illustrious men in history who were distinguished as much for the fascination which they exercised over the fair sex as for their talents and ability were, as a rule, plain and insignificant in appearance. Julius Caesar was a very ill favored man, and yet when a mere strippling, before his fame in Rome, girls of his own age sighed for him and mature women longed for his love. Among the men of later times who were renowned in like manner were Sir Philip Sidney, plain almost to ugliness; Paul Scarron, the comic poet, a cripple; Voltaire, unmistakably ugly, and Rousseau, whose manners were awkward as his face was plain, while John Wilkes, who had the power to subjugate any woman who spoke to him for even five minutes, was admitted by his own showing to be the ugliest man in England in his time.

The Toe Nails.

Owing to the friction and pressure to which toe nails are exposed in all persons who wear boots or shoes there is a great tendency to thickening on the underpart of the free growth, the portion of the nail that extends beyond the toe point. This thickened part sometimes gets pressed against the flesh, and then very painful corns result. The preventive treatment is to keep the nails cut short and to remove the rather soft thickened parts with a blunt pocket knife or scissors blade.

A Grand Benefactor.

I take off my hat
And I bow myself flat
To the man who invented ice cream.
A chap of that kind
Should have, to my mind,
Affection, regard and esteem.
When summer is here
How pleasant to steer
Away to an ice cream saloon,
A shady retreat
In some quiet street,
And feed our glad face with a spoon.

Some people apply
Their money on pie
Or gnaw at the festive red hot,
And some, it is queer,
Will tell you that beer
Will trickle its way to the spot.
Just give me a dime
When out for a time
And tell me to spend it for cream,
For then I can know
The moments will flow
Away in a beautiful dream.

When it is as hot
As newly made shot,
One hundred or so in the shade,
And every old thing
Is limp as a string,
To what do we turn for first aid?
I know right away
Just what you will say,
Because you are wise to the scheme.
And so I may state
We turn to a plate
Of nothing at all but ice cream.

Lost or Strayed.

Where is our wandering gulf stream tonight?

There is a rumor that that useful current of water has departed from its usual haunts and is wandering away in strange waters and not tending to its regular task of modifying the climate of various countries.

A gulf stream is like several other useful things—we never miss it until it is gone. One may have a perfectly good gulf stream and take it quite as a matter of course, but he raises an awful holler when it begins washing the feet of some other land for a change.

Let us hope, however, that this is but a boyish prank and that it will soon be back. The gulf stream isn't more than several hundred thousand years old, and too much in the way of stability should not be expected of it.

PALATABLE PUDDINGS.

Bread Pudding With Meringue and a Frozen Glace.

Bread Pudding With Meringue.—One and a half cups of milk, one kitchen cupful of breadcrumbs, three eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, the grated rind and juice of one lemon. Mix all together and bake twenty minutes. When the pudding is cold cover the top with preserves. Beat light the whites of two eggs with pulverized sugar for a meringue and drop it on in the shape of pyramids. Brown lightly in the oven.

Frozen Pudding Glace.—One pint of milk, quarter of a pound of raisins, a small piece of cinnamon stick, two ounces of sweet almonds, quarter of a pound of sugar, the yolks of two eggs, two ounces of preserved cherries, one ounce of citron, one pint of cream and two limes. First boil together the raisins and milk slowly for fifteen minutes. In the milk have the stick cinnamon to give it a flavor. Strain the milk and return it to the saucepan. Put on the fire to boil. Put into a small bowl the yolks of two eggs and add the sugar. Beat them well together, and when the milk boils take it from the fire. When it cools a little add to it the yolks and sugar, a little at a time, mixing all the time. Put all into a saucepan and add the raisins. Stir this over the fire until it begins to thicken. Blanch and fine two ounces of almonds and add them to the mixture, also the cherries and citron. Cut into small pieces, remove the stick of cinnamon and cut each lime into four pieces and add. Dip a mold in cold water, and when the mixture is cool enough put in the cream, then pour the whole into the mold and freeze.

WEDDING PRESENTS.

No Obligation to Send Gift When Only Invited to the Church.

Gifts are sent to the bride from one to two weeks before the time appointed for her marriage. No person will dispatch a gift until after the receipt of cards, for such action might be taken as a demand for a wedding card.

If the guest is invited to the church only, there is no obligation to send a gift. Mere acquaintances favored with invitations to the church often send flowers on the day of the wedding. Every one receiving an invitation to the reception or breakfast should promptly send an appropriate present, accompanied by his or her card.

Friends should avoid duplicating gifts. Consultation on the subject would prevent such duplication. It is a common occurrence for a bride to receive a dozen cut glass bowls or salad spoons. In large cities where space is at a premium in apartments, a young housekeeper seldom has room or use for a dozen cut glass bowls. When the giver is intimate enough, as an uncle or aunt, a check is a welcome gift. Select a useful article if the bride is not wealthy.

The best man sometimes sets aside the rule of etiquette that requires all wedding presents to be given to the bride, and bestows some token of personal regard upon the groom. In this case he selects a silver toilet article, a smoking set or some similar gift, and sends it to the groom's home.

Man's Unwisdom.

The simplest and plainest laws of health are outraged every hour of the day by the average man. Did Adam smoke? Did Eve wear corsets? Did Solomon chew tobacco? Did Ruth chew gum? Did the children of Israel make for a beer garden after crossing the Red sea? Did Rebecca eat gumdrops and ice cream and call for soda water? Adam was the first and was made perfect from head to heel. How long would he remain so after eating a mince pie before going to bed? Suppose he had slept in a bedroom five by seven, with the windows down, the door shut and two dogs under the bed? Suppose Eve had laced herself up in a corset, put on tight shoes, sat up all hours of the night eating her fill of trash and sizzled her hair. When you come to look at the way a man misbehaves himself you can only wonder he ever lived to get there. Verily, the average man behaves as if he were little better than a fool.

A Pony Sentinel.

During one of General Custer's Indian campaigns he had a boy bugler with him who was mounted on a circus pony he had picked up somewhere. The animal was not only full of tricks, but he proved himself a better sentinel than any of the soldiers. Three times in four months he saved the camp from a night attack when no other suspected that danger was near. Upon one occasion the pony, who was loose and walking about camp, discovered a sentinel asleep on his post. That was wrong, and the animal knew it was, and he gave the soldier such a bite on the arm as caused him to yell out and arouse the whole camp. Pony and boy both died in Custer's last battle. The pony had twelve arrows in his body when found.

GREAT CANAL SCHEME.

Mr. R. W. Perks Speaks On Canadian Enterprise.

Mr. R. W. Perks, M.P., one of the most eminent laymen in Methodism in England, and also one of the largest contractors of the old country, recently was a visitor to Toronto. He spoke here before the Toronto Methodist Conference.

His business purpose in coming to the Dominion was to look into the proposition of constructing a $100,000,000 ship canal in Canada. While in this country he made no announcements of significance on this scheme. A few days ago he arrived back in England and gave an interview to The London Daily News, which is published as follows:

The great £20,000,000 Canadian canal scheme has been advanced a big stage, and all estimates, etc., are now ready for the consideration of the Canadian Government.

Mr. R. W. Perks, M.P., landed from the White Star liner Celtic, from New York Sunday night. He has been eight weeks in America in connection with this enterprise, and during that period he has traversed the route for the projected canal from end to end, acting in this survey for the company which will undertake the construction of this new ship canal, in conjunction with Messrs. C. H. Walker & Co., the firm of London engineering contractors, in which Mr. Perks is a partner. They were interested in the construction of the Manchester Ship Canal.

The new scheme is to provide a Canadian ship canal which will enable ocean-going steamships to transport the grain and other produce from the interior of the Dominion direct to Liverpool by water. The new waterway is to extend from Georgian Bay through three of the great lakes and down the Ottawa River to Montreal and the St. Lawrence. The plans provide for a depth all the way sufficient to take any vessel drawing up to 24 feet. Obviously, a great Canadian waterway, directly connecting the fertile interior with the Atlantic liner services, should prove an invaluable aid to the rapid development of the productive resources of Canada.

"My plans," said Mr. Perks, "are now all formulated, and ready for presentation to the Canadian Government, and I am to see the Dominion Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the subject in London next week. I have carefully scrutinized and checked the estimates of revenue and all the various engineering details, and I have conferred with my friends in America and in Canada as to the best methods of putting the business into practical form. That has now been done. I shall, after my interview with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, probably return to Canada to get the business completed."

SLEEPING OUTDOORS.

The Practice Not Limited to Consumptives Nowadays.

Outdoor sleeping has grown in favor with recent years. Time was when it was limited to consumptives and faddists, but nowadays every one advocates the practice more or less. Especially is it to be recommended for children as tending to increase their strength and improve their health, fitting them, in fact, for the battle of life in a manner which no system of favors and pampering could ever do, says the Philadelphia North American.

This does not at all mean that the method is to be a rigorous one. Above all, the child should be warmly and comfortably wrapped and protected from draughts of all sorts. In the first place, this open air slumber is primarily intended for daytime naps, and should not become the regular nightly practice unless the whole household is accustomed to it. As to the sleeping couch, it may be either a sofa on the porch, a cot furnished as hereafter described, a swinging hammock or even a large armchair. Whatever piece of furniture may be chosen should be well provided with pillows and with a warm shawl, quilt or summer rug.

The cot should be spread with a mattress of some colored goods—cretonne or chintz—and a small pillow to match. Then around three sides, excepting only that which is protected by the wall or some other object, a stiffly quilted, very thin mattress should be placed in such a manner as effectually to shut out the wind.

This outdoor sleeping should begin early in childhood. Probably when the child first walks is the best time to initiate him in this new fad, which is, after all, not a fad, for it is highly conducive to health and—a point of interest to the mothers of girl babies—is even said to increase the child's chances for future beauty.

It is never, however, too late to mend, and no matter how much older than this your child may be let him start now to sleep outdoors. The warm weather will keep him from any discomfort now, and by autumn it will probably be a hard task to drive him indoors at all.

A pound for the secure keeping of all wild ants and mosquitoes would meet with the enthusiastic support of campers out.

LIFT LOCK TENT WAS ORGANIZED

New Branch of the Order of the Maccabees Has Been Formed in Peterborough

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

With an initial membership of 20, and with most encouraging prospects, a new Tent of the Knights of the Maccabees was organized in Peterborough last night. The new branch of the Order will be known as Lift Lock Tent, and has not yet been assigned a number.

The organization ceremonies were in charge of Provincial Lieut. Commander Yule of Colborne and District Deputy John Titterson, and took place in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street.

The following officers were elected:—
Commander—E J Koen.
Lieut. Commander — E J Waterman.
Record Keeper—W T Holloway.
Chaplain—N King.
Physician—Dr. Leach.
Sergeant—M E Spence.
Master-at-Arms—C Luffman.
1st M of G—H Meehan.
2nd M of G—T E Hall.
Sentinel—F A Coates.
Picket—T E Munden.
Trustees—W J Johnston, E J Koen, W T Holloway.

The new Tent will meet on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street.

The new branch of the Maccabees should prove a most successful venture. A number of applications for membership, in addition to those already entered have been received, and the Tent promises to be a strong and flourishing one.

EXCURSION FROM COLD SPRINGS TO IDYL WYLD

About 200 Enjoyed the Day Yesterday Down the Otonabee

About 200 went down the Otonabee river on the Cold Springs Union Sunday School of Otonabee, yesterday on the steamer Otonabee. The day was spent at Idyl Wyld where a number of sports were run off, and despite the threatening weather, the day was pleasantly spent.

Was Instantly Killed In A Rear End Collision

Edward Wassboro, a C. P. R. Freight Conductor of Toronto Junction, Meets a Tragic Death at Manvers Station This Morning

In a rear-end collision between two freight trains at Manvers station, 18 miles west of here, this morning, Edward Wansboro, a C.P.R. freight conductor, who lived in Toronto Junction, was instantly killed, and other trainmen had narrow escapes. The accident occurred at 7.45 o'clock. Train No. 250, a freight, going from Toronto Junction to Havelock, was standing on the main line at Manvers station, when another freight train, No. 350, crashed into the rear of the standing train, instantly killing Wansboro and telescoping four cars. Wansboro, with a number of other trainmen, was being brought from Toronto Junction to Havelock to take charge of trains there. The men were in two cabooses, attached to the rear of No. 250, Wansboro being in the second caboose.

There were lying down in the caboose and did not know of the approaching danger until one of them heard the on-coming engine whistle for down brakes, and gave the alarm. All the occupants of the caboose except Wansboro were able to make their escape in time. He, however, evidently did not hear the alarm, and was caught in the crash, being instantly killed. A large splinter of wood penetrated his chest, making a terrible hole, and the poor fellow probably never knew what had happened.

The crew of the moving train made their escape by jumping when they realized that a collision was unavoidable. None of them were hurt, and the train was not damaged by the crash. It was moving very slowly, the speed being not more than five miles an hour. The semaphore was set against the train, and the engineer began to put on brakes a mile away from the scene of the accident. When he saw the other train on the line about 12 or 15 car lengths ahead he applied all the brakes, but they did not seem to hold.

The standing train was badly damaged, the three cabooses and the last freight car in the string being telescoped, blocking the line for some hours.

Edward Wansboro, the conductor, who was killed was a resident of Toronto Junction. He was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and three children. Chief Train Despatcher Wansboro of Toronto, is a brother of the deceased.

Train No. 350, the moving train, was in charge of Conductor M. R. Grieve. He states that he was at the rear of the train and did not see the accident at all.

Brakeman Knapp, of train No. 350, says that he did not realize that there was going to be an accident until the train was about six car lengths away. The brakes had been applied a mile away from the scene of the accident.

Conductor R. J. Hay was in charge of the standing train. He states that his train was waiting at Manvers for water, and he was in the station getting orders at the time the collision occurred.

Engineer John Ritchie of train No. 350, did not known that there was another train on the line, and did not see the train until his engine was 12 or 15 car lengths away. The brakes, he said, did not seem to hold, and the engine, moving about five miles an hour, struck the rear of the other train.

Coroner Dr. Grey went to the scene of the accident on the 8 o'clock train, and decided to hold an inquest. It will be opened at 5.30 o'clock this evening at Manvers station, where the body of the deceased was taken.

The other trainmen made their escapee, and owe the preservation of their lives to the fact that one of their number was awake, and heard the whistle.

Strange Freak Of Lightning At Springville Village

Horse Killed in Centre of Field Where Similar Death Happened One Year Ago—Deadly Fluid Spared Little Colt.

TELEPHONE LINE INJURED

Lightning again demonstrated its freakishness on Saturday morning last near Springville, during a rather severe electric storm which passed over the village. The deadly fluid struck and instantly killed a horse belonging to Mr. John Heasman, but spared the little colt that sported beside its mother.

Another peculiar feature of the incident was that the animal was standing in the middle of a field, and was not in contact with any tree, pole or other obstacle, which usually is known to carry the fluid into the ground.

But the strangest part of the circumstance was that about a year ago a horse was killed within a few feet of the same spot also by lightning. The residents of the village are therefore led to believe that the earth in the fatal field contains some substance with an unusual attraction for electricity.

The telephone line at Springville was disabled by the same flash of lightning.

American Tourists Are Good For The Merchants

Visitors to the City From the Other Side This Summer Spend More Money Than Ever Before.

BUSINESS MEN PLEASED

"Tourist trade this season is the best in the history of our business in Peterborough," remarked a George street business man to the Examiner to-day. He stated that while possibly the number of visitors on their way to and from the lakes this year may not have been quite as large as it was in some former years, they were apparently of the buying kind, and they spent their money more freely. This is the experience of the local jewelry and souvenir goods stores, and they refer to the summer season, now about over, in the most glowing terms. The majority of those whose purchases are the cause of the present feeling of jubilation on the part of the local business men, are said to be Americans, and the extent of their buying leaves no room to doubt that for the present, at any rate, there is no danger of a cessation to the prosperity of that country.

During the last few days there has been a considerable rush of Americans in the city, and the merchants have felt the effects of their visit,

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION BLEW FOUR WORKMEN TO PIECES

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, August 28. — Daniel Flynn of Ottawa, was killed yesterday in a bad accident at the G. T. R. camp at Canyon Lake, near Kenora. Flynn, with three assistants, an Italian, an Austrian and an Indian, was drilling the rock for the tracking, when a charge exploded with great violence, and all four men were blown to pieces. Fortunately the rest of the workmen were in shelter or more would have been killed as the force of the explosion was felt for a great distance. The four dead men belonged to Parson's camp, No. 5. The remains had to be collected in boxes so scattered were the parts of the bodies. They were brought to Kenora and an inquest will be held tomorrow afternoon.

SMALLER YIELD OF WHEAT BUT HIGHER PRICES WILL MAKE UP

A local gentleman who has recently returned from the Canadian West, states that from the best information he could gain while he was away, the wheat crop there this year will be in the neighbourhood of seventy-five or eighty million bushels, considerably less than the crop of 1906. In spite of this fact, however, he believes that the farmers will be as well situated as they were last year, because the additional prices for their grain this year will make up for the slight decrease in the yield.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL ROUTE

Yesterday in these columns reference was made to the receipt of the new railway map issued by the Department of the Interior. The route of the Grand Trunk Pacific, as located is thus described in a summary of the contents of the map, made by The Globe:

For many people, the most interesting feature of the map will be the route of the National Transcontinental Railway as it has been definitely and finally located. The eastern division trends a little north of east from Winnipeg so as to pass to the north of Lake Nepigon; and then it takes a direction south of east, so as to pass north of, but close to, Lake Abitibi, until it reaches the upper part of St. Maurice, not far from Quebec City. After crossing this it turns rapidly south to the north shore of the St. Lawrence, which it follows to the great bridge just west of the city of Quebec. From that point it runs parallel to the south shore of the St. Lawrence, almost equidistant from it and the boundary of Maine, till it reaches the St. John River, along which it runs by way of Edmundston to Grand Falls. Leaving the valley of the St. John at that point, it crosses Central New Brunswick by way of Chipman to Moncton. The line thus located turns out to be singularly close to the route forecasted when the railway was projected exactly four years ago. Near Lac Seul or Lonely Lake the branch line to Fort William leaves the eastern division. The distance from Moncton to Winnipeg is 1,853 miles, of which 395 are under construction, while tenders have been asked for 457 more. This is, of course, exclusive of the branch to Fort William.

The length of the western division from Winnipeg to Prince Rupert, on the Pacific Ocean, is 1,743 miles, making a total from Moncton of 3,596. There is under construction from Winnipeg to Edmonton a stretch of 789 miles, and the line has been definitely located from Edmonton to the Coast, 954. The total mileage under construction along the whole Transcontinental main line is 1,128, and the additional mileage, for which tenders have been asked, is 457.

The western division trends slightly north of west from Winnipeg to the upper part of the Assiniboine River, and then runs more northwesterly by way of Saskatoon on the south branch of the Saskatchewan to Edmonton on the north branch. Thence it runs west to Jaspar House, and soon leaves the valley of the Saskatchewan for that of the upper Fraser, which it follows northwesterly to the great bend. From the valley of the Nechaco, a branch of the Fraser from the west, it passes over a low-water parting into the valley of the Skeena, near the mouth of which it terminates at Prince Rupert. It is interesting to note that it passes a little to the north of Fort George and Fort Fraser, and a good deal farther to the south of Fort St. James, which has been for three-quarters of a century the headquarters of the Hudson's Bay Company in upper British Columbia, after having served for another quarter of a century the same purpose for the Northwest Fur Company. These forts were established under the regime of Simon Fraser, who first navigated the great river to tide water, and whose daughter's death took place in Toronto a few days ago.

THE NATIONAL EXHIBITION

Toronto may wrestle in vain with her water-front and street railway problems, but she has reason to be proud of the Canadian National Exhibition, held within her gates. Yesterday, the 29th annual exposition was opened with due pomp and circumstance by the Canadian representative of King Edward, Earl Grey. Since the exhibition ceased to be parochial, and became national, it has become truly national, not only an industrial exhibition in the broad sense, but a Dominion institution of great social value. It permits of the annual mingling of the different sections of this country, and also attracts a large element of our American cousins. In a broad sense, it is a national stock-taking, and allows to see how we are getting on in the world. Not only Toronto, but the country has reason to be proud of the National Exhibition.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Krabenshue airship is to be a successful feature of the Toronto Exhibition if it doesn't get tangled up in its own name.

Mr. Rockefeller evidently thinks he can't keep his grip on the coal oil corner. He is backing two men, who claim to be able to make gas from corn cobs.

The escaped lunatic abroad, armed with a revolver, which he knows is loaded, isn't much more dangerous than the sane lunatic, with a rifle or revolver, which he doesn't know is loaded.

The way the British people took to General Botha, when he visited the Colonial Conference, doubtless inclines him to think the King would appreciate the gift of another kind of rough diamond.

A sergeant in the permanent militia of Canada is paid at the rate of a dollar a day, while a man of the same rank in the United States army gets only $18 per month. Is the explanation admissible that the figures mentioned are a measure of the relative value of the two men?

Lieut.-General Smith-Dorien, who commanded the division of which the first Canadian contingent formed a part on the march to Pretoria, has been appointed a general officer commanding the Aldershot district, vice General Sir John French, promoted to succeed H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught as Inspector General. Each has many friends in Canada, who will wish them luck in their new posts.

The distances from Montreal and Halifax respectively, to a number of transatlantic ports, are given in a table on the new Dominion railway map, as follows: To Liverpool, from the above ports, respectively, 2,760 and 2,485 geographical miles; to Glasgow, 2,693 and 2,408; to London, 3,241 and 2,719; to Southampton, 3,062 and 2,540; to Gibraltar, 3,194 and 2,671; and to Cape Town, 7,108 and 6,425. From Churchill, on Hudson's Bay, to Liverpool is 2,926 miles.

The marvellous growth of the West is emphasized by the statement that there are 1,201 grain elevators with a capacity of over 55,000,000 bushels already built in the Canadian West. "That's not so bad," remarks the Ottawa Free Press, "for a country which, twenty years ago, was practically unworked." And yet we have only scratched the immense surface of the great West. Where one bushel of wheat is now grown there could be grown a thousand, if unoccupied lands were brought under crop.

The Mail and Empire, and other Conservative journals, find fault with the manner of construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. It is pointed out that the company's portion of the road, to be constructed in the west, will be finished for traffic, before the eastern or government section, will be begun. As a matter of fact, east of Winnipeg, in February, 1907, there were 395 miles under construction between Moncton and Winnipeg, and tenders are invited for 457 miles, which, together with the length under construction, makes 395 out of the 1853 miles from Moncton to Winnipeg.

Some newspapers and correspondents are gifted with clairvoyance. They see into the very soul of Sir Wilfrid Laurier; they see the conflicts that rage there over the question of filling Dominion Cabinet vacancies. If everyone statesman should be grateful to the press it is Sir Wilfird. He has had enough Cabinet material thrust upon him for half a dozen new Cabinets; he has been the object of enough advice to wreck the strongest government. Yet he goes on in the even tenor of his way and is apparently doing as he likes. He will fill the Cabinet vacancies in good time, and he will fill them well. If everybody is not satisfied, the country will, at least, profit by good administration. There is no need to get hysterical over Cabinet vacancies or their filling.

SCALES RESPONSIBLE FOR LIGHT CHEESE

Five in One Load Found to Be Short at Market This Morning

More cheese were weighed at the market this morning which were light in weight. From one waggon, five were placed on the scales at the market, all of which showed that the factory weight was light. In one case a cheese was a pound and a half below the mark, taking into consideration the half pound that should be allowed for shrinkage. The shortage in this case was due, no doubt, to the factory scales, as the gentleman who brought the cheese to the market suspected them to be wrong. There were no indications to show that he attempted to conceal his knowledge that the cheese were not up to the mark in weight, and the five weighed were taken from the rearend of the load.

NEW HAY ADVANCING IN PRICE

Best Quality Brings $15 Per Ton—Supply is Light

As predicted in this paper some time ago, the price of hay is on the upward march. The best new hay at the market these days cannot be purchased at a price less than $15 per ton, and the supply is by no means equal to the demand. Old hay has practically all disappeared, and can scarcely be bought at any price.

Address On Stepping Stones To Success

Delivered Monday Night at Park Street Baptist Church by Young Student---Listened to by Members of Both Baptist Young Peoples' Unions

Last night a farewell address was delivered in the Park Street Baptist church by Mr. R. A. Jackson, son of Mr. Thos. Jackson, Bolivar Street, who leaves on Saturday next to reassume his studies in the Woodstock College. Present was a large number from both the Young Peoples' Unions of Park Street and Murray Street Baptist churches, who listened with profit to the address which was as follows—

When one thinks of the thousands who have made the greatest of success in this life, who at the beginning had not the ghost of a chance, should we not be ashamed of ourselves who have been born with so many gifts in our favour and natural talents. Do you think your lot is hard? Young man are you discouraged? Or do you think that times are not what they used to be? Let me urge you to stand erect in the vigor of your manhood, and resolve with the power of your being that you shall and will be a light and a distinguished guide post in the world.

You may look out upon life and see those around you who fail, but that is no reason why you should allow fear to enter into your life.

There is not an occupation or profession that has not been glorified by men in the past, who at first were no greater than you are. I care not what occupation you may be following, you can by the powers you possess immortalize your own name that it will never die on the pages of history.

Don't wait till you are a Napoleon before you strat, you might as well wait until you become a skillful swimmer before you went into the water. It is waiting until you become great, or waiting till you get good and ready, or waiting until you can make up your mind that finds you an old man before you get started. All the magnificent conflicts and toils, victories and defeats come after you start.

It is the start that is the supreme moment. Thousands are standing on the bank shivering instead of jumping in and becoming warm with their own efforts in the water. Thousands never start because they are afraid that they cannot succeed, and thousands of others never start because they cannot see ahead to the goal. Thousands of others never start because they think they have not been offered enough for their services. One reason is as bad as another, what difference does it make to the dead if he died by accident or slow death? What difference does it make to one why he doesn't start if he doesn't? Are you disheartened? Are you afraid you will make a start thon fail, and your last condition be worse than your first. You have the sympathy of all successful men, for they had their misgivings at some time. But your suppositions are wrong, you have success within yourself, to start is half the battle. A start towards usefulness is one that man never made in vain. Every man and every genius in all history started before they could do anything. We learn by doing and in no other way. Napoleon acquired the talents of a great general by fighting the small battles first and afterwards came the great battles, and success in the smaller, determined the same in the larger and great.

A little man with a little mind can make a big business small. A big man with a big mind can make a little business great.

Are you afraid you cannot succeed? The great men of the past commencing as you are have left the lights burning along the way to success as a guide. To succeed is but the natural way to live. To fail is contrary to nature. Do you think, the work in which you are engaged is not worth your supreme effort. Perchance the work may not be, but you are worth your supreme effort, because it is you that is being made not the work. Do you think your services are underestimated, and you are waiting for your price If you do you do you are cutting off your own head You are putting between you and success a pile of rocks a mile high, when you refuse to take what you can get, you imply a lack of confidence in yourself. It is a mistaken idea to think your employer will keep your wages down if you deserve to have them raised. The salary you begin on has nothing to do with your success.

What you can earn has everything to do with it.

Don't be afraid of being underpaid.: the idea itself is enough to cause your ruin. If a man wants a situation it pays to get it at any price, yu still would be earning more than if you were continally looking for a better, and never finding one. Don't think your services are underestimated, if you get a employer that does not appreciate your services, he couldn't keep you long. Others would hire you at an advance in salary Just as surely as water seeks its own level, you will get what is coming to you in the long run.

Most of our great men started on a low salary. It wasn't the salary that made them but the position.

Robert C. Clowry commenced as a messenger boy in Joliet, Illinois, working the first six months without a cent and did odd jobs to get supply to sustain life. He had but one object, to hold his unsalaried position. He said he always made it a point to do more than was required of him and to look after the employer's business. After six months he expected to get a promotion. He did; not amounting to one but ten, He was given an office. He never stopped learning, he never stopped climbing until he had the highest position in the business—President of the Western Union Telegraph Co. It was just fifty years from the time he started to work without salary until he was president of the Western Union. If he had demanded even a small salary at the start it might have been different. If he had been satisfied with his first promotion all would have been different and our telegraph system less complete. But he never stopped learning and he never stopped growing.

Getting started is the greatest of all steps to success, and any man or boy who would be successful in this life, say get a position regardless of salary be glad you can get such, to fit yourself for the future. It is an inspiration a man to be in business even if his salary is unreasonably small. If the salary was the only thing he was in business for, he might as well quit perhaps and become a tramp, but the salary has absolutely nothing to do with it. I repeat it, it is the "position" get the "position." Put into it twice as much as is expected of you. Rejoice you can get the experience without having to pay for it. Rejoice that you are a part of the world's works, and become useful to humanity, and just as sure as the sun rises in the morning so your salary will also rise.

Young man have high ideals in life aim at the sun and you will hit some place near it, aim at the earth and you will always be the same as you are now. Aim to be something in this world. The saddest of all spectacles is to see a young man without any aim in life, but just going around content to enjoy nothing.

Then again to be successful it means control of habits, the business men used to limit right conduct to while on duty, bbut now, right conduct on and off duty They are not looking for a neverous, unsettled tobacco fiend or a whiskey soaked maddened brain to do their business, but young men with the right aim in life. To do this we must be possess, or of "courage."

All the world recdres courage. It is the symbol of honour, glory and renown It causes men to brave the mountains of ice and snow, and the hardships of an Arctic sea bearing the heat of a tropical sun or face the fevers of the wild beasts of the jungle, in their search for that which enriches mankind; and it carries man into the bowels of the earth or to the highest peaks in quest of the precious metal. We are inspired by the lives of such men. We delight to honour the brave men of every age who have faced trials and tribulations almost unendurable; aye, even banishment, the gallows and the cross, that we might have life and have it more abundantly.

There is another form of courage that is too often made light of, it is the courage to abstain from weakness, folly and sin. There are thousands of boys and young men who have not the courage to say "no" when a chew of tobacco or a cigar is offered them by a companion. Men will take into their systems that which deadens their higher senses lowers their moral tone, lessens their manliness, and unfits them for the parlour or the society of women while engaged in their unwholesome practice that makes every place in which they congregate a den of filth and themselves slaves to a habit loathsome to humanity, and a barrier to the highest development of the race, all for the lack of courage to refuse tobacco in any form, and because of the foolish thought that the stuff would make them men. No young man would place in the presence of a refined company a tobacco-stained spittoon. But is such a thing any worse looking than a young man's mouth? And out of that mouth comes such a stench as to sicken humanity. It gives one a breath so foul as to detract from the man business is lost. A great many people are compelled to be dodging a tobacco breath instead of enjoying the conversation. The time to cure all evil habbits is before they are formed.

What is true of the tobacco habit is also true of the "whiskey habit". The most eloquent denunciation of the liquor traffic I ever heard is given by Robert G. Ingersoll. A large part of Ingersoll's life was wasted in trying to see the bad in churches instead of the good. Although such was his stand, he said many inspiring things. It pays to see the good in people instead of always looking on the faults. He says of the liquor:—

"I am aware that there is a prejudice against any man engaged in the manufacture of liquor. I believe from the time it issues from the coiled and poisonous worm in the distillery until it empties into the hell of death, dishonour and crime, that it demoralizes everybody, that touches it, from its source to where it ends. I do not believe anyone contemplate the subject without becoming prejudiced against it. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the insanity, of the poverty, of the ignorance, of the destitution of the little children tugging at the faded and weary breasts of weeping and despairing wives, asking for bread; of the talented men of genius it has wrecked, and men struggling with imaginary serpents produced by this devilish thing; and when you think of the jails, almhouses, asylums, of the scaffolds on either side I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against the stuff called alcohol."

And yet there are those who have not the manly courage to refuse it. There are many other sources that young men are steadily being defiled and led away by. Young man I say, "have courage" and take a stand that your deeds may shine out as the stars of the firmament

Give us the courage to own up to our mistakes, that is another virtue that should be written in letters of fire across the sky. It is not so bad to make a mistake, but, it is fatal to try to cover it over. Give us the courage to withhold the hasty reply or the stinging blow. Any one can engage in a fist fight, but it takes ten times the courage to refrain from it.

Give us courage to be absolutely frank fearless, honest and true. It will light on the heart, glorify the soul, and bring into the face a glow of beauty and righteousness, which grows brighter and brighter unto the perfect day.

There is not much difference between the man who is being successful and the man who is failing, the man who is going ahead by great strides and the man who is doing business on a small scale. The only difference is one man has found himself, the other has not; one man knows he can succeed and the other is not sure. The rate at which a man's capacity for doing things is developed is wonderful. We can do little in one day that is sure, but if we do it with vim and energy, we are stronger to-morrow and can do more, we think out a new idea in our minds. Thinking and putting into action the thoughts are what make the men. The dreamers think but do not accomplish anything because they do not act.

When you are sufficiently aroused to know that you can do a thing and the idea sets you on fire with enthusiasm, it marks an epoch in your life. And when an emergency comes up you are surprised how easy and well you done the undertaking; that is finding one's self. Doing better than one expected is finding one's self, then is surprising how rapidly you grow. You have the possibility, cultivate it.

A man finds himself by doing. The bird will never learn to fly as long as it stays in the nest. The first few times it tries, it does not fly far, but it finds itself, and at last soars above the clouds. Young men discouver themselves the same way.

Find yourself, don't be satisfied with the first "find" there is more there. A man's possibilities are practically unlimited.

Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing leave behind us
Foot prints, on the sands of time.

The Sufferings of the Dyspeptic

DUE TO NEGLECTING TO KEEP THE LIVER RIGHT, THE DIGESTION GOOD, THE BOWELS HEALTHY BY USING

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

You may shudder to think of yourself as a dyspeptic—as one who, through stomach troubles, has come to look on the dark side of things, and to be ill-tempered and grouchy—but if you neglect treatment for repeated attacks of indigestion you will most assuredly become a chronic dyspeptic.

The great mistake is to put the blame on the stomach, and strive in vain for lasting benefit from tablets and so-called digestives. The real cause of trouble in nine cases out of ten is with the liver.

Thousands of persons are being cured of complicated cases of indigestion by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their direct action on the liver, thus ensuring a good flow of bile—good digestion and healthful action of the bowels.

Mr. C. D. Bennett, Maple Grove, Megantic Co., Que., writes: "I had dyspepsia very bad. The food would sour, my stomach would swell up, I suffered a great deal and could not sleep. As the result of using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I am now entirely cured, and can eat any kind of food without feeling any bad effects. They have made a new man and a younger man of me, and I cannot say too much in their praise.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment cured a friend of mine of piles when he was so bad he could not work or even stand up."

Mr. Wm. G. Purdy, Bridgetown, N. S., writes:—"When I wrote to you for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I was a sufferer from kidney disease, stomach troubles, and liver and bowel disorders. By using one pill at bedtime every night my health has gradually improved until I can say that I am in better health than I have been for twenty years. All other medicines failed, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me."

This treatment is thorough, far-reaching and of lasting benefit, and cures the most severe cases of chronic and intestinal indigestion, as well as biliousness and constipation; 25 cts. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

VISITING FORESTERS ADDRESS THE BRETHREN

An Interesting Meeting of Court Stanley, A. O. F. Last Night

The regular meeting of Court Stanley, A.O.F., was held last night in the S. O. E. Hall. There was a good attendance of members, the C. R., Bro. T. Hendry, being in the chair. The members were pleased to have with them again Bro. Geo R. Record, after a couple of years absence, he having filled the office of secretary for eleven years. He said that it gave him great pleasure to meet with the members again, and it is the wish of the court that Bro. Record may be able to arrange matters so as to locate here. Speeches were also made by Bro. Webster, who is here from Chicago on a visit, and Bro. George Sturner, another old friend of Court Stanley, who has come back to the city to reside. He is always willing to do what he can for the A. O. F.

THE TRANSFER OF TWO LICENSES

Snowden House and Royal Hotel Will Have New Proprietors in Near Future —Commissioners Met

At a meeting of the West Peterborough License Commissioners held last night, the Inspector was instructed to advertise the transfer of the license for the Royal Hotel Hotel from Jas. Kelly to Edward Flaherty, who has purchased the business subject to the transfer of the license being effected. Mr. Flaherty was formerly connected with the Montreal House.

The application for the transfer of the Snowden House license from William Snowden to Donald Fraser, was dealt with, and was granted, subject to the approval of the Inspector, who will make the transfer should his inspection result satisfactorily.

These were the only matters of business transacted at the meeting, which was presided over by the chairman, Dr. Morrison, and attended by Messrs. Jas. Keudry and H. LeBrun.

Commercial Pupils May Go To King Edward School

School Board Solving Problem of Lack of Accomodation at Collegiate — Seventy Pupils Too Many.

AN INFORMAL DISCUSSION

The important question before the Board of Eduction at the present time is the deplorable lack of accomodation at the Collegiate Institute for the coming term, which begins next week. A special meeting was called for last night to consider the question, but owing to the want of a quorum there was no business transacted. However, the members present talked over the situation informally, and have probably arrived at what they consider the best solution of the difficulty.

When school opens on Tuesday there will be about seventy students in the commercial room. Mr. C. Fessenden, principal of the Collegiate Institute, was at the meeting, and explained that so many were in the Commercial Form last year that the Physical Laboratory had to be usurped to accommodate them all.

Mr. Pringle, chairman of the Supervision Committee, mentioned a number of possible solutions of the difficulty, but the one that seemed to meet with the approval of the members was the opening of some rooms in the new King Edward School for the Commercial Form. Mr. Fessenden informed the Board that one of the teachers at the Institute takes up most of the subjects in that form, so that he would practically be the only one needed in the new school. However, it would be necessary to have the commercial teacher take writing with the remaining forms, so that he would have to change with others once or twice a week. This arrangement seemed to be very popular among those present, but as there was no quorum nothing definite could be accomplished.

The Board is wide awake to the fact that accommodation is needed at once, and as the above-mentioned plan appears the most feasible it is probable that it will be carried out. In the event of it being acted upon, three rooms in the King Edward School building will be utilized for the Commercial Form, one of which will be used for type-writing.

Those present at the meeting were Chairman R. Fair, Messrs. Jno. Crane, Wm. Pringle, W S Robinson, Dr. Burnham and Dr. Morrison. One of the members understood the meeting to be called for 8.30, while the others were there an hour earlier. Six are required for a quorum, but when the last member arrived one of the others had gone to attend another meeting.

MR. GOULAIS WON THE PRIZE

Was Given the Award in the Men's Skating Contest Last Night

The men's skating contest at the Charlotte Street Roller Rink was a most interesting event, and it was only after much difficulty that the judges were able to make their award. There was an unusually large crowd present, and 25 or 30 gentlemen entered the contest, which was won by Mr. Chas. Goulais. The judges were Mrs. A. Boswell, Miss Boswell and Miss Wyles of Brantford. A handsome watch fob was received by Mr. Goulais for his prowess with the ringed skates.

Splendid Entertainment For The Piano Fund

Concert Given at Mr. A. L. Davis' Cottage, Stony Lake, Last Night —$80 Was Raised.

A GOOD PROGRAMME

"Glen Oak," the beautiful Stony Lake residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Davis, was the scene of an interesting gathering last night, when a concert in aid of the fund for the purchase of a piano for the Juniper Island pavilion was given by the talented young people who are summering at the lakes. In spite of the disagreeable weather, fully 200 people were present and a most delightful evening was spent. There was ample room in the spacious residence for the many who gathered from all parts of the lakes, and the programme was an excellent one. Sheriff Hall acted as chairman, and among those who contributed to the evening's pleasure of the gathering were Mr. A L Davis, Mr. Shaw and Miss O'Hara, with many others. Messrs. Shaw and Davis each sang solos, and together were heard in a duet. Miss O'Hara's contribution was also a solo. Other talented musicians summering at the lakes gave their services.

From a silver collection taken in aid of the piano fund, the splendid sum of $80 was received.

WOMAN CLAIMS BUTTER WAS LIGHT

Purchased From One of the Local Grocers

A woman called at the police station this morning, charging a local merchant with selling her butter by the pound, which was three ounces too light. The woman lives in the northwest portion of the city, and it is probable that one of the grocers in that vicinity will be asked to explain the reason for the light weight. A sample of the butter is now at the police station.

Railway Traffic To Exhibition Is Heavy

Many Persons Visiting in Toronto For the Fair—All Trains Carry Large Crowds to Queen City.

EXTRA TRAIN SERVICE

More Peterborough people are attending the Toronto exhibition this year than in any previous year, so early in the Fair. This is the information given out at the offices of the local railways. All the trains yesterday and to-day were crowded, and in every case extra coaches had to be added. At the G. T. R. station, the trains connecting here with the through trains for Toronto, brought many passengers, and at the departure of every train the station presented a busy scene.

Judging by the rush at this early stage of the Fair the attendance will far outstrip that of last year. The fact that the usual excursions were not run on Civic Holiday this year is having an effect on the traffic at this particular time. Many person who usually go out of the city for that day have decided to take a trip to the Exhibition instead this year.

To-morrow and Saturday the railways will issue cheap tickets, $1.80 being the fare for the round trip. It is anticipated that on both of these days the crowds will be unusually heavy.

The extra trains put on for the two weeks by the C. P. R., are evidently being appreciated by the public, the heavy traffic on them is evidence of this fact.

Was Analysis Made Of Apparent Poison?

A Correspondent Makes Statement Concerning Dish Containing Alleged Poisonous Substance—Killed a Hen.

GAVE IT TO THE POLICE

A correspondent wishes to know if the following facts, as related to him, are true, and, if action has not been taken, why?

At least a couple of months ago, with the memory of the dog poisoning campaign comparatively fresh, a man in a certain part of the city was seen to place out a dish containing some sort of apparently edible mixture. It is to be assumed that he did not think that he was seen. But his action was observed, and another citizen, assuming that the vessel and its contents exposed so as to be taken by hens or cows, or even children, contained poison, took the vessel and its contents to a policeman, by whom it was conveyed to headquarters, with the object of having the contents examined, to determine if they contained poison. After nearly two months had elapsed the gentleman mentioned called at the police station and found the vessel and its contents still there, undealt with. He took a handful of the mixture home, and fed it to a fowl. Whether by mere coincidence or as a result of eating the stuff, the hen became sick and died—a short time after eating the apparently poisonous mixture.

The correspondent wishes to know if the circumstances above related are true, and also wishes to know why no action was taken by the authorities to ascertain whether the suspected poisonous mixture, placed where it could do much harm, was as thought, poisonous? He would like to know why such a menace as poison—if it were poison—was placed on the street, and not looked after, and the man who placed it out not asked for an explanation.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the deceased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube, when this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Is There Coal Mine In The Neighbourhood Of Pontypool?

Coal Plowed Up in a Field But No Indication of a Mine—Toronto Man Makes Investigation.

A MYSTERY HERE

For years some farmers in the vicinity of Pontypool, 70 miles east of Toronto, have been plowing up coal of a good hard variety.

Believing that this indicated a valuable deposit, J. H. Duthie, of Toronto, was invited to go down and investigate.

The result has been to dissipate the cherished illusion of a coal mine, but a mystery has taken its place. How did the coal get there?

The coal is spread over an area of more than an acre, but does not go down more than two feet. Mr. Duthie's experienced eye judges that it has been regularly mined and passed through a coal-breaker. The locality is on the height of land 15 miles from the lake, and any theory of a shipwrecked collier cannot be deemed a possible explanation.

It is said that the coal has been known of for at least 30 years, and residents have used it at times for fuel.

"But I am convinced that there are coal deposits in Eastern Ontario," says Mr. Duthie, who contends that the presence of iron, which is found in quantities, is a certain indication of coal to be found some day.

By permission of Lieut.-Colonel J. W. Miller, the Non-commissioned Officers of the 57th Regiment will hold their annual excursion the last Thursday afternoon in August, the 29th, to Idyl Wyld, per steamer Otonabee. The boat will leave the Wolfe St. Wharf at 1.30 o'clock, and the Street Car Wharf at 2.00 o'clock. Tickets — Adults 50c., Children 25c.

VISITORS TO TORONTO EXHIBITION

We have made a lifelong study in the manufactuse of "Aids for the Afflicted." No human agency ever fashioned more practical and graceful limbs than those which Messrs. Authors and Cox manufacture. Our materials are specially prepared by the firm, and are the result of 48 years of experience.

Not being able to secure sufficient space at the Toronto Exhibition for our display, we ask every visitor to Toronto to make it a point and see all the most modern devices in our line.

EARL GREY PRESSES BUTTON

Ceremony Somewhat Marred By Heavy Rain—Brilliant Assemblage of Public Men—Exhibits More Numerous Than Ever—Many Thousands Attend Opening Function.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—It wasn't exactly ideal weather for the 29th annual opening of the Canadian National Exhibition. The skies were leaden all day long and, what was more, rain poured at intervals of varying regularity from the forenoon until well on into the night.

But for all that, the scattered thousands who were attracted to the opening ceremonials were denied only two features of the day's program. The air ship did not ascend into the murky ether and the grand stand performance at night, including the spectacle of the fall of Badajos, the fireworks and the Duss band, had to be called off.

The button was, however, officially pressed by Earl Grey, the doors of the various buildings were thrown wide open and the afternoon performance was held within the enclosure, providing excellent entertainment for a gathering of 8,000.

Big Crowd, Just the Same.

Just how many people passed through the gates was not made the subject of official announces, but, considering how unkind the elements were, the attendance was wonderfully good. It is true that early in the evening the grounds took on a somewhat deserted and desolate aspect, insomuch that the bandsmen of the 48th Highlanders quit their posts through lack of listeners, but the rain was beating down pitilessly enough to dampen the enthusiasm of the most ardent music lover.

The assembly at the directors' luncheon was the most representative gathering of public men ever brought together on such an occasion in the history of the fair.

What the Show Looks Like.

The public found the buildings and their contents looking more attractive, probably, than had been anticipated. In the manufacturers' building practically every exhibit was in a state of finished completeness, and the same was true of the new horticultural building, whose striking architectural design was a revelation to most of the visitors. The art gallery, with its fine collection of paintings, Canadian and foreign, the women's building, process building, national history building, and, indeed, every nook and corner of the grounds, was invaded and everything had the freshness of novelty, for the exhibition really never grows old.

In one regard only was impatience shown. There was no slight vexation and disappointment over the failure of Aerial Navigator Robinson to carry out his contract, after keeping the spectators waiting in a drizzle for more than an hour. The reason given was that there was danger of the airship being carried out over the lake, but as there was only a very moderate wind blowing, and as the claim had been made that the airy craft was much more navigable and independent of weather conditions than a balloon, the would-be sightseers had their faith in the Knaubenshue invention rather severely shaken. It is understood that the exhibition management were somewhat exercised, and that every effort will be made to ensure an ascent this afternoon.

NEW AUSTRALIAN TARIFF.

Western Provincial Legislature Considers It Dangerous.

London, Aug. 28.—(C. A. P.)—At Perth, West Australia, the Premier's resolution that the new tariff would injuriously affect the primary industries of West Australia, in bringing about a state of depression, fraught with the gravest danger to her existence, was carried in the Legislative Assembly by a large majority.

At Melbourne, speaking in the House of Representatives, Sir J. Forrest said the preference was largely illusory. The figures quoted by Lyne were inaccurate.

Australian Tariff.

London, Aug. 28.—(C. A. P.)—A Melbourne cable states that Sir William Lyne, interviewed, said the new tariff accorded with the statements made by Premier Deakin when in London. The customs revenue for the financial year was estimated at eight and a quarter million pounds with a preference in favor of Great Britain as proposed, but if the preference were not given the revenue would be one and a quarter millions more. The preference in favor of Great Britain was thus 13 per cent.

Sharp Fight With French Troops Ends in Utter Rout.

Kaids Urge Mulai Hafig to Proclaim Holy War—New Sultan Opposed to It—Normal Conditions Being Resumed At Casablanca — No French Soldiers Killed—Europeans Leave Fez.

Casablanca, Aug. 28.—A sharp engagement between the French and the Moors occurred six miles from Gen. Drude's camp.

A reconnoitering party of spahis came in touch with the enemy who opened a heavy fire on the cavalrymen. The latter replied with effect, but retreated under instructions, with the object of attracting the attention of the French commander to the Moors' advance.

Reinforcements with artillery were promptly forwarded to the scene of the fighting with the result that the Moorish force was driven back into the hills.

No loss on the French side is reported.

Troops for Casablanca.

Tangier, Aug. 28.—It is declared that a large body of native cavalry has been seen bearing down on Casablanca from the direction of Morocco City.

Maelafmin, the fanatical priest, has left Safi, and it is reported that he is going to Fez.

The European residents of Fez, excepting the Germans, left Monday for Elaraish. They were escorted by troops. No difficulties are feared, as the Elaraish road is reported to be safe.

No Holy War.

Paris, Aug. 28.—The Matin's Tangier correspondent says that Mulai Hafig declares that he is opposed to a holy war, but that the leading Caids are trying to force him to proclaim one.

ARMY STORES FROM U. S.

War Secretary Haldane Goes to America For Supplies.

London, Aug. 28.—The British War Secretary, Mr. Haldane, answering a question in the House of Commons last evening, announced that he proposed purchasing army stores in America when he can get them there, equally good or better than elsewhere, at more satisfactory prices, without apologizing to the local protectionists, who insist that British firms should be given the preference, irrespective of price or quality.

The matter was brought up by Sir Howard Vincent. Conservative and free trader, representing the central division of Sheffield, who asked for explanations of why the War Office ordered 100,000 pairs of horseshoes in the United States for the use of the British cavalry, instead of supporting British industries and workmen.

Mr. Haldane, in his reply, said the American goods were satisfactory, both as regards price and efficiency, and in the interests of the economical administration of the army he declined to disregard this source of supply.

ARCHBISHOP'S CLOSE CALL.

Papal Delegate Caught By Squall In Small Boat.

New York, Aug. 28.—The American says:—

Archbishop Falconio, successor to Mgr. Satolli as papal delegate to Washington, was in grave danger of losing his life Monday, during a pleasure trip on the Sound.

The prelate came from Washington without letting even the priests of this diocese or that of Connecticut know about his arrival. He was badly in need of a few day's rest.

Monday the hosts of the cardinal, who is president of Georgetown University at Washington, decided to take him for a spin up the Sound. They rigged up a little launch, and started out. They had gone five miles when a squall arose. The tiny craft soon was half filled with water.

The archbishop did not lose his placid mien. He quietly aided his friends in keeping the vessel afloat, and after a hard struggle against the choppy water they beached in Norwalk harbor.

RAID MAY CAUSE TROUBLE.

Chinese Colony At Regina Raise Fusillade of International Privilege.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 28.—When officers of mounted police and city police raided Chinese resorts in Regina on Friday evening and took into custody for a few hours some sixty-five members of the Chinese colony they raised a fusillade of international privilege and serious developments are likely to follow.

Yesterday summons were issued before Magistrate William McCausland requiring the presence in his court of city police authorities, while civil proceedings are started in another direction. The Chinamen, who have not taken the oath of allegiance to the British crown, claim residence rights in a foreign country, and as subjects of the imperial empire they are seeking the protection of the consulate.

An appeal is to be made to the Pekin Government, and it is expected that an international question will be raised.

Civil actions are to be taken against His Worship Mayor Smith by a number of Chinamen, and it is possible that a similar suit will be entered against Frank Ford, deputy attorney-general, claiming damages for their alleged action in authorizing the arrest and detention of Chinamen.

General Loses 10,000 Francs.

New York, Aug. 28.—The loss in Montreal, Canada, a few days ago of a letter of credit for 10,000 francs, in favor of General Megrian, a retired French army officer, traveling in this country, and now in New York City, was announced Monday by J. C. Buchanan, local representative of the Credit Lyonnais.

Fielding And Batting Averages Of The Locals

Burridge is the Real Leader in Both Departments — A Goodly Number of Hitters in the .300 Class — The Season's Record.

SOME FIGURES OF INTEREST

Below are given the fielding and batting averages of the regular members of the Peterborough baseball club, for the important games played by the club this season. In the fielding averages, the figures of the game in Oshawa, of which no official score was kept, are not included.

It will be seen that while Jimmy O'Hearne, who only played one game, is the nominal leader, both in fielding and batting, the real leadership in both departments is held by Mr. Harry Burridge, with a batting average of .409, and a fielding average of .955. Corney Burns has made the most hits and the most runs.

The comparatively low fielding averages of the outfielders, is caused by the fact that most of the outfielders were called upon at times to fill infield positions, thus giving them greater opportunities for making misplays.

Five members of the team are batting over .300, which is a good record. The two games with Lindsay are not included in the averages, which are as follows:

BATTING AVERAGES

	Games	AB	R	H	Per
O'Hearne	1	5	3	5	1000
Anderson	2	10	1	5	.500
Burridge	15	61	23	25	.409
Burns	15	69	25	27	.391
Connors	11	46	8	19	.326
Callaghan	15	62	20	19	.306
Graham	11	39	6	11	.282
Quinlan	14	56	9	12	.214
Poulter	4	14	2	3	.214
Haliburton	8	31	4	5	.161
Flaherty	12	41	10	6	.146
Cheatham	8	35	3	4	.114
Johnston	7	31	3	4	.97

FIELDING AVERAGE

	G	PO	A	E	Per
O'Hearne, cf	1	1	1	0	1000
Burridge, c	14	147	25	8	.955
Hickey, 1b	1	13	0	1	.928
Graham, 1b	10	85	4	5	.917
Connors, lf	10	8	2	1	.909

Burns, p	14	19	19	8	.826
Callaghan, lf	14	11	3	5	.736
Johnston, rf	6	3	3	6	.500

The extra base hitting is as follows:

Home runs, Burns, 1; O'Hearne, 1.

Three base hits, Burridge, 3; Quinlan, 1.

Two base hits, Burridge, 6; Connors, 5; Burns, 4; Quinlan 2, Graham Callaghan, Anderson.

So far the club has played in all seventeen games, of which thirteen have been victories. They have lost once each to the Arctics of Toronto; Port Hope, Oshawa and Cobourg; and have beaten the Arctics four times, Port Hope, three times; Cobourg, twice; Lindsay, twice; and Oshawa, and the St. Andrew's of Toronto, once each.

In the fourteen games of which there is a complete record the runs, hits and errors of the team as compared with their opponents, has been as follows:

	R.	H.	E.
Peterborough	133	144	65
Opponents	79	92	86

This gives Peterborough an average of 9 runs, 10 hits, and 4 1-2 errors for each game; while their opponents average has been 5 runs, 6 hits and 6 errors per game.

It speaks well for the work of the local twirlers when it is stated that in only one game this season have the hits recorded against them gone into double figures. On the other hand in no less than nine games have Peterboroughs made above nine hits.

BOTH TEAMS OUT TO WIN GAMES

Port Hope Guide Points Out That There is Nothing "Fixed" Between Two Teams Battling for Championship

The Port Hope Guide puts the quietus on the suggestion that the Peterborough and Port Hope teams have "fixed" the series of games for the League championship. That paper yesterday said:

It has been rumoured about town that these home and home games have been fixed, and the only one of the series which will be on the square will be the third. This report is absolutely without foundation. The locals are out to win both games, and the Peterborough team will do likewise. There is nothing to be gained by a third game; in fact it would mean a loss to both of the teams. Allow $200 as gate receipts for a third game at Cobourg—and this would be the outside figure—of this amount Cobourg would receive $20, or ten per cent for the use of the grounds. Expenses of advertising in three towns, new balls, umpire, etc., would mean another $25, which would leave a balance of $155 to be divided between both clubs—or $77.50 each. Now, at the very least it will cost Manager Crawford $100 every time the team takes the field so that it can readily be seen that a third game would be a loss.

Baseball enthusiasts can take this tip that Port Hope is out to win at Peterborough and also at home, and everything is on the square.

PORT HOPE TO HAVE A STRONG NINE

Saturday's Game Will be the Last and Best of the Season

The last home Midland League game of the season will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday, when the old rivals, Port Hope and Peterborough, clash in the first of a series of games for the league championship. Both teams will have on the strongest nines available, and the struggle will be a bitter one and should eclipse in interest the spectacular battle with Cobourg last week. The biggest crowd that ever saw a ball game in Peterborough should be on hand on Saturday to see the last and best of the season's baseball.

The Port Hope team will likely be strengthened for the occasion, although the Guide says there will be no Eastern Leaguers on the list. Jimmy O'Hearne, who made five hits for Peterborough on Saturday, will probably play third base for the Lakers, if he recovers from his illness. O'Brien, Surphlis, O'Neill, Kolb and company will all be in the game.

Quinlan will be on the slab for Peterborough, and the rest of the team will be about the same that beat Cobourg.

The game will be called at three o'clock sharp to allow those who desire to go up the lakes or somewhere else out of town for Labour Day, a chance to catch their trains.

GREAT SAMPLES OF WHEAT

Mr. T. L. Anderson Received Wheat From Manitoba Which Looks Pretty Good to Easterners

Mr. T. L. Anderson, city, has left with the Examiner about two dozen sample stems and heads of wheat, taken from the fields of Mr. Wm. McBain, Keyes, Manitoba. Mr. McBain, in the letter accompanying the wheat, says they are fair samples of his crop, which is the best ever seen in that section. Of course, the stems were cut when green, several days ago, but the berry is plump and the heads long and well filled. A field of wheat like the samples sent cannot be regarded as a failure. In spite of the many alarmist stories sent out by or at the instance of speculators and persons hostile to the Canadian Northwest, it would seem that even in this exceptional year, the wheat crop is not to be despised. Mr. McBain is to be congratulated.

HARVEY CROPS ARE GOOD

County Councillor Shaw Reports That Oats Will Yield 40 to 50 Bushels Per Acre in That Township

THE FALL WHEAT GOOD

There is no danger of the farmers of Harvey going bankrupt this year. Mr. Robert Shaw, reeve of that township, and county councillor, was in the city to-day and informed the Examiner that the condition of the crops there was quite satisfactory. Little threshing has been done yet, but enough has been done to demonstrate that their labours have not been in vain. Mr. Henry Coons recently threshed five acres of fall wheat, a portion of which had been winter killed, and from the five acres he had 175 bushels of grain. He had oats which went 40 bushels to the acre.

Mr. Shaw's crops, too, were satisfactory. He had fields of oats which would yield, he estimated, 50 bushels per acre. The straw is not long, but the grain is well filled, and will weigh well.

A BAND CONCERT FOR TO-NIGHT

Weekly Concert Will be Given by 57th Band To-night Instead of on Friday

The 57th Regimental Band will play this week to-night, instead of on Friday. The band will be in Toronto that day, and in view of that fact has arranged to give the concert to-night, in order that those who enjoy the weekly concerts may not be disappointed. The programme will be an interesting one and will be as follows:

(a) Regimental March,
(b) "Oh, Canada."
March—"Gloria."
Overture—"Nabuco."
Cornet Solo—"Love Me, and the World Is Mine"—Bandsman Hughes.
Selections, from "Yankee Consul."
Medley of Popular Songs.
"Maryland."
"Renwick's Hits, No. 3."
"My Old Kentucky Home."
"Hunting Scene."

Insure Against Serious Colds

Of the many forms of insurance probably that which protects you against the serious results of colds is the most valuable at this time of the year, when so many are becoming victims of la grippe and pneumia. By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can keep the loose, prevent further development of the cold and cure it in a few days.

ENTERTAINED CHARLOTTE STREET CHOIR

Members of This Choir Guests of Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton at Stony Lake

Yesterday the members of the choir of the Charlotte street Methodist church, were very pleasantly entertained at Stony Lake, where they were the guests of Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton. The party, which numbered about twenty, left the city in the morning, taking the train to Lakefield, and the steamer Stoney Lake to Juniper Island, where they were met by the yacht Alberta, and taken to Burleigh Falls, dinner being taken in the Park Hotel. Afterwards a pleasant sail around the lake was enjoyed, and at Strathormond-on-the-Lake, Mr. Stratton's summer residence, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

The return trip to Lakefield was made on the steamer Stoney Lake, the city being reached at seven o'clock. A delightful day was spent.

SOLD LIQUOR IN LOCAL OPTION DISTRICTS

Lakefield and Young's Point Men Pay the Minimum Fine

Edward J. Quinn, proprietor of the Lakefield House, was this morning fined $50 and costs, amounting to $53.15, for selling liquor on August 17 without a license. He was arraigned before Magistrate Edmison at his office to-day, and pleaded guilty to the charge laid by Mr. Jos. Stewart, License Inspector for West Peterborough.

A similar charge was preferred against Andrew Wilson of Young's Point, who pleaded guilty to selling liquor on August 17 also. He was fined $50 and costs, amounting to $53.80. Both of the above men run public houses in local option districts. The fines were paid this morning.

The evidence against them was obtained by Mr. Morrison, of Toronto, a Government detective.

THE ANNIVERSARY AT OMEMEE

Church Opened by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt Seven Years Ago Will Hold Anniversary Services on Sunday

The congregation of St. James' Church, Emily, of which Rev. J. H. Teeney is the rector, is celebrating its anniversary next Sunday. This church was dedicated to the service of God seven years ago by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, who was then rector of the parish of Omemee and Emily, and during whose rectorship the church was built. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt has been invited to be the special preacher next Sunday evening at seven o'clock.

THE MASK OF HEALTH

Few People Are Really as Well as They Look—Cause and Remedy

Many people in Peterborough, both men and women, who believe themselves to be in perfect health, are often in the greatest danger.

The most uncommon cause of ill-health is indigestion, with a myriad of symptoms, such as headache, sleeplessness, specks before the eyes, pains in the back and side, distress after eating, etc.

In the last few years the success of physicians everywhere with Mi-o-na stomach tablets has made them known far and wide as the acknowledged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases. They strengthen the digestive organs so that in a few days the stomach is in such shape that it takes care itself of all the food that is eaten without pain or distress.

Mr. Madill gives an absolute unqualified guarantee that your money will be refunded unless Mi-o-na cures. He takes the whole risk, and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures you.

HE HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. Allan McCarth Was Injured in Parry Sound While Working on a Big Boring Contract

UNIQUE PERFORMANCE

Mr. Allan McCarthy, who has been in Parry Sound for some weeks superintending the removal of four houses, for which he took the contract, is in the city on a few days' visit, and tells of his narrow escape from a serious, if not fatal, injury, which he sustained shortly after the work was commenced. A lever on a windlass flew back 12 feet, striking him with such force that he was hurled a considerable distance over an embankment. Had he been facing in the other direction when he was struck he would not have lived. As it was, he was laid up for some time and was unable to attend to his work.

Mr. McCarthy has completed about two-thirds of his contract, and has two more smaller houses to remove to complete this contract. It is probable, however, that he will remain in Parry Sound some time longer, since the C.P.R. has offered him a contract to remove several buildings off their property there.

The local contractor has established a record which is, in its way, rather remarkable. The house is one erected by Governor Beatty many years ago, and is a substantial frame structure, 55 feet long. It had to be moved 150 feet, 25 of which was on a steep grade. It was accomplished, however, with only $10 worth of damage being done to the building.

Mr. Jas. Huffman of Millbrook was the foreman on the work, and during the time that Mr. McCarthy was incapacitated, had charge of the work.

BEARD AN ASSET IN BUSINESS

Man With a Moustache Better Off Than One Without It—Also a Help to Good Eyesight in One Man's Opinion

AN INTERESTING QUESTION

The question of a moustache—whether to wear one or not—is one which has apparently aroused some interest locally during the last few days. Said a gentleman to-day to the Examiner, 'I would not take $100 for my moustache.' It was a pretty good one, but did not look to be worth the money, and he was asked for explanations. He stated that the presence of a moustache on a man's face was an asset, and that further, it acted as a preservation to one's eyes. One who shaves his face, or has his barber do it, is not likely to have as good eyesight as the man who allows his beard to grow. This is the statement made by the gentleman referred to. It was a new theory to the newspaper man, and he was not in a position to dispute it, though he had to confess that he did not see how it could have the effect he described. It's an interesting question, at any rate, and one which there may be different views on.

One of the many gentlemen who recently decided to have their moustaches removed informed the Examiner to-day that he was feeling much better since the operation was performed. Not necessarily that he was in better health, but that he just felt better, generally.

Stole Money And Watch From Room In Which Three Men Were Asleep

Bold Burglary Committed at Mrs. Trew's Boarding House Early This Morning—Not a Hundred Yards From the Police Station.

HAUL AMOUNTED TO $95

Entire Rooms Were Ransacked and Contents of Drawers and Dressers Turned Out on the Floor—A Nervy Piece of Work.

One of the boldest burglaries that has taken place in the city for some time, was committed last night, or early this morning, when some unknown person entered the boarding house kept by Mrs. Trew, at No. 236 Water street, and stole a sum of money, amounting to $95, and a silver watch, from two men sleeping in a room on the second floor.

The men were Messrs. Wallace Dickson and Andrew Hazlitt, with a third man, Joseph Bulpitt, occupied the same room. Hazlitt had $90 in his trunk, and in Dickson's trunk $5 and a silver watch, and these valuables were taken. Bulpitt's trunk contained $120, but it was not touched by the burglars.

Hazlitt was the first of the three to awaken this morning, and found the room in a wild state of confusion. The two dressers in the room had been rifled. The drawers were drawn out and the contents strewn over the floor, and the trunks received the same treatment.

The burglars, for it is thought there were more than one, had opened Hazlitt's trunk by means of a piece of wire, which was found in the lock this morning. The key to Dickson's trunk was in the pocket of his trousers, which were hanging on the bedpost. The nervy thieves had removed the trousers from the bed, and gotten possession of the key, after which the opening of the trunk was an easy matter. They had carried on their operations by candlelight, and a half-burned candle was found this morning on the floor.

There was no trouble in getting into the house as the front door was not locked. This morning Dickson's watch fob was found on the stairway, and the door leading to the street was standing open. The house is not a hundred yards away from the police station. The thieves had evidently gained some information about the interior of the house, as only the room in which the three boarders were sleeping was disturbed.

To use a slang phrase, the burglars evidently "had their nerve with them." Their operations must have taken a good many minutes, and there was the chance that at any moment one of the sleeping men might awaken, and they would have been detected.

Mrs. Trew and her family and another boarder, slept on the same floor, and that none of them were aroused by the burglars seems remarkable, as they must have made considerable noise in ransacking the dressers and opening the trunks. As it was, however, their raid was most successful. The men were enabled to make their escape without detection and without leaving any clue as to their identity behind them.

The police were notified this morning and are working on the case.

Mr. Hazlitt, who is a newcomer from the Old Country, feels his loss very keenly. He is a bricklayer, employed at the Normal School and the money stolen from him was what he had saved from his wages.

Western Fruit Beats Ontario's Best Efforts

Mr. B. Shortly Returns an Enthusiast—Spent Six Weeks Travelling Through the Canadian West.

FRUIT CULTURE PAYS

"I want to show you a small potato I picked up in a garden at Nelson on my recent trip." Mr. Benj. Shortly, who arrived in the city last night after spending six weeks in a trip to the Pacific coast, was the speaker, and suiting the action to the word, he produced from a paper bag a potato which would be considered a large one in Ontario, but which, he said, was small, compared with the standards of the west. It measured fully six inches long and was about two and a half inches wide, and Mr. Shortly was authority for the statement that it was considered quite small. This is but an indication of the remarkable growth both of fruit and vegetables in the district of British Columbia where Mr. Shortly spent the greater part of the time he was away. He was visiting Mrs. Shortly's brother, Mr. William Rutherford, who is doing a splendid drug business in Nelson, one of the growing cities of the Pacific province.

Mr. Shortly stated that the fruit possibilities of that country were a revelation to him. He had never seen in his life such magnificent specimens of fruit anywhere as he was shown on this trip. Apple trees planted three years ago were loaded with fruit this year, and not only was the fruit abundant but it was of excellent quality.

Persons engaged in fruit culture there are apparently on the high road to fortune, since a small patch of strawberries near Kootenay Landing was pointed out to Mr. Shortly as having produced $4,600 for its owner this year.

The "fruit ranches," as they are called, range in size from two to six acres, and one only needs about three or four acres of land under cultivation to be independent. The climatic conditions are peculiarly favourable to the culture of fruit, and those who are engaged in that business are prospering, since there is a good demand for all that can be produced.

Vancouver is described by Mr. Shortly as the city which gives promise of becoming the greatest in Western Canada. It is growing rapidly and increasing in influence until it now dominates the province of which it is the largest city.

The crops in Manitoba are said to be about three-fourths the average crop this year, while in the new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan they are fully up to the average yield.

Everywhere through the West Mr. Shortly met former Peterborough men, and it was a significant, as well as a gratifying fact, that they are all doing well and are, as a consequence, pleased with the country.

Mrs. Shortly accompanied her husband on this trip, which has been for both a very pleasant one.

MOTHER SAYS HARRY THAW WILL SOON BE A FREE MAN

Cleveland, Aug. 28.—Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry Thaw, and Mrs. Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, en route through Cleveland from Mt. Clemens, Mich., to Pittsburg, yesterday, declared their confidence that the son and husband would be freed on his second trial.

"Can there be any doubt?" asked Mrs. William Thaw, when urged for her opinion as to the outcome of the next trial.

"Have there not been numerous cases of justifiable homicide in the last year, which show the trend of public opinion and of justice? The acquittals of the year alone are enough to prove that my son will be freed."

GUN WAS DISCHARGED AND YOUTH WAS SHOT IN FOOT

Albert Chapman, a young man residing in Smith Township, was painfully injured to-day as the result of the accidental discharge of a rifle. The full particulars of the accident are not available but it is stated that Chapman was carrying the gun under one arm, and in some manner it was discharged the bullet passing through his foot near the big toe.

The injured boy was at once brought into the city and after Dr. Halliday had hastily examined his injuries he was taken to Nicholl's Hospital, where at the time of going to press, he was doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances. The wound is a very painful one but no serious results are anticipated.

MILK DEALERS MAY DECIDE TO JUMP PRICES SOON

Higher prices for milk this autumn. This is the probability now. It is understood that the dairymen have come to the conclusion that at the prices charged up to the present there is nothing in the business for the producer, and with the approach of fall, and the scarcity of fodder, the result of the unfavourable weather and the short hay crop, it seems probable, according to the information furnished the Examiner, that there will be dearer. Dealers in other cities are said to have practically decided to raise the price, and it is understood that the local dairymen have been discussing the advisability of following suit.

In addition to the price of hay increasing, grain, it is expected, will also be higher this year, and the combination of circumstances will serve to make milk a dearer commodity to produce.

REEVE SCOTT MEETS WITH ACCIDENT

Horses Ran Away Coming Down Hill and He Fell From Wagon

Reeve Robert Scott, of Smith Township, had a very narrow escape this morning from serious injury in a runaway at Millburn's hill. The company with an employee he was driving a team of horses, one of which was a colt, in a double waggon. On coming down Millburn's hill both came out of the double tree, allowing the wheels to encroach on the colt's feet. The animal kicked strenuously and turned in the road and Mr. Scott was thrown off the waggon but fortunately was not injured.

CROSSINGS REPORTED TO BE BLOCKED

City Workmen Said to be Cause of Drivers Complain

A city driver complained to the Examiner to-day about the way in which the city employees allow the whole crossings to be blocked in the construction of the cement sidewalks. At the corner of Romaine and Lock streets and at George and Lake streets this condition exists, he stated, preventing drivers crossing there.

THE NARROW VIEW

There may be, this season, a partial failure of the wheat crop in the Northwest of Canada, but it will not be due to any inherent or permanent climatic condition or condition of latitude. It will be due to an exceptionally late season. In nearly all parts of the continent, by some freak of the weather, the season was more than a month late. This abnormality may only affect the spring; the autumn, with its frosts, may come on at a normal period. Therefore, the late frosts may catch the unripened wheat and inflict no little loss. Our United States neighbours may, and actually do, seize upon the unusual conditions this year as an argument to show the undesirability of the Canadian Northwest as a field for farming operations, and, consequently, a place for home-making. But this would be arguing from very narrow and incomplete premises. As well say that the State of Texas was unfit for human habitation because the exceptional season affected it also. A gentleman from Texas, now in Peterborough, informs the Examiner that the abnormal weather conditions were precisely the same as in Ontario and the Northwest in the the spring of 1907. In Texas they had April weather in March, and March weather in April, just as we had here. In Texas, in the part in which the gentleman referred to lives, and elsewhere, late spring frosts destroyed the fruit buds, and there was an almost total failure of the fruit crop. One peach orchard of 40,000 trees, which, normally, ships sixty carloads of fruit, this season only shipped six, so that ninety per cent. of this fruit crop is wanting. The abnormal spring and summer weather prevailed all over the world, with some exceptions to its general prevalence. In the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, the weather of the spring and summer has been somewhat better than in some parts of the Northwest, with the result that there is better promise of a normal crop. The late spring affected the wheat-growing sections of the United States northwest, and it would be as logical to argue that these regions should be deserted, as to pronounce the Canadian Northwest an undesirable country by reason of abnormal meteorological conditions. One swallow does not make a summer; neither does one frost constitute a condemnation of a country. The Canadian Northwest will be made the object of United States calumny so long as its wide expanses of vacant wheat lands remain a formidable rival to the occupied, and, in some cases, worked-out, wheat-growing sections of our neighbours. The United States Press, the speculators, and the stock exchanges will continue to be the agencies of Aranias in regard to the Canadian Northwest, so long as they conceive it to be to their interest to maintain that relation.

The Mail and Empire says that the present Ontario Government is opposed to the bonus system. The "Tory" organ, says the Brockville Recorder, ought to know better than to make such a statement. Time and again the present premier has stated in the Legislature that municipalities ought to know best what they need, and should be allowed to do as they like with their own money. The bonus system has been overdone in Ontario, but the members of the present Government have never done anything but encourage it.

BABY HAD DIARRHOEA FOR SEVEN WEEKS

Thousands of infants die annually who could be saved by the timely use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

There can be no doubt about it. Sixty-two years experience has proved this sterling remedy to be the best for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus Summer Complaint, and all bowel troubles in both children and adults.

Many of the imitations sold are positively dangerous, as they often check the diarrhoea too suddenly and cause inflammation.

Always insist on the genuine Dr. Fowler's. Sold at all medicine dealers at 35 cents a bottle.

Mrs. A. B. De Marchand, Bath, N.B., writes: "My baby was troubled with Diarrhoea for nearly seven weeks. I tried three different doctors, but none of them could do her any good. I was advised to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and less than half a bottle cured her."

Manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

See that their name is on the wrapper and thus insure getting the genuine.

LICENSE ADMINISTRATION

The Hamilton Herald, an independent journal, is, says the Brantford Expositor, thoroughly disgusted with the Whitney administration of the license law in that city. For what appeared to them to be cause, the commissioners had decided that a certain hotelkeeper must get out of business, and had put another on probation. The first was allowed three months to sell out. Meanwhile Conservative influences have been at work in the interests of both licensees, with the resultant effect that the commissioners have decided to renew the license of the first man and to extend the same generosity to the second if he escapes conviction on a certain charge which has since been brought against him.

The Herald says:—"The action of the commissioners has disheartened many citizens who have at heart the moral welfare of Hamilton. But it satisfies the official representatives of the 'dominant party' in the city. The results in Hamilton of Mr. Whitney's loudly-heralded reform in the administration of the license law are similar to the results elsewhere. This tremendous reform, consisting in the dismissal of partizan Grit commissioners and the appointment of partizan Tory commissioners, has had the inevitable result of making the administration of the license system serve the ends of the Tory instead of the Grit party. The utter failure of the Whitney policy should have the effect of causing thousands of persons interested in more reform to turn with hope to Mr. Graham, who proposes that the license law be administered by non-partizan boards like the police boards."

NORTH BY SOUTH

Brockville Recorder.

The Toronto News, in discussing a Cabinet change at Ottawa, and its influence on Provincial politics, gets a bit muddled in its logic. It says in one paragraph that as leader of the Ontario Liberals, Mr. Graham would face "inevitable defeat in the next Provincial election," while in another it remarks that if Mr. Graham leaves the leadership, "all hope of victory in the next provincial elections must be finally abandoned."

Again, speaking of Mr. Graham, it says:

"It is certain, however, that he did much to restore the character of the Liberal party in Ontario, and to infuse enthusiasm and energy into its broken ranks."

And again:

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal managers, have deliberately sacrificed the provincial party, in order to strengthen the party position at Ottawa."

Yet, a little further on, the News concludes that Mr. Graham "is not a man of commanding talents," and hints that as a speaker and Parliamentarian he might be better.

Finally, in the face of all this confusion the article concludes by saying that Mr. Graham will make a "satisfactory Minister." That is steering north by south pretty accurately.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A "holy war" in Morocco, would be a "holy terror."

Earl Grey has found a new use for the prosaic button. Buttons are always used to close things, but Earl Grey used a button to throw the Canadian National Exhibition wide open.

Mr. Whitney's educational reform programme was to specially include the examinations abuse. But this year, the Brockville Recorder points out, there has been more "kicking," probably than for many years previous over the examination papers.

A quiet conscience is a possession of doubtful utility when it permits three young men to sleep so soundly that burglars can enter their sleeping room, and light candles to do the job of cleaning out completely. With a toothache or a guilty conscience, or even a colicky baby on draught, the spoilsman would have been foiled.

Mr. Borden, the Montreal Herald remarks, is now arguing that the Conservative party, under its former leaders, made possible the Grand Trunk Pacific. Possibly, but what is more certain is that the Conservative party under its present leader, did its level best to make the Grand Trunk Pacific impossible.

Just as an instance of how remarkably transportation sometimes augments the value of a raw product, it is learned from a trade journal that a cargo of 4,200,000 feet of lumber in the tree, in British Columbia, was worth about $5,000. After passing through the saw mill the value had increased to $50,000. Within reach of the ship's tackle at Vancouver, the cargo was worth $65,000. At the Mexican port where it was shipped to be used as railway ties, the shipment was worth $130,000. The increase from $5,000 to $130,000, was all on one cargo. This is an illustration of the manner in which human industry gives value to natural resources. This points the wisdom of the Liberal Government of Ontario forbidding the export of pulp wood in an unmanufactured condition. A cord of pulp wood may be worth $3 standing, $4 cut, and and at the point of export between $5 and $6, but if manufactured into paper it would represent in labour of various kinds, a value of between $36 and $40.

CHEAP RATES PROVE AN ATTRACTION

Big Crowds Go to Toronto This Morning to Attend the Fair—Railways' Heavy Traffic

This morning the two railways carried record crowds to Toronto, so far as this season is concerned. The second day of the extra cheap rates to the Toronto Fair is to-day, and on all the morning trains running to that city on both railways there was a crowd. The trains, however, got away on good time, the extra traffic being handled with ease. The next cheap trip is on Saturday, and there are two days next week when one may go to Toronto and return from Peterborough for $1.80.

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

Breathe Hyomei and Relief and Cure Will be Guaranteed

If you have catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, difficulty in breathing, raising of mucous discharge from the nose, tickling or dropping from the back of the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hy-o-mei at once.

Hy-o-mei is made from nature's soothing oils and balsams and contains the germ killing properties of the pine woods. Its medication is taken in with the air you breathe, so that it reaches the most remote part of the respiratory organs, killing all catarrhal germs, and soothing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00, and Mr. Madill, the druggist, gives his personal guarantee with each package that money will be refunded unless the treatment does all that is claimed for it.

DISTRICT MEETING SEPT. 27TH

Annual Fall Gathering of Representatives of Methodist Churches Will be Held on That Date in George Street Church

The district meeting of the Methodist churches in Peterborough district, which it was originally intended to hold on Tuesday, September 3, will not be held until Friday, September 27, exception having been taken to the first date on account of it being in the Toronto Fair week. The meeting will be held in George Street Methodist Church.

Almost the first question a doctor puts to his patient is in reference to the action of the bowels. By keeping the bowels regular you avoid the serious derangements of the liver and kidneys and can defy colds and contagious diseases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure prompt movements of the bowels, and by their action on the liver thoroughly cure constipation.

THE HASTING PEOPLE WANT A WHARF

An Agitation for Construction of Public Wharf at That Point, Among the Residents

Will we have a new wharf? asks the Hastings Star. This question has been asked around town by several during the last week and a petition signed by all the leading citizens has been sent in to the government hoping that our old landing will be replaced with an up-to-date wharf, which is very much needed, and will have to be built if towing to any amount is ever done up and down the river past the town.

PLEASANT GARDEN PARTY

Special Staff Correspondent.

Hastings, Aug. 28.—A very successful garden party was held last Wednesday evening in the Separate School here. Fully 500 persons were present and thoroughly enjoyed themselves in the grounds for nearly two hours. The Norwood brass band, under the leadership of Mr. Arch. Breault, provided enlivening music during the evening. Three large booths, gayly decorated, did a lively business, dispensing ice cream, cool drinks, fruit and confectionery. The first booth was managed by Mrs. J J English, the second by Miss Merchant and the Misses Cleary, and the third by Mrs. Jas. Lynch. The ladies were very enterprising in pushing the sale of their goods, and credit is due them for their share in the financial results. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick of Enniscore was conspicuous on the grounds, and lent his kindly influence to promoting a social spirit among the people. Rev. Father Brotherton, the parish priest, under whose personal oversight, the garden party was held, earned the thanks of the parish for his judicious management of the event. He wishse to thank the large number of Protestant citizens who gave it their liberal patronage, a fact which shows the good spirit which exists in the village. The proceeds amounted to $255, which goes to the benefit of the Separate School Board.

Hastings village is fast recovering from the late disastrous fire which destroyed so many of its business buildings. H. M. Fowlds and Sons are erecting a fine brick block on the corner of Front and Bridge streets, opposite the Clarendon House. Messrs. Buck, Buck and McCarthy will occupy the corner store, and other portions of the block are being secured by different tenants. On the opposite corner, Mr. John Tracey is building a handsome block facing on Bridge street, which is being pushed forward as fast as possible to provide stores for waiting tenants. The new Bank of Toronto building, erected by Dr. Coughlin on Front street, is nearly completed. The interior is now being fitted up. A metallic ceiling and walls are being put and other interior furnishings installed.

Mr. Jerry Miles of Asphodel has purchased a valuable portion of Dr. Coughlin's block on Front street, including the new Bank of Toronto building and the store occupied by Mr. Wilson's grocery store.

Our enterprising liveryman, Mr. R. A. O'Connor, is wearing the smile that's hard to beat. Mrs. O'Connor presented him with a bouncing boy on Monday last. The young driver is doing well.

The Walsh Tannery Company is engaged in overhauling its premises. The interior is being renovated and a number of additions being made to facilitate their business.

The Clarendon House reports an unusually busy trade this season, with tourists and fishing parties from Toronto and other cities. The fishermen have had great luck, the big maskinonge especially biting better than they have done in past seasons. Mine Host Spellman and his obliging wine clerk have been kept on the hustle providing for the crowds of guests at the house who have an enjoyable outing every season here.

Superintendent McClellan, accompanied by Mr. Mothersill, of the audit department of Railways and Canals, and party, arrived in the village per steamer Sovereign on Monday last, and registered at the Clarendon House. It is stated that the principal object of their visit was to inspect the Hastings dock, with the view of increasing its capacity, and extending the dock, with a new cement frontage, for a considerable distance.

Mr. Mack, one of the engineers from the Department of Railways and Canals, is also here in connection with Trent Canal improvements.

The Canadian Steam Boiler and Radiator Company is busily engaged in getting their goods ready for the market. About 20 hands are employed, with Mr. J. Richardson, formerly of Peterborough, as mechanical superintendent.

Mr. Thos. Howard is pushing business as lively as ever, since the fire, in his more commodious and central quarters at the corner of Bridge street.

DELICATE OPERATION TO DREDGE

The Steam Dredge "Laurier" Towed 15 Miles Under the Water to Shallows at Port Hope—Hazardous Work

A VERY REMARKABLE FEAT

Port Hope, Ont., Aug. 28th.—Reid Bros., the Sarnia wreckers, who are raising the dredge Laurier here will probably raise the Resolute at Toronto after they tow the Laurier to the Polson dock here. They are making arrangements with Haney and Miller to do this work, and will take the contract if other engagements permit.

If to-day's ideal weather continues and the wind does not shift, it its expected that the Laurier will be docked at Port Hope before the day is over. This morning she was still some distance off the pier, but noticably closer than last evening, and satisfactory progress is being made to-day. The crew of twenty men worked all last night under stimulants as it was feared that the weather might become stormy. The wrecking crew have been under a tremendous strain for nearly six weeks now, during which time they have raised the Laurier off the rocks and brought her from a point ten miles along the coast, four and a half miles off shore. They have followed the coast line so that the dredge sunken three years ago has really been brought by a long route.

Mr. Polson is expected to arrive today from Toronto in his yacht. The Reids have contracted to deliver the Laurier at Toronto, but Mr. Polson wishes to look her over in the harbour here.

Adverse Weather

For nearly six weeks Captain Wm. Reid and his men have laboured under adverse weather conditions. Only one-third of the time have they been able to work, but during the fair spells they worked day and night. Often they went all the way from this harbour to the wreck only to have a storm come and necessitate their return. This travelling to and fro was almost as much as the actual labour of wrecking. They found the Laurier resting on solid rock. When Polsons built her they contracted to deliver her in Montreal, but she sank enroute, and the loss was theirs. Last year they wished to raise her, but the Reids had their fourteen wrecking outfits otherwise engaged. The wreckers found that the cabins were washed off and the smokestack down, but the hull, steel work, and machinery were in good condition. The dredge cost $9,000 and it is said to be worth about $50,000 to-day. Even the black paint on the smokestack is in good condition, though somewhat covered with mud. As the boat is raised all the mud, etc., will be thoroughly cleaned off, as the steel would be injured if this dried upon it.

Diver's Dangerous Work

The Laurier was found resting in 70 feet of water. The top of the big A frame, which is such a conspicuous part of the dredge as it lies partly out of the water to-day, was fourteen feet under water and it is over 60 feet high. Before the boat could be raised, six 3-inch wire cables had to be cut under water. Two divers with a saw did this, and they worked under forty pounds pressure. One of these divers has been at the work for twenty-five years. It is extremely dangerous work, as the dropping of one of the heavy chains upon the diver would probably mean his death. So far Capt. Reid has not had an accident during this contract.

How the Boat is Raised

The first steps taken to raise the Laurier consisted of putting immense chains under. In order to do this she was first lifted slightly by the corners. The chains once under her, the lifting by pontoons commenced. The pontoons were immense water-tight boxeas made of six inch timber fourteen feet deep, forty feet long and 15 feet beam. The chains, which are each subjected to a seventy ton strain, come up through these pontoons and are fastened at the top. The great links of two inch steel sometimes snap when the lake is rough. This is only one of many delays to which wreckers are subjected. Two chains run up through each of the four pontoons which are ranged two on each side of the Laurier. The pontoons are allowed to fill with water until their tops are about a foot below the surface. Then each chain is pulled up tight and fastened. The next step is to pump the water out of the pontoons. This is done by a barge on one side and a tug on the other. As the water is syphoned out, the pontoons naturally raise and they bring the wreck with them three feet nearer the surface each lift. Then it is towed until it grounds; the pontoons are let down again another reef taken in the chains and the work commences all over again.

Two Miles in a Lift

Progressing in this way the Laurier was gradually brought nearer to Port Hope. Sometimes she came a couple of miles in one lift. She is 110 feet long with 36 feet beam, so the pontoons had a heavy weight of steel and wood to carry. A big steel spud crashed over on the fallen smokestack as the dredge was being brought along but nothing was materially injured.

Capt Reid says that the theory of weight under water does not work out in practice. Lying this morning with her deck near the surface, and a great mass of heavy steel work above it, the Laurier was not as heavy as she was when totally submerged. Many people watched her from the pier. Quite a few went out in boats. Capt. Reid declared that visitors have been so numerous he has had fears for their safety.

Danger for Spectators

"Some of them have stepped on to the pontoons," he remarked this morning, "and they did not apparently realize their danger. If one of the chains breaks the pontoon stands right up on its end, and it would send them up in the air like stones out of a catapult."

The dredge was lying this morning in 21 feet of water, some distance from the pier. About 11 o'clock the pontoons became empty, the tug took the wreck in tow, and it was brought substantially nearer. There is only 13 feet of water at the pier-head, but Capt. Ellis expects to get the Laurier floated by to-night or to-morrow, so that it can be got in all right. In the meantime he has a very sleepy crew, for the men worked yesterday in the rain, and all through the night.

LAST HALF HOLIDAY OF THE SEASON

Clerks Are To-day Enjoying Their Last Half Day's Outing for the Summer Season

This is the last of the Thursday afternoon holidays of the season. The observance of the half-holiday on Thursdays has been quite general in Peterborough this year, more particularly during July and August. Needless to say, the various clerks and office hands affected, have appreciated the kindness of employers in this regard. The weather condition, on the whole have been very favourable, and as a result the entire season has been thoroughly enjoyed.

"We believe it pays," said a leading merchant to the Examiner this morning, when asked as to the effect of the half holiday on trade. "We lose nothing in local custom," he continued, "and the resultant effect on employees is exceptional. In every instance they seem to appreciate the privilege and do better work for the firm."

WATER AFFECTED BY LEAK IN DAM

Lindsay Post Concerned Over Alleged Low Water in Scugog River—Relief is Expected When Leak is Repaired

SOME ALARM IS FELT

The Lindsay Post bewails the fact that the water in the Scugog River is low, and, under the heading, "Our Vanishing Navigation," the following editorial was published yesterday:

The loweness of the water in the river is causing our citizens so much annoyance that the Post called up Superintendent McClellan of Peterborough, to learn what we could of the trouble, and if there was any prospective remedy. Mr. McClellan said that his men had let away within the last few days a large quantity of water that had been stored in small lakes up north, and that Balsam and Cameron Lakes were now at flood level. This water should soon be flowing into Sturgeon Lake, and in a day or so the water should rise several inches. He also said evaporation had been so great this season, coupled with the continued lack of rain, that water was not available to maintain the normal level.

The Post also telephoned Bobcaygeon and learned that there is a very bad leak at Little Bob, that is losing fully as much water as is entering Sturgeon Lake. If this be correct there can be little relief expected this season, and we understand an amount has been provided to replace the present dam during the coming winter with a new one.

Eczema is Baby's Enemy

CAUSING KEEN DISTRESS FROM THE DREADFUL ITCHING—SOMETIMES LASTS FOR YEARS—CURE EFFECTED BY

Dr. Chase's Ointment

The first indication of eczema is a red pimple, or blister-like eruption. The points run together, and make a moistened patch, which "weeps" at first, and then dries into a crust.

The intense itching of eczema of the face and scalp is very hard for the little one to bear, and the result is scratching until free bleeding takes place, and recovery is further retarded. Besides the suffering from the distressing itching, the child is restless and sleepless.

When left to itself, eczema runs on indefinitely, covering the body with sores, but fortunately there is positive cure in the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, a preparation which by its marvellous soothing and healing powers, brings quick relief from itching and heals up the sores.

Mr. William Crafts, jr., Burk's Falls, Ont., writes: "Our little boy, aged three years, broke out with eczema all over his face, hands and back, and we had a terrible time trying to relieve his suffering. It was so bad that when he scratched it would almost make the blood flow. The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly brought relief and made a thorough cure, as there has never any return of the disagreeable ailment. We always keep Dr. Chase's medicines in the house and find them very useful."

Mrs. M. McCann, 4 Short street, St. John, N. B., writes: "My little girl, three years old, had her face covered with eczema and it was beginning to spread all over her body. I tried many different ointments, and the doctor could not do her any good. A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment and she was completely cured by one box. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment enough for the good it has done her."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven especially successful in the cure of baby eczema, as well as the prevention of this torturing disease, when used for chafing and skin diseases, in which eczema finds its beginnings. Sixty cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 12

Whistle On The Morning Train Was Not Working Right

According to Testimony of Conductor Stevenson at the Inquest at Manvers Yesterday---Aftermath of the Accident in Which Edward Wansborough Was Killed

Special Staff Correspondent.

Manvers Station, Aug. 29.—

That more lives were not lost in the collision at Manvers station yesterday morning, in which Edward Wansborough of Toronto Junction was killed, is regarded by railwaymen as miraculous. Had it not been for the warning given by Conductor Jas. S. Stevenson, who, in railway parlance, was riding dead head on second 50, the train that was standing at the station, at least five other men would undoubtedly have been killed. As it was, their escape was a narrow one, Sanderson himself having just reached the fence when the cars came tumbling into the ditch.

An Examiner reporter visited the scene of the wreck last evening and found the auxiliary crew from Toronto Junction still at work upon the debris, although the main line had been cleared earlier in the afternoon. Traffic was not blocked at all, trains being able to get around the wreck on sidings.

When the reporter reached the scene the debris had been removed to each side of the tracks. The three cabooses were totally demolished, there being nothing left of them but a mass of wooden splinters and twisted fragments of iron. The cars were simply smashed into kindling wood, and a pile of debris is all that remains.

The rear freight car of the standing train, just ahead of the three cabooses, was also damaged. It was turned over on its side and a quantity of the contents was spilled. On a siding alongside of where the collision occurred, were standing, yesterday morning, a number of boarding cars used by Italian labourers, and three of these were upset by the collision. Only one Italian was in the cars, and he escaped with a bad fright and a few cuts from broken glass.

The auxiliary crew were at work last night by torchlight, righting the cars that were capsized. The accident occurred about 200 yards west of the station at 7.45 a.m.

Contrary to first reports, Wansborough was not instantly killed, although he died a few moments after being taken from the wreck. Conductor Stevenson states that he was removed in less than three minutes after the crash occurred, and that his pulse was still beating then. He had been carried with his caboose, which was the second of the three, through the side of the one ahead and dropped outside the pile of wreckage.

Conductor Stevenson heard the oncoming train whistle for down brakes, and shouted to his companions, "For God's sake, he is going into us," whereupon five out of the six men in the rear of the train made their escape.

Wansborough's twin brother, Mr. J. W. Wansborough, chief train dispatcher at Toronto, arrived at Manvers on a freight train shortly after 5 o'clock, and after a post-mortem examination had been made on the remains by Dr. L. Lapp of Pontypool, he was allowed to take the body back to Toronto, where a number of sorrowing friends were waiting. The body was placed in the caboose of a west-bound freight train, and, accompanied by the deceased's brother and Conductor Stevenson was taken to Toronto.

The Inquest

Coroner Dr. Gray of Peterborough opened an inquest at 5.30 o'clock in the freight shed of the station, where the body was placed. With the exception of the jurymen, there were only a few persons present. Only two witnesses were examined last evening, Dr. Lapp of Pontypool, who testified as to the injuries received, and Conductor Stevenson, who told of the manner in which he had given the alarm which saved the lives of the other trainmen.

The inquest was then adjourned till 5 o'clock Friday evening, in the Orange Hall, Manvers.

The following jurymen were empanelled: W H Johnston, foreman; John Byers, Joseph Thompson, Geo. Barnett, Hugh Logan, Douglas Bradley, Thos. Logan, Thos. Eakins, Alex Potts, Jas. Johnston, Henry Sandy, Jas. Thompson, R J McRoberts, and John Killett.

The Jury viewed the body, after which the taking of evidence was proceeded with.

Dr. L. Lapp of Pontypool was the first witness. He testified that he had seen deceased yesterday morning about 10 o'clock. He was dead then, and had been taken out of the wreck. He saw the external injuries deceased had received, and so far as he could judge, they were sufficient to cause death. Witness could not say whether there was a fracture of the skull without further examination. The most serious injury was one below the clavicle, the extent of which injury he could not swear to. There were no other injuries except a few bruises. A post-mortem, he thought, would be necessary to find the immediate cause of death. Without that, he could not say whether the spine was fractured, the brains lacerated, or the lungs punctured.

Jas. S. Stevenson, a C P R conductor living at Toronto Junction, was the only other witness sworn. He testified that he was riding dead head on train second 50 east, the one standing at the station. He was in the third caboose from the rear. The first intimation witness had of any danger was when he heard train third 50 whistle for the semaphore. Then he heard a low whistle, a sort of rumble, and ran to the door. He saw the train coming, and shouted, "Boys, he is coming into us!" and the crew thought for a moment that he was joking. He exclaimed again, "My God, boys, he is coming into us!" He heard someone in the second caboose say "Jump." He got out of the car and was climbing the fence when the crash came.

Deceased was in the second car from the rear. Witness had not been in that car during the night and did not see the timber that might have made the puncture in Wansborough's neck. After the train had whistled for the semaphore, witness heard another whistle, a kind of rumble. He could not tell the cause of the accident. The train was not running more than five or six miles an hour when she struck. The car which the deceased was in was telescoped.

In answer to a juryman, witness said that the whistle on engine of train third 50 had not been working right. It had to be pulled for some time before sounding.

The witness said that Conductor Hay was in charge of the standing train. He could not say whether the brakes on the other train were working right or not. It was customary for the engineer to whistle for brakes, and for the brakeman to go out and put on the other brakes. He could not say whether this was done in this case or not. He had been on the engine of third 50. The train was about 200 yards away when he first saw it. It was possible to stop a train going ten miles an hour in five or six car lengths under favourable conditions.

It was decided to adjourn the inquest until 5 o'clock Friday evening in the Orange Hall, Manvers. The crew of third 50 have been served with notices to attend.

BUCKHORN PEOPLE FIND FAULT

With Actions of Passengers on Steamer Ogemah During the Recent Indian Outbreak

The people of Buckhorn, according to Mr. Robt. Shaw of Harvey, who was in the city to-day, are annoyed over the incidents connected with the recent excursion from Chemong to Stony Lake, on the day of the regatta. They claim that the persons on the steamer Ogemah had no right to put the drunken Indians off the steamer and leave them at Buckhorn, where there was no means of keeping them in order. They are of the opinion that they should have been kept on the boat, where constables were sworn in to preserve order, instead of leaving them at Buckhorn.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for Sthes strong and alert — for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health and for this reason and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

FIRE BRIGADE CHIEF MAKES STATMENTS

Says Brigade Will Not Extinguish Any More Sawdust Fires

In reference to the frequent sawdust fires, about which a complaint has been registered by the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company, Chief Rutherford stated to the Examiner to-day that the brigade was not going to extinguish any more of them. During the past three years there had been 27, he stated. Whenever the brigade attempted to put out one of these fires, about 2,700 feet of hose had to be utilized, so that, should a blaze occur in any other portion of the city, he explained, there would be no hose to assist in getting it out.

The chief further stated that when the sawdust was burning he had sent his foreman over every hour to see that nothing besides the piles were on fire.

The Chief Health Officer On Polution Of Water

Dr. Hodgetts' Report on Water Supply of Peterborough Published To-day for the First Time in Its Entirety.

SOME SUGGESTIONS MADE

The last report of the Provincial Board of Health of Ontario, contains some interesting information, concerning the water supply of Peterborough, upon which a report was made by officials connected with that department. Under the amendment made to the Public Health Act at the last session of the Legislature, Peterborough was the first to send a request for a report on its water supply. Dr Hodgetts, Chief Health Officer for Ontario, made a visit to Peterborough, and his report is now given publicity for the first time. It is as follows:

(Application having been made by the corporation of the City of Peterborough under sub-section 6, of section 30, of the Public Health Act, which empowers this Board to define the area within which it shall be illegal to contaminate the source of the corporation's water supply;

I beg to report having made an examination of the waters of the Otonabee River above the intake on both banks thereof, as far as the village of Lakefield, and would recommend this Board to define the area within which it shall be unlawful to either put polluted matter of any kind into the water, or upon the ice of the river, or on the banks of the Otonabee River, within a point beginning on the shore at the pump house, and bounded by the road which parallels the west and east shores, till the shores of Lake Katchewanooka are reached; and any ditches or water courses which enter into the said river, provided, however, any sewage effluent or domestic waste treated in a manner satisfactory to the Board shall be permitted to be run into the waters of the river.

I would also recommend that this Board notify settlers and owners of summer residences and hotels situate in or steamboats plying on the Kawartha Lakes, that the emptying of sewage and house or other waste, or the construction of privy pits in such a manner as to contaminate the waters of these lakes, will be considered a nuisance by this Board, and where the practice exists must forthwith be discontinued.

The following suggestions are made in reference to the water supply of this city:

1. I am of the opinion that the intake pipe should be run into deeper water farther up the stream.

2. A dry earth closet should be provided for the employees at the pump house.

3. Mr. Carnegie, whose property adjoins that upon which the pump house is situated, having a water closet on the premises, should construct a septic tank close to the house, large enough to hold 24 hours discharge, and provide for the distribution of the effluent by tiles distributed in the adjacent ground, which is well suited for the purpose.

4. The premises of Mr. Isaac Fredenburg require considerable cleaning to be done. The stable and manure heap in their present position and condition, will cause pollution of the river, particularly after each rainfall: the pig pen although somewhat removed from the bank, yet from its filthy condition and the lie of the land, will also seriously pollute the river. Both of these should be removed to a further distance, as also should the closet, which should be converted into a dry earth closet.

5. The closet at the house of Mr. E. L. Davis, near No. 5 power house, is not only too near his own well, but is too near the bank, being in shale. This should be removed and a dry earth closet substituted therefor.

6. The stable, closets, etc., situated in the building on the premises of Mr Dawsbury, No. 5 power house abuts on the water and should be removed from their present position.

7. The drainage from the barns, stable, etc., of Mr. J. J. Bickell; is towards the river, through the pasture field; the premises must be kept cleaner.

8. In the village of Lakefield, the following unsanitary conditions exist, all of which must pollute the water:

a. The Cavendish Lumber Company, Limited, 100 men use closets which are situated over the river; the closets should be removed back from the river and converted into dry earth closets.

b. Similarly, the closet of the Moore planing mill must be removed.

c. The McAllister Milling Company

d. The J. Hull flour mill.

e. The Griffin saw mill, each should discontinue the present closets and substitute dry earth closets.

f. The raw sewage of the Craig House at present empties into the river just at the rear of the premises. It will be remembered a complaint lodged with the secretary at the time was followed by a notice to the authorities at Lakefield to stop the work, but this the local authorities ignored. The emptying of the raw sewage will pollute the river.

g. At the office of the cement works notably, a local nuisance exists caused by the cess pool at the back of the company's office, and the running of the contents into the ditch should be stopped.

THE FOUNDATION THIS FALL

Work to be Commenced on the Erection of New Building for Colonial Weaving Company Before Winter Comes

COMPLETED IN THE SPRING

It is probable that work on the foundation for the new building of the Colonial Weaving Company, will be undertaken this fall, and preparations made to erect the building in the early spring. It was not considered possible to erect the whole building this fall, in view of the fact that it would require some time for the preparation of plans for the structure, and by the time that the tenders were called for it would be too late to build the mills before winter came on.

The present intention is, it is understood, to put down the foundation before the cold weather interferes with the work, and erect the balance of the building next year.

Labour is not as scarce at the present time as it was earlier in the summer, due largely to the fact that the more extensive buildings have been erected, and the work at present under way does not require the services of all the men associated with the building trades in the city.

IS RECOVERING FROM ACCIDENT

Mr. Davis is Improving Satisfactorily and Will be Out in a Few Days

Mr. Davis, who was injured a few days ago at the Canadian General Electric Company's works, by a weight falling on his foot, is recovering nicely after the operation, which was performed by Dr. Young, and hopes to be able to be out again in a few days.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a great mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging, sensation of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for all forms of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

MILK WAGON WAS HIT BY TRAIN

A Bad Spill at Corner of McDonnel Street —Driver Had a Narrow Escape

A milk van belonging to Mr. Addins, a milkman living on the outskirts of the city, was demolished yesterday morning by the Lakefield train, which leaves here at 8.30, at the McDonel street crossing. The driver evidently did not see the train approaching until it was too late to avert an accident, and the pilot of the engine struck the wagon, while the train was going at a good rate of speed. The result was disastrous to the vehicle, which was very badly smashed, and it had to be taken to a repair shop. Fortunately neither the driver of the wagon nor the horse were injured. It was, however, a close shave, and it might easily have resulted much more seriously.

RAPID WORK ON GRAND STAND

New Structure for Ottawa Exhibition Nearly Completed—Will Seat 3,000 Persons

The contractor for the new grand stand at the Central Canada Exhibition grounds, to replace the one burned early in the month, has exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine director of Ottawa's big Fair. He is now putting the finishing touches on the new grand stand. This grand stand will seat about 3,000 people. It is built in a most substantial manner, and the Exhibition management are well pleased with the work. There are four large sections. Two of these will be placed for reserved seats and the others for general admission. The other repairs have progressed so well that by the 4th of September every building will again be complete for the Exhibition. Thus the disastrous damage of the fire has been completley overcome, and there is nothing to prevent the Exhibition on the 13th to 21st of September excelling any yet given by the Central Canada Association.

WAS BALD SIX YEARS

Three Months of the New Scientific Treatment Restored His Hair

Baldness is caused by dandruff, which is caused by a germ. Kill the germ and it is almost certain that hair will grow again, if the follicle has not been totally destroyed. Nels Peterson, of Lime Spur, Mont., says: "I had been bald six years, and had tried all kinds of 'cures,' but without any benefit whatever, until I tried Herpicide. On November 16, 1899, I began using Herpicide, and in three months a fine growth of hair covered my head completely." Ask your druggist for Herpicide. Everybody can have luxuriant, glossy hair, if Herpicide is used thoroughly. Take no substitute. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. WOMAN'S EYES KNEW LIGHT BUTTER

Case at Police Court This Morning —Assault and Drunk Cases

This morning's police court was once more of large proportions and it was only after an hour and a half that all the cases were disposed of. The usual number of drunk and disorderly charges were read, but these were interspersed with a butter problem and an assault case, which proved the features of the morning's session.

Louis Chambers, a young man, was the first to be called by the magistrate. He pleaded guilty to a drunk and disorderly charge and was assessed the usual $2, to be paid forthwith or 10 days in jail.

Again did that eccentric personage, Augustus Dundas, occupy a portion of the prisoner's dock this morning. The same old charge which he has for ages answered was preferred against him. He was found drunk in a public place, although it was but a short time ago that he was released from jail.

"What do you say to that charge?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes, I was drunken," said Augustus.

Two dollars to be paid forthwith.

"They took my money from me. I had $22 and its all gone," said the prisoner.

According to Augustus he had enough to pay his fine and $20 over.

"Ten days in jail," said the magistrate, "and after that six months."

Disorderly Conduct

William Peters was charged with causing a disturbance in his father's house on Pardell street, on July 23rd. The parent did not wish to press the charge but the boy was fined $2.

Fined for Assault

Fred Lebarge next appeared on a charge of assaulting Geo. Prentice at the office of Mr. Thos. Rehill, on August 21st. Prentice was present at the court and little observance was necessary to see that his eyes had been in contact with some harder substance. He looked as if a combined attack had been made on his countenance by an army of men.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the defendant and pleaded that provocation was the cause of the trouble.

Prentice stated that he knew little about the circumstance, having been intoxicated at the time. He only knew that when he came to his senses his eyes were blackened and his face badly damaged.

"Perhaps an earthquake struck you," suggested the magistrate.

"Yes," said Prentice, absentmindedly.

Thomas Rehill testified that he had sent Fred Doughty into his office to coax Prentice out on the evening of the assault. Shortly after he met Lebarge, whom he told what he had advised Doughty to do, and soon he heard a window breaking. He afterwards saw the two men outside, with Lebarge on top, punching Prentice with his fists.

Fred Doughty, on going into the office, stated that he tried to waken Prentice from his drowsy slumbers. Lebarge appeared soon after and shook the half sleeping man by the shoulders. He heard the latter swear and a struggle ensued. An arm went through the window, but he was not certain whose it was, and, soon the two were outside with Lebarge using his fists freely. Witness had told him to cease striking Prentice and he did so.

Lebarge said that he had been told to go into the office by Mr. Rehill, and to get Prentice outdoors, but when he attempted to waken him the latter took off his coat, swore at him, and wanted to fight.

The magistrate fined the accused $5 and costs, amounting to $7.60.

Butter Episode

Thomas Lancaster was charged by Mrs. Ann Schwartz with selling her 13 ounces of butter for a pound, for which she paid him 20 cents.

Considerable evidence was heard, but the case was dismissed on the grounds that the clerk did not sell the butteer by the pound but by the block.

By the pound the butter sold at 24 cents, but that which Mrs. Schwartz received was culled and was therefore disposed of at 20 cents. The butter came from Port Perry and was of the dairy variety. He never weighed each print separately, but only half a dozen or more from each case when it arrived. He always found it to be a few ounces overweight in that quantity.

In questioning Mrs. Schwartz, Mr. Lancaster asked her if butter didn't shrink. "I have made a lot of butter in my life," she said, "and have never found it to shrink very much—it's not drygoods."

Mr. Dumble dismissed the charge on the above grounds, but stated that the clerk should have informed the woman that the butter didn't weigh a pound. He did not think a fraud in any way was attempted, but advised open, candid dealing.

HONOURS SHOWN PRESIDENT

Mr. T. J. Wallace Made Recipient of Handsome Present by Members of Eko Camp Club

IS LEAVING THE CITY

The approaching departure from the city of Mr. T. J. Wallace, president of the Eko Camp Club, was made the occasion last night for a gathering of that club of more than usual significance. All the members of the oldest social club in the city were present, and participated in a farewell to Mr. Wallace. At an appropriate stage in the proceedings, Mr. W R G Biggins read the following address, and Mr. Manson Comstock presented Mr. Wallace with a dozen silver table knives, pearl mounted, as an evidence of the kindly feelings the members entertain for him:—

Peterborough, Aug. 28, 1907.

Mr. T. J. Wallace,

President, Eko Club.

We, your associates in the Eko Club, have learned with regret of your decision to leave the city in the near future for a wider field of labour in Toronto, and feel that we can not allow you to go without a remembrance of the pleasant days and evenings we have spent together. As president of the club during the past year, you have not only admirably fulfilled your duties as head of our old and honourable club, but you have proven yourself a gentleman and a good sport in all the undertakings of our organization.

We ask you to accept this gift, not as an indication of the value of your services and company, but as a mark of the friendship existing between us, and as a little remembrance from the boys of the Eko Camp of Peterborough.

In acknowledging the presentation, Mr. Wallace expressed his deep appreciation of the action of his fellow clubmen. He assured them that his associations with Eko Camp had always been of the most pleasant, and he severed his immediate connection with that organization with deep regret. He would always remember the men of Eko Camp, and his many pleasant associations with them would be happy memories to him.

Other members of the club spoke briefly and in eulogistic terms.

HE WALKED 24 TIMES AROUND PARK

Feat of Youth This Morning Who Declined to Give His Name

Two youths this morning, without making their intended feat public, held a walking competition, choosing as their base of operations the soft grass of the Riverside Park.

One of them went four times around when he sat down beside the fence, while the other bravely encompassed the park exactly 24 times.

According to some boys who watched the walker, he began at 10.30 o'clock, and finished about 11.50. He declined to give his name to an Examiner representative, who arrived at the park in time to see the finish. The youth walked over to the city afterwards, apparently none the worse for his exertions, and may spring a surprise in the near future in this developing sport.

The Examiner is also informed that almost every evening youths and young men, in abbreviated clothing, may be seen doing stunts up the Mud Lake road. None of them however claim to be training for any event, but state that they are simply taking exercise!

ORGANIZER OF THE BARBER'S UNION

Mr. J. T. Feltz, of Cleveland, Paid an Official Visit to Peterborough Yesterday

Mr. J. T. Feltz of Cleveland, O., one of the chief organizers of the Barbers' Union, was in the city yesterday and paid a visit to the officers of the local union. Mr. Feltz is making a tour in the interests of the union and left last night for the east intending to stop at a number of places in Ontario. This union throughout the country is in a very flourishing condition.

EMPLOYEES HAD A GOOD OUTING

Peterborough Canoe Company Entertained Their Men Down the River Yesterday

A SPLENDID SUCCESS

Yesterday the employees of the Peterborough Canoe Company held their first excursion to Jubilee Point, per steamer Monarch, and it was pronounced to be the best excursion on the river this year. Leaving Peterborough wharf at 9 a.m., the sail down the beautiful, winding Otonabee River was greatly enjoyed by all. Fruit was served free to all on board. The weather was all that could be desired, and although the trip had not been advertised, the boat was burdened with over 150 people, being made up of the employees and their friends. There was an exceptionally good list of sports, and every item which the committee had arranged was carried out without a hitch, which added much to the enjoyment of all. The sports were entered into enthusiastically by men, woman and children, and resulted as follows:

Race—Girls, under 12—Mary O'Dette, Eva Jobe.

Girls under 16— LLillie Harron, Marie O'Dette.

Boys under 12 — Percy Dunford, Peter Goselin.

Boys under 16 — Peter Goselin, Percy Dunford.

Men's 100 yards, open—N Hopkins, H Hayes.

Ladies' Race — Muriel O' Dette, Rose Coughlan.

Married Men's Race—Ed. McDonnell, L Brooks.

Married Ladies' Race — Mrs. L. Brooks, Mrs. Jones.

Double Race—Miss M. O'Dette and Vernon O'Dette.

Walking Race — Mr. Hy. Morgan, T McMurray.

Standing Jump—H Hayes, E McDonnell.

Standing hop, step and jump—H. Hayes, E. McDonnell.

Running hop, step, jump — H. Hayes, E McDonnell.

The last event, which caused a lot of excitement, was the tug-of-war, between the upstairs men and the downstairs men. It resulted in a glorious victory for the upstairs, despite the fact that their opponents had the services of a city alderman.

The prize for the tug-of-war was a box of cigars. The other prizes were substantial and were distributed on the trip home.

The sport committee was composed of Messrs. E. McDonnell, A. Kingdon, Ald. Morgan, W. Richardson and B. O'Dette, and the success of the picnic was largely due to their efforts, and also to the substantial manner in which the management of the factory backed them up in providing money for the sports, which totalled nearly $40; also to the excellent service given at the hotel, and last, but not least, the courteous treatment by the officers and crew of the steamer Monarch.

It speaks volumes for the firm to have such harmony existing between employer and employees, and a noteworthy fact is that the whole factory turned out en masse, with only one exception, and this was unavoidable.

A VERY INTERESTING SOUVENIR

Mr. Robt. Fair Has Copy of Emergency Call of British House of Commons Whip to Attend Division

Mr. Robt. Fair, since his return from his trip to the old land is constantly finding interesting souvenirs among his effects. Yesterday he ran across a notice given him by a Mr. Glendenning, M.P. for North Antrim, Ireland, in the British House of Commons. It was a note issued by the Conservative whip, and was an unusually important one—known by reason of this fact as a black rule notice. It was headed "Most Important," and the following was the call of the whip to the members in his charge:

"Your attention is very earnestly requested in the House of Commons on Monday, June 24th, and following days.

"The Prime Minister will move his motion relating to the House of Lords. Members are requested to make arrangements to be present, if possible, during the continuation of the debate and especially on Wednesday, 26th, when a division of the utmost importance will be taken.

G. WHITELY."

Mr. Glendenning is a member of a firm with which Mr. Fair does considerable business. He is an ardent Conservative and responded to the call of his whip and was present on the occasion referred to.

WEDDING BELLS.

CALHOUN-KERGAN

A quiet wedding took place last night at the residence of Rev. A. E. Steuernagel, 711 Water street, when, at 7.30 o'clock, Mr. William James Calhoun was married to Miss Maggie Kergan, both residents of Peterborough. They were unattended, the witnesses to the interesting ceremony being confined to the immediate friends of the principals. They will continue to live in the city.

SPENCE-NUGENT

Lakefield, August 29. — The marriage of Mr. Percy Spence, eldest son of Mr. Samuel Spence of Lakefield, to Miss Victoria Nugent, daughter of Mrs. Nugent, of the same place, was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, on Queen street, on Wednesday, August 28, at 7 p.m.

Many of the relatives and friends of the young couple were present. The house had been most tastefully decorated for the occasion, the drawing room and dining room being draped in yellow bunting and the tables trimmed with yellow ribbon.

There were no bridesmaids. The flower girl was Miss Gwyneth Madge Nugent a young cousin of the bride, who wore a most becoming costume of white silk, trimmed with Valenciennes lace. She carried a bouquet of carnations and pinks. The bride looked beautiful in a dress of white muslin over white silk, trimmed with ribbon and lace, and wearing a tulle veil and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses, and entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Mary Spence, sister of the bridegroom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hamilton Spence, of Tyrone, Ont., uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. John Bedford, pastor of the Methodist church, Lakefield.

After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the supper room, where a most sumptuous repast awaited them. In the midst of the festivities the happy pair left for Peterborough, en route for Toronto and other points, the bride's going-away gown being of blue broadcloth, with smart hat to match. The future home of the bride and bridegroom will be in Lakefield.

A number of costly and beautiful gifts were received. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a beautiful necklace and bracelet to match.

RESIDENT ENGINEER AT HASTING

Report That One Will be Appointed There to Have Charge of That Section of the Canal

The Hastings Star of this week says: Hastings is to have a resident engineer here to look after this part of the canal. Mr. Mack arrived in town on Monday, has engaged suitable offices for the department and doubtless something will be done to make the river more navigable in the near future.

MARTIN-ORME PIANOS

A recognized authority, Mr. Puddicombe, director of the Ottawa Conservatory of Music, says in part:

June 30, 1905.

I was greatly surprised and delighted with the Martin-Orme Piano I played on last night. I found it to be one of the most grateful of all the upright pianos I have ever tried.

That was two years ago. Mr. Puddicombe writes now:

I have had ample opportunity of testing the Martin-Orme wearing quality in the Conservatory here, and it is perfectly satisfactory.

SAYS THIS IS BEST

A leading health journal in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood?" prints in a recent issue the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one ounce;
Compound Salatone, one ounce;
Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, four ounces.

Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known physician states that these are harmless vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy.

This mixture will clean the blood of all impurities. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigor and energy into run-down debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Salatone and Extract Dandelion, works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid, and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

ARABS ARE PLANNING AN ATTACK

French General Prepares to Give Them Warm Reception.

MORE TROOPS TO BE SENT

Premier Clemenceau Makes Announcement—Rumors of an Assassination—Fifty-Three Prisoners Placed on Trial — Warships Sent From Spain—Moors Will Likely Fall Into Trap Laid by French.

Paris, Aug. 29.—In announcing the Government's attitude on the Moroccan question at yesterday's Cabinet session, Premier Clemenceau declared that Gen. Drude, the French commander, would be given all the troops he needed to carry out the mission with which he was charged.

M. Clemenceau said the Government had propounded a number of questions to the French commander, who had not yet answered them.

M. Clemenceau added that the Government had no confirmation of a rumor that the Sultan of Morocco had been assassinated, and also was ignorant of the real purpose of Mulai Hafig, proclaimed Sultan at Morocco City.

The Premier said Gen. Drude had more troops than he had asked for, adding, "While at Karlsbad I took the initiative and advised that more men of war and an additional battery of artillery be sent to Casablanca."

Cabling from Casablanca, a correspondent of The Journal says the indications are that the Arabs are preparing for another general attack on the French forces. Everything, he continues, is being done to give them a warm reception, and wire entanglements are being fixed around the camp.

Gen. Drude, the French commander, has decided to despatch a portion of his army, about five miles south of Casablanca, to a position near Taddert, where he will endeavor to draw the Moors into a trap.

The police officials here yesterday opened the preliminary trial of fifty-three prisoners charged with assassination, robbery, pillage or connivance with the hostile Moors.

Sultan's Troops Defeated.

Tangier, Aug. 29.—Advices received here from Fez says that the Zrahna tribe defeated a column of the Sultan's troops, sent to collect tribute from the tribesmen.

Spain Sends Ships.

Madrid, Aug. 29.—Orders have been sent to the battleship Polayo and the cruiser Carlos Quinto to be ready to sail for Morocco at a moment's notice.

PUGSLEY ACCEPTED.

Will Get Railways Portfolio — Bye-elections to Be Held Soon.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—Hon. Dr. Pugsley had an interview with Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday. He was offered and accepted a position in the Government, and will be given the Railway Department.

The bye-elections will take place as early as possible. It is expected that the Ontario situation will be cleared up soon. It now stands between Graham and Pardee, with the best chances for Graham, who is Sir Wilfrid's choice.

The report that Hon. N. A. Belcourt had been offered and accepted a Senatorship is not correct. The Government is not appointing Senators just now.

Broker Kept the Cash.

St. Catharines, Aug. 29.—Yesterday afternoon Charles V. Mutart, broker, charged with the theft of $151, proceeds of a draft given him by A. E. Clayton to pay custom duties on a carload of stone, pleaded guilty before Magistrate Comfort, and was let go on suspended sentence, though Crown Attorney Brennan contended that because restitution had been made should be of no avail as the money was not returned till after the arrest had been made.

Fire at Trenton.

Trenton, Aug. 29.—A severe fire, which for a time threatened the town, broke out in a barn belonging to Geo. Fennell shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday, and before it was got under control had totally destroyed Fennell's hide store and two frame buildings belonging to J. Gotchard, together with a quantity of coal. All the buildings were partially insured, but the loss will be many thousand dollars.

Jumped Into Lake.

Calgary, Alta., Aug. 29.—At Strathmore, Alta., a small town 30 miles east of Calgary, an unknown man committed suicide by jumping from a trestle into Eagle Lake. Four section hands were walking along the track in the direction of the trestle when they saw the man leap into the lake.

Priest Goes Free.

Windsor, Aug. 29.—Rev. Father Bertrand, a Windsor priest, who was charged in Detroit with disorderly conduct, was discharged yesterday afternoon by Justice Jeffries. Only one of the girls who caused his arrest appeared in court and the justice took no stock in the case.

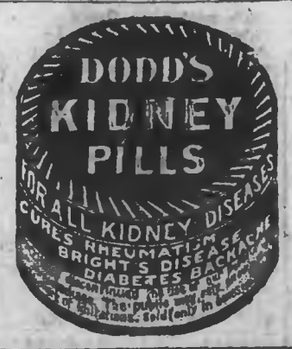
Theft or Tragedy?

Brockville, Aug. 29.—Monday evening a respectably-dressed young couple, strangers in town, hired a boat at a local livery, leaving the impression that they were going for a short row on the river, but since then neither the man, woman nor boat has been located.

Welland, Aug. 29.—At the Government elevator, Port Colborne, yesterday morning Alfred Jackson, a workman, fell to the hopper of a 30-foot cement bin. He was taken to St. Catharines Hospital last night, but has not since regained consciousness.

It was difficult to get him out of the bin. Comrades finally used a rope and derrick.

Several ribs were fractured, but the chief injury is to the base of the brain. His home is in Thorold, where his wife resides.



EFFORTS TO PROMOTE WORLD'S PEACE

Carnegie Advocates Union of European States.

EULOGIZES GERMAN EMPEROR

Says Wilhelm Is Vital Energy of the Empire — Great Power for Good—Has Stimulated Industry—Amalgamation of Peoples Is Bound to Come Says Mr. Carnegie—The Kaiser's Mission.

Berlin, Aug. 29.—Andrew Carnegie's estimate of Emperor William, probably derived from his passionate interviews with His Majesty at Kiel in June last, appear in a periodical, The Morgen, to-day, under the title of "Emperor William's Mission."

Mr. Carnegie recalls the remark Cardinal Richelieu made to King Louis XIII. one day: "A great man has arisen in England, your majesty. His name is Cromwell."

Continuing, Mr. Carnegie says: "I say that a great man has arisen in Germany—the Emperor. It is impossible to follow his deeds without feeling that here is a personality, here is a power which is able to do good or evil in the world. Hitherto he has given Germany a stimulus to industrial activity. German ships are the fastest on the ocean and Germany's waterways are being developed according to his plans and soon will play an important role in the internal development of Germany. The Emperor's head and hand assisted in making Germany the second largest steel producer in the world. He is at once the Emperor and the vital energy of the empire."

Mr. Carnegie advocates a union of the European states for the maintenance of peace, saying: "Such amalgamations of peoples, merely the dream of poets, are bound to come sometime as the race progresses."

He adds: "As the Emperor of Russia took the initial step towards ensuring the general peace of the world, by calling The Hague conference, so the other mighty Emperor, inspired by thoughts that he owes it to himself and Germany, to play a leading role as the liberator of the continent from the pressure that bears heavily upon it, and free it from the pale, paralyzing fear of war and annihilation between the members of the same body."

ACTOR'S TRAGIC END.

Burns His Money, Throws Away Jewelry, and Shoots Himself.

Iowa, Aug. 29.—In sight of an astonished crowd, Carl Pressley, an actor, Tuesday made a fire in the street of his paper money, threw his jewelry in the sewer, and then announced to a group of friends that he was going to kill himself.

He drew a revolver from his pocket, walked across the street, and calling to a number of persons in the vicinity to watch him die, fired a bullet into his brain.

Investigate Flying Rollers.

Windsor, Aug. 29.—Michigan's deputy attorney-general is making an investigation of the Benton Harbor colony of Flying Rollers, following a request of the British consul-general at New York, who says the Benton Harbor sect are proselyting in British territory and receiving many donations.

He wants to know if they are a purely religious institution of worthy aims, or otherwise.

It is claimed, however, the investigation is really due to complaints made by Harry Williams and a man named Cleveland, former members of the colony, who have recently been in Windsor in search of information. Cleveland's wife continues with the colony and he wants her to forsake them.

Boys Buried In Sand.

Holderness, N. H., Aug. 29.—Two boys, Robert Williams of Boston and Getchel Cleghorn of Montreal, were killed, and a third, Daniel Denny of West Newton, Mass., is in a dangerous condition through the caving in of a sand bank at Squam Lake yesterday.

The boys were digging away a sand bank for a ball ground, when it gave way and buried them. The Denny boy was revived after hard work.

Student Electrocuted.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—L. H. Carter, son of Brigadier-General W. H. Carter, head of the department of the lakes in the United States army, was killed instantly by an electric shock sustained in the dairy room of the University of Illinois, at Champaign, where young Mr. Carter was a special student. He was cleaning a chandelier.

Explosion on Battleship.

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 29.—An explosion of gas occurred yesterday on board the Portuguese battleship Vasco Da Gama. Several sailors were injured, but no death has been reported.

Chosen Arbitrator.

Montreal, Aug. 29.—Duncan McCormick, K. C., has been chosen to represent the Montreal Cotton Mills Co. in the conciliation enquiry into employes' complaints.

NEW SANITARIUM IS OPENED

Earl Grey Urges War Upon Terrible White Plague.

CONSUMPTION A REPROACH

Munificent Gift by Mr. H. C. Hammond and Mr. R. Mulholland—Buildings Worth $20,000 — King Edward Hospital Now Ready for Patients—His Excellency Says People Are Not Careful.

Weston, Aug. 29.—Before a brilliant assemblage yesterday afternoon, the Governor-General of Canada officially opened the new King Edward Sanitarium for Consumptives, which has been established in connection with the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives at Weston, through the generosity of H. C. Hammond and Robert Mulholland. Each donated $10,000 to build two magnificent buildings for the treatment of advanced cases.

His Excellency and party spent 15 minutes in going over the sanitarium.

"It is a great privilege to be here," said Earl Grey. "I think I am not wrong in assuming that the proceedings here to-day has established conclusively that Canada is in earnest in trying to sweep from the country the terrible white plague."

The proceedings commenced with a beautiful reverent prayer from Dr. Potts. He prayed that the light of the Lord would be with the gathering. That prayer has been answered. He also prayed for the wiping out of the white plague, and it is our wish to-day that that prayer may soon be answered.

"It was an established fact," said Earl Grey, "that consumption could be removed, just as leprosy; it was a standing shame and reproach to the Government and individuals that there was not more care taken by the people of Canada to protect themselves from the cause of consumption."

FREAK LEGISLATION.

Warning Note Sounded by President of Municipal Convention.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—That municipal debentures increased in the three years ending Dec. 31, 1908, by $35,000,000, as against a total issue of $26,700,000 by the Provincial Governments, and that the municipal indebtedness of Canada totals $150,000,000, as against a total provincial indebtedness of $100,000,000, was clearly shown to the convention of Ontario Municipalities, in session at the City Hall yesterday afternoon by Dr. Morley Wickett, who delivered, by invitation, an address upon "Municipal Statistics and Debentures."

He suggested that many municipalities stood in their own light by issuing debentures in a slovenly manner, sometimes carelessly written with pen and ink or typewritten and upon flimsy note paper of all shades and sizes, and payable at obscure village banks. He also criticized the dearth of municipal statistics. There was no uniform method and comparisons could not be made by students of political economy.

The convention was opened by an address from the president, ex-Mayor Ellis, now city treasurer of Ottawa. About 100 delegates are in attendance and nearly every important municipality in old Ontario is represented. Mr. Ellis warned the association against freak legislation.

DROWNED AT GEORGIAN BAY.

Tug Swamped While Being Towed—Three Lives Lost.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 29.—According to advices received in the Soo yesterday morning from Cutler, a drowning accident, resulting in three fatalities, occurred in Georgian Bay at a late hour Tuesday afternoon.

It appears that the tug Seymour was towing another small tug, the Alert, behind which was attached a raft of logs. The lines slackened for a moment, and when they tightened, the small tug was unable to stand the strain and was swamped.

Of the five men who were on board three were drowned. Their names are: Capt. Kennedy of Thessalon, Engineer Joseph Smith of Sudbury and William Boyer, a resident of Cutler.

The bodies were all recovered yesterday morning.

"VIGILANT" BETTER ARMED.

Cruiser Mounted With Four Quick-Firing Machine Guns.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—Four modern quick-firing 1 1-2-pound guns have just been mounted on the Canadian fishery protection cruiser Vigilant on Lake Ontario.

They have a range of 4 1-2 miles, and take the place of some old-pattern ten-pound muzzle-loaders.

The modern guns came with the boat as part of her original equipment. However, they were kept in a shed in stores, and not mounted because of some changes which have to be made in the deck arrangements and because the decks would require strengthening to support the guns.

5,000 Want to Come.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—Brig. Howell of the Salvation Army, who has just returned from England, met the Premier yesterday.

Brig. Howell says that the army have 5,000 applications from parties desirous of coming to Canada.

"Imported" Does Not Mean "Better"

There is a fascination about the word "imported," that some men can't resist.

They think that because a beer is imported, it must be good.

In the case of lager, "imported" simply means "higher prices," on account of the excessive duty.

Because—you can get a purer, finer lager that is brewed right here in Canada, for about HALF what imported beers cost.

This Canadian brew—on which there is no duty to pay—is

PORT HOPE TEAM IS CONFIDENT

Will Bring Big Bunch of Supporters to Peterborough on Saturday

The greatest interest is being taken in the ball game between Port Hope and Peterborough at Riverside Park on Saturday and all records in the point of attendance should be pulverized. Word comes from Port Hope that the Crawfordites are confident of winning. Surphlis, the elongated twirler, is in the pink of condition and burning to retrieve the bad beating the locals gave him the last time they met. A big bunch of supporters will accompany the team to Peterborough on Saturday and nothing but a victory is looked for.

The locals are in good shape and will have a very strong line up for Saturday Quinlan will be on the firing line. He has beaten Port Hope twice and has held them down to 10 hits in three games, and will endeavor to hold them in the same way on Saturday. He will be supported by about the same line up as defeated Cobourg last week. Jack Connors' arm is almost better and the hard hitting centre fielder may get back into the game this week.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp and, and either Walsh of Toronto, or Weekes of Bowmanville, will umpire.

PETERBOROUGH MEN MADE GOOD SCORES

Got a Good Share of the Prize Money at Rockcliffe Ranges

The Peterborough men at the Dominion Rifle Association's meeting at Rockcliffe Ranges, Ottawa, are getting their share of the prize money. The scoring was exceptionally high yesterday, and under these conditions the showing of the local marksmen is most creditable. Between them yesterday they won $36. Col. Sergt. W. H. Moore was the greatest winner. In the H. L. Borden match, with a score of 33 out of a possible 35, he won $5, and in the extra series of the Coates match he scored 25, winning $6.14.

TOOK DOSE OF POISON.

Son of ex-King of Milan Tries to Kill Himself.

London, Aug. 29.—A message from Constantinople says that Geo. Christish, the legitimized son of the King of Milan, attempted recently to commit suicide while visiting Prinkipo Island, in the Sea of Marmora.

He applied for admission into the Therenianum in Vienna, and for the purpose asked for a medical certificate from the Austro-Hungarian embassy at Constantinople. His family wished that the certificate be made out in the name of George Obrenvitch, the latter the family name of the King of Milan, but the embassy physician declined on the ground that he had no knowledge of any such individual.

The refusal exasperated the young man, who is of a highly nervous temperament, and he determined to end his life by taking a dose of arsenic. His purpose was discovered in time to apply remedies, and he is said to be out of danger.

SACRIFICED HIS CHILD.

Baby's Body Found Far From Scene of Crime.

Detroit, Aug. 29.—The body of a little girl, apparently two years old, and undoubtedly that of little Helen Stemmelen, who was thrown into the river Tuesday night from the Belle Isle bridge by her father, was found yesterday at noon near the plant of the Great Lakes Engineering Works.

Driven insane by constant meditation on the fancied enormity of his sins until his mind become unbalanced by the idea that he ought to make atonement through sacrificial offering of his dearest possession, Albert Stemmelen, 270 Baldwin avenue, bookkeeper for the Wesson estate, has confessed at the police station that he had drowned his two-year-old baby girl, Helen.

Stemmelen felt better last night than he has since he gave himself up. He now refuses to talk and has asked for an attorney to defend him.

ESCAPE FROM AIRSHIP.

Balloon Collapsed But Formed Parachute Near the Earth.

Greenville, Ohio, Aug. 29.—Earl Hess had a thrilling escape in the presence of 15,000 persons who had gathered to see his ascension in an airship.

When 800 feet above the earth the gas bag exploded and the aerial craft shot downward with terrific speed.

Just before Hess struck the earth the netting became tangled and caused the gas bag to form a parachute. Hess landed safely, although his ship was wrecked.

Handling of Explosives.

St. Thomas, Aug. 29.—The M. C. R. has issued a voluminous document of special instructions here in regard to the handling of explosives. Trainmen are up in arms because the new rules specify that any slip in the orders will mean instant dismissal from the service.

OVER SIXTY BILLS PASSED.

British House of Commons Prorogues After Arduous Session.

London, Aug. 29.—With picturesque old-time ceremonial the British Parliament was prorogued yesterday, thus ending one of the longest and most arduous sessions, during which the royal assent was given to over 60 bills which the two Houses passed.

The members of the House of Commons assembled at noon and shortly afterwards they were summoned to the House of Lords, where the King's speech was read.

The statements made were of the usual, colorless character, referring to the recent royal visits and the friendly relations existing between Great Britain and the other powers, the conclusion of the agreement with Spain and the peace conference at The Hague, concluding with a review of the most important bills passed during the session.

His Majesty's Hopes.

London, Aug. 29.—On the prorogation of Parliament the King in his speech said:

"The meeting of Prime Ministers and other leading statesmen of the dominions beyond the seas with representatives of the Imperial Government was a source of deep satisfaction to me, and I note with gratification the arrangement for future meetings at fixed intervals under the title of the Imperial Conference, for the free discussion of questions of common concern."

Trolley Strikes Auto.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 29.—An automobile run by Dr. George Waldron of 408 Plymouth avenue, Rochester, was struck by a Rochester and Eastern trolley car at the Freshour crossing, near Canandaigua, late yesterday afternoon and four people, including the doctor, Mrs. William Scandling and Mrs. Jane Hobbs of Hopewell and Mrs. Katherine Farnsworth of Rochester, were instantly killed.

British Ship Missing.

London, Aug. 29.—The British steamer Nicaraguan, from Port Tampa June 6, and Norfolk June 8, for Dublin, has been posted at Lloyds as missing.

MUTINEERS IN TOILS.

Band of Traitors Seized by the Police at Odessa.

Odessa, Aug. 29.—The police have succeeded after much difficulty in arresting the sailor Matuchenko, who led the mutiny on board the Russian battleship Kniaz Potemkino in the summer of 1905.

Matuchenko had been for two years in New York, and last July returned to Russia in disguise. The officers of the law, however, took no action until Matuchenko formed a revolutionary organization. All the members of this band were taken into custody, along with their chief, and thrown into the Odessa prison. They will be courtmartialled.

Artist Found In Gutter.

New York, Aug. 29.—George Heinkenschloss, once an artist of merit and whose pictures are said to adorn many local drawing-rooms, was picked up from the gutter of a street leading from the Bowery, Tuesday night, with a fractured skull.

King's Valet Dies In Jail.

Milwaukee, Aug. 29.—Walter Donisthorpe, alias Wilson, said to have been a former valet of King Edward VII., died at the house of correction. He was 66 years of age.

Firemen Poisoned.

New York, Aug. 29.—As a result of fire in Hagan & Co.'s dye warehouse, several firemen have been poisoned, their blood turning brown.

WOMAN CATCHES A 14 POUND 'LUNGE

One of Best Made at the Kawartha Lakes This Season

Another evidence that fish will take the bait in stormy weather was furnished on Monday morning at Stony Lake when Mrs. J. J. McBain landed a handsome 14-lb. 'lunge, with the waves rolling several feet hight. Mr. and Mrs. McBain left their island to go across to the Burleigh shore, and although the waves were stronger than usual, the line was thrown out.

Between Bonavista and Strathormond-on-the-Lake Mrs. McBain felt the line tighten, thinking it was caught in the bottom, but a few seconds later a large 'lunge appeared above the surface. With no assistance she landed the monster in the boat and afterwards found that it tipped the scales at 14 lbs.

This catch is certainly one of the largest at the Kawartha Lakes this season and is probably the largest in many years made by a woman.

A VERY CLEVER INDIAN ENTERTAINER

Pauline Johnston in the City and Will Give Entertainment Here

Miss Pauline Johnston, poet entertainer, and her party—Mr. Walter McRaye, the celebrated Canadian humourist, and Miss A. G. Carter,—are registered at the Oriental Hotel. These artists, on their return from their British tour, where, especially in London, they were accorded a series of ovations corresponding to their public appearances, had a most successful tour in the United States. From this they have just returned to Canada. They will make a farewell appearance in Peterborough at an early date. The letters of introduction from Earl Grey, which Miss Johnston—Tekahionwake—took with her to Britain, opened to her royal and social circles, and her dramatic and poetic artistry did the rest. The London Press united in pronouncing her entertainment and Mr. McRaye's the most unique and unhackneyed entertainment of the season. Thier appearance in Peterborough within a fortnight or so will be awaited with much interest.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

New York, Aug. 29.—In the early session the market displayed somewhat less vigor than on the previous days of this week and was inclined to fall back from initial prices more for want of sustaining buying than in consequence of any increased pressure. There was a good deal of Union Pacific for sale around 128 representing profit taking on stock bought at lower prices.

The traders are more bullish than they were, but a sufficient number will fight further advance to insure renewal of the short interest on rising prices The closing was dull but firm.

Wife Attempts Suicide.

Winnipeg, Aug. 29.—Shamed by her husbands arrest at Morris, Man., Mrs. Morley, wife of R. G. Morley, who accompanied her husband in an automobile in his flight from justice and who tented with him at night on the open prairie, Tuesday ran towards a nearby creek with the avowed intention of throwing herself into the water.

Constable Bestwick had just placed his hand on Morley's shoulder when the prisoner's wife announced that she was going to end her life, and promptly set off towards a creek in which was water six or seven feet in depth.

Morley was remanded in the Police Court until to-day.

A Roast for Deakin.

London, Aug. 29.—(C. A. P.)—Senator Sir Joseph Symon, interviewed by The Sydney Morning Herald on his return from a tour in England and Canada, denounces unsparingly the conduct of Australian delegates to the Imperial conference. He accuses Deakin of entering the lists with Tory reactionaries to fan the flame of protection in England.

As to who sent Sir William Lyne to the conference, the Senator declares he does not know, it was reported he simply introduced himself, and Deakin put the best face on it he could.

FIRST CONTRACT LET FOR SOUTHERN OUTLET OF THE TRENT CANAL

Messrs. Brown and Aylmer Awarded Contract for Work in Section No. 5, at Campbellford.

WAS LET FOR $600,000.00

Will Take Two Years to Complete This Section--- Two Locks and Two Dams to be Constructed.

The beginning of the end in the work of completing the southern division of the Trent Canal, as represented by the awarding of the contract for the work on No. 5 section of the Ontario-Rice Lake section, is here.

To-day, Mr. Alex. Grant, Superintending engineer of the canal, stated to the Examiner that he had received unofficial information that the contract for this work had been awarded to Messrs. Brown & Aylmer, the well-known local contracting firm, and that work would be commenced at once, and that it would be pushed to completion, though it was expected that it would require about two years to finish it.

This is the first contract to be let for the southern outlet of the canal, and is proof of the intention of the Government to push to a completion this important waterway. This contract is the first to be awarded since the appropriation was passed at the last session of Parliament, when the completion of this division of the canal was decided upon.

About $600,000 is involved in the contract, which has been awarded to the local firm, after keen competition, in which about eight contractors submitted tenders. Mr. Aylmer informed the Examiner, in corroboration of the statement that his firm had been given the contract, that he would commence work next week.

The section for which the contract has been awarded is about three miles in length and extends from Campbellford high level bridge to and including Middle Falls, at Crow Bay. In this section there will be two dams and two locks, and for the construction of these works cement will be used. The river has to be canalized, and since it is all rock work in this section, it will be difficult, though, with the experience which this firm has had with this class of excavations, there is little doubt that it will be carried through successfully. Considerable submarine work will be necessitated on this contract.

The firm of Brown and Aylmer has completed several sections of canal work during the last few years, most recent being section No. 3 on the Balsam Lake and Lake Simcoe Division, where three dams and five locks, in addition to a number of bridges were constructed. This section was seven miles in length. The work between Lakefield and Nassau was also performed by the same firm. On this section, which is six miles long five locks and four dams were built. The successful and satisfactory completion of these contracts, doubtless stood the firm in good stead in tendering on the new work.

Tenders are now being called for Section No. 1, which extends from Trenton to Glen Miller, and in a short time tenders will be asked for section two, extending from Glen Miller to Frankford.

A staff of men, under the direction of Mr. Spence, is now engaged in doing field work on Section No. 6, from Campbellford to Healey's Falls, and it is expected that it will only be a matter of a short time before the Department will be in a position to call for tenders on that section.

Section No. 7, that from Healey's Falls to Hastings, will be deepened to nine feet, which will be all the work required.

The new sections now under completion or for which tenders are to be called, are all to be nine feet deep, with 8 feet 4 inches on the sills. The new locks will also be considerably larger than those at present being used. They will take a steamer 150 feet long, about forty feet longer than the older locks will accommodate. The new work at Rosedale, too, will give that portion of the canal a nine foot waterway, so that in the future when the whole canal is made to take vessels of nine foot draught no additional work will be necessary in the new sections now under construction.

There are seven sections of the canal between Hastings and Trenton, numbers one, two, three, four and five between Lake Ontario and Campbellford and six and seven between that town and Hastings. Work will, in all probability be carried on simultaneously on all these sections within a very short time.

GRAHAM GETS PORTFOLIO VACATED BY EMMERSON

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, August 30. — Hon. G. P. Graham was to-day sworn in as Minister of Railways and Canals, and Hon. Mr. Pugsley as Minister of Public Works. The matter is now officially settled, but the change at the last moment caused some surprise.

THE BRIDGE COMPANY CONSIDERED RESPONSIBLE FOR QUEBEC HORROR

Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals Going to Scene of the Disaster—Loss $1,500,000.

SOME LATER DETAILS

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—Mr. M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, leaves this afternoon for Quebec, and will be joined at Montreal by Mr. C. Holgate, whom the Dominion Government has appointed to investigate the bridge disaster.

Mr. S. N. Parent, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway, and president of the Bridge Company, is of the opinion that the Phoenix Bridge Company is responsible, and possibly had been rushing matters too fast. He estimates the loss at from a million to a million and a half, exclusive, of course, of any claims there may be for damages.

Mr. Butler said, "I leave at 3 this afternoon. We have received no list of the dead yet, but there are no Ontario people so far as I know."

Collingwood Schreiber, consulting engineer to the Government, will also likely accompany Mr. Butler.

Ottawa, Aug. 30. — The Quebec bridge collapse at 20 minutes to 6 o'clock last night was a veritable horror. Ninety-two American Bridge builders, French-Canadians and Indian labourers, were on the bridge. All are dead but eight. So few escaped that it can scarcely be learned how the accident did occur. Half the immense structure is down and buried in the St. Lawrence. Many men are pinned in the wreckage, and their groans are something fearful to hear, and hold those working and the divers looking for bodies, stricken with horror. During the night no searchlights were available and lanterns had to be used. It is expected that many bodies will be recovered to-day, and the Dominion and Quebec Governments are sending out tugs. The eight men rescued say that there were 92 at work on the superstructure, and as all but eight are missing, it is almost certain that they are all dead.

An engine drawing several cars carrying heavy cranes and a load of steel, was on the bridge. As it moved to the shore the engineer felt it sag. He turned off the steam, but it still went. In a second the mighty structure collapsed 200 feet from the shore right out, completely, and other sections partially. The entire train fell, but, miraculously, the engineer escaped. He fell with the engine, lost consciousness and knew nothing more till he found himself on the shore, where he had been washed. All the rest of the train crew are dead.

B. A. Yansell, General Querman, Mr. Burke, chief engineer, John Morley and James Idaho, all of Pennsylvania, are amongst the dead. There were probably thirty Indians, twenty-five skilled American mechanics, and the balance were French Canadians.

Several Government officials have left for Quebec.

To give some idea of the immensity of the undertaking it may be stated that when completed it will require eighty million tons of steel, and a very large part of this was in place. The masonry contract went a million and a half dollars and that for the steel three million dollars.

It is thought that none, or few Ontario people among the dead.

A special train goes to the scene of the wreck to-day, taking officials of the Railways and Canals Department and the Marine Department, also a number of railway officials. There will be a full Government investigation.

Brakeman Dolby Had A Very Narrow Escape

Well Known Train Man on G. T. R. Express Running Through Peterborough Hurt Near Omemee.

HEAD STRUCK A PLANK

Lindsay, Aug. 29. — Mr. Gordon Dolby, brakesman on the Port Hope-Toronto express, on the G.T.R., came within a hair's breadth of death yesterday evening, and, although suffering severely to-day, no doubt feels properly grateful for his providential escape.

As the train was crossing the section of track east of Omemee, known as the "missing link," Mr. Dolby happened to look out, when his head came in contact with a heavy plank erected in connection with some repair work in progress. The blow was a glancing one, but a large section of skin was removed from the side of his face and neck, and his tongue was badly bitten.

When Lindsay was reached, Dolby was removed to his home, where he was attended by Dr. Jeffers, Grand Trunk surgeon. Had the train been running fast at the time his head would have been crushed.

Toronto University Student Pays His Way Catching Frogs

Ingenious Means by Which One Enterprising Young Man is Working His Way Through College.

HE WILL EARN ABOUT $700

A college student, who will make $700 during the vacation, catching frogs, is the latest Bobcaygeon story. The Independent, this week says: It is well known that a large proportion of those attending the Toronto University and preparing for the professions are working their own way through. At the present time there is a strapping young athlete on the Kawartha Lakes spending the university vacation as a frog catcher. The frog-catching business with him is a science, and he knows their haunts and habits like a book. He will make over $700 this season, and have enough of the ready money to finish his course through college. It takes from two to seven frogs to make a pound of meat, and he gets 35 cents a pound. He ships to New York and Chicago in tin cans holding 80 pounds each. He catches the frogs in daylight, and on dark nights with a lantern. In the day time he lures them with a bait of his own make on a line. It has no hook, but the frog holds on long enough to be landed. The lantern is not good on moonlight nights, as the frogs are enabled to see him, but on dark nights, they are dazed with it, and he picks a bull frog off a log, like a blackberry off a bush.

Thrown Against Ceiling By Belt Off A Churne

Master Roy Thurston, aged [illegible] years, met with an accident at the Cheese factory, Bobcaygeon, the other morning, and narrowly escaped death. The belt came off the curd cutter, and the boy in some way was mixed up in it. He was carried to the ceiling and held there even after the engine had stopped, when he was taken down. It was feared that he was crushed, but one leg was broken at the thigh, and the back of the head had a nasty cut. Fortunately there were no internal injuries and he will recover.

The Largest Jack Manufacturer in the World Writes about

Zutoo

Regarding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never fail to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

BLUE RUIN STATESMEN

Mr. Borden will meet the real difficulties of his tour when he reaches Ontario and Western Canada. He has hedged already as to his last election policy by substituting "reasonable protection"—such as we have now—for "adequate protection" — with, doubtless, the manufacturer, minus the consumer, in view. This is, perhaps, a concession to Western sentiment, where Chinese wall protection is not popular. But Mr. Borden does not, perhaps, count so much upon platform and principle as upon opportunity. His followers are quite willing to enlist "blue" ruin as an ally. The record of the Laurier Government, and the unprecedented and buoyant prosperity that has attended, if it has not been a consequence of, its administration, forbids the Conservative party winning upon the merits of its policy. Something else is counted on. They are praying for frost in the Northwest, as a homeopathic prophylactic against the "frost" that awaits them at the coming general elections. The following from the Regina Leader shows how the thought trends:

> A well-known worker of the Conservative party recently stated that ten degrees of frost within the next ten days would do more to help the Opposition back to power than any tour that Messrs. Borden, Foster and Fowler may make. Given such a frost, with its attendant ruin of the crop, and consequent general depression, and the Conservatives would stand some chance of ousting the Laurier Government. The poverty of the once great political party now led by Mr. Borden could hardly be more strikingly portrayed, yet the frank admission that their one hope lies in blue ruin, is about the most definite pronouncement yet made as to how they propose to regain the confidence of the electorate. And when they had climbed to power on the failure of the western farmers' crops, they would offer him what? Doubtless a Canadian edition of the McKinley tariff.

Sir Richard Cartwright, in his palmy days, was accused of being a blue ruinist. But his blue ruin was abstract, not concrete. He fought against ruinous conditions, due to bad administration. He did not invoke calamity to advance his party's interests. He set up a beacon to warn the people from the rocks upon which the ship of state, steered by 'practice hands, was drifting. He showed where bad administration was driving the country; he did not pray for a calamity to help the chances of his party. He did not wish to climb into power over the ruins of the ramparts of his country.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Not one of the least useful of the qualities Hon. Mr. Graham will carry into the Dominion Cabinet is that developed by the fact of his being a successful a newspaper man as he is a good politician.

Lord Strathcona, who has reached the ripe age of four score years, will have crossed the ocean 302 times, when he completes this voyage. Everybody will wish him a safe voyage this time, and hope that it will be many years before he makes his last voyage—across the Jordan.

The Toronto papers wasted so much hot air upon the exhibition air ship, that there is none left to make it fly. It's like Mr. Borden's political programme—it won't go.

It looks as if Mr. J. L. Starr, the Ontario Government commissioner, appointed to conceal license conditions in Toronto, will be able to make his report about the same time the water front problem is settled, or the Mail and Empire begins to tell the truth in politics.

The Toronto News is not satisfied with its work — it has been busily employed in getting Hon. Mr. Graham into the Dominion Cabinet, and now it is "knocking" him. It now circulates the ghost story that his selection is creating hard feelings, and that it is a confession of lack of confidence in other Ontario Liberal members. Wouldn't that apply to any choice?

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for Sthee strong and alert — for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

MINISTER GRAHAM.

The definite announcement of the selection of Hon. George P. Graham, leader of the Liberal Opposition for Ontario, to fill a vacancy in the Dominion Cabinet, is important. The choice is a good one. Mr. Graham possesses in a very large degree the qualities that go to the making of a good minister. His appointment, as Liberal leader for Ontario, was by many regarded as temporary — an experiment. He, however, conspicuously, "made good," and if he had chosen, or been allowed to remain in that position, would have, before long, been premier of the province. There is every reason to believe that, though translated to another, and wider, sphere, of action, Mr. Graham will still continue, in a moral sense, a Liberal leader in Ontario. As a Minister, he comes into office with the promise and capability of making a most efficient administrator of whatever department he may be assigned to. He has demonstrated the possession of good administrative ability. His effective work in the organization and management of Liberal interests in Eastern Ontario, at the last Dominion election, no doubt accounts for his becoming a Cabinet quantity. He is a good platform speaker, and a good keen, alert parliamentary debater. His goniality will make him popular with he rank and file of parliamentarians at Ottawa, and contribute to the maintenance of friotionless party discipline. His personal and political honesty of character, and his honesty of purpose as a public man, supported by the ability to give good service to his country, are others among the many features which go to amply justify his selection as a Minister in the Laurier Government. While Ontario Liberals will universally approve of Mr. Graham's advancement, from a Dominion point of view, there will be regret that he is removed from a position which he occupied in relation to Ontario, with so much distinction, success and promise. The best wishes of Mr. Graham's tens of thousands of friends in Ontario, will go with him to his new, and larger, responsibilities, which he will, no doubt, effectively discharge. His promotion is another proof that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will associate with him in the work of government, only good, and true and capable men.

DON'T PUT IT OFF LONGER

Get Rid of That Indigestion at Once by Using Mi-o-na

Many people in Peterborough are slowly poisoning themselves by chronic indigestion. Their neglect to cure sluggishness of the important organs of digestion fills the system with fermenting and decaying food, that results in sick headache, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, and many other symptoms.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are for special relief of such sufferers. They quickly cure the worst cases of indigestion and when used a few days the pain and distress often felt after meals will disappear.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets cost but 50 cents a box and do more good than a dozen boxes of the ordinary digestive tablets. Mr. Madill gives an absolute, unqualified guarantee to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure.

OFFICER GOES TO TRIAL.

Chinese Raid Aftermath — The Case Against Police Goes Over.

Regina, Aug. 30.—Corpl. Hogg of the R. N. W. M. P. was yesterday committed for trial on a charge of having assaulted and unlawfully arrested four Chinamen in the police raid last Friday night. Bail was accepted.

Three other cases against Chief Harwood, Constable Gleadow and Constable Hoggarth, all of a similar nature, were adjourned until Wednesday.

J. F. Frame, who appeared for the policeman, objected to the magistrate sitting on the case, as his son had the case for the Chinamen, and he thought the magistrate was biased.

Mr. McCausland, however, declined to ask another magistrate to take the case, and Mr. Frame said he would take steps to have him deposed.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Toronto Woman Alleged to Have Performed Illegal Operation.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Mrs. Minnie Turner, a young widow, who has been conducting a maternity home at 948 Poplar Plains Road, was arrested shortly after midnight on a charge of murder. Her alleged victim, Miss Rose Winters, an orphan girl, died last Sunday night of septic poisoning, resulting from a criminal operation, which the prisoner is accused of performing.

She was brought before the magistrate yesterday and remanded for one week.

Mackenzie In Wreck.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 30.—While returning from a tour of inspection of the Halifax & Southwestern Railway, the special train conveying William Mackenzie, head of the Mackenzie & Mann railway system, and C. W. Spencer, general manager of the Canadian Northern's eastern lines, was wrecked at Ingramsport.

They escaped serious injury, but were badly shaken up.

Strathcona's Record.

New York, Aug. 30.—Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner of Canada, who has just started for England on the steamer Oceanic, is completing his 151st round trip across the Atlantic.

This means that when he has finished his present trip he will have made 302 voyages across the ocean.

Lord Strathcona is 80 years old and made his first ocean voyage when a child.

MUNICIPAL CONVENTION.

Successful Session Brought to Close—Work for Legislature.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—The convention of Ontario Municipalities came to a close yesterday afternoon, after a successful session. A vote of thanks was tendered to the mayor and council for their hospitality and all of the delegates were loud in their praise of Toronto. Mayor D'Arcy Scott of Ottawa, however, thought that the convention next summer should come to the Federal capital. The matter will be discussed by the executive.

The same body will decide as to whether the convention will send delegates to the Canadian Union. It was objected that to send five delegates next summer to Medicine Hat would cost $1,000.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President, W. C. Mikel, city solicitor, Belleville; vice-presidents, Ald. Cooper, London; Mayor Scott, Ottawa; Reeve Locks, Yarmouth; Mayor Kennedy, Owen Sound.

Work for Legislature.

Among the resolutions recommended for consideration by the Legislature are the following:

To permit municipal elections to be held on the first Monday of December.

To repeal the Conmee Act and to authorize municipalities to expropriate gas light and power plants.

To exempt municipalities from liability for defective highways.

To permit streets to be extended on local assessment basis against protest of property owners upon a two-thirds vote of the council.

To allow municipalities, at their option, to permit Sunday street cars.

To permit a board of controllers in cities of a population of between 45,000 and 100,000 (Hamilton and Ottawa).

To permit cities to regulate electric wiring.

CAPT. CALDER REMOVED.

Governor Apologizes for Invasion of Venezuelan Territory.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Aug. 30.—The governor of the colony has sent an apology and expressions of regret to President Castro of Venezuela for the invasion of Venezuelan territory reported Aug. 17 by Capt. Calder, in command of a small frontier force from British Guiana, and the seizure of a quantity of balata gum, which, it was alleged, had been collected on British territory.

London, Aug. 30.—The Standard yesterday says it understands that Capt. Calder, who led the detachment into Venezuelan territory, has been removed from his present post. It has been learned, the paper says, that the captain was unarmed when this affair occurred.

Big Farm Burned.

Woodstock, Aug. 30.—A disastrous fire occurred early yesterday morning at the farm of Geo. Patterson east of Zorra, when a large new barn was completely destroyed, together with the greater portion of the season's crops.

Mr. Patterson went out to the barn early, carrying a lantern. When in the basement of the barn the lantern suddenly exploded and the building took fire. Efforts to stop the progress of the fire were in vain, and attention was directed towards saving the animals and implements in the barn.

All the animals were taken out, including a fine team of horses valued at from $375 to $400. The barn was only recently built, and was one of the finest in the neighborhood. It is partly insured.

Windstorm Hits Fair.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 30.—A windstorm struck the Iowa State fair grounds early yesterday causing damage estimated at $100,000.

BUILT UP HER HEALTH

SPEEDY CURE OF MISS ECCLISON

She is Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Writes Gratefully to Mrs. Pinkham.

For the wonderful help that she has found Zula Ecclison, 6 Erie St., East, St. Thomas, Ont., believes it her duty to write the following letter for publication, in order that other women afflicted in the same way may be benefited as she was. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic and regulator for female troubles. I suffered for four years with displacement and no one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental suffering those endure who are thus affected. Your Vegetable Compound cured me. Within three months I was fully restored to health and strength and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to obtain such relief when so many doctors fail to help you. Your medicine is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had."

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Her experience is very great, and she gives the benefit of it to all who stand in need of wise counsel. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

CLERGYMEN WERE THIS SCHEMER'S VICTIMS; SOME LOCAL DIVINES CAUGHT

A Slick Youngster, Who Worked Gentlemen of the Cloth for Board and Money---He Conducted Services.

HE LIVED IN APSLEY

Dennis Fisher Jones Was His Name and He Had a Dislike to Work—His Wits Served Him Better.

Peterborough clergymen are not unacquainted with the man referred to in the following story, which appears in the Port Hope Times of this week:

Dennis Fisher Jones is a young man of parts who has a distinct aversion to work of any kind. He has been making a precarious living by sponging upon clergymen of various denominations with a preference for those of the Church of England. His scene of operations includes Port Hope, Lakefield, Cobourg, Trenton, Apsley, Picton and many other towns and villages. The stories he tells do more credit to his imagination than to his veracity. He was last heard of in Picton whither a letter had been sent to him by a Port Hope clergyman, in which he is threatened with prosecution unless he desists from his misrepresentations.

Jones is a young man of about 18 years of age. He is of slight build, with fair, curly hair. He has good manners and can write a grammatical letteer, although his handwriting is ill-formed, and he has a cultured voice. He first drifted into Port Hope about three months ago. He called upon the local clergymen of the Anglican church, and told a story, which was afterwards found to be untrue. He said that he had just come to Canada from England, where seven of his relatives were clergymen of the Church of England, and that he had been sent to Port Hope, by the Bishop of Quebec, who had paid his railway fare. He gave the names of several well known schools and colleges in England and Wales, at which he said that he had been educated, and he declared that his chief ambition was to become a clergyman of the Church of England. He persuaded one of the Port Hope clergy to write a letter to the Bishop of Algoma, asking if he could be given employment with a view to entering the Church. At one clergyman's house he continually turned up at meal times, told a hard luck story, and invited himself to dinner. He made frequent calls upon other clergymen of other denominations, upon prominent citizens and religious workers and obtained money and assistance of various kinds. He never apparently made any effort to obtain work. Finally when the game was pretty well played out in Port Hope he went to Cobourg. From there he wrote to one of his clerical benefactors in Port Hope, saying that he had obtained employment and asking the clergyman to keep his boxes for him. He received a letter in reply, which he afterwards made use of. He soon returned to Port Hope and called upon a clergyman whom he had not hitherto "touched." He told his story, producing the letter in corroboration of a statement that the writer was taking a great interest in him, and was given a few dollars. With this money he went to the St. Lawrence Hotel, where he stayed at night. Next day at noon he turned up at the clergyman's house again, said that he had had no breakfast, and invited himself to dinner.

From Port Hope he went to Lakefield, but a clergyman there, after providing for him for some days, obtained him a ticket for Port Hope, where he again appeared. Since then he has visited other towns, in one of which at least, he imposed upon the clergyman to such an extent he was allowed to conduct the church service.

Letters have been sent to the scholastic authorities in Wales by whom he says he was educated, in order to obtain corroboration of his statements. Replies have been received saying that he is unknown by them. In reply to a letter of inquiry, a Canadian clergyman, whose name Jones frequently mentions, and who now happens to be in England, says that Jones is a fraud. His stories are untrue, and he has swindled people in England as well as in Canada.

He is said to have been sent to Canada about five years ago, and, after coming to this country, worked for a year with a farmer near Apsley. He went again to England last year, but returned early in the summer, and since that time has been carrying on his operations.

When Your Health Fails--What Then?

BETTER TO GUARD AGAINST SUCH AN EMERGENCY BY KEEPING VITALITY AT HIGH-WATER MARK BY THE USE OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle.

In these days of strenuous life and keen competition there is no place for tired brains and weak bodies.

Success is for the strong and alert for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy.

It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health, and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion, such as brain fag, headache, nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, failure of memory and loss of power to concentrate the mind.

While Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has succeeded in curing many cases of partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, and the most severe forms of nervous prostration and exhaustion, it is not well to delay treatment until these stubborn and dangerous diseases set in.

At the slightest indication of waning nerve force, begin the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and with a few weeks' treatment you will be able to restore the vitality of the body to high-water mark, remove the cause of nervous disorders, and prevent serious results.

Miss Mary Leitch, Coulson, Simcoe county, Ont., writes: "When I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my nervous system was all run down, and I suffered terribly with nervous headache and sleeplessness. Sometimes I could not sleep for three or four nights in succession. By the use of several boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food these troubles were entirely overcome, and I consider the preparation an excellent nerve tonic."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—1.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a great mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging, sensation of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for all forms of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

RESIDENT FOR HALF A CENTURY

Mr. George Rickey, Who Passed Away Thursday Night, Had Lived in Peterborough 51 Years

A RESPECTED CITIZEN

For fifty-one years a resident of Peterborough, Mr. George Rickey passed away last night after an illness of only about three weeks. The deceased was one of the best known of the older residents of this town and city, and during the half century he had spent here to was highly respected, and his death will be deplored by his wide circle of friends. The late Mr. Rickey had been suffering from a complication of troubles for some time, but it was only recently that he became confined to his bed.

The deceased was a son of the late William Rickey and a grandson of the late Captain William Rickey, R.N., and was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, on December 23, 1832, so that he would have reached his 75th year in December had he lived. In 1856 he came to America, landing at New York, and in the autumn of the same year removed to Peterborough, where he had since made his home.

In 1861 he was married on October 24 to Ann Jane Armstrong, a daughter of John Armstrong, of County Fermanagh, Ireland. The late Mr. Rickey was the last surviving member of the family, his brother having been drowned in the Otonabee River 23 years ago.

The surviving children are John T. and Mrs. George Wanless, of Toronto Junction; Mrs. Jas. Greer and W. Bruce, city; Mrs. George Davis, of Hilton, W. Va., and Mrs. E. Welch, of Port Arthur.

The deceased was a life-long and consistent member of the Church of England, and the rector of St. John's Church of this denomination will conduct the funeral services, which will be held at his late residence, 108 Aylmer street, on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the funeral proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery, where interment will take place.

NORMALS TO OPEN SEPT. 17TH

Alterations to the Schools at London, Toronto and Ottawa, Make an Earlier Opening Impossible

As the alterations in the Normal Schools at London, Toronto and Ottawa are not yet completed, these schools will not re-open until Tuesday, September 17. The lists for both London and Toronto schools are full, but there is still room for some students in the Ottawa school. Applicants with or without experience in teaching, but holding junior or senior teachers' certificates, will be admitted there, preference, however, being given to those who have had some experience.

LITTLE GIRL FAINTED IN SWIMMING RACE

Fortunately She Was Not Far From the Shore

The junior regatta at Chemong Park yesterday afternoon was almost accompanied by an unfortunate accident.

The swimming race for girls 12 years old and under, was just concluding, when Miss Marjorie Bull, one of the contestants, fell in a faint before landing on shore. She immediately sank to the bottom in a few feet of water, but was speedily rescued by her borher, and resuscitated.

Marjorie Bull was a contestant in several of the trials of skill and proved herself very efficient in the canoe, skiff and swimming races.

A GOOD BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Excellent Opportunity for Young Man to Engage in Life Insurance Business

Two or three local parties have been somewhat interested in life insurance for a short time. Some of them owing to the very kind heart of the district manager of one of our largest and best life offices. These men, however, having disappeared from the field, there remains a first-class opening for a man of keen business ability to step right into a splendid position. THE BOYS ANNOY MR. REDMOND

Rob His Orchard and He Gets No Redress on Complaint to the Authorities, He Says

Mr. Redmond, 469 Donegal street, came to the Examiner office this morning to complain of the bad boys who annoy him and other persons in the west end by their unruly, disrespectful and thievish actions. Last night, boys entered his premises and stole his plums, and instances are not of late date of boys pelting respectable and peaceful citizens with stones. He attributes a good deal of this lawlessness to the laxity of the authorities. He relates an instance in this connection. He had his apple trees robbed, and, on making complaint to the authorities, was advised to cut down his trees. Mr. Redmond thinks, with Hamlet, that "the times are out of joint." Certainly the rising generation exhibits a lack of respectful consideration of age and authority that argues a hopeful future.

Chemong Juvenile Regatta A Very Successful Event

Aquatic Events Were Well Contested---Many Entries From Park Residents---Weather Greatly Assisted in Making Regatta a Success---List of Winners and Prizes

Picturesque Chemong Park presented an animated appearance yesterday afternoon on the important occasion of the annual juvenile regatta, held under the auspices of the Chemong Park Cottagers' Association. The younger population of the Park turned out en masse, and the greater number of them participated in the excellent water sports arranged especially for a test of their skill in the small craft. The weather man was in one of his benevolent moods and was, therefore, greatly responsible for the making of the regatta the splendid success it proved to be.

The arrangements were carried out to perfection, and not a break resulted to offset the smooth trend of the proceedings. The gentlemen in charge had previously attended to all details in the running of the events, and deserve credit for their assistance and fatherly supervision. The official starter was Mr. L. M. Hayes; the judges were Messrs. W. G. Hopwood and W. H. Hartshorn; the clerk of the course was Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, while Mr. W. S. Davidson communicated the various events and the winners to those on shore by means of a mammoth megaphone.

The juveniles performed the different tests of their aquatic skill most creditably. A slight breeze was blowing, which was responsible for considerable waves, yet not a single accident occured from this source. A couple of events were unfinished on account of accidental fouls, but these will be concluded on Saturday, when the sweepstakes will also be decided.

The following were the various races, the prizes, and the donators, and the results:

Boys' Single Paddling, 15 and under—1, Dated Pennant, donated by Mr. Hollingshead; 2, Compass, donated by Mr. Hopwood—1, Harold Matthews; 2, Jno. Macdonald.

Swimming race, girls, 12 and under —1 Swastaka pin, by Dr. Young; 2 photo holder, by Miss Wolf; 1 Nano Hayes; 2 Marjorie Bull.

Tub race, mixed, 15 and under — 1 Scarf pin and picture presented by Admiral McComb; 1 G. Halpin; 2 Jack Dennistoun.

Sweepstakes for points — 1 Two paddles, donated by the Peterborough Canoe Company; 2 school bag, by W. H. Hill — undecided.

The winner of the sweepstakes cannot be decided until Saturday afternoon, when the two unfinished races will be run off. Harold Hill now leads with 12 points.

In the evening the Chemong Yacht Club held an enjoyable smoker in their club house when a pleasant evening was spent. The pavilion and hotel were also scenes of gayety. The youths and maidens gathered there in large numbers, and passed away a few delightful hours in tripping the light fantastic.

River Steamers Collide; Passengers Given Scare

Otonabee and Monarch Crashed Together Near Rose's Bridge Yesterday Afternoon — The Smaller Boat Was Almost Capsized.

THE BOATS NOT DAMAGED

As a result of a collision between the steamers Monarch and Otonabee yesterday, the former boat had a very narrow escape from being capsized, and her passengers were given a scare that they will not soon forget. The accident occurred a short distance above Rose's bridge, when both boats were on the down trip to Rice Lake.

The Monarch, carrying the usual Thursday half-holiday crowd, was ahead, and was closely followed by the Otonabee, with an excursion under the auspices of the Non-Coms. of the 57th Regiment, on board. Near the Devil's Elbow, it is stated, the Monarch cut across in front of the Otonabee, and before the latter could be turned aside, the big steamer had smashed into the stern of the small boat. The bow of the latter was turned towards the shore by the collision, and before she was stopped she was almost at the bank. Then, as she swung around, the Otonabee collided with her again, this time striking the side of the Monarch.

The smaller boat at once went over almost on her side, until it appeared as if she was going over altogether. The chairs slid across the deck and there was a panic among the passengers. In a moment, however, she righted herself and the danger was over. Passengers on the Otonabee state that they were sure that the Monarch would capsize.

The two boats were soon separated and were enabled to resume their journeys. Neither was damaged, although the spot where the Otonabee struck is indicated by a big dint in the railing of the Monarch.

David McCrea's Encounter With A Maxwell Bear

Peterborough Man Chased One Out of an Oat Field at Two O'clock in the Morning—An Interesting Episode.

DAVID'S SMALL PEBBLES

David McCrae is back from Maxville with a bear story. He tells it well, too. This is his tale: He was returning home one morning while he was visiting at his parents near Maxville, about two o'clock, after having spent the evening—and part of the next morning—at a friend's home. In the moonlight he saw an object moving in a field of oats which were just beginning to ripen, and he stopped his horse and tied him to the fence while he instituted investigations. David had never seen a bear except those in a circus, but he is an observing chap and as soon as he came close enough to the animal in the oat field he knew at once that he was face to face with a real live black bear.

Before starting into the field he had provided himself with a supply of small stones, like David of old, and while he was unable to bring back the head of his victim to show his scoffing brethren, he used the stones to such good effect that he put the bear to flight.

He waited two days before he told the story at home. The people around Maxville are canny—it's in Glengarry—and he did not want to be laughed at. Just before he started back for Peterborough, however, he recounted his experiences of two nights before and his story so aroused the natives that a search party was instituted, and they are after the bear, which is now believed to be safely hidden in a big swamp.

Bears are not so uncommon in Glengarry as they are in some places, but the presence of one of these animals is sufficient to arouse some interest, not to say alarm.

THE MONAGHANS ARE PROSPEROUS

Trip Through These Townships Reveals the Fact That Crops Are Good—Oats Exceed Expectations

PRICES TO BE GOOD, TOO

A drive through the townships of North and South Monaghan yesterday afternoon revealed the fact that the farmers of these prosperous townships were in the oat harvest, and indications are that, despite the belief entertained earlier in the season that the yield would not be up to the average, the crop will be excellent. The straw will not be as long as it was last year, but the grain is apparently well filled, and it will be of good quality.

This intelligence will come as welcome news to those who are of the opinion that this year the farmers would have to be contented with a small yield. In addition to the fact that the yield will be satisfactory, there is the pleasure of knowing that from present indications the prices will be increased, as well.

THE OVAL TENNIS CLUB PICNIC AT CHEMONG

Pleasant Afternoon Spent at That Pretty Spot

A number of the Nicholls Oval Tennis Club members drove out to Chemong Park yesterday afternoon on the occasion of their annual picnic, to that picturesque spot and spent a very pleasant time the guests of Mr. E. M. Best at his cottage. In the evening they were the guests of Miss Winnie and Mr R. Dobbin and enjoyed a delightful sail in Mr. Dobbin's gasoline launch across the lake. A camp fire on the Eradamore shore was one of the specialties of the picnic.

Bruce Redpath To Perform In Germany And England

Has Signed Contracts With Hippodromes in the Old Lands—In the City This Morning.

TO ADD ANOTHER SPECIALTY

Bruce Ridpath, the Lakefield crack canoeist, who has won for himself a world-wide fame, arrived in the city last night, on his way to visit the place where he was born. He has recently come from New York, and to an Examiner reporter this morning told of his exploits while there, and of the plans he has made for the future. Bruce is looking in the best of health, and before visiting his brother in Lakefield spent some time here renewing old acquaintances.

In New York he has been filling contracts in the various city parks, providing amusement to thousands with his wonderful tricks of the canoe and paddle. He has finished his engagements there, and on Tuesday of next week leaves for Germany, where he has signed a contract with a hippodrome there. The cities in which he is engaged to perform on the continent are Berlin, Hamburg and Venice, but after leaving there he will go to England and Scotland, where he will give exhibitions under some of the largest hippodromes in London, Glasgow, Manchester and other large cities of the British Isles.

Mr. Ridpath is getting a new canoe built especially for his performances and expects in addition to shooting the chutes and other tricks to do the flip act, and alight in the craft without touching the water. This is a possible feat and he believes that he will soon be able to do it, along with his other accomplishments. He expects that his present contracts will extend over a period of two years in the old land.

JUMPED IN CANOE WHICH CAPSIZED

Peterborough Young Ladies' Disagreeable Experience at Stony Lake

A Peterborough young lady who is sojourning at the upper end of Stony Lake has learned that a canoe is a poor vehicle upon which to perform circus feats. The lesson was inflicted upon her in a very disagreeable manner. The young lady in question attempted to get into a canoe by jumping into it from the bank but the feat did not come off as expected. Instead the canoe capsized and she was thrown into deep water. Her position was serious, but fortunately help was at hand and she was rescued by a young man.

STUDENTS' RE-UNION AT PORT PERRY

Many Former Pupils in High School There Pay Visit to That Town to Participate in Festivities

A number of Peterborough residents left this morning for Port Perry, to attend the re-union of students of the Port Perry High School, which is being held in that town to-day and to-morrow. An interesting feature in connection with this event is the fact that the principal is celebrating the completion of a thirty-five years principalship of the institution.

There are in Peterborough a number of persons who attended school in Port Perry, and many of them have gone to participate in this function.

PASSES AWAY IN THE PRIME OF LIFE

Robert Nicholls, at Age of 20 Years, Dies From Typhoid Fever

The hand of death called away this morning about 9.30 o'clock, one of Peterborough's brightest and most popular young men, in the person of Robert Hamilton Nicholls, son of Mr. Aaron R. Nicholls, 203 Dalhousie street. The deceased had just entered thee prime of his life, having passed his twentieth birthday before taking ill, some four weeks ago, from typhoid fever. He has all his life enjoyed the best of health, and his death came as a great shock to his family and friends.

Surviving him besides his sorrowing parents, are three brothers, Dixon, Warren and Gordon.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery at 3 o'clock.

AN INFORMATION IS LAID

License Department Dealing With Matter of Allegation That Indians Were Given Liquor at Burleigh Falls

The License Department has laid another information against W. H. Darcy, an hotelkeeper of Burleigh Falls, Peterborough County, in connection with charges of contravening the law by supplying liquor to Indians. He was recently convicted on one such charge, although the liquor was actually sold to the red men by his bartender, and was fined $50 and costs. Some of the Indians so supplied were responsible for an exciting scene on a Stony Lake excursion steamer, and were only subdued after terrorizing a number of women and children, by the physical prowess of some of the crew and the white passengers, including a clergyman. There have been recently a number of complaints as to Indians in the district being supplied with liquor at hotels, and the Department is taking energetic action in the matter.—Toronto Globe.

WHERE THE RASPBERRIES GROW IN ABUNDANCE

Fruit Very Plentiful and of Good Quality in Cavendish Township

The raspberry crop this year has probably never been excelled in the past. Another evidence of the abundance of this fruit has been furnished by Mr. Geo. Cochrane who spent yesterday in Cavendish township discharging his duties as County Constable. While waiting in the woods for a few hours to capture the man he was after, he saw the largest wild berries he had ever looked upon and states that he could easily have filled a ten quart pail in two hours.

The fruit is practically all going to waste in that north country for want of pickers to gather it in.

INTERESTING CASE OF ASSAULT

Ventilated in Police Court—East City Youth Was Beaten For Trespassing

DREAMS OF IT IN HIS SLEEP

Magistrate Dumble was given another opportunity this morning at the Police Court to point out the injudicious behaviour of Peterborough boys. It was in connection with a case in which a boy was the complainant, and who was somewhat severely dealt with by a tenant of an East City property for trespassing on forbidden grounds. The youth was captured while crossing the lot, and, according to the evidence of the complainant and his witnesses, was punished more than the nature of the offence demanded.

Joseph E. Stewart, a lad of about 13 years, and son of Mr. Joseph Stewart, license inspector, East City, was the complainant in the case, and Arthur Hoddard, caretaker of the Dickson property at the corner of Burnham and Hunter streets, the defendant.

Boy's Evidence

The latter pleaded justification for his actions, and the injured boy went into the box. He stated that the assault was made on Sunday last as he was going home from Sunday school. He entered the property at the northwest corner through an opening in the fence, and on nearing the house Hoddard chased him, catching him as he reached the fence at Hunter street. The defendant, he stated, placed his knee against his stomach, choked him, pulled his ear, and, lastly, kicked him as he was getting over the fence. On account of the injuries, he was laid up in bed for two nights and a day. The witness further stated that there were no notices up, that he was not in the habit of crossing the property this year, and that he picked up an apple which was too sour to eat.

Mr. George Coons

Mr. Geo. Coons, who was passing at the time, stated in the witness box that he heard the screams of the boy, and looked over the fence to investigate the source. He saw Hoddard choke the lad, and he told him to let him up. The defendant obeyed, ordering the youth out, and kicked him brutally as he was getting over the fence.

Mr. Jos. Stewart, father of the victim, testified to the marks of violence left on his son's body. The latter was in bed for some time suffering from a sore neck and bruises on the hip. At night he was screamed in his sleep, fearing that Italians were after him.

"Is there any question you would like to ask the witness, Mr. Hoddard?"

"No; I don't know the man," was the reply.

"You may before I'm through with you," said Mr. Stewart, as he stepped out of the box.

Gillespie Stewart, an older brother, gave his testimony also, the only new evidence being that he told his brother if he were him he would have struck Hoddard with a stone.

The Defence

The defendant and his wife gave evidence in the former's behalf, stating that they had hard times keeping the boys off the Dickson property. The older boy told him he had no more right to the property than he (Gillespie Stewart) had. The youth he chased came back on the property again after he had put him out, picked up stones, and threatened to "bash" out his and his wife's brains.

After summing up the evidence, the Magistrate spoke briefly on the indiscretion of the boys, but fined Hoddard $1 and costs, amounting to $4.35, to be paid in ten days, on account of the rather severe assault.

Othe Cases

Albert Wright, a youth of about 15 years, sat alone in the prisoners' box. He was charged with disorderly conduct at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded until Wednesday morning, when some of his alleged "pals" will be requested to appear.

John Harper appeared for not driving on the right side of the street on August 8, but as the complainant, Douglas E. Wark, of Cobourg, was not present, and as the case had been previously ventilated in court, the Magistrate dismissed the charge.

Mr. W. H. Moore was present for Harper, and Mr. G. Gordon for Wark.

LAKEFIELD ITALIANS IN A ROW

Men Employed at Cement Works Have Fracas in Which Whiskey Bottles Are Used as Weapons

The Lakefield News says:—Chief Doidge was called out on Sunday night about 12 o'clock to quell a row in the Italian colony at the Cement Works. It seems that two Italians had been drinking whisky instead of lager beer, with the result that they started in to knock each other out. A bottle was used in the fracas, and one of them is carrying around a sore head from the effects of a blow from it. The Chief arrested the principal offender, and placed him in the lock-up over night. He was liberated in the morning, with a warning to let whisky alone in the future.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the deceased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

BRIDGE COLLAPSED AT QUEBEC

Section of New Structure Over the St. Lawrence River.

SIXTY TO EIGHTY LIVES LOST

Workmen Carried Down to Instant Death Without Slightest Warning—Ten Bodies Recovered — Were Crushed to a Pulp—Many Pathetic Scenes at Quebec—Loss Will Fall Upon Phoenix Co.

Quebec, Aug. 30.—From 60 to 80 lives were lost last night by the collapse of the half-finished cantilever bridge over the St. Lawrence, nine miles above the city, and four million dollars' worth of steel superstructure, made by the Phoenix Bridge Co. lies at the bottom of the river a twisted mass of scrap iron.

The disaster occurred at 5.30 p. m., just before the men were to quit work. There was no premonition of coming disaster, and no cause can so far be assigned for the disaster.

One story is that the collapse followed the approach on the bridge of a locomotive and three cars loaded with iron.

There was a 28-mile-an-hour wind at the time, but this is considered trifling, and the bridge has already stood very much more.

Suddenly Swayed.

Ninety men were working on the structure at the time. Some were engaged in riveting operations, while others were taking down a big traveling crane.

The bridge simply swayed and shot out from the direction of the shore into the middle of the St. Lawrence.

There were a few marvelous escapes, but the great majority of those on the structure went down with it and are still in the water.

Ten bodies have been recovered.

Ten others who were on the bridge were saved, some badly injured. One or two were miraculously saved.

Of the dead bodies recovered, the majority are supposed to be those of Indians from Caughnawaga, near Montreal, several of whom were employed on the work.

Among the dead are Mr. Burke, resident engineer of the work for the Phoenix Bridge Co.; Carl Swanson, from Philadelphia.

Messrs. Fast and Meredith, supposed to be from Ohio and the following residents in the vicinity of the bridge: Victor Hardy, Michael Hardy, James Hardy and Calixte Hardy, Joseph Boucher, two brothers named Wilson, two named Hazeman, Henry French, two brothers named Proulax, and four men named Birone, Binet, Beaudry and Norton.

Terrible Scenes.

The survivors who went down into the river and were saved state that when they came to the surface of the water the spectacle which met their gaze was frightful. Several bodies came with them to the surface, some covered with blood, others with blood oozing from the mouth and ears, while others were unrecognizable.

Darkness prevented the work of recovering the bodies being successfully prosecuted last night, but it is known that many will be found to be crushed to pulp between the heavy steel pieces of the bridge with which they went to their doom.

Was an Engineering Marvel.

It is claimed here that the loss must fall upon the Phoenix Co., which undertook to complete and deliver in perfect condition the superstructure of the bridge. The abutments and piers are perfectly intact.

In one respect the structure was an experiment, being the longest cantilever in the world, namely, one unsupported span of 1,800 feet. There was still nearly 150 feet to be built to the side of the main span which collapsed, and the whole of the 750 feet outside of the pier was overhanging the river without any apparent support, although it was supported overhead. This overhanging mass of metal has been considered all summer to be one of the engineering feats of the day, and was visited by nearly all American and other visitors to Quebec. The total cost of the bridge was to be close up to $10,000,000, and already some $5,000,000 had been spent on it.

It is the connecting link between the eastern and western branches of the new transcontinental railway in course of erection by the Canadian Government.

Drowning at Kingston.

Kingston, Aug. 30.—Archie Memman of Ottawa, a sailor on the steamer Alexandria, fell into the water between the drydock and an elevator and was drowned.

A young man named Neilson, employed by Lemman & Sons, fell, late yesterday afternoon, from the roof of the Kingston Milling Co., where he was at work, and broke his arm, and probably received internal injuries.

York, Pa., Aug. 30.—Two men were killed and two others injured by the falling of a scaffold yesterday at the York County jail. The scaffold was wrecked by an 800-pound piece of granite falling on it, and the men were precipitated 50 feet.

Hurt In Elevator.

London, Aug. 30.—Charles Martin, a shipper in the Sidwell Manufacturing Co., was working the freight elevator when the cable broke at the 6th floor, plunging him to the cellar. Martin received serious injuries to his spine.

AT THE MERCY OF RAISULI

People Staying In Tangier May Be in Grave Danger

WARSHIPS TO BE DESPATCHED

Sultan Abdul Aziz Said to Have Ordered Caids With Troops to Fez—Mulai Hafig Newly-Proclaimed Sultan Proposes to Enter Into Good Relations With France and Other Great Powers.

Paris, Aug. 30.—A despatch to The Matin from Casablanca confirms the report that Mulai Hafig, the newly-proclaimed Sultan of Morocco, had issued a proclamation at Mazagan, pointing out that the policy of Sultan Abdul Aziz had been ruinous to Morocco, and stating that he proposed to satisfy the French demands and enter into good relations with France and all the other powers. The proclamation is regarded as being of the greatest importance, as it implies that Mulai Hafig has the support of all the principal tribes of the southern part of Morocco.

The Tangier correspondent of The Matin telegraphs that special couriers have arrived at Tangier from Fez, bearing orders from Sultan Abdul Aziz to the Moroccan War Minister, Cabbas, to immediately send two caids, with troops, to join Gen. El Merani and go with them to Fez.

If this order is carried out, the correspondent adds, Tangier will be depleted of troops, and be at the mercy of Raisuli, who is described as being much encouraged by his victory over Gen. El Merani.

The French Government yesterday ordered the armored cruiser Dessix to proceed to Tangier from Toulon, with instructions to protect the European population of that port.

The torpedo-boat destroyer Dart has also been ordered to sail for Morocco.

The Temps raised the point that if Mulai Hafig proves to be friendly, France enters on a most delicate situation, as by the terms of the Algeciras conference she is bound to respect and maintain the authority of the legal Sultan, who, for the most, is Abdul Aziz. The Temps remarks: "What will come to pass if it is to his rival that we shall owe the pacification of Morocco? The utmost tact is essential in handling the problem."

The Temps adds that the Moroccan question has been singularly simplified since Germany decided not to place difficulties in the way of France, which has no intention of menacing either the integrity of the country or the commercial liberty of the powers, and says that the change which has occurred in German opinion is surprising in its rapidity. The paper then suggests that "negotiations ought to be opened in order that certain problems interesting to Germany shall receive solutions satisfactory to that country."

Bookmakers Fined.

Fort Erie, Aug. 30.—Eight bookmakers from Buffalo, accused of violating section 228 of the Criminal Code, by keeping a common gambling house at the Fort Erie track, were convicted by Magistrate Rathbun of Fort Erie yesterday morning. They were fined $100 each, without costs, or three months in jail.

Chief of Police Keys gave evidence as to having bet $2 and Magistrate Rathbun declared that the arrangements made the location of the stool a "place," as spoken of in the law.

An appeal will likely be taken.

War on White Slave Traffic.

Washington, Aug. 30.—A systematic effort is to be made by the bureau of immigration to put an end to what is popularly known as "the white slave traffic," which has been conducted especially in cities on the Atlantic seaboard for a long time.

The method with which this is accomplished is so well devised that the victims of the importers practically invariably avoid detection by reason of the thorough coaching they receive prior to embarking.

Rossland Miners Protest.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 30.—Rossland Miners' Union has sent a strong deputation to Premier McBride to take action against the Crow's Nest Coal Co. for alleged violation of its charter requiring sufficient and continuous supply of coke for smelters and mines in Yale and Kootenay districts.

The present shortage is due to the shipment this year of twenty-seven thousand five hundred tons of coke to United States smelters.

Two Boys Suicide at Sea.

New York, Aug. 30.—Two suicides, both boys, occurred from the steamer Patricia, which arrived yesterday from Hamburg, Boulogne and Plymouth. Baruch Jaffo, a steerage passenger, aged 18, jumped overboard on Aug. 18, and Heinrich Herke, aged 18, a member of the crew, jumped into the sea two days ago. Neither body was recovered.

To Prevent Accidents.

Cobalt, Aug. 30.—At the inquest into the death of Alex. Groulx, killed by a stone during a blasting, the jury recommended the local authorities to take steps to minimise the possibility of accidents in the use of explosives.

SEVERE SUFFERING FROM FLOOD

Thousands of Jap Peasants Destitute and Starving.

RICE FAMINE THREATENED

Homeless People Cared for by Public Relief—Food Supply Is Scarce—Route Obstructed by Water—Fears of an Epidemic—Railways Considerably Damaged—Tunnels and Bridges Collapse.

Tokio, Aug. 30.—In Tokio alone 79,654 persons, rendered homeless by the recent floods, are being cared for by public relief. About the same number are being cared for in the prefecture of Sailama. There is no doubt there are thousands of others homeless elsewhere. The entire towns of Pukuchiyama, near Kiota, was submerged. Many persons are missing.

Flood reports continue to be received. A number of railway tunnels have collapsed and many bridges have been damaged. Several days must elapse before traffic is restored to normal conditions. The route of Tokio's food supply is obstructed by water, and the fish supply is almost stopped. The sanitary authorities of the central Government are already busy with precautionary measures to prevent the outbreak of epidemics of cholera, dysentery and fever in the inundated regions, which cover an extensive area of central Japan. Thousands of peasants are destitute and starving in the central provinces of Japan. The price of rice is higher than ever before, and the rice famine is widespread.

FIRE DEVASTATES CITY.

Hakodate In Japan Almost Entirely Wiped Out—60,000 Homeless.

Yokohama, Aug. 30.—Advices received from the American consulate at Hakodate, places the loss caused by the conflagration there at $15,000,000.

About 15,000 houses, varying in value, were burned, and 60,000 persons rendered homeless. Former estimates are regarded as having been too low.

Hakodate is a city of 80,000 inhabitants, located on the northern side of the Tsugain Straits, which lies between the two largest islands of Japan, and through which the Russian Vladivostok fleet steamed on two or three occasions during the war.

Adopt British Proposal.

The Hague, Aug. 30.—After three hours' debate yesterday the British proposition regarding obligatory arbitration was approved by the examining committee, which had the subject in charge.

During the course of the debate the head of the Austrian-Hungary delegation, Privy Councillor Merey Von Kapos-Mere, caused momentary excitement by accusing the head of the French delegation, M. Bourgeois, president of the committee on arbitration, of intentionally delaying the publication of the Austrian arbitration proposals.

Scrupulous Honesty.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—John D. Rockefeller's bill for witness fees and mileage for his trip to Chicago last July makes a new record for scrupulous honesty in the office of the United States marshal in Chicago.

He could have collected $85.60 for his trip from Pittsfield, Mass., and return, but as he stopped off at Cleveland, he deducted the difference.

Killed at Crossing.

Alliance, O., Aug. 30.—Mrs. Byron Kendricks, her six-year-old grandchild, Hazel Lowther, and Arthur Oyster, the driver of their carriage, were killed here when a Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago passenger train crashed into their carriage at the crossing just outside the city Wednesday.

Kills Sister.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 30.—Thos. Lavelle, a prominent hotelkeeper of Girard, Ill., shot and instantly killed his sister, Mary White, while sleeping, early yesterday, and then fatally wounded himself. He is probably insane.

Lynched Negro.

Columbus, Miss., Aug. 30.—A mob lynched John Lipsey, a negro, who, it was said, criminally assaulted Mrs. Ed. Windham at her home near Pickensville, Ala. Mrs. Windham is in a critical condition.

Settlement For British Columbia.

London, Aug. 30.—The Salvation Army have arranged with the British Columbia Government for the selection of a settlement for 1,000 persons in 1908.

Cases Adjourned.

Cobalt, Aug. 30.—The cases against Roadhouse, et al., for inciting miners to strike, were adjourned until Wednesday next.

The Deadly Crossing.

Chatham, Aug. 30.—While a delivery rig of Thmas Stone & Sons was crossing the C. P. R. tracks at Centre street yesterday afternoon it was struck by a shunting engine. The horse had one of its forefeet cut off. There are no gates at the crossing.

TOMORROW'S BIG BALL GAME

Port Hope and Peterborough Meet at Riverside Park in Best Game of the Season

With favourable weather, the biggets crowd in the history of baseball in Peterborough should be at Riverside Park to-morrow to see the first game in the Midland League finals between Port Hope and Peterborough. The manner in which Peterborough, entering the league in third place, and with two losses to their credit, have fought their way to the top, has aroused interest in the game such as has never before been displayed here.

To-morrow's game should be the climax to a season of good baseball. Both teams will have the strongest line-ups available, and it will be a spectacular contest throughout. Quinlan and Surphlis will be the opposing twirlers, which is enough to guarantee a hard contest.

Weekes of Bowmanville will umpire the game, as it has been impossible to secure the services of Walsh, the well-known Toronto umpire.

The contest will be called at 3 o'clock sharp, not 3.30, as was the case last week. The earlier hour for starting the game has been decided upon in order to give people who want to leave the city to-morrow evening time to catch the train.

The Peterborough team will line up as follows: Quinlan or Burns, p; Burridge, c; Hickey, 1b; Anderson, 2b; Cheatham, ss; Haliburton, 3b; Callaghan, lf; Burns or Quinlan, rf. Manager Johnston has strings out for a hard-hitting outfielder, whom he expects to land in time for to-morrow's game.

Jimmy O'Hearne, who did such good work with the willow for Peterborough last week, will be on the line-up for Port Hope to-morrow.

ARE IN THE SECOND STAGE

Col.-Sergt. Moore and Sergt. Bartlett Put on Splendid Scores Yesterday

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—To-day saw what was probably the finest exhibition of rifle shooting ever seen in Canada. Probably such a Governor- General's match will never be shot again. The conditions for a final 600 yards were not of the best. The wind was a rear one, bbut it jumped around, and the shots in Canada and the visiting Britishers were not to be denied by adverse conditions, and the D.R.A. silver fell to Major Richardson, with the magnificent score of 102. Two of the Peterborough marksmen made creditable scores in the first stage of this match. At 200, 500 and 600 yards Col. Sergt. W. H. Moore was thirty-ninth with a score of 97 and Sergt. T. Bartlett was eighty-second with a score of 94. As the first 150 are eligible to compete in the second stage at 800, 900 and 1000 yards it will be seen that their showing is a splendid one. The second stage is being shot to-day.

GOLFERS PLAYED AT STURGEON

Team From Peterborough Played Interesting Match With Lindsay Players at Sturgeon Point

Lindsay, Aug. 29. — Lindsay and Peterborough Golf Clubs, had a great day's outing at Sturgeon Point yesterday. The Peterborough players came up on the morning train, and all got on board the steamer Kathleen, leaving the lower wharf at 10.30, and arriving at the Point at noon. After having dinner at Mrs. Walkey's they proceeded to the club house, where everybody got himself in proper shape for golfing. Play was started at 1.45 and continued till 5.30 when all adjourned to the club house verandah, where the ladies had very kindly prepared an excellent luncheon after which the party returned to town on Mr. Joseph Brown's yacht, having spent one of the best golfing days of the year.

Lindsay won the match by 4 points as per the score below:

Fred. A. Clarke & Co's Appropriate Window Dressing

The interest being shown in the Peterborough Baseball Club's fight for the Midland League pennant is evidenced by the window decorations of some of the local merchants. A catchy design is seen in the window of F. A. Clarke & Co., in which a toy representation of a British bulldog holding between its paws a post-card photo of Manager Johnston's team, is exhibited. The local club's colours, blue and white, adorn the canine's neck.

The toy bull-dogs are made in Germany, and are intended to take the place of the "Teddy Bears" which are so popular among American ladies.

AIRSHIP STRUCK SCHOOL-TOWER

Aeronaut at Toronto Exhibition Had Narrow Escape.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—The inglorious ending of a trip made by the Knabenshue airship yesterday morning decided the management to cancel the contract. The ascent was made in good style, and the craft headed city hallwards, but at Crawford street schoolhouse there was a mishap, the machine becoming unmanageable, striking the cupola, and setting upon the roof, the wooden frame being smashed. Aeronaut Gail Robinson asserts that the wind was too strong, and that he made the trip only under compulsion. The airship was carted back to the grounds in the afternoon. It is not badly wrecked, but further trips are off, as the exhibition management have issued the following statement:

"The directors of the Exhibition yesterday decided to request that the Knabenshue airship be removed from the grounds. They did this, not because the gentlemen in charge of the airship manifested any disinclination to make the ascension as promised, but because they were satisfied that the apparatus in use is not able to perform what is expected of it, and, therefore, that it is impossible for the ship to be manoeuvred in such a way as to fulfil the terms of the contract.

"Yesterday morning an attempt was made, seemingly, to fulfil that part of the agreement calling for a trip around the City Hall tower and back to the Exhibition grounds, but the engine acted so badly that the feat was entirely out of the question. Mr. Johnston, the man in charge, subsequently stated that it would take at least until Saturday to repair the damage done.

"In view of that fact, it was apparent to the directors that the fulfilment of the specified terms of the contract was an utter impossibility."

Arrested For Treason.

Cobtonitz, Germany, Aug. 30.—A sergeant of the 23rd regiment of artillery has been arrested here on the charge of treason.

A traveler on whose person secret military instructions, alleged to have been stolen, were found on his way to Paris.

Further arrests are believed to be impending.

Brakeman Hurt.

Brockville, Aug. 30.—A G. T. R. brakeman named Theodore Shipman, stepping from a car at Cardinal, slipped and his foot went under the wheels.

Killed by Kick.

Chatham, Aug. 30.—Steven Brown, a Raleigh Township farmer, was kicked in the chin by a horse in his barn shortly after 7 o'clock last evening and died almost instantly. Brown had just finished his day's work and was putting the team away.

At 98, Killed by Train.

Brampton, Aug. 30.—Robert Lowes, for 98 years a resident here, was killed by a C.P.R. train. The railway passes through his farm. He suffered from deafness.

Constable Cochrane Caught Elusive Cavendish Man

Waited on the Runway for Three Hours in Cavendish Forest—Watched Him Eat His Dinner.

CARRYING A PISTOL CHARGE

After spending three hours in a Cavendish forest yesterday afternoon, concealed from view, High County Constable Cochrane caught and arrested Wm. O. Haines, of that township, purported to be a man slippery as the proverbial eel, on a charge of carrying a pistol on Wednesday, July 31, from his own house to that of John Westlake, also of Cavendish, and of having it in his possession while there.

Mr. Cochrane left the city yesterday morning for the north country and on arriving at the home of Haines discovered he was chopping out in the woods.

The constable who seldom fails in a man hunt of this nature, left for the sound of the woodman's axe, about five miles distant, but knew that should the prisoner hear of his approach he would have difficulty in making an arrest. He therefore carefully made his way through the woods and arrived within 300 yards of the chopper without being detected. He even sat down and watched Haines eat his lunch and then proceed with his chopping.

There was still a difficulty obstructing the arrest as an advance on the constabble's part meant the disclosure of his presence. He therefore went around to the path leading to the scene of operations and contented himself with waiting in concealment until the object of his search arrived.

He sat there while at least three whole hours crept by and was rewarded by the prisoner walking into his arms.

The constable arrived home with Haines last night and no was remanded until next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, when Magistrate Edmison will hear the case.

HAS KICK AGAINST JAPAN.

China Resents Agreement Recently Arrived at With France.

Pekin, Aug. 30.—China made a protest on Aug. 19 to France and Japan, against the covenant of their recent agreement, providing for interference in the vast regions of the sovereign Chinese domain.

The protest has resulted in a remarkable suppression by the authorities of public matters. It is claimed that China has been brow-beaten from her rights, owing to the cowardice of the present Chinese Government, the cowering position of the throne, and its overlording by Japan.

The protest which the board of foreign affairs, for the purpose of not giving offence, modified, to a mild character, is to the effect that the agreement of China's allied opponents is "not to be considered as right."

The protest has aroused the indignation of the Japanese, who have ignored it, leaving the French here to persuade the board to drop it.

While China's resentment at the patronage of the Japanese, which country is assuming the position of her protector, is increasing, the Government is yet too weak and alarmed to combine the assistance of the Empress with official action, preferring the dangerous policy of secrecy.

The attitude of foreigners here has reached a stage of pronounced antagonism to the Japanese, especially among those belonging to the nations which are the allies of Japan.

This antagonism has been largely provoked by Japan's constant success, both in Korea and Manchuria.

A new movement, headed by Chang Chin Tung, has been started among the Chinese to promote native enterprises in Fukien, for the purpose of offsetting the efforts of the Japanese to obtain a foothold in that province.

A Contradiction.

POPULAR BANKER LEAVES CITY.

Mr. R. H. Neilson Transferred to Walkerton Branch of the Bank of Commerce

Mr. R. H. Neilson, who for more than two years has been teller in the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has received word of his transfer to the Walkerton branch of the same bank, where he will be promoted to the position of accountant. Mr. Neilson, during his residence in Peterborough, has made himself very popular by his genial disposition and gentlemanly bearing and his departure will be regretted by his many friends, who, however will congratulate him on his promotion, which is an evidence of the bank's appreciation of his services. He will leave for Walkerton in a few days, and will be succeeded here by Mr. Watson, of Barrie.

Popular Cure For Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine constantly on hand for use in case of emergency.

Mr. Robt. Mulholland Donates Building for Administrative Purposes at King Edward Sanitarium.

WAS OPENED THIS WEEK

Care of the Consumptives Now Occuping Attention of Public Men of the Province.

Probably few of those who read in the papers a few days ago of the opening of the new King Edward Sanitarium for Consumptives, near Toronto, were aware that one of the buildings, the Mulholland Cottage, was the gift of a former Peterborough man, Mr. R. Mulholland. This is, however, a fact, and additional local interest is lent by reason of it.

The Toronto Star, in reporting the opening ceremonies in connection with the new buildings, published the address of the president of the association, Mr. W. J. Gage, in full, and also referred to the remarks of the donors of the two new structures, in the following terms:

In presenting the cottage which bears his name, to the trustees, Mr. Robert Mulholland expressed himself as deeply impressed with the need of taking radical steps to stem the ravages of the White Plague. His object in making the presentation is that those in the advanced stages of the disease may find the needed medical skill and nursing, and that they may be isolated from their friends, thus helping to prevent the spread of the disease by infection.

Mr. H. C. Hammond, the Treasurer, was unable to be present, but he sent a letter of regret to the trustees, presenting the Administration Building, which will bear his name, to them, and expressing, in the strongest words, his opinion that before long both the Dominion and Provincial Governments will have to deal with tuberculosis in a vigorous manner. He said: "If, in the inception, we can save the life of one Canadian-born man or woman, I consider it worth ten times the amount the Government is now paying for foreigners, with whom we have no ties whatever."

The President's Address

In his address, President Gage said in part:—

"Twelve years ago a deputation under the auspices of the National Sanitarium Association, waited upon the Government of the Province, asking aid to carry into effect their proposals for the establishment of a sanatoria for consumptives.

"So little was known of these institutions, that, outside of the medical profession, I doubt if there were one hundred people in the Province who had ever heard of consumptive sanatori. Nothing of the kind had been attempted in Canada, and in the United States only one institution had come into existence, that of Dr. Trudeau, in the Adirondacks.

"This entire lack of knowledge on the part of the public, coupled with indifference, proved a serious difficulty. A still greater obstacle was in the general belief on the part of the public that the unfortunate victim of consumption was under sentence of death. I even fear that the leaders of the movement were looked upon as dreamers, well meaning no doubt, but mistaken. It is then with some degree of pride that, after twelve years, we find our dreams realised, and our plans rounded out in the function of to-day.

What Has Been

"Under the auspices of the National Sanitarium Association two homes have already been established in Muskoka—one the pay institution, and the other the Charity, or Free Hospital for Consumptives, the two together accommodating 180 patients. In Muskoka, $200,000 has been spent in buildings, equipment and land, the whole amount being almost entirely the gift of friends. Over a quarter of a million of dollars has been spent in the maintenance of patients.

"Two thousand five hundred patients have passed through these Muskoka sanatoria, most of the patients being so far helped that they could go back to their families with a new lease of life. As intimated, the Muskoka institutions are intended only for those in the early stages of the disease. What about the more advanced, or shall we use the dying cases? A little consideration will readily show that if we are to give those in the incipient stages of the disease the best chances of recovery, they must be treated amid the more favourable surroundings. There must be a classification of patients. Hence the necessity of homes such as we purpose to open to-day, the King Edward Sanatorium for Consumptives, for patients who can pay a reasonable charge for maintenance, and the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives a charity institution.

$80,000 at Weston

"The trustees have spent on the buildings located here, about $80,000, all the gift of friends, except what we owe the banks, providing accommodation for 90 patients, and with a trifling additional cost, this may be increased to 150.

"Whilst this practical work has been carried on, providing sanatoria, or homes for consumptives, another, perhaps, even more important work has been done in the educational campaign that has been conducted. Every one of the 2,500 patients that have left the Muskoka homes have been centres of educational influences in their community, showing how the disease may be successfully treated, and how to prevent the spread of it.

"In addition to this, millions of leaflets have been scattered broadcast throughout the Dominion, telling how to fight the great White Plague of the North.

Public Sentiment Aroused

"To-day, after twelve years, what a marvellous change has been accomplished. From the lack of knowledge and indifference of twelve years, we have an aroused public sentiment so that we have in this Province fifty branch associations of the National Sanitarium Association. In addition we have at least three other Provincees of the Dominion where Provincial Sanatoria have been erected, or provision is being made for their erection.

"This awakening in public sentiment and growing fear of contagion has made the lot of the consumptive specially burdensome. With the result in Toronto that every hospital has closed its doors against the consumptive, and, we suppose, that the same holds truet in nearly every city in Canada.

A Sample Case

"Those of us who have been intimately associated with sanatorium work from the beginning, have seen numberless illustrations of the painful experience that the poor sufferer from tuberculosis has had to endure.

"A few months ago an applicant presented himself at the office of the physician-in-chief of the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium, asking admission. He told his story, that he had been a railway conductor, that he had been turned out of the boarding house where he had lived for 17 years, because he had contracted tuberculosis. He then removed to a hotel in the town. There it was shortly discovered that he was a victim of consumption, and the proprietor told him that they dare not keep him longer. He then applied for admission to the General Hospital of his town, and was refused.

"In his desperate condition, he started for the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium. The physicians there, after examination, advised him that his case was too far advanced for treatment there. The poor fellow, with tears streaming down his cheeks, begged the doctor to allow him to remain, saying: 'I have travelled for two days on the train. I have been turned out of my boarding house and out of the hotel in my own town. Then I was refused admission in the local hospital. Nobody wants me. For God's sake, doctor, let me stay! I have money to pay for all I want.'

"The patient was cared for at the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium until such time as he could be safely removed to the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives. There his needs received every attention that was possible to medical skill and tender nursing, he passing away some weeks ago.

"Now, your Excellency, I have the pleasure of calling upon you to open the door of this new sanatorium, which His Majesty has graciously permitted to be called by his name, an institution, that will provide a home and minister to the needs of just such a one as the conductor to whom I have referred, those who are too sick to be admitted into the Muskoka homes, and those whom other hospitals refuse—who have no place to go—those, indeed, whom their own friends, in many cases, do not want, for fear of contagion."

RELIABILITY OF THE EXAMINER'S NEWS SERVICE DEMONSTRATED

Yesterday the Examiner scored a beat. Everyone who read the evening papers may not have noticed it, and, as a matter of fact, it did not amount to so much in itself, except that it served as a proof that this paper is reliable in its news service. Nine-tenths of the evening papers in the Province published a press despatch sent out by a news bureau, stating that Hon. G. P. Graham and Hon. Wm. Pugsley had been sworn in at Ottawa as ministers of the Crown, the former for the portfolio of Public Works and the latter for Railways and Canals. As a matter of fact, while these men were taken into the Cabinet, the positions they will occupy are just the reverse of those indicated above. The Examiner was the only Peterborough newspaper to publish the correct arrangement of the portfolios, and, more than that, it was one of a very few Ontario dailies to give their readers the facts as they really existed. The Examiner has special facilities to secure the latest and most reliable news. Yesterday's incident was an evidence of this fact.

CLINGING GIRL GETS THE MATRIMONIAL PLUMS

The clever, sophisticated girl who is a good sport may be conspicuous these days, but the keen observer will see that the clinging girl, with the big melting eyes, in her quiet way is getting the big plums in the marriage game, says Eleanor Hoyt Brainerd in New Broadway Magazine. Aunt Laura, who knows the matrimonial game like a book, has strong convictions upon this point. The charming debutante says, "I'll never be the success mother was, though. I'm not clinging enough. Mother was one of the gentle, soft-voiced, dreamy-eyed, white-muslined and blue-ribboned belles, and Aunt Laura insists that they are still the winners, in spite of all the clangy, boydemish modernism one finds among society women to-day. She says that men's tastes have not changed at all. As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be. The oak thinks the ivy is the real thing as help-meets—and man's approval is the whole law for the picturesque. Remember my dear, I am giving you the gospel according to Aunt Laura, not my own humble ideas. I am a mere sponge, nowadays, busily soaking up worldly wisdom. It's all very amusing, but if one believe it—well, when I believe it, I shall be more like Aunt Laura and less like mother. I hope I'll land on solid ground somewhere between the two.

"Aunt Laura's system worked beautifully with her two daughters. They were hopelessly unattractive, it seemed; but she married one to an English lord and one to a millionaire mine-owner—all through consistently sticking to her theories."

"They weren't pretty and they weren't clever," she said when she told me about them. 'But they were nice mannered, sensible girls, and I impressed it upon them at the start that they must cling. Men want to be appreciated, not stimulated. Remember that, child, with your face you can take more chances than my poor girls could; but do, always, be clever enough to keep the men you meet from suspecting that you are as clever as you are. When you are married and settled you may be as brilliant as you choose, or as nature chooses—but it is disastrous for a debutante without a dot to get a reputation for being intellectual or even witty."

HAMILTON MAY JOIN THE EASTERN LEAGUE

Transfer From Montreal to Mountain City Proposed

The transfer of the Montreal baseball franchise to Hamilton would be welcome news to the Toronto parties interested, as it would mean a cutting down of travelling expenses and the doing away with one awkward jump. There can be little doubt but that Hamilton would be a better paying town than Montreal, the former being a noted sporting centre, and filled with many enthusiastic fans. At any rate, any small town would pay as well as Montreal.

KINGSTON TO HAVE SENIOR TEAM

14th Regiment Will Play in the O. R. Games

Kingston, Aug. 31.—It is expected 14th Regiment Club of this city have a team in the Senior O. R. The Limestones will be in the junior series. There is plenty of good material for both teams. Queen's will have a good team in the inter-college series.

Nearly all the seniors of last year will be available, though a new man or two may be likely, as Donovan and Cline have graduated. Williams, Hamilton and Campbell will be the half-backs with sturdy "Buck" Crawford holding the posts. Practice will soon begin. Physical Instructor Palmer will coach and athletic adviser.

BURNS IS AFTER TO LONGBOAT

Former Peterborough Runner Will Match With Indian

Mr. C. A. Welch, of New Westminster, who has been in town for some time completing arrangements with the Tecumseh Lacrosse Club for their trip to the coast, had an interview with Mr. G. C. Flanagan, of the Irish-Canadians, this morning, and endeavored to make arrangements whereby Longboat could accompany the Tecumsehs. Western people are very anxious to match the Indian against Burns, the coast distance champion.

Burns is an Ottawa runner, who came to spend much of his time running in the cricket races around the Ottawa Valley and before leaving for the coast, where he spent a year in Peterborough, he and "Dave" Beland pulled off several five-mile events. While Burns is a good one, he is hardly in the Indian class, and would be easy picking for Tom.—Toronto News.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a great mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and also lead to the ruination of health. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, torturing, stinging, sensation of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for all forms of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

THE SECRET OF PERFECT HEALTH.

It used to be the general idea that there was some mystery about getting well and staying well. Sellers of quack nostrums took advantage of this fact and grew rich. We are growing wiser, however, and know that good food, fresh air and cleanliness are all that are required. Cleanliness, however, means that you must be clean inside as well as outside. If your kidneys, liver and bowels are not properly performing their functions, they are accumulating a mass of filth, as a result of your violation of some natural law, and you must assist nature in nature's way to cleanse the system. No necessity, however, to risk using some secret preparation. You can obtain a perfect compound of vegetable remedies, everyone of which is endorsed by your physician. The formula of King Palmetto Compound is printed plainly on the wrapper. No secret, no mystery, just plain common sense. King Palmetto Compound will regulate the liver, bowels and kidneys, tone the system and prevent serious results which might arise from neglect. Give it a trial. Write for a free sample bottle to the King Palmetto Company, Bridgeburg, Ontario.

THEY ARE THE BEST

ENTITLED TO PARTICULARS

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Sulatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mix, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

The above prescription has been found invaluable in the treatment of kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, and diseases arising therefrom, such as rheumatism, sciatica, lame back and lumbago, and we feel that the public are entitled to particulars concerning it.

A prominent physician states that the excellent results that have been obtained from the use of the mixture are due to its direct action upon the kidneys, assisting them in their work of filtering all poisonous waste matter and acids from the blood and expelling same in the urine, and at the same time restoring the kidneys to a healthy condition.

He further states that anyone suffering from afflictions of this nature will find it to be very beneficial, and suggests that it be given a trial.

The Helmet of Navarre

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

The sun was setting as I hastened along the streets. I must reach the Rue Coupejarrets before dark, else there was no hope for me. A man in his senses would have known there was no hope anyway. Who but a madman would think of venturing back, forsworn, to those three villains for the killing of one? It would be a miracle if aught resulted but failure and death. Yet I felt no jot of fear as I plunged into the mesh of crooked streets in the Coupejarrets quarter—only ardor to reach my goal. When on turning a corner I came upon a group of idlers choking the narrow ruelle I said to myself that a dozen Parisians in the way could no more stop me than they could stop a charge of horse. All heels and elbows, I pushed into them. But, to my abasement, promptly was I seized upon by a burly porter and bidden, with a cuff, to mind my manners. Then I discovered the occasion of the crowd to be a little procession of choristers out of a neighboring church—St. Jean of the Spire it was, though I knew then no name for it. The boys were singing, the watchers quiet, bareheaded. They sang as if there were nothing in the world but piety and love. The last level rays of the sun crowned them with radiant aureoles, painted their white robes glory. I shut my eyes, dazzled; it was as if I beheld a heavenly host. When I opened them again the folk at my side were kneeling as the cross came by. I knelt too, but the holy sign spoke to me only of the crucifix I had trampled on, of Yeux-gris and his lies. I prayed to the good God to let me kill Yeux-gris, prayed, kneeling there on the cobbles, with a fervor I had never reached before. When I rose I ran on at redoubled speed, never doubting that a just God would strengthen my hand, would make my cause His.

I entered the little court. The shutter was fastened as before, but I had my dagger, and could again free the bolt. I could creep upstairs and mayhap stab Yeux-gris before they were aware of my coming. But that was not my purpose. I was no bravo to strike in the back, but the instrument of a righteous vengeance. He must know why he died.

One to three, I had no chance. But if I knocked openly it was likely that Yeux-gris, being my patron, would be the one to come down to me. Then there was the opportunity, man to man. If it were Grammont or the lackey I would boldly declare that I would give my news to none but Yeux-gris. In pursuance of this plan I was pounding vigorously on the door when a voice behind me cried out blithely:

"So you are back at last, Felix Broux!"

At the first word I wheeled around. In the court entrance stood Yeux-gris, smiling and debonair. He had laid aside his sword and held on his left arm a basket containing a loaf of bread, a roast capon and some bottles, for all the world like an honest prentice doing his master's errand.

"Yes, I am back!" I shouted. "Back to kill you, parricide!"

He had a knife in his belt; the fight was even. I was upon him, my dagger raised to strike. He made no motion to draw, and I remembered in a flash he could not; his right arm was powerless. He sprang back, flinging up his burdened left as a shield, and my blade buried itself in the side of the basket.

As I stabbed I heard feet thundering down the stairs within. I jerked my knife from the wicker and turned to face this new enemy. "Grammont," I thought, and that my end had come.

The door flew open and, shoulder to shoulder like brothers, out rushed Grammont and—Lucas!

My fear was drowned in amaze. I forgot to run and stood staring in sheer, blank bewilderment. Crying "Damned traitor!" Gervais, with drawn sword, charged at me.

I had only the little dagger. I owe my life to Yeux-gris's quick wits and no less quick fingers. Dropping the basket he snatched a bottle from it and hurled it at Gervais.

"'Ware, Grammont!" shouted Lucas, springing forward. But the missile flew too quickly. It struck Grammont square on the forehead and he went down like a slaughtered ox.

We looked, not at him but at Lucas—Lucas, the duke's deferential servant, the coward and skulker, Grammont's hatred, standing here by Grammont's side, glaring at us over his naked sword.

I saw in one glance that Yeux-gris was no less astounded than I, and from that instant, though the inwardness of the matter was still a riddle to me, my heart acquitted him of all dishonesty, of all complicity. His was not the face of a parricide.

"Lucas!" he cried in a dearth of words. "Lucas!"

I was staring at Lucas in thick bewilderment. The man was transformed from the one I knew. At M. le Duc's he had been pale, nervous and shaken—senselessly and contemptibly scared, as I thought, since he was warned of the danger and need not face it. But now he was another man. I can think only of those lanterns I have seen set with colored glass. They look dull enough all day, but when the taper within is lighted shine like jewels. So Lucas now. His face, so keen and handsome of feature, was brilliant, his eyes sparkling, his figure instinct with defiance. A smile crossed his face.

"Aye," he answered evenly, "it is Lucas."

M. le Comte appeared to be in a state of stupor. He could not for a space find his tongue to demand:

"How, in the name of heaven, came you here?"

"To fight Grammont," Lucas answered at once.

"A lie!" I shouted. "You're Grammont's friend. You came here to warn him off. Its your plot!"

"Felix! The plot?" Yeux-gris cried. "The plot's to murder monsieur. Martin let it out. I thought it was you and Grammont. But it's Lucas and Grammont!"

Lucas hesitated. Even now he debated whether he could not lie out of it. Then he burst into laughter.

"It seems the cat's out of the bag. Aye, M. le Comte de Mar, I came to warn Grammont off. The duke will be here straightway. How will you like to swing for parricide?"

Yeux-gris stared at him, neither in fear nor in fury, but in utter stupefaction.

"But Gervais? He plotted with you? But he hates you!"

We gaped at Lucas like yokels at a conjurer. He made us no answer, but looked from one to other of us with the alertness of an angry viper. We were two, but without swords. I knew he was thinking how easiest to end us both.

M. le Comte cried: "You! You come from Navarre's camp, from M. de Rosny!"

"Aye. I have outwitted more than one man."

"Mordieu! I was right to hate you!"

Lucas laughed. Yeux-gris blazed out:

"Traitor and thief! You stole the money. I said that from the first. You drove us from the house. How you and Grammont"——

"Came together? Very simple," Lucas answered with easy insolence. "Grammont did not love monsieur, your honored father. It was child's play to make an assignation with him and to lament the part forced on me by monsieur. Grammont was ready enough to scent a scheme of M. le Duc's to ruin him. He had said as much to monsieur, as you may deign to remember."

"Aye," said M. le Comte, still like a puzzled child, "he was angry with my father. But afterward he changed his mind. He knew it was you and only you."

Lucas broke again into derisive laughter.

"M. de Grammont is as dull a dolt as ever I met, yet clever enough to gull you. He thought you must suspect. I dreaded it—needlessly. You wise St. Quentins! You cannot see what goes on under your very nose."

M. le Comte sprang forward, scarlet. Lucas flourished the sword.

"The boy there caught at a glance what you had not found out in a fortnight. He gets to the duke and blocks my game—for to-day. But if they sent him ahead to hold us till their men came up they were fools too. I'll have the duke yet and I'll have you now."

He rushed at the unarmed Yeux-gris. The latter darted at Grammont's fallen sword, seized it, was on guard all in the second before Lucas reached him. He might have been in a fortnight's trance, but he was awake at last.

I trembled for him, then took heart again, as he parried thrust after thrust and pressed Lucas hard. I had never seen a man fight with his left arm before; I had not realized it could be done, being myself helpless with that hand. But as I watched this combat I speedily perceived how dangerous is a left-handed adversary. In later years I was to understand better, when M. le Comte had become known the length of the land by the title "Le Gaucher." But at this time he was in the habit, like the rest of the world, of fencing with his right hand; his dexterity with the other he rated only as a pretty accomplishment to surprise the crowd. To-day his left hand scarcely as well as Lucas' the right; yet, the thrust sinister being in itself a strength, they were not badly matched. I stood watching with all my eyes, when of a sudden I felt a grasp on my ankle and the next instant was thrown heavily to the pavement.

Grammont had come to life and taken prompt part in the fray.

I fell close to him, and instantly he let go my leg and wound his arms around me. I tried to rise, and could not, and we rolled about together in the wine and blood and broken glass. All the while I heard the sword blades clashing. Yeux-gris, God be thanked! seemed to be holding his own.

Fighting Gervais was like fighting two men. Slowly but steadily he pressed me down and held me. I struggled for dear life—and could not push him back an inch.

I still held my knife, but my arms were pinned down. Gervais raised himself a little to get a better clutch, and his fingers closed on my throat. One grip and life seemed flowing from me. My arm was free now if I could but lift it. If I could not, nevermore could I lift it on this sunny earth. I did lift it and drove the dagger deep into him.

I could not take aim; I could not tell where the knife struck. A gasp showed he was hit; then he clinched my throat once more. Sight went from me and hearing. "It is no use," I thought, and then thought went too.

But once again the saints were kind to me. The blackness passed, and I wondered what had happened that I was spared. Then I saw Grammont clutching with both hands at the dagger hilt. After all the blow had gone home. I had struck him in the left side under the arm. Three good inches of steel were in him.

He had turned over on his side, half off me. I scrambled out from under him. To my surprise Yeux-gris and Lucas were still engaged. I had thought it hours since Grammont pulled me down.

As I rose Yeux-gris turned his head toward me. Only for a second, but in that second Lucas pinked his shoulder. I dashed between them; they lowered their points.

"First blood for me!" cried Lucas. "That serves for to-day, M. le Comte. I regret that I cannot wait to kill you, but that will come. It is necessary that I go before M. le Duc arrives. Clear the way."

M. le Comte stood his ground, barring the alley. They glared at each other motionless.

Grammont had raised himself to to his knees and was trying painfully to get on his feet.

"A hand, Lucas," he gasped.

Lucas gave him a startled glance, but neither went nor spoke to him.

"I am not much hurt," said Grammont huskily. Holding by the wall he clambered up on his feet. He swayed, reeled forward and clutched Lucas's arm.

"Lucas, Lucas, help me! Draw out the knife. I cannot. I shall be myself when the knife is out. Lucas, for God's sake!"

"You will die when the knife is out," said Lucas, wrenching himself free. He turned again to M. le Comte, and his eyes gleamed as he saw the blood trickling down his sleeve and the sword tremble in his hand.

"Come on, then," he cried to Yeux-gris.

But I sprang forward and seized the sword from M. le Comte's hand.

"On guard," I shouted, and we went to work.

I could handle a sword as well as the next one. M. le Duc had taught me in his idle days at St. Quentin. It served me well now, and him too.

The light was fading in the narrow court. Our blades shone white in the twilight as the weapons clashed in and out. I saw, without looking, Grammont leaning against the wall, his gory face ashen, and Yeux-gris watching me with all his soul, now and then shouting a word of advice.

I had had good training, and I fought for all there was in me. Yet I was a boy not come to my full strength, and Lucas was more than my match. He drove me back further and further toward the house wall. Of a sudden I slipped in a smear of blood ('tis no lying excuse; I did slip) and lost my guard. He ran his blade into my shoulder, as he had done with Yeux-gris.

He would likely have finished me had not a cry from Grammont shaken him.

"The duke!"

In truth a deepening noise of hoofs and shouts came down the alley from the street.

Lucas looked at me, who had regained my guard and stood, little hurt, between him and M. le Comte. He could not push past me into the house and so through the other street. He made for the alley, crying out:

"Au revoir, messieurs! We shall meet again."

Grammont seized him.

"Help me, Lucas, for the love of Christ! Don't leave me, Lucas!"

Lucas beat him off with his sword.

"Every man for himself!" he cried, and sprang down the alley.

"It is not the duke," I said to Yeux-gris. "It is most likely the watch." I paled at the thought, for the watch was the League's and Lucas by all signs the League's tool. It might go hard with us if captured. "Go through the house, M. le Comte," I cried. "Quick, if you love your life! I'll keep them at the alley's mouth as long as I can."

Not waiting for his answer I rushed down the passage. At the end of it I ran against Lucas, who in his turn had bowled into Vigo.

CHAPTER XI.

I knew of old that it was easier to catch a weasel asleep than Vigo absent where he was needed; yet I did not expect to meet him in the alley. Monsieur, then, had changed his mind.

"Well caught!" cried Vigo, winding his arms round Lucas, who was struggling furiously for liberty. "Here, Maurice, Jules, I have number one. Ah, you young sinner! with your crew again? I thought as much. Tie the knots hard, boys. Better be quiet, you snake; you can't get away."

Lucas seemed to make up his mind to this, for he quieted down directly.

"So the game is up," he said pleasantly. "I had hoped to be gone before you arrived, dear Vigo."

We had both been deprived promptly of our swords and Lucas's wrists were roped together, but my only bond was Vigo's hand on my arm.

"Where are the others?" he demanded. "No tricks now."

"Here," I said, and led the way down the passage. Maurice and Jules, with their prisoner, pressed after us, and half a dozen of the duke's guard after them. The rest stayed without to mind the horses and keep off the gathering crowd.

One of the men had a torch which lighted the red pavement. Vigo saw this first.

"Morbleu! is it a shambles?"

"That is wine," I said.

"They spilled wine for effect, they spilled so little blood!" Thus Lucas, speaking with as cool devilry as if he still commanded the situation. Vigo could not know what he meant, but he asked no questions; instead bade Lucas hold his tongue.

"I am dumb," Lucas rejoined with a mock meekness more insolent than insolence. But we paid it no heed, for M. le Comte came forward out of the shadows. He held his head well up, but his face was white above his crimsoned doublet.

"M. Etienne! Are you hurt?" shouted Vigo.

"No, but he is." M. le Comte stepped aside to show us Grammont leaning against the wall.

"Ah!" cried Vigo triumphantly. He and two of the men rushed at Gervais.

"You would not take me so easily but for a cursed knife in my back," Grammont muttered thickly. "For the love of heaven, Vigo, draw it out."

With amazement Vigo perceived the knife.

"Who did it?"

"I."

"You, Felix? In the back!" Vigo looked at me as if to demand again which side I was on.

"He lay on me, throttling me," I explained. "I stabbed any way I could."

"I trow you are a dead man," Vigo told Grammont. "Natheless, here comes the knife."

It came, with a great cry from the victim. He fell back against Vigo's man, clapping his hand to his side.

"I am done for," he gasped faintly.

"That is well," said Vigo, carefully wiping off the knife.

"You is the scoundrel," Grammont gasped, pointing to Lucas.

"He will die a worse death than you," said Vigo.

Grammont looked from the one to the other of us, the sullen rage in his face fading to a puzzled helplessness. He said fretfully:

"Which—which is Etienne?"

He could no longer see us plain. M. le Comte came forward silently. Grammont struggled for breath in a way pitiable to see. I put my arm about him and helped the guardsman to hold him straighter. He reached out his hand and caught at M. le Comte's sleeve.

"Etienne—Etienne—pardon. It was wrong toward you—but I never had the pistoles. He called me thief—the duke. I beseech—your—pardon."

M. le Comte was silent.

"It was all Lucas—Lucas did it," Grammont muttered with stiffening lips. "I am sorry for—it. I am dying—I cannot die—without a chance. Say you—for—give"——

Still M. le Comte held back, silent. Treachery was no less treachery though Grammont was dying. All the more that they were cousins, bed-fellows, was the injury great to forgive. M. le Comte said nothing.

How Grammont found the strength only God knows, who haply in His goodness gave him a last chance of mercy. Suddenly he straightened his sinking body, started from our hold and tottered toward his cousin, both hands outstretched in appeal.

M. le Comte's face was set like a flint. The dying man faltered forward. Then M. Etienne, never changing his countenance, slowly, half reluctantly, like a man in a dream, held out his hand.

But the old comrades, estranged by traitory, were never to clasp again. As he reached M. le Comte Grammont fell at his feet.

"He was a strong man," said Vigo. He turned Grammont's face up and added the word, "Dead!" Vigo adored the Duke of St. Quentin. Otherwise he had no emotions.

But I was not case-hardened. And I—I myself—had slain this man, who had died slowly and in great pain. Vigo's voice sounded to me far off as he said bluntly:

"M. le Comte, I make you my prisoner."

"No, by heaven!" cried M. Etienne in a vibrating voice that brought me back to reality; "no Vigo! I am no murderer. Things may look black against me, but I am innocent. You have one villain at your feet and one a prisoner, but I am not a third! I am a St. Quentin; I do not plot against my father. I was to aid Grammont to set on Lucas, who would not answer a challenge. I have been tricked. Gervais asked my forgiveness—you heard him. Their dupe, yes; accomplice I was not. Never have I lifted my hand against my father, nor would I, whatever came. That I swear. Never have I laid eyes on Lucas since I left monsieur's presence, till now when he came out of that door side by side with Grammont. Whatever the plot I knew naught of it. I am a St. Quentin—no parricide!"

The ringing voice ceased and M. le Comte stood silent, with haggard eyes on Vigo. Had he been prisoner at the bar of judgment he could not have waited in greater anxiety. For Vigo, the yeoman and servant, never minced words to any man nor swerved from the stark truth.

I burned to seize Vigo's arm, to spur him on to speech. Of course he believed M. Etienne; how dared he make his master wait for the assurance? On his knees he should be imploring M. le Comte's pardon.

But no thought of humbling himself troubled Vigo. Nor did he pronounce judgment, but merely said:

"M. le Comte will go home with me now. To-morrow he can tell his story to my master."

"I will tell it before this hour is out!"

"No. M. le Duc has left Paris. But it matters not, M. Etienne. Monsieur suspects nothing against you. Felix kept your name from him. And by the time I had screwed it out of Martin monsieur was gone."

"Gone out of Paris?" M. Etienne echoed blankly. To his eagerness it was as if M. le Duc were out of France.

"Aye. He meant to go to-night—monsieur, Lucas and I. But when monsieur learned of this plot he swore he'd go in open day. 'If the League must kill me,' says he, 'they can do it in daylight, with all Paris watching.' That's monsieur!"

At this I understood how Vigo came to be in the Rue Coupejarrets. Monsieur in his distress and anxiety to be gone from that unhappy house had forgotten the spy. Left to his own devices, the equerry, struck with suspicion at Lucas's absence, laid instant hands on Martin the clerk, with whom Lucas, disliked in the household, had had some intimacy. It had not occurred to Vigo that M. le Comte if guilty should be spared. At once he had sounded boots and saddles.

"I will return with you, Vigo," M. le Comte said. "Does the meanest lackey in my father's house call me parricide I must meet the charge. My father and I have differed, but if we are no longer friends we are still noblemen. I could never plot his murder, nor could he for one moment believe it of me."

I, guilty wretch, quailed. To take a flogging were easier than to confess to him the truth. But I conceived I must.

"Monsieur," I said, "I told M. le Duc you were guilty. I went back a second time and told him."

"And he?" cried M. Etienne.

"Yes, monsieur, he did believe it."

"Morbleu! that cannot be true," Vigo cried, "for when I saw him he gave no sign."

"It is true. But he would not have M. le Comte touched. He said he could not move in the matter; he could not punish his own kin."

M. le Comte's face blazed as he cried out:

"Vastly magnanimous! I thank him not. I'll none of his mercy. I expected his faith."

"You had no claim to it, M. le Comte."

"Vigo!" cried the young noble, "you are insolent, sirrah!"

"I cry monsieur's pardon."

He was quite respectful and quite unabashed. He had meant no insolence. But M. Etienne had dared criticise the duke, and that Vigo did not allow.

M. Etienne glared at him in speechless wrath. It would have liked him well to bring this contumelious varlet to his knees. But how? It was a byword that Vigo minded no man's ire but the duke's. The King of France could not daunt him.

Vigo went on:

"It seems I have exceeded my duty, monsieur, in coming here. Yet it turns out for the best, since Lucas is caught and M. de Grammont dead and you cleared of suspicion."

"What!" Yeux-gris cried. "What! you call me cleared!"

Vigo looked at him in surprise.

"You said you were innocent, M. le Comte."

M. le Comte stared, without a word to answer. The equerry, all unaware of having said anything unexpected, turned to the guardsman Maurice:

"Well, is Lucas trussed? Have you searched him?"

Maurice displayed a poniard and a handful of small coins for sole booty, but Jules made haste to announce: "He has something else, though—a paper sewed up in his doublet. Shall I rip it out, M. Vigo?"

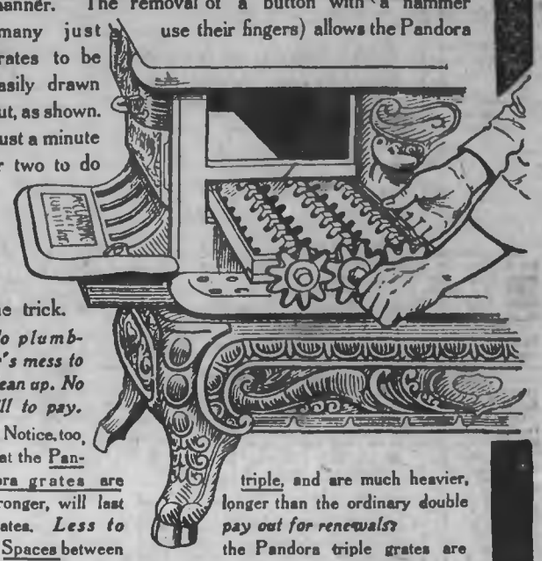
PANDORA RANGE

Just a Minute or Two to Remove Grates

When the Pandora grates require removing don't send for the plumber. His kit of tools are not needed to take the stove to pieces in order to get out the grates, as was the case with your former ranges.

The Pandora is not constructed in the usual manner. The removal of a button with a hammer (many just use their fingers) allows the Pandora grates to be easily drawn out, as shown. Just a minute or two to do the trick.



No plumber's mess to clean up. No bill to pay.

Notice, too, that the Pandora grates are triple, and are much heavier, stronger, will last longer than the ordinary double grates. Less to pay out for renewals?

Spaces between the Pandora triple grates are narrower than between ordinary double grates, which prevents good fuel slipping down with the ashes. Sifting Pandora ashes is wasted effort.

And that simple gearing arrangement on the Pandora makes the "rocking down" of the ashes just play compared to the heavy "shaking" necessary with ordinary ranges.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct to us for free booklet.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

ANIMALS TAUGHT BY CRUELTY.

Charges Against the Trainers Made by a London Newspaper.

It is to be hoped that the terrible fate of the unfortunate man, Joseph Hasselmann, who was clawed to death by a "trained" lion at Gloucester, will draw the attention of the authorities to the risks incurred by performers and their assistants at popular places of amusement, as well as to the horrible cruelties that are practiced on so-called "trained" wild animals.

About five persons annually in the British Isles are killed or mauled in these wild beast performances, says The Daily News. If the public who throng variety theatres and circuses and applaud the daring performances of "Lion Kings" and "Queens" could peep behind the scenes and witness the cruelty which is practiced in the endeavor to compel lions, leopards, monkeys and other animals to go through unnatural performances their patronage would be speedily withdrawn from all places of entertainment where "trained" animals form part of the exhibition.

The actual performer frequently buys his animals ready "broken," or cowed by a systematic course of brutality and starvation. This is usually done on the continent, where the laws relating to cruelty to animals are not as strict as they are in England. Young lions are turned loose in a large cage and the "breaker," clad in a kind of leather armor studded with spikes and armed with a whip and a heavy iron bar, proceeds to thrash them until they have a holy horror of man. Should the tortured brutes in their desperation spring on him assistants are always at hand with hot irons and their mouths are terribly burned, until they will suffer almost any punishment rather than bite their persecutor.

When they become docile they are bought by the trainers, and then they are compelled to jump through hoops, sit on barrels, etc., by having their food remorselessly withheld until they go through their tricks to the satisfaction of the trainer.

Monkeys are probably worse treated than even lions or leopards. Not 10 per cent. of the monkeys survive the operation of training. They are terribly nervous animals, and the fear of the trainer's whip and goad causes the majority of them to pine away and die long before their education is complete. A few trainers have succeeded in teaching horses, dogs and cats to go through stage tricks by kindness, but they are in a minority. "It does not pay to spend months in teaching an animal," professional trainers say. A man who made it his business to train cats reckoned always to lose fifteen out of twenty kittens before they acquired a certain trick, as his methods were to withhold food and let them die exhausted from starvation if they could not understand what was required of them.

Even performing birds, such as cockatoos and pigeons, are trained by starvation, and although conjurors who perform with birds and rabbits boast that the living creatures are unhurt, this is seldom the case. A man may make a bird disappear in a collapsible cage perhaps twenty times without causing it injury, but sooner or later, the unfortunate bird is bound to have its legs or wings broken. To kill these birds at every performance would be far more merciful, for even if they escape injury the wretched creatures pine and die of prolonged fear within a period ranging as a rule from three to fourteen days.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for alterations, additions and repairs to Block 'C' Tete du Pon Barracks, Kingston, Ont.," will be received at this office until Monday, September 9, 1907, inclusively, for the work above described.

Plans and specifications can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and on application to H. P. Smith, Esq., Architect, Kingston.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

LOOKING AT SPORTS.

Eminent Physician Says That People Should Join In Games.

"We have," said Dr. Davy in a remarkable presidential address to the British Medical Association at Exeter in discussing the effect of changed habits on the nation's health, "perhaps as great a love of games as ever, but much of the muscular work has been taken from them. Your rich man sits or stands while his grouse or his pheasants are driven towards him, instead of walking the moors or woods to find them. The poorer man pays his entrance money to see a few experts playing cricket or football, instead of playing the game himself, while some of the most manly and best exercises, such as wrestling, boxing and fencing, have almost become extinct. By physical culture alone can we have a proper remedy for the muscular degeneration so prevalent. It ought to be considered by every educational authority. Every school in the country should be under a properly trained medical officer."

As to food, fads and fancies of various more or less eminent individuals had been allowed far too much prominence, sometimes bringing the subject into ridicule. The feeding of civilized man was not merely a question of "stoking the engines." No harm is done by cooking the food in a tempting and pleasant way, provided the scientific amounts be not greatly exceeded. "I expect," said the president, "that the exquisitely cooked food of a first-class chef is far more digestible and healthy than the same food unappetizingly cooked by an ignorant general servant."

A great part of the terrible infant mortality, was directly traceable to the absolute ignorance of the great majority of our nation on all questions of food, elementary hygiene and science.

The association and the press should urge on statesmen the need for making elementary physiology and hygiene a compulsory part of the education of all children.

Referring to consumption, Dr. Davy said that Great Britain contains 600,000 poor patients with a preventable infectious disease, the large majority of whom are bound to die of a lingering illness. It was time something was done officially. He thought that the Government, having obtained the best expert and other opinion, and having considered the precautions in other countries, should bring forward legislation to deal with the disease.

In conclusion, he showed what Japan had done by introducing physical exercises, gymnastics and games into all the schools, preserving the health and physique of the nation. England should do the same, or else must take a back seat in that concourse of nations in which only the fittest will be supreme.

OLD-ESTABLISHED CUSTOM.

Origin of the Race for Doggett's Coat and Badge.

By the race for Doggett's Coat and Badge and the accompanying £10, which was won by A. T. Cook of Hammersmith very recently, a very old-established custom was honored, and an interesting personality brought to mind.

The race was first rowed in 1715 by six young watermen from Old Swan, at London Bridge, to the White Swan, at Chelsea, for a waterman's coat and silver badge given by one Thomas Doggett, an Irishman, around whom time and tradition have woven many strange tales. Doggett, we learn, was an actor who enjoyed much popularity in the early part of the eighteenth century.

"In dressing a character to the greatest exactness," says Colley Cibber, "he was remarkably skilful." Without stepping into the least impropriety, he could be extremely ridiculous, an accomplishment which aided his popularity.

It is in quite another direction, however, that he is most interesting to posterity. He was an ardent politician. The connection between his politics and rowing matches is, perhaps, not at first evident. There is such a connection, however, for the actor-politician was an enthusiastic advocate of the Hanoverian succession. It was in honor of the accession of the First George that the institution of the coat and badge was founded.

A Bit of Sarcasm.

"A poor tramp stopped at the door to-day," said Mrs. Subbubs, "and I gave him a good meal."

"Well, well," sneered her husband, "why did you do that, softy?"

"I just couldn't help it. He reminded me so of you. I asked him if he'd saw some wood for me, and he said he was too tired."

CROMER, "RETIRED DESPOT."

M.P.'s Oppose Grant of $250,000 to Famous Diplomatist.

The resolution to make a grant of $250,000 to Lord Cromer for his great services in Egypt was moved in the British House of Commons by the Premier, and seconded by Mr. Balfour.

"Of all our pacific administrators throughout the Empire of the present day Lord Cromer is the foremost," said the Prime Minister. Mr. Balfour said he desired to associate himself in every way with these sentiments.

Mr. William Redmond, in opposing the grant, made a long and remarkable speech, in which he declared that it was inconsistent with the spirit of Liberalism.

"Lord Cromer rendered great service to Egyptian finance," admitted Mr. Redmond, "but he received a large and adequate salary for his services, and is now entitled to a considerable pension. If $250,000 is to be given him, it should come from Egyptian sources.

"Twenty-four years ago he was sent to Egypt to carry out a policy of evacuation, and instead he has made Egypt a British province.

"If he is to receive this money, then he is to be rewarded for doing what cannot but be characterized as false and fraudulent in the face of the whole civilized world."

"The Liberal party has no policy of its own," declared Mr. Kettle, another Nationalist, who worked himself up into a frenzy of fury over the grant, and called Lord Cromer a "retired despot."

When he sat down Mr. Victor Grayson, the newest Socialist M. P., rose to make his maiden speech.

Mr. Grayson was fervent, excited, florid. He drew pictures of old people tottering to paupers' graves, while this money was being given to Lord Cromer.

"Gentlemen," he began one sentence breaking the rules of the House. "Don't call them gentlemen," cried an Irish member.

"That reminds me," said Mr. Grayson quickly, "of the young curate who said: 'Dear friends, I will not call you ladies and gentlemen—I know you too well.'"

When the tones of the fervid Socialist orator died away there broke on the House the cool, calm accents of Sir Edward Grey.

"Gratitude," he said, "is due to Lord Cromer not only for what he has done but for what he has avoided. The situation in Egypt often bristled with difficulties. It is impossible to estimate what the burden to the British taxpayer might have been especially in the early years, if there had not been a man so steadfast, patient, and sure as Lord Cromer.

The vote was carried by 254 to 107; majority, 147.

BILLION YEARLY FOR FOOD.

Britain Grows More Dependent on Other Nations.

Great Britain's growing dependence upon foreign nations for food is strikingly illustrated by the statistics issued by the Board of Agriculture. Twenty years ago the foreign food bill for a year reached a total approximately of $500,000,000. In 1906 it amounted to $1,000,000,000, an increase far greater than is accountable by the growth of population.

Detailed tables compared the imports of food per head in 1886 and 1906. The most notable is wheat, the figures for which stand at 146 pounds and 239 pounds respectively. Butter and its substitutes stand at 7 1-2 and 13 3-4 respectively. Sugar 69 and 86 pounds respectively, and, above all, meat at 20 3-4 and 47 1-4 pounds.

In regard to meat it is noteworthy that the figures not merely represent a great import but an immensely increased consumption. The report says there is no evidence of any diminution in the home supplies of meat. Thus the figures indicate that the consumption per head has been more than doubled, showing that the standard of living has been markedly raised in 20 years.

Souvenir Hunting.

Souvenir hunters are quite devoid of conscientious scruples. A correspondent of The Times complains of the enthusiasm of certain American tourists who were visiting the county churchyard of Stoke Poges, immortalized by Gray's Elegy. The reference to the "boy" of 18 is delightful. It reminds one of the "light-haired boy, Dr. Ginery Dunkle of Troy," described in Martin Chuzzlewit. Here is the letter: Can you find room for a complaint from one of the custodians of a well-known churchyard? On Wednesday, the 24th inst., among the many Americans who visited Stoke Poges church was a party of three, two ladies and one boy of about 18. The last-named succeeded, in spite of the protests of an elderly lady who acts as caretaker of the church, in carrying off a notice to visitors, which hung up in the churchyard, having first tried unsuccessfully to smuggle out a similar notice from the church. He said he wanted it as a souvenir, and, though hotly pursued by the caretaker, the party succeeded in reaching their motor and went off triumphantly with their booty. Even "the chilly penary" which prevents our having a policeman to guard our treasures cannot "repress our noble rage" at this dastardly act of petty larceny, which will perhaps not be repeated if you could kindly record it in your columns.

New Battleship Launched.

Britain's newest battleship, the Bellerophon, which was launched at Portsmouth recently by Princess Henry of Battenburg, is a great improvement on the Dreadnought. She is 700 tons heavier, her displacement being 18,600 tons to the Dreadnought's 17,900. Her length is 490 feet, maximum breadth 82 feet, lead draught 27 feet. She is the largest and will be the most heavily armed vessel in the world. The machinery is to be of 23,000 indicated horsepower, and the speed 21 knots, steam being supplied from water-tube boilers. The machinery is to be on the turbine principle, as the Admiralty are thoroughly satisfied with the results obtained by the Dreadnought's machinery during her long series of trials. So far as the main armament is concerned, the Bellerophon will be similarly armed to the Dreadnought. She will carry ten 12-inch guns, which will be mounted in pairs in barbettes, three forward and two aft. The ship will have a right ahead fire of six guns, but as the after of the two barbettes astern is to be raised to a higher level than the other, her astern fire will be eight guns, and the broadside fire will be eight guns. For resisting torpedo-boat attack the Bellerophon will have 4-inch guns instead of 12-pounders, as in the case of the Dreadnought. Internally, she is similar to the Dreadnought. She is divided into several watertight compartments, and below the waterline there is no opening in the bulkheads of any kind. The officers will live forward and amidships and the crew aft.

THE SIX HUNDRED.

Of that mad but heroic charge a hundred incidents are preserved—thrilling, humorous, shocking. The Cornhill Magazine tells of a man of the Seventeenth lancers who was heard to shout, just as they raced in upon the guns, a quotation from Shakespeare, "Who is there here would ask more men from England?"

The regimental butcher of the Seventeenth lancers was engaged in killing a sheep when he heard the trumpets sound for the charge. He leaped on a horse. In shirt sleeves, with bare arms and pipe in mouth, he rode through the whole charge, slew, it is said, six men with his own hand, and came back again, pipe still in mouth!

A private of the Eleventh was under arrest for drunkenness when the charge began, but broke out, followed his troop on a spare horse, picked up a sword as he rode and shared in the rapture and perils of the charge. The charge lasted twenty minutes, and was ever before such daring or such suffering packed into a space so brief? The squadrons rode into the fight numbering 673 horsemen, but their mounted strength when the fight was over was exactly 195.

It was all a blunder, but it evoked a heroism which made the blunder itself magnificent. And as long as brave deeds can thrill the imagination of men the story will be remembered of how—

Stormed at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well
Into the jaws of death,
Into the mouth of hell—
Noble six hundred!

He Was Too Hasty.

A prominent automobilist condemned scorching at a dinner.

"I condemn," he said, "scorching and the scorcher, but I don't condemn the scorcher unheard. I don't condemn the accused man hastily. Hasty condemnation is always a mistake. Once on a Canadian railway I got off the train for a five minute luncheon at a railway eating bar. There was a man beside me gobbling away, and when he finished I heard him say bitterly, as he took out his purse:

"'Call that a ham sandwich? It's the worst ham sandwich I ever ate. No more taste than sawdust and so small you could hardly see it.'

"'Ye've et yer ticket,' said the waiter. 'This here's yer ham sandwich,'".

Snake Myths.

Snakes have no medicinal qualities, and the following popular notions are myths: That galls of snakes are an antidote for snake bites; that their oil is good for rheumatism, baldness and deafness; that wearing their skins will cure rheumatism or stiffness; that a snake heart, oil or blood is good for consumption or other ills; that snake flesh should be eaten for blood disorders; that a second bite of the snake in the same place will cure or counteract the first bite; that rattlers of snakes are charms.

The Modern Restlessness.

Like the Athenians of old, most people are vainly searching for some new thing, only to look upon it when they find it with suspicion. Of the vast majority it is as true today as it was first written—

They eat, they drink, they sleep, they plod.
They go to church on Sunday,
And many are afraid of God,
And more of Mrs. Grundy.

is an ideal baker, the construction of the oven being such that every heat unit has to pass completely around it with all its warmth retained before the smoke and waste can escape up the chimney. The heat travels from the fire box across the top of the oven, down the back and then forward again underneath, until it strikes a baffle plate, around which it circles and goes to the chimney. The temperature of the oven in the Pen Esther is always even—there is no possibility of a gust of cold air spoiling a baking.

An interesting story concerns the recent wedding of Miss Constance Hawker, daughter of Rev. Geo. Hawker, pastor of Camden road, London, Baptist Chapel, and Mr. Archibald Douglas, Director of Education in Southern Nigeria. The bride has a charming and brave young schoolgirl sister named Vera, who some months ago chased and secured the arrest of a pickpocket in Tufnell Park. The young lady was complimented by the judge, and the incident received wide publicity, in which the name was misprinted as Vere Hawkes. Mr. Douglas in far-away Nigeria read of the incident, and having, years before, in his schooldays, known a young lady of the name, he communicated with the supposed "Miss Hawkes." Vera received the letter, and, with her father's consent, a correspondence was opened, in the young lady's name was revealed. In spite of his mistake, Mr. Douglas had become interested in Vera, and on a visit to this country a few weeks ago he expressed a desire to become personally acquainted with her. Vera, therefore, paid him a visit, accompanied by her eldest sister as chaperone. The meeting resulted in Mr. Douglas promptly falling in love with the chaperone, Miss Constance Hawker, and Vera recently had the pleasure of acting as bridesmaid to her sister.

A Blackburn family named Howson is revelling in the anticipation of an enormous windfall from the estate of a long-lost brother. Over 40 years ago, Wm. Howson, after serving a dozen years in India as a private in the 98th Foot, emigrated to the United States. Arriving just at the outbreak of hostilities between the North and the South, he naturally enough enlisted in the army of the North and served throughout the war. He wrote home, stating that when the war was over he expected to bring back enough money to provide comfortably for his future. This letter, however, was followed by the return from America of another Blackburn man, who stated that Howson had been killed in action. The story was believed, because from that day nothing was heard of Howson by his family. About a month ago, however, as a result of an advertisement in an English newspaper for the heirs of the son of John and Margaretta Howson, of Blackburn and Preston, the postmaster of Blackburn made inquiries, and the next of kin of William Howson were soon found. They were Edward Howson, a carter, of Blackburn, and John Howson, a turner and fitter, of Bolton, surviving brothers, and Mrs. Elizabeth Corporation Baths, and Miss Jane Howson, sisters. The fortune is believed to be from $500,000 to $800,000.

Sir Gorell Barnes, a London judge, recently granted a decree of nullity in a curious matrimonial suit. The parties were two Russian Jews. Regina Pollack, of Gordon, was the petitioner, and her cousin, Arnold Pollack, the deponent. Mr. Bayford said the lady was a Russian Jewess, and, being in ill-health, travelled on the continent. In Berlin she met her cousin. She wanted to study law in Paris, and her cousin told her that her parents would not allow her to do so, so long as she was under her parents' control. Her cousin suggested that they should come to England, and that a ceremony should be gone through—a betrothal ceremony—which would enable her to go to Paris. They accordingly came to England and went through a ceremony before the registrar, a declaration having previously been made by the respondent in regard to their age, both being minors. The girl believed the ceremony she was present at to be merely a betrothal ceremony, more especially as no ring was used, whereas, the couple were in reality united in wedlock. A betrothal ceremony among Jews, explained counsel, was the usual thing before marriage. As a matter of fact, the young people had not lived together as man and wife. His Lordship granted a decree of nullity, with costs.

As a naturalist was engaged in catching moths at the Warren, an isolated spot near Folkestone, one evening recently, he saw a respectably dressed man walking along the railway line. On reaching the Warren, the man, who carried a bottle of methylated spirits, deliberately divested himself of his clothing and placed it in a circle on the ground around him. He then saturated it with the spirits and set a match to it, remaining himself in the centre of the flames. The evidently demented man walked round and round in the circle of flame till terrible burns had been inflicted on his naked body, when he collapsed. Meanwhile, the horrified spectator had hastened to inform the railway authorities, who sent a light engine to the spot. The man, who was suffering terrible agony from the self-inflicted hurts, was conveyed to Dover, where he died next morning in hospital. He was identified as Mr. S. Lefevre, a tradesman of the town, and it is thought that his mind became unhinged through business troubles. The spot where the suicide took place presents an appalling spectacle, being covered for a considerable distance with marks of blood left by deceased while wandering about in delirium.

A desperate struggle in the Thames with a would-be suicide named Frederick Paulizky, aged 15, was related at West London Police Court recently. John Davis, a wharf labourer, at Fulham, said that on the evening in question he heard a shout and saw the lad in the water. He was "puffing himself out" by drinking in the water. Witness jumped in to go to his rescue, and the defendant called out, "Go away, I am going to drown myself." Witness tried to seize him, and defendant swam towards a steamer and endeavoured to get between the paddle wheels. Witness caught hold of him, and in so doing struck his head against a boat. The defendant then clutched him by the throat, and the witness had to strike him in the face to make him release his hold. Eventually a bargeman came along in a boat, and with great difficulty the defendant was got ashore. He kept trying to get back into the water, and it required the efforts of 12 men to detain him until a policeman arrived.

SCOTLAND

The death occurred recently of Mr. William Rae, the Blantyre bone setter. The miner surgeon, as Mr. Rae had been called, worked in the coal pits at his native place for over thirty years. One day he discovered that he had an extraordinary gift of treating the lame. A collier workmate by him was badly injured in an accident, and Rae administered first aid. His success led him to study anatomy and physiology, and his fame as a bone-setter spread beyond the bounds of his own district to the north of England and the Midlands. Many people travelled from far and near for his treatment. His village at one period was described as the Lourdes of Scotland, hundreds of cripples arriving in all manner of vehicles, and crowding round his cottage to consult him. At the entrance to the cemetery gates at Blantyre the funeral procession was met by a posse of cripples, who formed a guard of honour to the coffin.

A daring escape was recently effected from Craiginches prison, Aberdeen, by a local poacher, Peter Larimer Green, who was undergoing a sixty days' term for salmon poaching. Green was engaged in painting work on the prison buildings near the outside wall, from which he dropped, and made off, attired in the prison garb and bare-footed. He followed the railroad line for two miles into the city, and being fleet of foot, gave his pursuers the slip with ease. He was first seen at the Caledonia railway goods station loading bank, and at once recognised and chased out on to the busy thoroughfare. People were astonished as Green dashed at full speed across the principal street and dodged into the graveyard. Here he was lost for some time, but was latterly seen about the Gallowgate, an old quarter of the town where he was likely to find friends.

Over ten years ago stoppage was put to quarrying operations at the Abbey Craig owing to an agitation against the taking of rock from the Craig, which, it was stated, was disfiguring the amenity of the Wallace Monument. Recently the Central District Committee of the County Council memorialized the Secretary for Scotland to authorize the re-opening of the quarry. The Secretary for Scotland granted the request on condition that the quarrying be confined to certain parts indicated in a plan, that the metal taken from the quarry be used for road purposes on the north side of the Forth only, that no metal be sold and that the operators be conducted without the use of smoky or noisy engines or machinery.

Edinburgh Town Council has accepted with gratitude an offer from Lord Rosebery to give for the purpose of a municipal museum the historic mansion in Lawnmarket, Edinburgh, known as Lady Stair's House, which he purchased some years ago. Lord Rosebery said in a letter to the council that he had always intended to dispose of the house in this way, and had provided accordingly in his will, but wished to put the council in immediate ownership. Lady Stair's House was the scene of romantic events described by Sir Walter Scott in "My Aunt Margaret's Mirror." It is possessed of considerable architectural beauty, and was restored about ten years ago by Lord Rosebery, who is a descendant of Lady Stair.

When Jas. Morrison, lately fourth engineer on the SS. Pegu, of Glasgow, was charged in that city recently with having contravened the Customs Act by concealing 26 lbs. of cigars on board the ship while in Queen's Dock, Glasgow, he pleaded guilty, and expressed regret for his offence. The mode of concealment was ingenious and elaborate. The cigars were concealed under the floor of the engine room, in the narrow space between it and the top of the bunkers, and a considerable distance from the manhole. To reach it one had to crawl along ten or fifteen feet from the manhole.

A carter, accompanied by a friend named Wm. Conn, miner, Ralimoor Row, Uddingston, was taking two loads of cement along a country road in the outskirts of Stevenson, when near Haystacks Mansion-house, Conn, unknown to his companion, fell and was struck on the head by the wheel of the cart. Sometimes afterward a vanman discovered the unfortunate man lying in the roadway with his skull fractured. The carter happened to be leading the first horse when Conn fell, and he proceeded to his destination unaware that any accident had taken place.

The customary dancing among the fisher folk at Montrose during the herring season was marred this season by a sad accident. About a dozen couples were dancing on the jetty to the music of a melodeon, and during a galop James Soudion, of Greenock, and his partner, Bella Peart, were seen to trip and fall at the edge of the quay, both disappearing in the darkness. There was a splash, and all the dancers ran to the quayside. Soudion was dragged ashore by a boathook, but his partner could not be seen.

The deep mystery which has for weeks surrounded the series of seizures at Glasgow, Edinburgh and Newcastle of thousand of Mauser cartridges was solved at Glasgow when John Reid was tried for having been in unlawful possession fifteen thousand cartridges. A Newcastle agent for the Hamburg makers admitted that the cartridges were for shipment to Russia, and were stored at Glasgow to outwit Russian spies. They were not for the Russian army, but for the people.

The Inverness Burg Police have made a distressing discovery in connection with the death of a widow, Mrs. Macgregor. Her decomposed remains were found in an attic, and it is supposed that she had been dead for over a month. She had been in the habit of going to the country, and her absence was not noticed by the neighbours. Some children observed that the key was in the inside of the door, and the police were afterwards informed. She was over seventy years of age.

Much anxiety is felt in Glasgow for the safety of the steam pleasure yacht Athene, which left the Clyde on April 24th for Buenos Ayres. She was expected to call for coaling purposes at Madiera, but nothing has been heard of her since she left the Clyde. The Athene is commanded by Captain McLaughlan, and owned by Mr. James Stein, of Buenos Ayres, and she carried a Scotch crew of eleven.

IRELAND

In the Crown Court, Belfast, recently, an extraordinary plea was put forward in his own defence by a commercial traveller named Archibald King who was charged with having embezzled a sum of money belonging to Messrs. Brown & Co., soap manufacturers, of Manchester. A second count for receiving was preferred against King, who pleaded not guilty. Edward Harrison, the managing director of the Manchester firm, stated that the accused had represented them since 1905, and was authorized to collect moneys. Several sums had not been accounted for. King, who conducted his own defence, asked Harrison if he knew what hypnotism was. Witness replied in the affirmative, and admitted that he had seen it performed. Evidence was then had as to prisoner's character, one witness stating that he had always been noted for his high moral character. He was however considered by some as being somewhat eccentric. King afterwards offered his defence. He attributed to the Crown Solicitor the statement that at a previous hearing that gentleman had said another man was at the head of the affair. The prisoner added: "I never denied receiving the money. I was hypnotized—strange and unusual as the statement may seem." Hypnotism, he said, was a genuine science, and that, in fact, was his answer to the charge. The man who hypnotized him—his name was given—had tried to persuade him to leave the country. The money had been fully accounted for. He had never denied receiving it. In conclusion prisoner said, "I only hope, like Nelson of old, that every man on the jury will do his duty, and that I will not be disappointed with the results."

A private meeting of the King's county council, was held at Tullamore, recently, to consider the extraordinary position which has been created by the action of the sheriff of the county in seizing the offices of the county council, under a decree of the Judge of the Assize, granting to Mayor Bennett compensation to the extent of 1,030 pounds for the malicious burning of certain property of his, including six horses. Subsequently it was stated, that the opinion of Mr. Stephen Ronan, K.C., had been read and it had been resolved that the secretary of the council be instructed to take proceedings against the sheriff of King's county for damages for alleged trespass on the council's property by seizing under a decree under which he had no power to levy. It was also resolved that notice be served on the treasurer, in accordance with the opinion of counsel, not to pay for malicious injuries until instructed. A letter has been written to the sheriff asking him to nominate a solicitor to accept service of a writ.

The question of the right of the Lord Lieutenant to have the traffic in Dublin stopped for the passage of his motor car, was raised there recently when a cyclist was summoned for excessive speed, at a time when the traffic was stopped. A policeman said the traffic was stopped because the Lord Lieutenant's motor was coming. He believed His Excellency had priority. Mr. Mahaney, the Magistrate—Priority over what or over whom? — Over the general public? I should like to see your authority for that statement here. The chief commissioner in such a case should publish specific traffic regulations, and in the absence of such I can see no reason, no sort of right, for your stopping the traffic for the Lord Lieutenant more than for Mark Twain, or Mr. John Redmond. The inspector had no earthly right to do what he did, and there is absolutely nothing to show that the defendant acted "to the common danger of the public," and I therefore dismiss the case.

A plucky rescue was effected some days ago by Mrs. McNally of Sligo, who went with a number of children at low water to bathe from the shore of Sligo Bay. Noticing that the tide was coming in quickly, she returned to the shore when she heard cries of distress and saw the seven children standing on a little island, which is completely submerged at high tide. The children had been caught by the tide, which completely cut them off from the mainland. Mrs. McNally, although unable to swim, rushed to the island, and, taking the two smaller children in her arms, and bidding the others to cling to her she began to struggle landward. The rapidly rising tide had already rendered it impossible to return the way she had come but by making a long circuit she was at length enabled to reach the shore safely, in an exhausted condition, with all the children.

Miss Jessie Baylor, of Derryvillane, County Cork, was recently awarded, at the Cork Assizes, £450 damages against Mr. Robt. Givens, a Tipperary farmer, for breach of promise of marriage. It was stated that Mr. Givens, while professing warm affection for Miss Baylor, was simultaneously paying attention to other girls, and had even engaged himself to three of them! Counsel for the plaintiff stated that the parties had been engaged for eight years. The marriage was finally fixed for April last, and all the preparations were made for the ceremony. The wedding guests had begun to arrive, the trousseau was bought, and the cake ordered. On April 21 Mr. Givens launched a thunderbolt in the shape of an intimation that he had changed his mind and did not intend to marry Miss Baylor.

A desperate bedroom struggle between the Earl of Kingston and a burglar at Kilronan Castle, County Roscommon, was related to the Belfast magistrates recently. Lord Kingston had been sleeping for some nights past in his dressing-room, owing to the oppressive weather. He was awakened by a noise in his room, and, switching on the electric light, found a man under his bed. He grappled with the intruder, and a desperate struggle ensued on the floor. The Earl contrived to arouse the servants, and the burglar was secured. He gave the name of Patrick Russell, Belfast.

While a goods train was journeying from Newry to Portadown recently, a cow ran on the line. The engine cut the cow to pieces, but the impact caused the train to leave the metals, and 12 wagons fell down an embankment, most of them being badly smashed. The permanent way was also badly damaged, and the guard was thrown down in his van and injured.

Insure Against Serious Colds

Of the many forms of insurance probably that which protects you against the serious results of colds is the most valuable at this time of the year, when so many are becoming victims of la grippe and pneumonia. By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can keep the loose, prevent further development of the cold and cure it in a few days.

THE TEMPERATURE NEVER VARIES

The draft construction of the GREAT IDEA steel range insures a perfect regularity of heat—every GREAT IDEA is fitted with an oven thermometer that will prove this. The temperature is always in exact control.

The baffle plates fitted to all oven bottoms in the GREAT IDEA, and the quarter-inch air space between the cast iron oven top and the steel oven top insures an even distribution of heat. The flues throughout—even the flues under the oven—are protected with three thicknesses, one of asbestos and two of steel, thus preventing escape of heat from the range body.

THE MEDICINAL VALUE OF FRESH FRUIT JUICES

One of the Greatest Wonders of the Age.

Hundreds Have Been Made Well by Taking Advantage of an Ottawa Physician's Discovery.

Everyone knows how beneficial fruit , when eaten regularly. Fruit is nature's laxative—the finest kidney regulator—and the ideal skin tonic. Unfortunately, the medicinal principle of fruit occurs only in minute quantities. In order to consume enough fruit to relieve Biliousness, one would also consume a large amount of woody fibre or pulp, which would upset the stomach and impair digestion.

An Ottawa physician discovered a way to get around these difficulties. He pressed the juice from apples, oranges, figs and prunes—and then forced one more atom of the bitter principle from the discarded orange peels, into the concentrated juices. This formed a new compound, having all the curative effects of fresh fruit—and in a highly intensified degree. Then valuable tonics and internal antiseptics were added and the whole pressed into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives" the wonderful Liver Tablets you hear so much about. "Fruit-a-tives" cure the most obstinate cases of non-action of the bowels, biliousness, headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness, kidney trouble, rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia. They are the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world, while their action on the skin, in clearing and beautifying the complexion, is nothing short of marvelous. Ask your druggist for "Fruit-a-tives" and see that you get them. 50c a box. 6 for $2.50. By mail, postpaid, from Fruit-a-tives. Limited, Ottawa. 113

NORTH MONAGHAM COUNCIL

Monthly Meeting of the Governing Body of That Township Was Held, When Many Matters Were Discussed

AN IMPORTANT MEETING

(Examiner Special.)

The North Monaghan Council met in the Town Hall, on Monday, Aug. 26th, at 7.30 p.m.

All the members were present, the Reeve in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications were received from S. H. Armstrong, Inspector of Provincial Asylums, giving a list of inmates of the asylum in Toronto who are a charge on the Township of North Monaghan.

The clerk reported having consulted the township solicitor in regard to the undertaking of Mr. F. Brown to convey a street to the township, at the request of Mr. T. Hurley, and having been advised by the solicitor that the document as presented was quite informal and irregular and not a sufficient guarantee to the township as would warrant any action to be taken thereon.

The clerk also submitted at the request of Mr. Geo. Moncrief, that owing to a misunderstanding by him as Com. of R. Div. No. 5, he had been paid at the rate of $1.50 per day in place of $1.75, and asked the council to now remit to him the balance due from the increase.

Mr. H. J. Foster was present at the meeting and presented an account for gravel taken from his pit, 80 yards instead of 55 yards as allowed by the certificate presented at last meeting Mr. Foster also claimed $3.00 damages to crop.

The committee who were in charge of the construction of the bridge on the drain road presented a report, as follows:—

To the Reeve and Council

Gentlemen—Your committee who were appointed at an emergent meeting called by the Reeve owing to the washout of the bridge on the drain road, for the purpose of reconstructing the said bridge, beg to report that after several conferences it was finally determined to construct concrete piers with a wooden superstructure, the old material having been found of sufficient good quality and quantity to rebuild a new bridge. Your committee then asked "tenders" and having received two from different contractors and the lowest being considerably above the estimate of the cost made by the committee, it was decided to do the work by day labour and that Mr. James O'Keefe be placed in charge of the cement work thereon.

This has been done and the job is entirely satisfactory, the cost by the accounts submitted herewith is about $550. There is yet on hand unused material of the value of $50. Your committee wish to submit that calculating the extent of the cement work at 140 cubic yards at $4.86 a cub. yd., the lowest est tender, there is a considerable difference in the cost of the work in favour of the "day labour" system.

Respectfully submitted.

W. G. HOWDEN, Chairman

On motion of Messrs. Howden and Morrow the report was received and adopted.

The following accounts were handed in:—

Pay sheet—Work handling material for bridge $84.25.

James O'Keefe—Labour, himself and three men at bridge $251.32.

F. Moncrief—Account of repairs to bridges and culverts in R. Div. No. 4, $35.55.

W. G. Morrow repairs to gravel road grader $11.50.

Jas. T. Green—Cleaning water trough on Gravel Road $1.05.

On motion of Messrs. May and Howden, the accounts as presented above were passed and ordered to be paid.

A communication was read from Mr. Jos. T. Green stating that owing to a culvert and drain being stopped, the water flowed over his premises causing damage thereto, and asking the council to take such actions as may relieve him of the damage.

It was moved by Messrs. May and Morrow that the clerk is hereby directed to inform Mr. T. Hurley that this council is quite prepared to assume and grade his street at such time as he formally opens and dedicates a prolongation of the same to give an outlet at the northern end thereof and that such outlet street must be of the width of 66 feet.

This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and Morrow, that the account and claim of Mr. H. J. Foster be referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. the Reeve, and councillors Dobbin and Morrow for investigation.

This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Dobbin and Howden that the communication of Mr. Jos. T. Green be referred to a committee of the whole council for further examination. This was carried.

Mr. P. Davis, the Sanitary Inspector, of the Township, wrote the council tendering his resignation.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and Dobbin that the resignation of Peter Davis be accepted and that Mr. Wm. Anderson be appointed Sanitary Inspector in his stead at a salary of $10 a year. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Morrow and Dobbin, that the claim of Mr. G. Moncrief be referred to the Reeve with power to pay if found correct. Carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and Dobbin that the communication of the Inspector of Asylums be referred to the Reeve and clerk. Carried.

By-laws Nos.

585 To confirm the appointment of clerk to amend salary of same.

586 To amend the appointment of a Road Commissioner in R. Div. No. 3 and to alter the pay of Road Commissioners.

587 To authorize the Reeve and treasurer to borrow money to meet the current expenses of the Township.

588 To levy County and Township rates, and

589 To levy School Section rates, general Public School rate and County equivalent rate, were then introduced, formally read and finally passed, signed and sealed.

Under by-law No. 588 the following is the estimate of the receipts and expenditures of the Township for the current year.

RECEIPTS

Cash in bank	$37.50
Provincial taxes	75.00
Licenses	56.00
Dog taxes	160.00
Commutation of Statu Labour	1000.00
Arrears of taxes	50.00
County Rates	1939.30
Township School rates	1053.00
School Section Trustees rates	980.00
Total	$5400.80

EXPENDITURE

County Rates	$1939.30
Township School Gen.	1053.00
School Sections	980.00
Direction Expenses	15.00
Board of Health	20.00
Municipal Government	400.00
Law Costs	10.00
Interest and Discount	50.00
Printing and Stationery	50.00
Grading and Gravelling	1000.00
Roads and Bridges	400.00
Canada Drain	125.00
Miscellaneous	45.00
Total	$6187.30

Leaving a difference of $786.50 to be raised by the Township rate.

On a total assessment of $463,000 it will require a rate of 3 mills on the dollar to raise $1393, for County purposes and a rate of 1 1-9 mills on the dollar to raise $783 for Township purposes.

These estimates were then adopted.

Under by-law 589 the following sums were levied for school purposes—

Union School Section No. 1—$240.32 on section and $388 on the Township.

School Section No. 2—$500 on the section and $300 on the Township.

School Section No. 3—$240 on the section and $300 on the Township.

Union School Section No. 4—$110 on the Section and $165 on the Township.

Roman Catholic Separate School in Peterborough supporters $80.00.

County Schools equivalent $80.34.

Council then adjourned until called by the Reeve

VERY GOOD RECORD IS GIVEN

Cows in Keene and Shearer Cheese Factory Districts Tested Well for July

The Dominion Department of Agriculture, in its dairy branch, has issued a bulletin recently, in which the results of Cow Testing Associations' work are given. In the Keene factory on July 29, 105 cows averaged 787 pounds of milk, with a 3.4 test, and 26.7 lb. fat, or five pounds of fat per cow more than in the Gamebridge test. The best yield of milk was 1,340 pounds. There were several individual yields in this factory of over 1,100 pounds of milk.

A test of the Shearer factory was also made, and it was found that 114 cows averaged 777 pounds of milk, with a 3.2 test and 25.6 pounds of fat.

Regarding the cow in the Culloden Association that gave 1,990 lbs. of milk in the month ending July 6, the owner writes as follows:

"Cow No. 13 is nearly a pure-bred Holstein, a large cow, (well built, with well-shaped udder, is a good feeder; she is a cow you could hardly tell from Calamity Jane 1st, owned by George Rice. She is 15 years old last spring, has not lost a tooth yet, and is easy to milk.

"I always milk her myself, at 5 o'clock, morning and night.

"This cow has not been fed for any special test; she was fed the same as the rest of the herd last winter and spring. She calved on March 2. Her winter ration was corn stalks (not husked) and straw mixed, cut through box, some millet, very little chop, until a month before calving, when was gradually increased chop, with a handful of linseed meal twice a day, turnips once a day.

"We did not turn out to grass until May 20 or 21, continued chop for two weeks on grass. This cow runs on road in day-time, and is on good red clover at night.

"I read a great deal, try to learn all I can; am handicapped by not having a silo; have a good catch this year of Lucerne clover, which will help me considerably. My hay was timothy last winter. This cow had no hay until about a week before calving, as I was rather short of hay."

Cold Settles in Kidneys Pe-ru-na Restores Health

Catarrh of the Kidneys An Insidious Disease.

Many People Have it in Slight Form and Do Not Know It.

Mr. Isaac Rosenzveig, 9 Dumarais street, Montreal, Can., writes:

"About three years ago, I suffered with a bad cold. It settled in the bladder and kidneys, causing serious trouble.

"I tried several advertised remedies, but it was Peruna which finally cured me, and I had taken only a few bottles.

"I feel that it saved me, and it certainly restored me to such perfect health as I had not known in years.

"I have good reason to give your remedy my highest endorsement. It cleaned out the system, leaving me well and strong and feeling better than I have in years."

MR. ISAAC ROSENZVEIG.

CATARRH of the kidneys is a very much neglected disease.

It is not until the disease has a firm hold upon the kidneys that the patient begins to realize that there is some derangement of these organs.

The slight backaches, the feelings of lassitude, and other warning symptoms of kidney disease are overlooked.

They are not serious enough to detain the patient from his regular work.

INTERNAL CATARRH REACHES THE KIDNEYS

Even when he discovers that the kidneys are affected, he does not recognize the difficulty as being caused by catarrh.

Catarrh is sometimes so very gradual in its approach and its earlier symptoms cause such slight discomfort that it is not noticed.

However, when it is once firmly seated in the kidneys it becomes a difficult disease to exterminate.

Indeed, catarrh of the kidneys is more serious than catarrh affecting some of the other organs of the body.

In the kidneys it is liable to terminate in Bright's Disease or diabetes, both of which are recognized as very serious ailments, if not fatal.

The thing to be done, when catarrh of the kidneys is discovered, is to take some internal, systemic catarrh remedy, one that reaches the very source of the catarrh and removes the cause of the difficulty.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna. It reaches catarrh, no matter where it may be located in the body—whether in the more exposed membranes of the nose and throat, or whether in the remotest part of the kidneys.

PE-RU-NA AN INTERNAL CATARRH REMEDY.

That Peruna is at once the safest and most reliable remedy for catarrh of the kidneys is proven by the many testimonials written by those who have experienced its benefits.

The testimonials given here are only specimens of the many testimonials on our records, pertaining to the relief afforded by Peruna in severe cases of kidney trouble.

Kidney Disease of Long Standing.

Mr. Samuel A. Paxton, 1118 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo., member I. O. O. F., and National Annuity Association, writes: "I am a well man today, thanks to Peruna. I was troubled with catarrh and kidney disease of long standing when I first began using Peruna."

ALL RUN DOWN!

Weak---Nervous---Unstrung.

Thousands get run down and become invalids before they realize anything is wrong. By permitting low vitality to develop, the way is paved for fevers, pneumonia and diphtheria. To put off makes it all the harder to get well. The time to repair the system is right now, before the damage gets any worse. The remedy is Ferrozone; it revitalizes, renews, builds up vitality that outlasts old age.

FERROZONE is a genuine invigorator that banishes weakness, and instils surplus force and vigor into every organ of the body. Ferrozone sharpens the appetite, produces rich nutritious blood, and thereby contributes that sense of buoyancy that adds so enormously to one's pleasure and usefulness in life.

For all forms of debility, weakness, lack of blood or nerve tone, sleeplessness, tiredness and exhaustion, there is no medicine so vitalizing and potent as Ferrozone. Even one trial demonstrates its rapidly and certainty of action.

To restore the energy of youth, to get back your vital stamina and reserve force, there is positively no treatment so certain as Ferrozone. You have only to try Ferrozone to know the enormous benefit it invariably brings to all in poor health.

FERROZONE

Miss Dorothy E. Ledue of Chester gives the following convincing evidence of Ferrozone's power:—"My work compels me to rise early in the morning and work ten hours daily as a saleslady. Last Spring I was run down, lost my color, and fell off in weight, I seemed to lack ambition and the life was out of me. A friend recommended Ferrozone, and I took one tablet after meals with wonderful results. Ferrozone brought back my complexion, and has given me new strength and abundance of energy and spirits. I would advise all young ladies to use Ferrozone."

Mrs. H. G. Wilder of Dexter says—"My daughter was not very well last Winter, and lost her strength completely when the Spring came. I gave her Ferrozone, and am glad to say it did wonders. After six boxes were used my daughter was strong, and looked the picture of health."

Gave New Strength

FERROZONE

It makes the weak strong, the sick well, and assures lasting good health.

WARNING—Beware of any substitute for Ferrozone; it alone can cure you. Sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine. only in 50c boxes containing 60 chocolate-coated tablets. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

THE LATEST IN FASHION'S REALM; ITEMS OF INTEREST TO THE LADIES

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Millinery Hints For Midsummer—Ribbons, Ribbons Everywhere.

Tuscan hats continue to reign supreme, but crinoline straw is in great favor, and there is a new make of chip which looks lovely when combined with straw colored point d'esprit. This chip is coarser than the chip of last year, and for that reason it is more effective.

In hats the chief aim is at color contrasts. One sees bright pink and vivid green, green and black, black and white, black and brown, violet and pink, gray and black, and so forth.

A PONGEE COSTUME—5698, 5695.

The brims are often lined with silk or satin in a contrasting shade to that of the straw. As to outline, it is well that the chic effect has been sacrificed in favor of the picturesque.

The quality of ribbons this year is little short of amazing, and their foundations include every conceivable fabric. There are linen ribbons, canvas ribbons, gold and silver tinseled ribbons and, above all, chine ribbons. Still newer is a ribbon that looks like chintz and bears a chintz pattern, but is as soft as a bandanna handkerchief. It is of course only suitable as a trimming for a linen dress or to encircle the crown of a linen hat or to be used as a belt for a wash frock. Under these conditions it has attractions that cannot be denied.

Pongee color trimmed with brown is one of the prettiest combinations of the year and is so youthful in effect that it suits young girls especially well. Here is a costume trimmed with taffeta and silk bands on the coat and bands of the material on the skirt.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE BABY'S RASH.

Hints to Anxious Mothers Who Discover Red Spots.

Nothing strikes more terror to a young mother's soul than an appearance of rash on her baby. Unless the eruption is prickly heat, which even the most inexperienced person is likely to know, it indicates illness, and a physician should be called.

But while waiting for him her mind may be much relieved by knowing something of the different forms rash takes and precisely what they mean. For instance, scarlet fever, that most dreaded of all illnesses, is not to be mistaken for measles by a person versed in the indications of both. In scarlet fever the eruption is bright colored and the spots are so close together that they seem to run in one mass, though each little speck is really clearly defined. It begins on the chest or about the neck and spreads quickly.

Measles show first, to the inexperienced, on the face, but a physician will usually see small spots in the mouth before they appear elsewhere. This particular eruption that develops rapidly from the face to the body is accompanied by swelling and is blotchy.

Rash that is part of chicken pox appears, too, on the face first, as a rule, but its formation is quite different from that seen in measles. In the former it is in little lumps that quickly develop into blisterlike looking things. It does not break out all at once, but appears in rotation in different parts of the body, so that at first one portion may be quite clear of any eruption while another is covered. It disappears by drying into crusts that drop off after a time.

German measles, less serious than the other form and frequently first mistaken for it, may show by a rash before there are any fever symptoms. The eruption is usually much paler than in real measles and may be either tiny or fairly large. It sometimes runs in together, but as a rule remains clearly separate and defined. It lasts a shorter time than in measles and may fade after two days.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

New Bolero Jacket—Old Fashioned Dolmans—French Pique.

The Algerian bolero is made of four embroidered squares about the size of handkerchiefs joined by passementerie. It is caught together on the shoulders and in the front with passementerie ornaments to match and is sometimes covered with braid.

Radium silk is a favorite with the dressmakers this season because it is less thin and perishable than mousseline. With radium skirts silk dolmans are modish and exceedingly pretty for artistic looking women. Little ball fringe edges and tassels are the appropriate trimming for wraps of this description that are neither coats nor capes, but a mixture of both.

One can pay $2.50 per yard for a French pique or get something modest and attractive for 12½ cents. The finer varieties are not made up into jumper dresses like the cheaper weave, but are more often seen in lovely little jacket suits. The cutaway with long sleeves is a stylish model for a white pique. Like most dresses of its kind, it looks best when trimmed with stitched bands and embroidered buttons.

The smart gown pictured is of white silk with figures of violet and is trimmed with bands of plain violet silk, those on the waist being enriched with small motifs of heavy lace applique. There are almost numberless possibilities to be found in this design.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT TO WEAR.

Buttons Match Gown—Irish Crochet Popular For Cloth Coats.

Matching the buttons exactly to the gown is one of the freaks of fashion. In one of the shops there are tiny buttons looking for all the world like turquoises set in little gold rims. At the same shop there are bits of turquoise set in gun metal or silver.

Buttons play a most important part upon coats now and often give the entire tone to an otherwise simple cloth or serge tailor made. A plain white cloth coat and skirt seen recently had a double row of large Irish crochet buttons mounted on round molds, the effect being quite like cut ivory.

A pale pink satin straw hat is charmingly trimmed with masses of leafless azaleas, pink, deeper salmon, sulphur, maize and ivory, tied with a striped ribbon of the neapolitan ice description.

Many hat crowns are composed entirely of flowers or foliage, and it is by no means necessary that the leaves and flowers should be from the same plant. Leaves with shiny surfaces, such as laurel and ivy, are very popular, and violet leaves have supplanted the roses.

The costume pictured is to be carried out in tussore, rajah or heavy pongee silk. The little Eton is one of the newest, made with wide mandarin sleeves that are cut in one with it, and it is as chic as it is comfortable. The skirt is eleven gored, with a plait laid at every seam. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Every Buttonhole of a Shirt

Any Shirt fits better than any ordinary shirt. One reason is the accurate, careful spacing of the buttonholes. Unless they meet each other perfectly—if one were even a little higher or lower than its mate—the bosom would pucker—pull—bind.

Buttonholes on shirts are placed right, are made right, and stay right, even after many trips to the washtub.

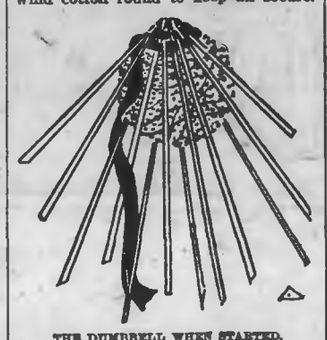
LAVENDER DUMBBELLS.

They Make Charming Trifles For Bazaar Stalls.

Take about a dozen stalks of lavender and tie them together at the base of the flowers with one end of a yard of mauve baby ribbon, shape the flowers into a ball, using extra pieces of flowers to fill up where necessary, and wind cotton round to keep all secure.



THE DUMBBELL WHEN STARTED.

Then bend each stalk down over the ball and thread the ribbon in and out of the stalks until the flowers are completely covered. Now take a dozen more stalks of lavender and make another ball in the same way. When the two balls are finished intermingle their stalks and bind firmly with the two ends of ribbon which should have been left loose and fasten off by tying in a smart bow. These lavender dumbbells will be found to sell splendidly at bazaars and look pretty made in various colors.

ANAEMIA CURED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Bring Back the Glow of Health by Making New Blood

To bud into perfect womanhood the growing girl must carefully guard her health. Unless the blood is kept rich and pure, headaches, backaches and frequent dizzy spells will trouble her. She will always be ailing and may slip into a deadly decline. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a never failing remedy in building up the blood. Just a short time ago the reporter of L'Avenir du Nord had the following cases brought to his notice. In the town of St. Jerome, Que., there is an orphan asylum under the care of those zealous workers—the Grey Nuns. In this home Dr. Williams Pink Pills are constantly used. For some months two of the young girls in the home were afflicted with anaemia. The symptoms in both cases were very much alike. They were both pale, lost all energy and were subject to headaches and dizziness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were taken and soon there was an improvement in their condition. The colour returned to their cheeks; their appetite improved; headaches ceased and soon good health took the place of despondency. What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for these two orphans—Marie Lavoie and Dosina Brooks—they will do for others.

The secret of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing anaemia, lies in their power to make new, rich, red blood. That is why they strike straight at the root of all common ailments like headaches, sideaches and backaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion, anaemia, St. Virus' dance, partial paralysis and the special ailments that afflict almost every woman and growing girl. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HAT POISE.

How the Smartly Gowned Woman Puts on Her Hat.

The smartly gowned woman knows full well the value of hat poise. Does she plant her hat on her head and stick a pin in it carelessly? Not she.

She knows, for the best of reasons, that adjusting the hat is a matter that deserves study and that must be done with care.

That every hat is capable of a poise.

That unless it is poised rightly its effect is spoiled. It is graceful and becoming if it is poised well and most ungraceful if badly poised.

The average woman does not know how to adjust her hat. She does not seem to realize that the graceful appearance of a hat depends entirely on its poise; that unless it is poised right it is dowdy.

That it must be set carefully on the coiffure and the hair must be pulled down in front to show some of its big soft waves.

That the side should be fluffed out a little and the back hair receive attention.

As for the hat, that it requires pinning and that the pins must never be placed in carelessly.

That each pin should show and become a part of the color scheme.

That the hat when pinned on should look light and careless, though it should be that studied carelessness which is real art.—Woman's World.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

When lace curtains begin to give way, baste a large piece of thin white cloth over weak parts before washing. Boil in a pillow slip or thin sack.

When ready to sew on a row of hooks and eyes place the two edges of lining to which they are to be sewed evenly together one on top of the other, then take the tracing wheel and mark places on both edges at once.

In ripping long seams of machine stitching the work can be quickly and easily done if you will simply put the garment under the pressure foot and lower the needle to hold it firmly, then hold it in the left hand a short distance and with a sharp knife inserted in the seam rip it.

If last year's white linen skirt is frayed at the bottom, cut off and sew on a bias fold with the seam on the outside. Turn over and stitch down on the outside of the skirt. This will give the effect of a new foothold. If preferred, add one or two more folds above this.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Bathing Suits For the Summer Girl. Parasols Match Costume.

Many of the most attractive bathing suits have white pongee tights buttoning around the waist. There is a buttoned strap about the knee. The bathing skirt is made of blue, brown, cardinal or tan colored serge or pongee strapped with white, and there is a wide white collar.

A sign in the window of a modish shop reads, "Parasols Made to Match Any Costume." The notice is decidedly opportune, as the newest parasols are made to match the frocks in color and design.

Panama hats trimmed with wings or quills and folds of light blue or black will be popular this summer.

A touch of velvet upon even the flimsiest of frocks is to be seen, and a still newer idea is the introduction of chiffon broadcloth into the trimming of the lingerie gowns.

For girls in their teens the prettiest party gowns are cut with small Dutch or square necks. This childish effect is much better for the young girl than a modified grownup effect.

Handsome buckles are found on many of the newest suits and costumes. It is often possible to find buckles which match the buttons used.

Owing to the popularity of the tan stocking the scarcity of these hose is going to be as distressing this season as the famine in long gloves was last year.

Bordered materials are a fad of the season, and very dainty and fascinating are many of them. The costume pictured is of bordered batiste, but a plain material can be trimmed to produce the same effect.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Green Her "Hoodoo" Hue.

There are charms in great variety that superstitious women carry with them in the firm belief they are indispensable to their success at cards or in other ventures. Now a fashionable modiste in town says many of her customers are equally superstitious about colors. She made a green dress for a woman who liked it greatly. But within a fortnight she was back to the shop with a tale of woe. She said that whenever she had worn it ill luck had come to her or to a friend. The "hoodoo" was so pronounced, indeed, that she gave the gown away. She told the dressmaker never to make her another frock of that color. The unimaginative dressmaker couldn't see how the color made any difference; but, as she wanted to keep the customer, she was wise enough to nod in sympathy.

A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adored by little statesmen and philosophers and divines.—Emerson.

In Warm Weather

Vinol is as delicious as a fresh orange, and as soothing as can be to the weak, irritable stomach. It coaxes back lost appetite, improves digestion and creates strength throughout the whole system. We strongly recommend Vinol to all who are weak and run-down from any cause,—particularly to delicate women and children, old people and for those who have pulmonary troubles. Money back if you try Vinol and are not satisfied.

BUSINESS TRAINING FREE

A life-time opportunity for some young men, some young women with ideas.

Business Systems Commercial School Limited, founded upon practical up-to-date business lines, formed from new scientific methods, to teach business as business is done, basing their instructions upon forms and supplies identical with those now used in the most modern business houses, has an idea regarding advertising.

To work out this idea they want your assistance, and are willing to pay you, yes, to pay you well for it. Is your brain fertile, is it active, is it in good working order? If so "get busy".

We want a good "catch phrase" to use in our advertising, we want the best "catch phrase" obtainable. We have some good ones, but they may not be the best. We want the best, the best is none to good for Business Systems Commercial School, "The Best for Business Training". We now have the best rooms, best equipment, the best teachers, the best plan of work, and will undoubtedly give by far the best courses of training. We also want to do the best advertising, that young people from all parts of the country will know of the special advantages provided for them by this school, "The Essence of Essential Education", "The Pith of Practical Principles".

We are prepared to give to three persons, six months, four months, and two months, respectively of this "best business training" free of any tuition charges. The three persons mentioned will be the first three who send us three best "catch phrases" or should the one selected as the best be sent by three persons, they will rank in order as received, first received will be given first place, second received, second place, and third received, third place. All other contestants who send in the phrase selected as the best and who subsequently enter our school for at least a three month's course, will be given one month as a bonus, free of tuition charges.

The conditions of the competition are easy of fulfillment.

All contestants must be candidates for a business training for at least a portion of the School Year of 1907-1908, or in other words, all persons competing must be elegible for, and purpose taking before June 1908, at least a one month's course in Day or Evening Classes in some Commercial School or Business College.

It costs nothing to try except a little brain exercise, and a few moments time writing to us. Talk it over with your friends, and those who are not competing, get their ideas with your own, remembering that two heads are better than one.

The shorter the phrase the better, as long as one or more good ideas are conveyed.

All answers must reach us not later than September 30th. If at a distance mail in time.

In order that you may the better know something of the special advantages of this school, and thus get ideas to use in the forming of the phrase, we will be pleased to mail all contestants upon request, a Booklet descriptive of our school and it's courses of study. Fall Term begins Tuesday, Sept. 3rd. Mention this paper when writing.

Lakefield Methodist Young People Conduct Pleasant and Successful Trip to Juniper Island

LATE LAKEFIELD NEWS

Examiner Special.

Lakefield, August 28. — A very enjoyable lawn social was held on the grounds of Mr. Bailey, on Friday last under the auspices of the choir of the Presbyterian church. The evening being exceptionally fine, there was a large number present. The programme, which was much appreciated, was supplied by the Citizens Band.

Mr. and Mrs. Atwood and family, returned home on Thursday last, after spending a very enjoyable camp at "Fairhaven," Stony Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hayward returned to Lakefield last week, after a very pleasant tour through the Georgian Bay districts.

Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse spent Monday and Tuesday of this week at Apsley.

Master Harry Atwood, who has been spending the last couple of weeks, with his grandparents, at Fairhaven, returned home on Thursday last.

Misses Appleby and Sutherland, of Oakville, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Langley.

Miss Alice Hunter is spending a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Graham at Viamede.

Mr. J. W. Ridpath and family, who have been spending the past fortnight at Sandy Point, returned home on Monday.

Miss Gladys Lewis of Toronto, and Miss Louise Bell of Apsley are in the village, the guests of Miss Blomfield.

Messrs. W. H. Casement and R. P. Davidson, who spent a few days last week at Jack's Lake, returned home on Saturday. They report the fishing excellent in that vicinity.

Miss Atwood, who spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Lingwood, at Kushagua, returned home on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, and little son, Donald, left on Monday for a week's camp at Sandy Point.

Miss Lily Montgomery is spending a few days this week at South Beach.

Miss Ray spent Sunday and Monday at Raybourne, Stony Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart passed through ther village on Saturday last on their way to Stony Lake, where they will spend a fortnight with Mrs. Stuart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lillicrap, at Pinchurst, before leaving for their home in Calgary.

A grand moonlight excursion was given by the Epworth League of the Methodist church on Monday evening to Juniper Island per steamer Stoney Lake. Notwithstanding the coolness of the atmosphere it was largely attended and was voted by all a decided success.

Miss Marion Lyall, who has been spending a few weeks with Mr and Mrs. Dela Fosse, returned to Toronto on Monday last.

The subscribers of the Bell Telephone Company, received a visit from Mr. Fred Reid of Peterborough, last week, who was inspecting the local system.

Mr. Bullis, having secured a position in Toronto, has severed his connection with the Cavendish Lumber Co., with whom he has been acting as chief millwright. His wife and family will accompany him to the Queen City.

The annual tea and entertainment at Hall's Glen, in aid of St. George's church, took place on Wednesday last, and as in the past the event was largely participated in by both the residents of Lakefield and campers. Its success this year was enhanced by the neat uniforms and well rendered music of the Citizens' Band.

Mrs. Simpson and her daughters, Misses Kate and Florence Simpson, returned home on Thursday last, after spending a fortnight at Stony Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Lingwood, who have been spending the summer at Stony Lake, arrived in the village on Wednesday where they are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Atwood.

OMEMEE PUPILS MADE FINE SHOWING

In the Recent Examinations—Interesting Items From the Village

Examiner Special.

Omemee, Aug. 27.—We feel rejoiced and honoured that Charles Coonrane, a pupil of the Omemee High School, has captured the seventh Ed. Blake Scholarship in general proficiency, on his first trial.

The Omemee Cricket Club would like a friendly game with some Peterborough eleven before the season closes.

Our sports are preparing for duck-shooting on Pigeon River, quite a force going, sufficient to hold the "fort."

We expect to have the Government dredge early in September to clear our river. Grain, stock, etc., may be shipped this autumn via the Trent Valley Canal to the Peterborough market.

Mr. T C Ivory has purchased the Bradburn Hall and adjacent property, and will improve the hall with electric lights, etc.

Our electric lights on the streets will be ready shortly.

The Methodist church has been undergoing repairs. The official opening of the new pipe organ will take place September 15 with a grand recital. Mr. Blight of Toronto, the celebrated English organist, will contribute.

We have had Mr. Arnold, of Toronto for the last three years, filling Rev. Mr. Peckover's pulpits at Mount Pleasant, Lakevale and Omemee.

The show bills for Peterborough's fall fair show up well.

Omemee High School has the honour of passing four candidates out of 11 for second-class teachers' certificates, one with honours, and four out of four for matriculation, and one district certificate.

Irish Tales Of Irishmen's Wit From The Lakes Of Killarney

Mr. Robert Fair Tells Interesting Stories of the Guides and Pony Men in the Recent Journey Through Those Historic Regions of the Emerald Isle.

KATE KEARNEY'S COTTAGE

Irishman Tells of the Haunted House and the Height of the Mountains—The Gap of Dunloe and Its Place in History—Goats' Milk and Mountain Dew.

Irish wit, the accomplishment of almost every true bred Irishman, is, possibly, never appreciated to the fullest extent of its deserts unless both the relator and the listener of the tale stand upon the soil of the Emerald Isle. The beauty of Ireland, too, is a marvel to the person who, for the first time, wends his way among the various picturesque spots, and, particularly, to the one who threads the mazes of the beautiful waters of world wide fame—the Lakes of Killarney.

Mr. Robert Fair, who, in company with Mr. John C. Kells, of Millbrook village, recently spent considerable time in the lands across the sea, has many interesting tales of the Irish wit and Irish lore to tell, which came under his notice during his journeys through the picturesque lakes of Killarney. On being approached by an Examiner representative last night for some of his experiences in that historic spot, Mr. Fair, at first reluctantly, told, in his usual affable manner, many incidents of his travels, which are peculiarly interesting, especially to those who claim drops of Irish blood in their veins.

The Lakes of Killarney, and the Gap of Dunloe are located, said Mr. Fair, about twelve miles from Killarney town. They are reached by coach and on the occasion of their visit there, Mr. Kells and Mr. Fair were fortunate enough to obtain a portion of the seat of the driver, who happened to be a garrulous personage, endowed with an unusual supply of Irish wit. They were therefore doubly fortunate in being able to view the scenery to the best advantage, and to listen to the originalities of the coachman.

The Haunted House

As the vehicle approached the ruins of an old residence which, to all appearances, was once a pretentious building, the driver addressed the occupants in a rich voice of Irish brogue which, unfortunately, cannot well be reproduced here, somewhat as follows, pointing to the ruins:

"Ladies and gentlemen, the first scene I want to show you is the haunted house. Sir Joffrey Lynch was once the factor of an estate there for a rich landlord, and he succeeded in evicting the tenants from him. After all had been evicted, he lost his job for want of others, and went out to America, where he entered politics. He returned home in a few years a rich man, and bought the land from the landlord here. As time went on he became ill and died. The story goes that when he went above to gain admittance, he was asked his name. "I'm Sir Jeffrey Lynch from County Kerry," he said. "Oh, your the man who evicted all the tenants at Killarney, so you can't get in here," was the answer. He next went down to the "divil" and asked of him admittance, he was asked his name. "I'm in here," the devil said when he found who the man was. So Sir Geoffrey had to come back to earth again, and his shade has dwelt by day in the mountains, but at midnight haunts the old house."

After concluding the story of the haunted house, there was another foundation for a tale. "Ladies and gentlemen, we will now soon be at the last place where the tenants were evicted. Poor creatures, it was done because they would not keep their windows clean"—but when the coach drew alongside the old house it was discovered, to the delight of the passengers, that there was not a single window in the building.

Close Figuring

Next the mountains of the Lakes of Killarney came in sight — Toro, Toro, Eagle and Purple, in a row.

"Ladies and gentlemen, the first of these is Toro, a mountain 3789 feet, 9 3-4 inches high. There is a lake up in the mountain that has no bottom. Once upon a time an Englishman and his wife went up to the lake, and the husband thought he would test the truth of the bottomless lake, so he took off his clothes, and jumped in. He never came up, and his wife went to the town to obtain mourning clothes. But he came out at Australia and sent up word for his clothes. That has since been known as the shortest route to Australia!"

Kate Kearney's Home

At the entrance of the Gap of Dunloe, is the historic cottage of Kate Kearney, but the original herself has long since entered the great "valley of rest." Her characteristic charms however are the heritage of her descendants, and often the little song is yet sung there—

From the glance of whose eye,
Shun danger, and fly,
For fatal's the glance of Kate Kearney.

At the Gap the driver politely informs the tourists that there is a refreshment place there, so all dismount, and meet what is known as the "Pony Men," who are the guides of the ponies and their riders through the mountains. For these 5s. and 6d. are paid, and, in addition tips, which are measured by the wit and interesting tales of the pony men. Mr. Fair and Mr. Kells were provided with two, Michael Callahan and Dennis McGarrity, by name, who were particularly attractive and interesting and whose pictures appear in the accompany cut with the Canadians.

Mr. Fair told an interesting story of the manner in which the forbidden stimulants were given to tourists. The beverages were sometimes quoted as "Goats' milk," and "mountain dew."

Ireland Superior

The above are but a few of the many tales and descriptions which Mr. Fair has recollection of and, doubtless, if all were gathered together, an attractive story would result of picturesque Ireland, "for," said he, "while away I saw a great many attractive things in Scotland; I visited in beautiful England, and in artistic Paris, but none of them could in any way compare with the pleasures of going through the Gap of Dunloe and the Lakes of Killarney."

The Doctor's First Question

Almost the first question a doctor puts to his patient is in reference to the action of the bowels. By keeping the bowels regular you avoid the serious derangements of the liver and kidneys and can defy colds and contagious diseases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ensure prompt movements of the bowels, and by their action on the liver thoroughly cure constipation.

Messrs. John C. Kerr, of Millbrook, and Robert Fair, City, with their pony men in the Gap of Dunloe, Killarney District, Ireland

A MILE A MINUTE PER GRAND TRUNK; THERE IS LIFE IN THE OLD LINE YET

Twenty-seven miles in twenty-eight minutes, is "going some," on a Canadian railway, but this is the record the Grand Trunk flyer made between Lindsay and Peterborough the other evening. A local gentleman coming from Owen Sound, who kept the time between the two stations, states that it was the fastest ride he ever got in his life.

After leaving the northern town only 28 minutes elapsed until the flyer drew into the Grand Trunk station here, and at that it stopped at Omemee, and slowed down at a bridge on the way. Practically, therefore, the iron horse moved its tail along at the rate of a mile a minute.

JOHN R. DUNDAS IS ACCUSED OF FORGING THE NAME OF ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON

In Police Court This Morning—Cheque on Bank of Ottawa Cashed by Coleman Brothers For $15—Case Stands Over.

CLAIMED TO WORK IN STORE

Accused of forging the name of "W. J. Johnston" to a cheque drawn on the account of that gentleman at the Bank of Ottawa for $15, John R. Dundas now occupies a cell at the police station. This morning he appeared before Magistrate Dumble and was alone in the prisoners' box. He was charged with having, on the 10th day of August, forged a cheque for $15 on the Bank of Ottawa payable to himself, for work done in the Crossman building, with intent to defraud and did thereby, contrary to the Criminal Code, signing the name of (Ald.) W. J. Johnston.

Asked by the magistrate how he should elect, Dundas stated his lawyer had not yet arrived and that he would like to have the case remain over for a few days, to which the magistrate consented.

"Can I get bail, your Worship?" he asked.

"Yes," was the reply, and bail was fixed at three sureties, one of $500 by himself and two of $250 each.

Got no Bail

The prisoner sent out messages to a couple of acquaintances but no bail this morning could be obtained for him. The case was let stand over until Wednesday morning, when he will again appear on the above charge.

The cheque which he is accused of forging, he afterwards took to the Coleman Bros'. store, where he received the cash. Mr. Coleman took it to the Bank of Ottawa but his suspicions were aroused and on presenting to Mr. Johnston, the latter knew nothing of it. Mr. Johnston stated this morning to the Examiner that Dundas never worked for him in his life. It also is stated that Mr. Coleman gave the prisoner an opportunity to pay up, but that he kept putting it off so the information was laid against him.

MILITARY FUNERAL TO-MORROW

Late Robt. Nicholls Will be Buried Under Military Honours

To-morrow afternoon a military funeral will be held in the city, when the remains of the late Robert Nicholls, a driver in the 24th Battery, will be laid to rest in the Little Lake Cemetery. The officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the battery will parade at the East City drill hall for the purpose of attending the funeral, and the hall will be open this afternoon and this evening to allow those who wish to make arrangements for their uniforms.

Lt.-Col. Miller wishes all the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 57th who can, to attend the funeral, and they are asked to parade at the Murray street Armouries at 2 o'clock.

In the absence of the 57th Band, the Salvation Army Band will officiate at the funeral.

Charlesworth Meakin, a baritone well known on Broadway and last seen in New York in "The Belle of Mayfair," has been engaged for the role of St. Brioche in Franz Lehar's European success, "The Merry Widow." Mr. Meakin studied music in London under Alberto Randegger and in Paris under William Haslam. His voice is clear and powerful and he is an actor of merit.

Miss Belle Desmond, a character actress, who was formerly connected with "The Yankee Consul" and was Flora Zabelle's understudy in "Easy Dawson," has been engaged for his New York production of "A Yankee Tourist" at the Astor Theatre, Aug. 12.

SENATOR COX AND ALD. MORROW ON A TRIP TO G. T. P. TERMINAL CITY

This morning Hon. Senator Cox, accompanied by Ald. W. G. Morrow left on an extended trip to the Pacific coast. While the trip is partially one for pleasure and a holiday for the Senator, it is probable that it will not be without its business significance. While they are away Mr. Cox and Ald. Morrow will pay a visit to Prince Rupert, the terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, with which Senator Cox is closely associated. Their visit to this town will doubtless not be without its significance, and it will probably mean that Mr. Cox will interest himself materially in the new city on the Pacific slope, a city which many affect to believe will be the model city in the Dominion.

The result of their trip to the west will be awaited with interest not only here, but throughout Canada.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. J. J. TURNER, SR. OCCURRED TO-DAY

Was Found in Dying Condition by Young Girl This Morning—Death Due to Heart Failure.

WAS IN GOOD HEALTH

Had Lived in Peterborough Many Years—Was Noted for Her Quiet Beneficence.

Mrs. J. J. Turner, Sr., died very suddenly this morning about 10.30. This sintelligence will be received in the city with a shock. The deceased lady arose this morning in her usual health, and when her husband left for the office at 6.50, was apparently feeling exceedingly well. In fact, during the last few days she had been in particularly good health, though yesterday she made the remark to her husband that she believed that she was not going to live long, her state of health, to all appearances, however, giving no ground for that belief.

A young woman who had been in the habit of coming to the house to work, arrived about 9.40, and was horrified to find, on entering the house, Mr. Turner lying on the floor unconscious.

She immediately telephoned to Mr. Turner, and he was at the house in a few minutes, and word was sent for a physician. Dr. Halliday, the family doctor, could not be secured, and Dr. Marshall was called in. When he arrived Mrs. Turner was still alive but she passed away at 10.30, without regaining consciousness, death being due to heart failure.

The deceased lady, whose maiden name was Jennie Thomlinson, was born in Plymouth, Eng., and was a daughter of the late Richard Thomlinson, Esq., and was 51 years of age. She came to Canada 37 years ago as Mr. Turner's bride, and had, of course, lived in this country ever since, the greater portion of that time in Peterborough.

Eight children were born to the marriage, but four of these have predeceased Mrs. Turner, their names being Henrietta Emma, Jennie, Alice Maude and Sydney Weaver. The four members living are John, Reginald, Achiles, and Webber.

The funeral will be private, and arrangements have not yet been made on account of the absence from the city of the two sons, John and Reginald. She will be buried, however, in Port Hope, at the family plot.

The late Mrs. Turner's death will be regretted sincerely and with good cause by a great many poor persons in the city, to whom she proved herself a good friend. Many a ton of coal and cord of wood found their way to the coal-bin or yard of poor families in a result of the beneficence of the lady whose demise is here recorded. She was a member of St. Luke's church, and the rector gives his testimony that he found her at all times ready to give liberally to all causes of charity. The rector of that church, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, will conduct the funeral services.

WILL OBSERVE LABOUR DAY

Sermons in St. John's Church To-morrow Will be Appropriate to That Day —Rector Returns

Rev. Canon Davidson, rural dean, has returned from Buckhorn, whither he went on deanery business. Labour Day will be observed at St. John's on Sept. 1st. The evening service will be in harmony with Labour Day. There will be special hymns and prayers and the rector's address will be on the subject. "Reason, Religion and Righteousness in Connection With the World's Work."

St. John's Sunday School sessions will resume at 3 o'clock on Sunday.

MONDAY, LABOUR DAY; A PUBLIC HOLIDAY

Monday will be a holiday. Throughout Canada it is perhaps the most generally observed holiday of the year with the possible exception of Christmas. On Labour day labour of all kinds is given a rest. In view of this fact there will be no issue of the Examiner after to-day until Tuesday. If you have any holiday visitors or if you are yourself going away for a few days drop a line to the Examiner. We are interested in your movements.

A MINNESOTA MAN WANTS WIFE

And Adds to His Eccentricity by Advertising For a Lindsay Girl

HE SAYS HE'S WELL-TO-DO

Funny what notions people take. Here's a man who actually thinks he wants a Lindsay girl for a wife. He can't keep the thing to himself, either, but puts an advertisement in the paper, asking someone to take pity on his lonely condition and marry him. The Lindsay Post is a party to the scheme, and yesterday published the following letter, and adds that it has the full address of the writer, and offers to forward letters (unopened) to the bachelor, if they are addressed "J. A. H.," and sent care of the Lindsay Post. The letter in which the man lays his heart bare is as follows:

Leamora, Minn., Aug. 26, 1907.

Dear Sir,—I was at one time a resident of your county, and left there about 18 years ago. Since that time I have become a farmer in this State, and pretty well-to-do, and got everything I need except a wife. I want to put an advertisement in your paper to that effect. I am 41 years old, and I want a girl or widow between the ages of 25 and 35 years. I used to be well-known around Emily.

I will remit your fee as soon as I hear from you. Send me a copy of the paper when you publish this advertisement.

Address "J. A. H.," care The Post. All letters will be forwarded, unopened to the advertiser.

OPEN AIR MEETING WAS HELD

Ladies' Aid Society of the Mark Street Methodist Church Met in Park

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Mark St. Methodist Church held an open air meeting at Jackson Park on Thursday afternoon and a large attendance enjoyed the session held under such unusual circumstances. After the meeting refreshments were served and a picnic was held which proved a very enjoyable affair.

MARKSMEN BACK FROM ROCKCLIFFE

The Local Sharpshooters Have Returned From Big Meet

Some of the local marksmen who have been taking part in the Dominion Rifle Association's matches at Rockcliffe Ranges, Ottawa, returned to the city last night and others are expected to-day. They report a most successful and enjoyable meeting, with some of the best shooting ever seen in Canada before. They speak favourably of the work of the Australian and British teams. Among the local contingent were Col. Sergt. W. H. Moore, Staff Sergt. Bartlett, Corp. J. Gibson, Ptes. Geo. Fitzgerald and H. Watson.

NINE FOOT WATERWAY FROM LAKE ONTARIO TO PETERBOROUGH SOO

New Locks Likely to be Constructed Here, With Nine Foot Draught and Capacity for 150 Foot Boats.

NEW HASTINGS LOCK

Extensive Improvements May be Secured—Means a Good Deal for Peterborough.

A nine foot navigation in the Otonabee River and an enlargement of the locks at Peterborough and at Hastings to accomodate vessels drawing nine feet and 150 feet long is a probability of the near future.

The new sections of the canal now under contract, and for which the tenders are about to be called will all be built on a nine foot basis, and with these sections completed, it will only be necessary to replace the locks at Hastings and at Peterborough with larger ones and dredge the river, to give the canal a depth of nine feet from Lake Ontario to Peterborough.

It was intimated to the Examiner to-day that if the citizens of Peterborough took the matter up and represented the situation to the Government there was a probability that it would be favourably considered, and that the enlargement of the locks and the deepening of the rivers would be dealt with.

Peterborough is recognized as the most important city on the whole line of the canal, and it is necessary to point out that the deepening of the canal and the enlargement of its scope to accommodate vessels drawing nine feet of water and 150 feet long will very materially increase the usefulness of the canal, as far as Peterborough is concerned.

The action of the Government letting the first contract for over half a million dollars for construction work on the southern outlet is an indication of the determination to push the work of completion in a business like manner, and if Peterborough can secure, as the Examiner is led to believe it can, the deepening of the waterway to this city, the canal will place this city in a peculiarly advantageous position, from the standpoint of transportation.

An Appreciation Of Kindnesses

The Sisters of St. Joseph, in charge of the hospital by that name have proved themselves veritable ministering angels, Several weeks ago a gentleman occupying a good position in New York, came to Peterborough, to visit friends and to recuperate from an illness. He became worse, however, and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he died this week, after several weeks of suffering. His wife, who is herself a trained nurse, was with him the greater part of the time, but of course the hospital nurses were in charge of the patient, and their care and attention won for them the gratitude of the wife of the unfortunate man. She gave it as her belief that if St. Joseph's hospital represented the general type of Canadian institutions of this kind they were far ahead of similar institutions in the United States.

Mr. Joseph O'Keefe was the unfortunate man whose life was prematurely cut off.

The Examiner refers to Mrs. O'Keefe's appreciation of the kindness shown her and her late husband by those in charge of the institution because it believes that praise given during one's lifetime is better than columns of eulogy given after one is dead.

Two City Schools Will Not Open Next Tuesday

Queen Alexandra and King Edward Schools Not Completed for a Few Days—To Open at End of Week.

OTHER SCHOOLS TO OPEN

Mr. D. Walker, Public School Inspector for the city, has issued the following statement in connection with the opening of the city's schools:

On Tuesday the North Ward School will not be ready for occupation, owing to the changes which are being made in the heating arrangements of the old portion of the building.

The King Edward School also cannot be opened, owing to the fact that the seats have just arrived, but are not yet set up.

The opening of both these buildings will take place about the end of this week—the date will be announced later.

All the other schools, as well as the Collegiate Institute, will open at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, September, 3. The pupils in the south end of the city will for the present attend the South Central School, from which they will be sent to the Kind Edward when it is ready for occupation. The boundary line between these two schools will be fixed later.

Of the pupils who formerly attended the George Street School, those residing south of Edinburgh street will attend the Central School. The others will be accommodated at the North Ward.

All High School pupils will assemble as usual at the Collegiate Institute building, as no other arrangements have as yet been agreed upon.

The following will constitute the staff of the King Edward School:—Principal, Mr. Dunlop; Assistants, Misses Stubbs, Barnes, Pratt and Martin. Kindergarten Directress, Miss Cameron.

The staffs in the other schools in the city will be the same as before the vacation.

Last Snmmer Holiday; How To Spend The Day

Labour Day Will be Celebrated on Monday— Excursions Provided For Those Who Would Leave the City.

HAPPENINGS AT HOME

Labour Day, the last holiday of the summer season, will be celebrated on Monday. So far as Peterborough is concerned it will be celebrated quietly. The majority of persons who leave the city will, doubtless go to Toronto to spend the day. The railways' special rates commence to-day and continue until Tuesday for return. The Toronto exhibition will be the attraction for the greater number of persons who leave the city, and in order to get an early start on the holiday many left the city to-day, the morning trains being crowded.

For those who are not travelling by railway, but who have an inclination to get out of the city for a day, there are opportunities afforded. Stony Lake will have its last rush of the season this afternoon, and many will go to spend a few days there before the close of the summer season.

The excursion to Idyl Wild, under the auspices of Court Chemong, I. O. F., by the steamer Otonabee will doubtless be well patronized. The steamer will leave the Wolfe street wharf, and will call at the Street Railway wharf, and will also stop at Crawford's Grove to take on those who wish to take the trip in from that point. An orchestra will be on board to provide music for the party. The steamer Monarch will also run a special trip to Rice Lake for the holiday, the return fare for which will be 50 cents.

The only event in the city will be the matinee, under the auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club, at the Driving Park. A number of good races are on the card, and a good half day's sport is assured.

Doubtless the traffic to Jackson Park on the Radial Railway will be heavy on Monday, and many persons will take advantage of the last summer season holiday to spend half a day there. The railway company will give a special service.

For the sportsman there will be duck shooting, the season for which opens on Monday, in reality, as no to-morrow game is not allowed to be shot. A number of local hunters have planned to spend the holiday in the haunts of the duck.

LABOUR DAY

Monday is Labour Day, declared a statutory holiday by special Parliamentary enactment. During the eighteen years of Conservative rule—from 1878 to 1896—the Act constituting Labour Day was the only legislation enacted in the direct interests of labour. Labour, therefore, owes its holding to a Conservative Government. While this is the case, it is not unmeet to place the reminder that the Liberal Government at present in power, in its ten years of office, has not only enacted a large volume of legislation directly and specifically in the interests of labour, but its administration has been accompanied by conditions of prosperity and activity which have prosperity and activity which has resulted in a tremendous betterment of the condition of the labouring classes. Employment has been abundant for years, and wages have steadily advanced, till now, when it is probable that in no other county in the world do the labouring classes receive a scale of wages which will buy them more than the wages now paid working men of all classes in Canada. Labour this year in Peterborough has been plentifully and profitably employed, and the working men of this city have well earned the holiday which is provided for them on Monday, which the Examiner wishes they may abundantly enjoy, without hindrance from weather or other conditions, and unmarred by accident.

A NOBLE GIFT

Scientific research and investigation have demonstrated that consumption, the popular name for tuberculosis, is curable, if taken in the earliest stages of the attack. To this end, consumption sanitoria are to be regarded with the greatest favour, for it is through these media of the curative efforts they are adapted to employ, that cure is made possible. The importance of this condition can be more adequately appraised when one reflects upon the showing of the Government reports. They show a startling result. It is stated that 79,634 persons in Ontario have died from consumption since 1870, or 2,340 per year for thirty-four years. When it is considered that all these valuable lives might have been saved had curative measures been adopted in time, it is impossible to conceive how any one can be indifferent to the claims of enterprises intended to bring within reach of the poor the blessing of healing, which their own means and homes cannot adequately, or at all, supply. The prominence which consumption has received in professional discussion and in the press has developed an unreasoning, if not warranted, dread of the contagious character of the disease. In consequence, the consumptive has come to be avoided like a pestilence, and his life made additionally miserable.

This condition justifies the noble character of the King Edward Sanitorium for Consumptives, formally opened by his Excellency Lord Grey on Wednesday last, of which the Mulholland Cottage, presented by a former Peterborough citizen, Mr. R. Mulholland, is one of the conspicuous features. Mr. Mulholland's generosity an daltruistic spirit are responsible for untold blessings for consumptives, who will, in the future, be cared for in the last days of their death sentence from tuberculosis, through his munificent generosity. It is to be devoted to the shleter of advanced cases—advanced beyond the hope of cure—whose sufferings are depicted in the descriptive article published on the first page of to-day's issue. When we consider the terrible and protracted sufferings of the consumptive in the last stages of his dreadful disease, even when his malady is mitigated by the best of care, the noble character of the gift of Mr. Mulholland can be more justly appreciated.

WHERE THE EVIL BEGINS

There seems to be justification for the view of the pessimist, who declares the world is growing worse. We see from day to day a more general breaking away, especially upon the part of the rising generation, from the elementary restraints of religion and morality. This, here at home. In France, the spirit of unbelief and free thought, leads to assaults on the visible element of religion, the clergy, and in Italy the popular spirit of revolt against religion has become intense and violent, so much so that a recent number of Paris "l'Univers" contains a despatch, stating that the acts of violence against the clergy continue, and that owing to these circumstances, the Pope decided not to hold the reception of the Sacred College on the occasion of the anniversary of his enthronement. The spirit of revolt against moral restraint and religious obligations among excitable Latin nations, may take these violent forms, but in this country, and in this very city, they are in other forms deplorably in evidence. We notice among, especially, the new on-coming crop of citizens, so to speak, all the marks of a spirit which, in favouring environments, develops into anarchy. There is among the young an almost entire lack of reverence for authority, and elder age. Children whose show these characteristics, unless checked, can not be expected to grow into religious manhood or womanhood, for they lack the basic principle of religion, another name for applied reverence. A child who will not reverence his parents, cannot be expected to reverence the Almighty Father. We are every day shocked at the prevalence of youthful depravity. From lack of reverence for parents, and elders, to lack of respect for law, human and divine, is a short step. To what is this condition attributable, and who is responsible? No doubt a primary cause is lack of home training of the proper, and in some cases, of any kind. The fact is that there is little home life left. The world is so full of rush, and the insane pursuit of excitement, and, so-called, pleasure, that if the mother and father are not abroad picnicing or gossiping, or pleasure seeking, the children are abroad in pursuit of similar wills-o'-the-wisp. There is, therefore, no place for home life, and the wholesome influences and training it should exert and afford. Then, in our schools, is there any systematic effort to counteract the vicious results of lack of home training by inculcating reverence for divine and human authority, and respect for God, and the elders, of school children? There does not seem to be any effort to teach even good manners, which are, in themselves, a form of religion, because they involve self sacrifice, and subordinating self to the pleasure and happiness of others. Some will say that the responsibility should be thrown back upon the Church; but the Church cannot directly reach the children, in some cases, even one day in the week, and cannot be expected to counteract the adverse influence of seven days of godless home life, and five days a week of school life, unimproved by moral lessons of any important continuity or system. A respectable and thoroughly well-behaved and good-mannered boy or girl is as rare in this rapid age as a man or woman uncontaminated with the spirit of pleasure, excitement seeking, or the obsession of material gain, or social frivolity. The correction of these conditions, and the more evil conditions to which they lead, seems to be an insolvable problem, the pons asinoum of social and religious protagonists. In lieu of a human remedy being found, a divine remedy will, sooner or later, take the form of national revolution, and disruption, or some similar corrective scourge, such as the history of the past tells of so frequently and so luridly.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. D. Derbyshire, M.P. for Brockville, has resigned his seat in favour of Hon. Geo. P. Graham. This means that Dan. thinks Geordie "just the cheese."

Hon. George P. Graham, as a newspaper man, will find it hard to live up to his new income of $8,000 a year. The Recorder will have a new office towel, sure.

"The Prince of Pilsen," another Savage success of which the pubic never seem to tire, has been produced again and is now on tour.

"Woodland," which was written by Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders, will be revived this season and the cast is now being engaged.

Among the latter productions which Mr. Savage contemplates are "Prince Hugo's Honeymoon," a fantastic operetta by Oscar Strauss; "Portia Perkins—Printer," a comedy by Edith Ellis Baker; two new musical works and a new comedy, all of which are now in course of preparation. In addition to this Mr. Savage purposes to revive "The Sho-Gun," by George Ade and Gustav Luders.

C. M. B. A. REPORTS PROGRESS

At Meeting Held in Montreal This Week The Reports Presented Were Indicative of Healthy Condition

SOME FIGURES ARE GIVEN

Montreal, Aug. 29.—The fourteenth convention of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association of Canada was held here this week.

Grand Secretary J. J. Behan presented his report for the three years ending June 30th, 1907, stating that there are at present 414 active branches and 23,000 members. Since the last convention, 3 years ago, sixty-two new branches have been organized and over 5,000 new members initiated. The association has a reserve fund of $239,515.91. Since the last convention there has been received by the Grand Secretary from branches $1,106,203.55. During the same period there was paid out to beneficiaries of deceased members $944,047.84. The total amount paid to beneficiaries since the institution of the association was $3,-27.39.

A sick benefit fund was established one year ago, and has proven to be an important factor of the association's work. After paying all claims there is a surplus in this fund of $1,220.10.

Some interesting information is given concerning the progress made by this Order during the last few years. The following table shows the growth in membership since 1880:—

1880	220
1883	560
1884	1,275
1886	1,909
1888	3,120
1890	5,650

1904	18,159
1905	19,240
1906	21,089
	22,548

Equally as remarkable is the increase in the funds of the Order, as the following statement of the accrued reserve fund indicates:—

1887	$988.07

INDIAN GIRLS ARE BEING SOLD

Slave Trade Being Carried On in British Columbia—One Brought $1,000 and the Other $700

TO HAVE AN INVESTIGATION

Examiner Special.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 30—The selling of two pretty Indican girls, neither of whom was 14 years of age, to the highest bidder in open market was the chief feature of the Indian potlach last week at Alert Bay. According to the instructions of Indian Agent Halliday, the Indians must break camp and return to their own villages to-day.

The girls were openly sold by their male friends to other Indians for wives. One was bought for $1000 cash and the other girl named Rose was sold for 1,400 blankets, supposed to be worth $700. Another girls named Rebecca, has been sold at Alert Bay three times. She is not yet 20 years of age and has been the mother of five children, all of whom died in infancy.

In the deals made last week the girls were not consulted in any way. They simply went for the highest price and one of the girls even voluntarily looked on at the time of the sale, not knowing she was to be the victim of the deal. The usual selling of blankets and potlaching of cash went on at this feast.

While vague reports of the selling of girls have from time to time come from the north, this is the first case where the police are fully aware of all the facts. A full investigation is to be made and it is altogether probable wholesale arrests will follow. Alert Bay is ten hours run by steamer from Vancouver.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide

Did you ever see anyone trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did, what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by killing the germs which cause it, with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Growers.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit Mich. Two sizes — 50c and $1. McDermid & Jury, Special Agents.

Remarkable Change In A Visitor To Ste. Annes

With Paralysis In His Leg He Goes to Ste, Anne De Beaupre ---Tells His Story to Newspaper Man In Montreal

There arrived at Place Viger station this morning by the C. P. R. train from Quebec, a man who according to his own positive statement, has experienced about the most remarkable physical and mental transformation that has fallen to the lot of man since the day of miracles.

In the large pilgrimage for Ste. Anne de Beaupre, organized by Father Lavigne from the district of Albany in New York state, which passed through Montreal on the last day of July, part of it being handed over by the Deleware & Hudson, in whose territory the pilgrims assembled, to the C. P. R., and part to the G.T.R. was Mr. David Gunn, contractor of Cohoes, an important industrial centre on the Mohawk River, who at the time was a cripple. He was suffering from a combination of ailments—paralysis of one of the lower limbs, rheumatic pains over the body, chronic dyspepsia and sleeplessness. He was so helpless that he had to be practically carried by his friends from the train.

To-day he is healthy and vigorous—full of vitality and nervous energy. The only reason he did not walk from Place Viger to Bonaventure station, whence he took the Delaware & Hudson train for the south this afternoon, was that he had to get a cab to transport his baggage and he said he might as well ride over with it. The cure was effected in a manner which he himself regards as miraculous, although the Redemptorist Father under whose ministrations it occurred, does not claim for it that it is a direct miracle—rather that it is divine healing the result of faith.

In an interview with a Herald representative at Bonaventure station, Mr. Gunn, who is a man of rather slender build, of medium height, apparently about fifty years of age, with greyish pointed beard, and grey blue eyes, said, "My troubles began three years ago, with the paralysis of my right leg and rheumatic pains in the body, the result, I believe of the rather close superintendence of building work I had in hand during a particularly cold autumn. I secured the best medical and surgical treatment, going so far as to have an eminent specialist from New York. I spent nearly a year at Saratoga Springs, which have been renowned for their curative properties since the days of the Five Nations Indians, and other springs, without finding any relief. As my condition seemed to become more and more hopeless, I abandoned myself practically to despair, and became dyspeptic, gloomy and morose.

"I was advised to try Ste. Anne de Beaupre, and it seemed the last gleam of hope for they told me of some wonderful cures that had been effected there. I accompanied Father Lavigne's pilgrimage, and remained behind after the others had left, making my home at the Columbia House, attending some of the services at the Basilica and sometimes remaining after the service was over in the vicinity of the statue of Ste. Anne, in front of the altar.

"I tried very hard, as the Redemptorist Father frequently advised me, to believe that I would be cured, and one afternoon while I sat in the pew it seemed to me as if the halo around the head of the stue acquired an unwonted brilliancy. I may have been dreaming or half awake—I cannot say which—but the unwonted sight filled me with a kind of exaltation, and from that time forward I felt a marked improvement in my condition, acquiring the use of my limb, and soon I began to enjoy my food and sleep. The last fortnight I have gained strength rapidly and my health appears to be as good as it ever was."

"Do you believe the cure to be a miracle?"

"Well, it seems to me to be so, but others say simply that it was a divine cure which had been worked through faith. I certainly do believe that I experienced something very unusual on the afternoon when I saw the halo illuminated."

Fall Wheat Crop Better Than First Expectations

Crop Report Issued by Department of Agriculture Gives Information That it Will be of Good Quality, Though Harvest is Late.

BARLEY THE BEST CROP

The following bulletin concerning the condition of crops in the province, based upon returns from correspondents reporting under date of August 19th, has been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The backward spring gave vegetation an unusually late start, the harvesting and general growth being about a fortnight later than usual. This condition of affairs also accounts for the comparatively late issue of the bulletin.

Rain was not frequent enough for the best conditions, and a number of correspondents state that the land has been drier during midsummer than for many years.

Fall Wheat

This crop has turned out to be much better than was anticipated. Considerable injury was done to it by winter-killing, and by the cold and trying weather of April and May, a larger acreage than usual had to be plowed up or drilled in with barley or oats; but the fields rallied remarkably well, and the yield per acre will be a good one. The weather during harvesting was ideal, and the crop was housed in splendid condition. The straw was rather short, but stood up well and was very clean. The grain is an excellent sample in most cases, and will be well up to weight. Cutting ranged from the 15th of July to the 10th of August, the bulk of the crop being about two weeks later than usual. Very little mention was made of insect pests. The most favourable reports regarding fall wheat came from the Lake Huron, Georgian Bay and West Midland districts.

Spring Wheat

When correspondents reported, most of the spring wheat was yet to be cut. The crop got a poor start in the spring owing to the very backward weather, but it picked up nicely and there will be a fair yield. The straw is clean and the kernal plump. The main injury to the crop came from drouth and grasshoppers. Spring wheat appears to be steadily declining in favour with Ontario farmers.

Barley

Correspondents described barley as the best cereal crop of the year. The cold, raw spring was against it at first, but it improved with the season, and notwithstanding the summer drouth it will give a yield well over the average, and the grain will be exceptionally free from discolouration. Some barley remained yet to be cut, but the bulk of the crop was got in during most favourable weather. With the exception of attacks by grasshoppers in the northern districts and occasional complaints of wireworm, but little harm from insects was reported.

Oats

This will be relatively the poorest grain crop of the season. It made a bad start in the spring, owing to the cold weather then prevailing, and did not stool well. In many sections of the province farmers were much alarmed by observing that when the crop was heading the leaves of the plant began to turn red or rusty in appearance, and that in some instances the lower part of the heads failed to fill out. Some correspondents attribute this blight to the drouth and the heat; others assert that it was caused by the wireworm or an aphis; while others again hold that it was a touch of summer frost. However, the straw was not rusted, and warm rains later on helped the oat fields to recover to such a degree that a large measure of confidence was restored. The yield will be about three-fourths of that of recent years, but the grain will be light in weight in most cases, and hardly up to the mark in general quality. The straw will be short, but clean, and will make good fodder. Many farmers are cutting oats on the green side for two reasons: To escape the attacks of grasshoppers, and to supplement the poor yield of hay. Harvesting began about the 5th of August, but was not general until about the 12th and some yet remains to be cut.

Rye

Most of the rye grown in Ontario is used for cutting green for feed or for plowing under. Only a few farmers raise the crop for grain, and then it is usually sown on the poorest soil. The yield will be about the average.

Peas

The revival of pea growing will be strengthened by the experience of the crop this year, for it has been remarkably free from the weevil or "bug," and nothwithstanding the drouth, the yield will be large. The straw is of medium length, but it is clean and bright. The chief drawback to the crop has been its uneven ripening, full pods and blossoms being frequently reported in the same fields. Harvesting will be late, pulling having only been begun as correspondents wrote.

Beans

Frost on the night of the 3rd of July did much damage to the bean crop, and a considerable amount of replanting had to be done. This, together with the lateness of the growing season has made it difficult to estimate the probable yield of the crop, as many of the vines were still in blossom when correspondents reported. Early beans a light yield, but late planted a fair crop, as the present outlook should favourable weather prevail.

Hay and Clover

Two years in succession of winter-killing has proved too much for clover, and the average yield of hay will be the poorest for many years. The cold spring, followed by hot and dry weather was hard on meadows already severely tried by the winter and a light out is reported taking the province as a whole, although here and there good yields are reported. Timothy did better than clover, but the general result may be regarded as a relative failure of hay as far as the yield is concerned; indeed a number of farmers scattered over the province report only half a ton to the acre, and will barely have a sufficient supply for their stock The most cheering fact concerning hay is that the crop was cut, cured and got under cover under excellent conditions and is of a superior quality. Cutting was not general until the middle of July, being about two weeks later than usual. The second growth of clover was making a poor start owing to the drouth. Several correspondents speak favourably of alfalfa as a hay crop.

Corn

Much interest is taken in the corn crop this season, on account of the shortage of hay. The acreage is larger than in the last year or two, but owing to the cold and otherwise unfavourable weather at the time of seeding, a great deal of re-planting had to be done. This means that much of the crop is quite late in growth, and renders an opinion as to its final condition rather doubtful. It is safe to say, however, that should favourable growing weather continue and corn escape early autumn frosts, there will be a good general yield. The drouth was beginning to tell upon the crop as correspondents wrote; crows and wireworm were also complained of.

Flax

Flax is not now grown to a large extent. It will average about 1 3-4 tons to the acre, and is regarded as a fair crop generally.

Tobacco

Tobacco growing in this province is confined chiefly to the County of Essex. The crop was got in unusually late, owing to the cold spring weather, and the plants are reported to be rather small and uneven. The summer, while warm, was rather dry for tobacco, although several correspondents claim that the quality of the leaf will be good.

Potatoes

Owing to the late planting and midsummer drouth this crop has not made as much growth as usual, and the tubers are described as being rather small in size. Many correspondents, however, are of opinion that timely rains and favourable weather may yet bring the yield up to fair proportions. Bugs were plentiful, and as they were most in evidence during early harvest they were much neglected. Blight has appeared in many sections, but practically no rot has been reported, which means much in the light of the fact that for the last two or three years rot was more or less common at this time of the year.

Roots

the prospects of roots, although correspondents were unanimous as to the lateness of their growth compared with the average season. Rain was much needed as correspondents wrote. Mangels were doing much better than turnips, and the prospects of yield are from fair to good. Turnips are said to be very small, and have suffered from the fly and grasshoppers; but it is believed that a few good rains would bring the crop into good form. Sugar beets have done well where grown. Practically nothing is said about carrots, which appear to be falling off as a field crop.

Fruit

This has not been a fruit year, the yields of all sorts falling more or less short of an average. Apples, while good in odd sections, more especially in Northumberland County and vicinity, will give on the whole a comparatively light yield; several correspondents estimate it at a half crop. The fruit, however, will be freer from scab and worm than in more recent years. Pears are in the same class as apples this season. Plums will be scarce, taking the province over; the curculio has, as usual, stung and destroyed an immense quantity of this choice fruit. Peaches are the poorest of the orchard crops. There will be less of them for market than for many years. Cherries were a fair crop, but blackknot is killing off the trees. Orchard fruits suffered considerably from drouth, and were all inclined to be small in size; high winds also thinned out much of the fruit. Grapes will be the best fruit crop of the year should the autumn be favourable. Strawberries, raspberries and other small fruits were not so plentiful as usual.

Pastures & Live Stock

Owing to the late spring and the scarcity of fodder, all classes of live stock were turned out upon grass before there was much growth and kept the pastures pretty closely cropped. Grasshoppers and drouth also helped to thin the fields. When correspondents wrote, about the middle of August, pastures in most sections were rather dry, and in some instances cattle had to be fed hay. The horn fly is spoken of as having been very annoying to live stock, more especially to dairy cows. The milk flow was good during June, but it has fallen off considerably, and dairy supplies are lighter than usual at this time of year. Live stock of all classes, while thinner than desirable, are otherwise in good condition, practically no mention being made of disease. Fodder of all kinds will be scarce, and in most cases great care and economy must be practised if live stock are to be brought through the winter in fit condition. More dependence than ever before will have to be made upon straw and corn as supplementary feed. The former is remarkably clean, and is said to be of excellent quality for feeding purposes, while the latter is still growing in the fields, and is having a race against frost.

Bees and Honey

The cold and very late spring was hard upon bees. There was much winter-killing, and those that survived got a poor start owing to the backward condition of vegetation. Swarming was not satisfactory as a rule, and there has not been the average increase in the number of colonies. Clover was scarce, and bees had to depend more than ever upon basswood, buckwheat, and other nectars. Yields range from 5 to 100 pounds, but will average about 30 lbs. per colony, spring count. Foul brood has occasionally been reported, and has been closely looked after by the inspectors.

Labour and Wages

Correspondents are about equally divided as to the scarcity or sufficiency of farm help, but are practically unanimous as to the poor quality of much of the labour now being offered on Ontario farms. Owing to the hay crop being light and all classes of grain standing up well on short straw, together with the very open and favourable weather for harvesting, farmers were able this summer to get along with less help than usual. The use of wider agricultural implements and other modern appliances is also enabling them to get along with less hiring of labour. Interchange of work by neighbours is commonly practised, one correspondent remarking that this make them "masters and servants by turns." Wages range from $1 to $2 a day, and from $18 to 30 a month, with board. Some skilled farm labourers get as high as $50 a month during harvest.

Yield of Field, Crops per Acre

For the year 1907 this bureau is co-operating with the Office of Census and Statistics at Ottawa in the collection of statistics of live stock and of field crops. The Census Office undertook to distribute and to collect the schedules. The Bureau was unable to get this work so tabulated started until a month later than usual. It is, therefore, impossible to give in this bulletin the acreage devoted to the crops enumerated below.

We have, however, asked our four thousand correspondents to forecast the yield per acre, based on conditions prevailing on August 19th. These have been made up for each county and by using the acreage of 1906, averages per acre have been estimated for the province as follows:

FALL WHEAT—22.1 bush. In 1906 the yield was 18,841,774 bush. from 787,287 acres, or 23.9 per acre. The average for the 25 years, 1882-1906, was 20.5, and for the five years, 1902-1906, it was 23.2.

SPRING WHEAT—17.1 bush. In 1906 the yield was 3,267,000 bush., from 171,745 acres, or 19 bush. per acre. The average for 25 years was 15.9, and for the last five years it was 18.5.

BARLEY—27.9 bush. In 1906 the yield was 25,253,011 bush., from 755,163 acres, or 33.1 per acre. The average for 25 years was 27.50, and for the last five years it was 32.8.

OATS—30.4 bush. In 1906 the yield was 108,341,455 bush., from 2,716,711 acres, or 39.9 per acre. The average for 25 years was 36.2, and for the last five years it was 40.4.

PEAS—21.0 bush. In 1906 the yield was 7,388,987 bush., from 410,356 acres or 18.0 per acre. The average for 25 years was 19.4, and for the last five years it was 18.3.

BEANS—17.2 bush. In 1906 the yield was 950,312 bush., from 51,272 acres, or 18.5 per acre. The average for 25 years was 17.2, and for the last five years it was 16.8.

RYE—15.6 bush. In 1906 the yield was 1,327,582 bush., from 79,870 acres or 16.6 per acre. The average for 25 years was 16.4, and for the last five years it was 16.9.

HAY AND CLOVER—1.18 tons. The yield of 1906 was 4,564,635 tons from 3,069,917 acres, or 1.53 per acre. The average for 25 years was 1.48, and for the last five years it was 1.74.

WESTERN HOSPITALITY IN COMPARISON WITH EASTERN

In Toronto Saturday Night, "Mack," the versatile front page editor of that journal, who is now on a trip to the Pacific Coast, writes an exceedingly interesting paragraph this week on the proverbial western hospitality. It will not do anybody harm to read it, and it may result in the establishment of a feeling of open-heartedness, which there is room for in some eastern cities. "Mack's" reference is as follows:

When a man from the West, visiting Toronto, calls on an acquaintance, the latter may be very glad to see him, may say so, may drop business for half an hour, and talk to him of old times, may make an appointment and take him to lunch at one of the clubs. At six o'clock, however, the local man retires to the fastnesses of his home, and the stranger is left to mope his evening away in the rotunda of his hotel or divert himself as he can. They do things differently out West. But one speaks of "out West" he should explain that he uses the term as it is commonly used. As a matter of fact Winnipeg is as near the centre of the Dominion as a city could be, being, in fact, a few miles east of the actual centre, as measured in miles; and no doubt many of us will live to see the centre of population shift a long jump in that direction. In towns all the way from Port Arthur and Fort William to the coast, one meets with a quality of hospitality unknown in the older provinces. When you present a letter of introduction to a man "out West" he does not read it with an air of disapproval, and inquire severely what he can do for you. He knows what he can do for you. It turns out that he owns the town, and he makes you a present of it. He closes his roll-top desk with a bang, tells his partner he will be back when he returns, takes you out and shows you around. He puts you up at his club, introduces you to everybody you ought to know, gets out his auto or his horse, and whirls you about until you have seen everything there is to be seen. If you attempt to buy a cigar he resents it as a personal affront; he tells everybody that your money was made in Lindsay, that it is bogus, and warns them not to accept it as legal tender. While you remain in town he seems to have no business to attend to, no home to call him from your side—he is yours until he sees you stowed away in your lower berth on the out-going train. In attempting to account for this whole-souled hospitality which manifests itself the year around, for the stream of visitors is as endless as the hospitality is exhaustless, one is forced to believe that the citizen's pride in his town has much to do with it. He believes in his town and the country that surrounds it. He wants to show you. Every citizen is, in his own person, a reception committee, and having been a stranger once himself, and not so long ago, he looks after you with all his might.

Haunts of Wild Ducks To Be Disturbed on Monday

Season Opens on That Day—Hundreds Preparing for a Hunt in the Twilight of the Feathered Game.

SOME POPULAR DISTRICTS

The haunts of the wild duck on Monday morning will, officially, be thrown open to the thousands of hunters in quest of the feathered game, which, for many months, has game, which, for many months, have enjoyed the freedom of the marshes and rice beds of the lakes and rivers of Ontario. The opening of the duck-hunting season will be welcomed as enthusiastically this year as of old. Preparations have been under way in a good many households of Peterborough county for some time, and in the twilight of Monday morning a good many of the feathered creatures will undoubtedly fall preys to the fowler's skilful eye.

The duck that the hunters will search for on Monday morning and on many succeeding mornings is the common black duck. Now is the time the young are full grown and are allowed by their mothers to feed where they choose. The food of the duck at this season of the year is principally found in the rice beds, and is wholesome and clean, so that those whose palates relish the alleged wild taste of the bird will enjoy the spoil.

The real pleasure which the huntsman experiences on his quest lies not in the expectations of a tasty meal, but rather in the excitement of raising the birds from their feeding spots in the hope of catching, on the wing, one or more of the ducks by a well-directed shot.

Peterborough county, as every sportsman knows, contains within its boundaries some of the best haunts of the wild duck that can be found in the Province. It is true that, in order to reach many of them, several miles may have to be traversed, but there are dozens of spots in the vicinity of the city that at present conceal many of the feathered game. Among the most popular is, perhaps Rice Lake, for there the benevolent rice beds not only supply the birds with their food, but form a partial protection from the sharp eye of the trained hunter. Other haunts can be found on the Otonabee River, and on Lake Ketchewanoaka between Lakefield and Young's Point, where many a duck has fallen from the wing by a skilful shot. Stony Lake, too, has many nooks and corners where the wild duck abound, and also the whole chain stretching to the northwest by way of Fenelon Falls.

It is quite impossible to form any idea of the number of these feathered creatures that annually fall victims of the duck hunters, who, on the first day of September of each year, lie in secret in the marshes in the morning twilight to be ready for the passing of the birds at the first dawn.

City's Resoluions Were Passed By The Convention

Meaures Introduced by City Clerk Armstrong Approved by Municipal Association.

A SUCCESSFUL MEETING

City Clerk S. R. Armstrong attended the convention of the Ontario Municipal Association in Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, at which much important business was transacted. To the Examiner he gave an interesting account of the meetings of the association, which were most successful. There was a large attendance from all parts of Ontario, and great interest was manifested in the affairs of the association.

The delegates were entertained at the Exhibition on Wednesday night, and a very enjoyable time was spent by the representatives of the municipalities.

Some interesting and profitable addresses were given, the most important being those of Mr. J. H. Fryer of Galt, the president of the Western Ontario Power Association, on "The Present State of the Electric Power Question"; Dr. Wickett, of Toronto, on "Municipal Statistics and Debentures," and Mr. A. F. Falls, chartered accountant, of Chatham, on "The Combining of the Assessment and Collector's rolls."

Peterborough's Amendments

Mr. Armstrong, as City Clerk of Peterborough, introduced, and had carried, the following resolutions:—

"That the Legislature be sought to provide that the members of councils in cities may be elected for two years, one half retiring each year."

"That legislation be sought to add a sub-section to Section 108 of the Municipal Act, to provide that, in case a poll clerk signifies to the returning officer, in writing, that he will not act as poll clerk, or neglects to attend at the polling places to perform his duties as poll clerk, the clerk of the municipality, as returning officer, shall appoint another person to act in his place, and that the person so appointed shall have all the powers and authority which he would have had if he had been appointed by law."

Poles on the Streets

It was moved by Mr. J. H. Fryer of Galt, and Mayor Coatsworth of Toronto, that the Dominion Parliament and Ontario Legislature be asked to pass legislation to the effect that no individual, partnership, or corporation, now or hereafter incorporated, shall have power to place poles, wires, rails, pipes or conduits over, upon or under the highways of any municipality in the Province without the consent of the council of such municipality.

Report re Commee Act

The following are some of the other important resolutions carried by the convention:

"That the Commee Act be repealed, and that power be given to municipalities to buy, or, if necessary, expropriate, on equitable terms, any existing gas, lighting or water plant.

"That the Municipal Act be amended so as to exempt municipal corporations from civil liability for non-repair of highways.

Openings Streets

"That legislation be sought by this Association at the next meeting of the Ontario Legislature enabling municipal councils of cities to open or extend streets by the local improvement plan upon such terms as to assessment thereof of the property benefited as may seem proper, notwithstanding petitions against the same upon a two third vote of the members of the council.

Power to Remove Poles

"That the Dominion Parliament be asked to pass an act requiring the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company, or any other company having poles or wires on the streets in such cities and towns within the province of Ontario, in which such company has, in the opinion of the council of such cities and towns, constructed a line or lines of poles and wires which have become highly objectionable, to remove such poles and wires from such street or streets, and place them either in underground conduits, or upon such other streets and lanes as the council of such cities and towns shall direct, doing no unnecessary damage to the said company, at the company's expense."

Building Laws

Ald. Cooper of London, moved:—"That in view of the apparent carelessness and irregular manner in which new buildings are being erected, and alterations and additions are being made to existing buildings, that it is advisable that all cities and towns in Ontario, having a population of 10,000 or over, should insist upon plans and specifications being first submitted to their municipal authorities, before permission to build is given, and that the executive committee inquire into the legal authority of municipal councils to compel the removal of dangerous buildings, and apply for further legislation, if necessary."

Amend Liquor Act

Other important resolutions included the following:

"That the Ontario Legislature be requested to amend the Liquor License Act, making it contrary to said act for the holder of a shop license in one municipality to establish an agency in, or have, an agent, in another municipality, canvass for or receive orders for intoxicationg liquors.

"That the Legislature be asked to provide for the operation of Sunday street cars in any municipality where a vote of the people is taken on the subject and decided in favour of the Sunday cars."

Board of Control

An act to amend the Municipal Act was approved by the Association of which the following are some of the provisions:

The council of any city may by bylaw provide that the municipal council of the city should thereafter consist of a Mayor and four Controllers to be elected by the city at large and the Aldermen to be elected from the wards of the city under section 70 of this act, and the four controllers so elected, together with the Mayor, shall be the Board of Control of the said city.

FORESTERS HELD AN AT HOME

Enjoyable Affair Under Their Auspices Held Last Night

A very successful at-home was held last evening in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, under the auspices of the three local Courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters. There was a large attendance, and a most enjoyable time was spent by those present. The programme rendered was a delightful one, the audience evidencing its appreciation by frequent and hearty encores.

The playing of the C.O.F. orchestra, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Halpany and their two sons, Carl and Frank, was a feature of the programme that was thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. Joseph Batten made a very efficient chairman, and the following programme was rendered:

Selection—C.O.F. Orchestra,
Violin Solo — "Mazurka"—Frank Halpany.
Solo—Miss Lancaster.
Selection—C.O.F. Orchestra,
Intermission.
Song—Carl Halpany.
Recitation—F. Halpany.
Selection—C.O.F. Orchestra,
Speech—Dr. Morgan.

During the intermission delightful refreshments were served.

OBITUARY

MR. FAXTON K. BROWN

The death of Mr. Faxton K. Brown occurred this morning at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Jas. Garside, 199 Reid street, after an illness of several weeks from dropsy. The deceased was 77 years of age and was born in Seymour township, living there practically all his life, removing later to Wilberforce. When he was taken ill he was brought to Peterborough to be near a doctor. His age was against his recovery, and in spite of all that medical science could do for him, he passed away this morning. The late Mr. Brown leaves a wife and four children, three of them living in Peterborough, Mrs. J. Garside, Mrs. J. Bellington and Mr. Wm. Brown, and Mrs. S. Steele, who lives in Wilberforce.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock from the residence of Mr. Jas. Garside, 199 Reid street, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Popular Cure For Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine constantly on hand for use in case of emergency.

TO ELECT DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

Important Meeting of Trades and Labour Council Will be Held Tuesday For This Purpose

A special meeting of the Trades and Labour Council will be held on Tuesday evening, September 3rd, for the purpose of selecting a delegate to attend the session of the Dominion Trade and Labour Congress in Winnipeg during September. This promises to be the most important labour gathering in the history of the Dominion. Reports received state that the delegation from British Columbia will be a large one, as the Japanese question promises to be a subject that will provoke considerable discussion. In a communication received by the local Trade & Labour Council from the secretary of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress, the necessity of sending a strong man to Winnipeg was strongly emphasized, as there promises to be a strong revival of unionism throughout the country during the coming season.

A PLEASANT SOCIAL IN OTONABEE

A Delightful Event in Connection With Sunday School

A social in connection with the 6th Line Sunday School, Otonabee, was held on the lawn of Mr. Richard Sbortt, Otonabee, on Tuesday evening, August 20. The weather was fine and a large crowd attended. Tea was served on the lawn, after which Rev. Mr. Harrison of Keene gave an address, and a short programme was rendered, consisting of instrumental music, solos, and recitations. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $73, which went in aid of the library fund.

GOOD RACING ON THE HOLIDAY

A Splendid Programme Arranged by Turf Club at the Driving Park on Labour Day

A special attraction for the holiday will be a matinee under the auspices of the Turf Club at the Driving Park. A splendid programme of races has been arranged, and those who enjoy this sport are assured of an interesting half day if they spend it at the Driving Park. In addition to the fastest of the local horses there are a number of horses coming from outside the city, and some exciting finishes are assured. Mr. Martin Connors has secured some speed oil for his mare Lady Gothard, and she is expected to do some stunts of speed on Monday.

Don't forget the sale of household furniture, bedding, carpets, etc., at the Palace Hotel on Tuesday, Sept. 3rd. 3d-51

Were The Air Brakes Not Working Properly?

Evidence Given at the Coroner's Inquest on the Death of Edward Wansborough Seems to Point to This---Inquest Was Resumed at Manvers Yesterday

The inquest on the death of the late Edward Wansborough, the C. P. R. freight conductor, killed at Manvers station on Wednesday morning, was resumed by Coroner Grey last evening in the Orange Hall at Manvers, and after considerable evidence was heard the inquest was adjourned until September 12th. Evidence was given at yesterday's session by the night operator at Manvers, by the conductor and engineer of train third 50, by the trainmaster of No. 1 division, and others. The evidence seems to point to the fact that the air brakes on the moving train were not working properly, and that this was the cause of the unfortunate accident.

Operator's Evidence

Arthur Johnston, the night operator at Manvers station was the first witness called. He testified that at the time of the accident he was at the west semaphore putting out the light. He knew train second 50 was standing at the station, and when the moving train was 45 rods away he signalled them to stop. He was standing right in the centre of the main line track, and kept up the signal to stop until he was forced off the track. He saw the engineer extend his head farther out of the cab to see what was ahead of him, and heard a low whistle. The next thing he saw was a van of the standing train go up into the air. After the signal to down brakes he saw no brakesman on top of the train, but when the van of third 50 came up he saw the conductor on the car in front of the van. Third 50 was about half a mile from the station when he first signalled. Witness was at the semaphore when third 50 passed the mile post west, but did not hear the mile post whistle. Trains were supposed to leave stations ten minutes apart. If the brakes were working right, the witness said, the engineer should have been able to stop before striking second 50.

Semaphore as Protection

Samuel Jackson, trainmaster of No 1 Division, was the next witness, and gave evidence in regard to the duty of trainmen in respect to semaphores explaining that the semaphore is the protection for the yard. Train second 50 was in the proper place in the yard, and the only protection it would have was the semaphore. The duty to stop at the semaphore rests with the engineer. He couldn't see where it would be possible for the engineer not to know that he was approaching Manvers station.

Charles W. Carey, inspector of air brakes, for all lines east of Fort William, said that he had not inspected the brakes on third 50 since the accident and could not say what condition they were in.

Conductor's Evidence

Medford R. Grieve, the conductor of train third 50, said that he did not know that train second 50 would stop at Manvers station. There had been no report to him that the air brakes were not working properly. He saw that the semaphore was up after he had passed. The engineer whistled for the station a mile out. After passing semaphore witness, who was on top of a car, could see train second 50. His train had slackened speed then. The air brakes were applied but did not seem to hold the train.

Engineer's Story

John Ritchie, engineer of train third 50. was next called. He remembered pulling the whistle for Manvers station on the morning in question. He was on the lookout for the semaphore and saw it about a quarter of a mile away. It was up then and he applied the air brakes. They checked the train a little. He did not know then, but had information since, that they were not working properly. They had worked all right at Burketon. The second application of the brakes had no effect. Then he whistled for hand brakes, giving one short whistle. He saw the night operator signal him, and the fireman saw the train on the main line. Witness pulled the whistle, but it did not respond. He reversed his engine about four carlengths away from the van in front. There was an exceptionally bad rail that morning, but he could not say that the condition of the rail had more to do with the non-stopping of the train than the defective air-brake. He had no doubt of his ability to stop the train before he first tried the brakes.

SOME STATISTICS COMPILED BY KISSING AUTHORITY

There is a clever statistician who could teach a thing or two to the novelist. This statistician has attempted to classify the action and methods of proposals, and as a result, has presented tabulated figures extremely interesting to the psychologist.

Out of 100 cases, thirty-six gentlemen take the lady in their arms, sixty-seven gentlemen kiss the lady on the lips, four gentlemen kiss the lady on the cheek. Three gentlemen show very good taste by kissing the lady on the eyes, and two gentlemen kiss the lady on the hand. It is supposed that these two out of the 100 are the timid, diffident kind, though it is quite possible that they might be of the quiet sentimental nature.

One gentleman kisses the lady on the knees. It must be added that the statistician is careful to insert the saving clause, 'by mistake." There is even a record of a man kissing a lady on the edge of her shawl, but, thank goodness, there is one in a 100, and the chances are that this man is peculiar.

Seventy-two hold the lady's hand, and seventeen hold it very tight, fourteen have lumps in their throats, and nine exclaim aloud—"Thank heavens" Only seven out of 100 stand on their feet when they make a proposal, and two go down on one knee, while nine make a formal prelude—something like the slow music in the play, we suppose, when the villain appeals to Heaven to witness the consuming flame of his affections for the heart he plots to ruin, into.

The behaviour of the lady under the circumstances is equally entertaining and instructive.

Out of 100 cases, 41 sink into the arms of the gentleman, 43 rest their heads on the gentleman's breast, and only one sinks into the arms of a chair; eleven clasp their arms around the gentleman's neck, six weep tears of joy silently, and 44 weep tears aloud —whatever that means; 72 have eyes full of love, and nine out of 100 rush from the room to tell everybody.

Only four are greatly surprised, and 91 out of 100 knew that something was coming. Five giggle hysterically, and one even sneezes. Only one out of a 100 struggles not to be kissed, while six six gentlemen first.

If we believe the statistician, one out of a hundred women will say, "Yes, but don't be a fool!"

How he gets his figures, this statistician does not state, nor does it matter.

M'GUIGAN AND HILL IN FIGHT

Story Goes That Former G. T. R. Man Hit Louis Hill In An Argument, Then He Resigned

HE GOT 175,000 DOLLARS

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 30.—The Chicago Examiner publishes what it claims to be the only true story of the row between the Hills and F. H. McGuigan, which occurred in St. Paul a few weeks ago. It claims the fist fight was between Louis Hill and McGuigan instead of J. J. Hill and McGuigan. Louis Hill, as president of the road, is very anxious, the Examiner claims, to put up a big cash surplus and McGuigan, who was vice-president, claims that this was at the expense of the system.

Mr. McGuigan met J. J. Hill and Louis Hill at the Great Northern offices and called their attention to the fact that a big surplus was being accumulated and he demanded that immense sums be appropriated at once for improving the roadbed which he claimed was getting into a very bad condition because of lack of attention and repairs.

The Hills refused to spend the money that he demanded and Louis Hill and McGuigan indulged in hot words which resulted in Vice-President McGuigan jumping over the table and hitting Louis Hill in the face. Cuffs followed, both men hitting each other when James J. Hill interfared. He asked for a truce and in the conference that followed it was agreed that McGuigan should sever his connection with the road.

Then came up the question of salary, for Mr. McGuigan had a five year contract at $35,000 per year. But the Hills refused to pay for his services when he was no longer connected with the road. In order to get rid of Mr. McGuigan, however, the Hills were forced to give him a cheque for $175,000. McGuigan, who had been with the Great Northern but a few months, was formerly with the Canadian Pacific.

By special request the Steamer Otonabee will run the regular Wednesday trip to Stony Lake on Wednesday Sept. 4th, leaving Wolfe Street Wharf at 7.30 a. m. Adults 75c. Children 40c. This will probably be the last trip of the season, so come along, and enjoy a good days outing. 2d-52

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW RUNNER

Charlie Johnston in Active Training for Match in Toronto

A running match has been arranged for September 7th, the last day of the Toronto exhibition, between Carl Martyn of Toronto, and Charlie Johnston of Peterborough, brother of Manager Art Johnston, of the Peterborough ball club.

Johnston has been keeping his speeding abilities under cover until recently, but during the last week has started training, and the form he has displayed has opened the eyes of the wise ones. Those who have seen Alfred Shrubb, the great English runner, before, say that Johnston has much the same style. He certainly gets over the ground fast, and at five miles — his favourite distance—should make things interesting for the men he may meet. Harry Burridge and Mike Sharp are looking after Johnston, who, in company with Fred Anderson, the second baseman of the ball club, returned to training quarters this morning, after a five mile run, looking as fresh as a daisy.

GEORGE BALLARD OUT OF GAME

Famous Tiger Captain Will Not Play This Season

George Ballard, Hamilton, captain and quarterback of last year's Canadian and Ontario rugby champion team, says the Tigers will present a number of new faces this fall, but that the team will be as strong as ever. Ballard says he will not play himself, as his business demands his time. The most likely candidate for the important position of quarterback is Addison, of last year's intermediate half-back line.

DuMoulin is in Winnipeg, and "Nibs" Harrison or Dave Tope will replace him at centre-half. Tope's broken leg is but a memory, and "Smiling Dave" is fairly aching for the rugby season to commence.

Marriott, outside wing, says he's through with football, and his bosom friends, "Dinny" McCarthy, expert scrimmager, and Craig, inside wing, also seek the seclusion of the grandstand.

Ralph Ripley is married recently, and the Tigers won't have the nerve to ask again for a permit for Dave McKeand, of Mitchell.

INQUEST OPENS ON MONDAY

Commission Appointed to Probe Cause of Disaster — Hasty Workmanship Said to Be Responsible—Calamity Was Feared—Rivets Heard to Creak Ominously — Coroner Visits Scene of the Wreck.

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—It is evident from the attitude assumed by the Government that the responsibility for the Quebec bridge disaster will be laid at the door of the contractors.

S. N. Parent, chairman of the Transcontinental Railway Commission, states that the Phoenix Co. of Pennsylvania had been rushing the steelwork too fast and that that company is responsible for all losses, and so will have to meet also the claims for damages by the relatives of those who have lost their lives.

He estimates the loss upon the structure at about one million dollars, and it is probable that the damages for loss of life will amount to half a million.

Mr. Parent is chairman of the Quebec Bridge Co. He left for Quebec yesterday afternoon along with M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways.

The Dominion Government has ordered an investigation. Henry Holgate, C. E., of Montreal, will conduct the enquiry, and the other members of the board will be Prof. J. G. Perry of McGill and Prof. Galbraith, principal of the School of Practical Science of Toronto.

This action by the Government has been taken on account of the public importance of the disaster, and not of any Departmental responsibility. The engineers of the Department of Railways and Canals, which alone is concerned, simply certify to the amount of work put into the structure from time to time, thus enabling the contractors to receive instalments.

Contractors' Liability.

M. P. Davis, who was contractor for the piers and abutments, had some time ago handed over his work to the Quebec Bridge Co., and the same has been accepted by them; but if it should be that the trouble was due to any fault on the part of the bridgework, he is of course still fully liable and responsible for any losses and damages that have occurred.

In addition to the money loss, the collapse represents from one to two years' delay in the completion of the bridge, for as the rebuilding of the structure there is not, Mr. Parent says, the least doubt.

The whole bridge has cost, as far as it has gone, something over $4,000,000, and was to cost when finished in the neighborhood of $8,000,000.

The only explanation that Mr. Parent can give of the collapse is that in the rushing of the work the riveting may not have followed up the extension of the steel as fast as it should, and that the drop was due to the weight of the load of steel which was being taken out on it.

Sympathy From Premier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday morning sent the following message to Mayor Garneau of Quebec:

"I pray you to express to the citizens of Quebec and to those who lost relatives and friends my profound sympathy in the awful disaster which occurred last evening. It is the duty of all not to lose courage. We must immediately apply ourselves to the reparation of the lost and to push the project with energy.

(Signed) "Wilfrid Laurier."

The Governor-General has forwarded a telegram to Lieut.-Governor Jette, expressing sympathy with bereaved families suffering from the disaster.

Cause of the Wreck.

Quebec, Aug. 31.—The idea became prevalent here that the cause of the wreck was the giving way of the anchor pier on the Levis shore, which, imbedded in tons of solid masonry, sustains the weight of the structure suspended over the river. There would be another anchor pier at the other end of the river when the whole bridge was completed, and these two would, with the overhead arch, hold the bridge up, so that no piers would be necessary from one shore to the other.

M. P. Davis of Ottawa, contractor for this anchor pier, says this theory is not correct, as the pier is still in good condition. Therefore, it must be either that there was a fatal engineering miscalculation as to the weight that could be allowed to sway out over the river before completion, or that, the bridge being able to sustain itself, there was too great a weight placed at one of the crucial points of its structure, or that the mass of steel itself was deficient in quality, or that, combined with careless workmanship, resulted in letting the bridge down. The masonry is not injured.

Heard Rivets Creak.

A practical engineer gave it as his opinion yesterday morning that the real cause was the weakness of the superstructure between the anchor pier and the deep water pier. It was between these two stone abutments the iron work first lifted, due to the ponderous weight of that section, which extended nine hundred feet from the deep water pier over the river.

It was stated by some workmen that for some time past fear has been entertained by those engaged in the work that such a catastrophe would occur, for they considered that the extension from the deep water pier was too weighty to be supported by that section inside the pier, and the day before yesterday several of the men heard the rivets creak.

Some of them did not return to work Thursday through fear, but others thought this might be attributed to merely the settling down into position of the massive structure. However a minute examination will be conducted by engineers and the truth will be learned shortly.

The removal of thousands of tons of debris will involve several months.

Quebec, Aug. 31.—After a night of horror, a pall seemed spread yesterday over the city.

It is definitely known now that the number of dead is sixty-three. Of these eighteen are Americans, twenty-eight Indians and eighteen French-Canadians. There were nearly one hundred men at work when the bridge gave way.

Owing to the scene of the disaster being seven miles distant from the city, there was delay in getting relief gangs and medical men to the spot. All night long, however, by the light of bonfires along the shore, men labored to remove the injured. Weird cries for help could be heard from various sections of the debris, cries which unfortunately received no response, and they finally grew weaker and weaker until the victim met the same fate as his unfortunate comrades. But few bodies have been recovered. It is feared that many will be carried away by the current. The millions of pounds of twisted iron work also pin many corpses to the river bed.

The Scene at Dawn.

At daybreak yesterday morning the gruesome spectacle was revealed. Part of the iron work was visible above the water line, but the great mass of it had disappeared below. Soundings that were taken at 9 o'clock showed that the portion extending beyond the deep water pier rested in a depth of 30 feet of water. The channel in consequence is not in any way interfered with, and steamers are passing up and down the channel as usual.

The Phoenix Bridge Co., who were in charge of the superstructure, have stationed men at every point to prevent intrusion, and even newspaper correspondents and relatives of the dead are kept only by an impregnable line.

Immediately upon receipt of news Thursday night the Marine and Fisheries Department despatched the tug Hackett, with Capt. Noenig, bringing supplies of lanterns and part hernalia to drag the river. The vessel cruised around the scene of the disaster for a considerable time giving all the assistance it could in the work of rescuing those that still survived.

Boats and tugs carried a heavy quota of human freight to the scene of the disaster yesterday. Charitable merchants despatched cots and clothing, but unfortunately they were not in demand, for but few survived, ten in all escaped. Undertakers wended their way with their gruesome load of coffins and these have been placed in uncanny rows along the shore waiting for the victims to be removed from the debris to be placed therein. The coroner had all the bodies recovered removed to Quebec last night and placed in the morgue to await the inquest, which will be opened on Monday next.

BALLOONIST FALLS 2,000 FEET.

Has Narrow Escape of Impalment on Post In Field.

Barnstable, Mass., Aug. 31.—Nearly 5,000 persons at the annual Barnstable County Fair saw Prof. Maloney, a balloonist, drop 2,000 feet to the earth, strike on the top of a cedar fence post, and escape probably with his life.

A sharp easterly wind had blown the rope which connects with the knife amongst a mass of cords higher up and out of reach of the aeronaut.

For fully two miles Maloney floated along. The gas was rapidly leaking from the big bag above him and he prepared for the long drop. He and the balloon came earthward rapidly. As it neared the earth the canvass fell about his body and prevented him from seeing where he was falling. He struck on top of a big cedar post used by a farmer to mark off his field. Luckily he did not fall squarely, but struck in a half standing position. His back was terribly torn and his left arm badly injured.

TWINS AT $40 EACH.

Plump Babies Sold by Their Parents In Open Market.

London, Aug. 31.—A Rome despatch brings a story of an attempt to sell children in the market at Avallino. A peasant and his wife brought two of their children, twins, four months old, and in open market offered to sell them for $40 each.

The babies were plump and healthy and were bought by a man who offered the price required. He was taking the children away when the police stepped in and arrested both buyers and sellers.

Editors Caught Napping.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 31.—The Courier-Journal building, in which are located the plants of The Courier-Journal and Evening Times, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The structure was five storeys high and occupied half a block.

The editorial and reportorial forces of The Courier-Journal stuck to the building in the hope that the blaze would be subdued, and that they could issue a paper. They were caught napping with fire at all exits, and had to be taken out on ladders.

The damage on building and contents is estimated at $600,000; well insured.

Another Mineral Field.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 31.—It has been known for some time that native copper existed on Michipicoten Island, and not only native copper, but native silver also had been discovered on the island. The samples show native silver allied with native copper, not float, but samples taken from minerals in places knocked out with a pick. The analysis made shows the ore to run from 31-2 to 3 per cent. in native copper. The native silver and copper in the calcite shows

FIERCE BATTLE WITH THE MOORS

12,000 Tribesmen Engaged the French Troops at Casablanca.

WARSHIPS RAINED SHELLS

Sultan Barricades Palace Against the Populace—Arabs Advancing to Meet French — Fight Lasted Three Hours—Heavy Loss of Life—Restitution Will Be Demanded—Morocco Must Pay Cost.

Paris, Aug. 31.—In a despatch from Casablanca, a correspondent of The Matin says:

At the moment of filing this despatch 5,000 horsemen are advancing on the camp of the French. The artillery has begun firing. These men are supposed to be from the camp at Herchion, and are the fiercest of all the tribesmen.

The Mediuna tribesmen camped at Tadert have opened a market for the disposal of booty. The other tribes encamped at Herchion have been restrained from attacking the French, up to the present time, by the Mediunas, who had received a letter from Mulai Hafig, telling them to follow this course. But now they are getting restive, and are accusing the Mediunas of being traitors in the pay of the French. The natives are convinced that Mulai Halg is coming to Casablanca to try and get an official mandate from the French Government to restore order, and that he will profit by the opportunity to establish himself on a firm basis and supplant Abdul Aziz, the Sultan of Record.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The correspondent at Fez, Aug. 26, declares that the Sultan Abdul Aziz tried to set out for Rabat but was forced to return by the hostility of the populace. He has barricaded himself in the palace at Fez.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The report that France intends to insist that Morocco shall pay the heavy expenses resulting from the French military and naval action in the latter country appears to be correct. The expenditure is increasing steadily with the enlargement of the activity of the French forces, and Germany, Great Britain and the other powers of Europe are understood to be in sympathy with France's attitude. It is also stated in well-informed official circles that the old powers intend to demand payments for the losses sustained by their subjects in Morocco. However, it is recognized that the existence of two Sultans of Morocco will render it a difficult matter to fix the responsibility for the payment of the expenses incurred.

The French cruiser Desaix, which is due to arrive at Tangier on Sunday, was sent there following an interview between the British ambassador here, Sir Francis Bertie and Premier Clemenceau Thursday, during which the ambassador pointed out the dangerous position of the Europeans at Tangier.

According to the latest advice from Casablanca, the French losses in the fighting near the camp Aug. 22, were three men killed and twelve wounded, the killed including a cavalryman of the Irregular Algerian force, who was decapitated, and whose head was carried off by the Moors.

The enemy's losses are believed to have been heavy.

Casablanca, Aug. 31.—During the fighting between the French and the Moors on Thursday near the French camp the Moors at first retreated, and it was believed that the engagement was over, when suddenly the enemy reappeared in great force in two directions. The Spahis and irregular Algerian cavalry found themselves almost surrounded, but formed a square, and slowly fell back until reinforcements came. In the meanwhile the French warships showered shells among the hills sheltering the enemy. The engagement lasted three hours. The line of battle extended over two miles, and it is estimated that about 12,000 Moors were engaged. The loss of the latter is not known, but it is believed to have been heavy, as French officers counted the bodies of twenty Moors in one roadway. The French loss was 15 killed and wounded.

The cruisers Gloire and Gueydon yesterday bombarded the beach beyond Casablanca, where a force of Moorish cavalry gathered, but was soon dispersed by the warships' fire.

Province Won't Prosecute.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—Cases of infringement of the Lord's Day Act before the Police Court yesterday were remanded on account of a letter from Attorney-General Campbell withdrawing the consent of the Provincial Law Department from the prosecution.

The letter claimed the police commissioners were prosecuting the small restaurant dealers and allowed hotels to get off scot free.

Two Drowned In North.

Cobalt, Aug. 31.—Night Hawk Lake has claimed two victims. This is a treacherous lake, and northern New Ontario to-day is filled with prospectors who are not expert canoe men.

Last Sunday a double drowning accident is reported to have occurred, and two prospectors, named McCrae and Johnston, lost their lives. Johnston was a mechanical engineer about 50 years of age.

Buried Under Tons of Coal.

Conneaut, O., Aug. 31.—Jas. Monahan, a fireman on the steamer Joliet, was buried under tons of ore at Escanaba, where the boat loaded, although Monahan's absence from the boat was not known or any intimation of his death was had until his body was discovered by ore-shovelers here Thursday.

Threw Dynamite In Lake.

Cobalt, Aug. 31.—While the fire engine was in practice a spark fell into a box containing dynamite, and set fire to some paper. Charles Carr of Milton, Carr & Son, threw the box into the lake, and as it struck the water it exploded. A boat house was wrecked and several boats damaged.

GREAT ACTOR PASSES AWAY.

Richard Mansfield Dead After Severe Illness—Had Sudden Relapse.

New London, Conn., Aug. 31.—Richard Mansfield, one of the best known actors on the American stage, died yesterday morning at his summer residence. Death was directly due to disease of the liver, aggravated by complications.

A few weeks ago he reached Montreal from England, and after a few days' rest was sent by his physicians to the Adirondacks, where it was at first stated that complete rest would bring return to health. Later, however, reports indicated the fatal character of his affliction.

During the great actor's last moments he was lying in a condition of coma, and did not recognise the loved ones at his bedside.

Richard Mansfield was born in Heligoland on May 24, 1857. His mother was Mme. Mansfield Rudersdorf, a famous prima donna, and it was from her that Mansfield inherited his love for the art. The actor studied at several schools on the continent, and at South Kensington, London.

He was an accomplished singer and musician and played in comic opera. Despite these facts he was unsuccessful for years, and it was not until he came to America that he made a real success.

ARREST FOLLOWS INQUEST.

Mystery of Dovercourt Fires May Be Cleared Up.

Dovercourt, Aug. 31.—Following the fire inquest held by Provincial Inspector Rogers at Dovercourt yesterday into a number of incendiary fires in the neighborhood, Ross Palmeter, aged 25 years, who with his wife lives on Dovercourt road, was arrested last night by Constable Burns and County Constable Tomlinson, charged with arson.

Palmeter was taken on another street in the vicinity while unloading furniture and locked up in No. 1 police station, pending his removal to the jail.

It will be remembered that at the time of the several fires in Dovercourt the prisoner suffered the loss of a stable or large outbuilding.

The specific charge laid against Palmeter is that on Aug. 8 he set fire to an outhouse on Jameson's property.

The arrest was made on the advice of County Crown Attorney Monahan, after the evidence had been concluded yesterday.

KING EDWARD DISGUSTED.

Leaves Cafe Chantant In Marienbad as a Protest.

Marienbad, Aug. 31.—King Edward has administered a rebuke to the singing of indelicate songs in places of public amusement, and his action, which was taken publicly, has created intense excitement in Marienbad.

His Majesty entered a cafe chantant Thursday night, and after listening to one or two items on the program he walked out as a protest against the scandalous nature of the performance. A Viennese company was playing.

His Majesty was followed by the Duke of Teck and the other members of his suite, and all the Englishmen and Americans present.

"This is horrible, appalling," said the King to a member of his entourage, and the accuracy of his description of the performance is admitted on every side.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Toronto Woman Accused of Performing Illegal Operation.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against Mrs. Minnie Turner, who is accused of performing an illegal operation upon a girl named Rose Winters, which resulted in her death on Sunday last from septic poisoning.

A certificate of death had been given, and the funeral took place on Tuesday, but sinister rumors having reached the authorities the body was exhumed, and a post mortem revealed the true facts of the case.

Bertha Pearsall, an inmate of the maternity home conducted by Mrs. Turner, swore that she saw the operation performed.

The girl's sweetheart also gave evidence.

CAME HOME TO DIE.

Homesick Mutineer Returns to Odessa Only to Be Hanged.

Odessa, Aug. 31.—Matushenko, the Russian non-commissioned officer, who led the mutiny on the battleship Knias Potemkine, and commanded that vessel on its sensational cruise about the Black Sea in 1905, was hanged Thursday at Sebastopol.

After abandoning the battleship at Kustendje, Roumania, Matushenko went to New York, where he worked for two years in an iron foundry. Homesickness led him last July to return to this city, where he was arrested.

WIARTON SHOOTING CASE.

Mrs. Thomas Sent for Trial on Manslaughter Charge.

Walkerton, Aug. 31.—Agnes Thomas was yesterday committed for trial at the September assizes on a charge of manslaughter, arising from the shooting of Phillip Gilbert at Wiarton. It was announced that bail to the amount of $2,000 would be accepted. The assizes open Sept. 16, with Sir William Mulock presiding.

CAST OUT THE PARSONS.

Brewers Refuse to Walk With Them In Labor Day Parade.

Lacrosse, Wis., Aug. 31.—The Ministers' Union, organized only a few weeks ago, and soon after affiliated with the Trades and Labor Assembly, the supreme labor body of Lacrosse, was officially cast out by that body and refused permission to march in the Labor Day parade.

This action was the result of complaints by the brewery workers, who claimed that the recent agitation against the saloons had resulted in an injury to the Brewery Workers' Union.

The city labor body took up the complaints and after a hearing decided that the crusade by the religious workers was to the harm of their fellow unionists and the official casting out followed.

BAD TROLLEY SMASH IS RECORDED

Confusion of Orders Over Telephone Costs Fifteen Lives.

FIFTY PERSONS BADLY HURT

Electric Cars Crash Into One Another at Charleston—Impact Was Terrific—Both Were Telescoped — Line Blocked—Disaster Happened on Single Track — Cars Crowded With Visitors to the Fair.

Matoon, Ills., Aug. 31.—Fifteen persons were killed and about fifty injured yesterday in a head-on collision between an inter-urban express train, consisting of a motor car and a traction car on the Matoon and Charleston electric car at a sharp curve, one mile west of Charleston, Ills. A confusion of orders received over the telephone is said to have been the cause of the accident.

The cars approached each other at high speed, and the impact was so terrific that the motor car and the trailer were telescoped by the traction car. Few passengers had time to escape by jumping. Most of the passengers were going to the fair at Charleston.

Matoon sent special cars to the wreck, and the dead and injured were brought to the morgue and the hospital. Several of the injured may die.

Doctors and citizens hurried from Charleston to the disaster, dragged dead and injured from the broken mass of timbers and seats, and gave first aid to the injured.

The dead were laid alongside the track. The victims could not be taken to Charleston because the track was blocked in that direction and the relief car from Matoon was derailed.

The line on which the disaster happened is twelve miles long, running between Matoon and Charleston, Ills., and has but a single track. Telephones are placed every two miles for orders to be transmitted to the cars passing over the road.

There were no Canadians among the dead or injured.

ST. PAUL'S MAY COLLAPSE.

Architects Take Steps to Avert Danger—Sinking 200 Years.

London, Aug. 31.—The committee of architects, which was appointed to enquire into the condition of St. Paul's Cathedral, has issued a report, which declares that, while the cathedral is in no immediate danger, elaborate precautions are necessary to preserve it from disaster.

The cathedral has been sinking for two centuries, and the expert recommends that the condition of the subsoil and state of water level be periodically recorded, as there lie the chief possibilities of future danger.

It is added that attention should be given to all building operations in the neighborhood, or mischief of a serious nature may arise.

The committee recommends that a large amount of structural work required in repairing the fabric be proceeded with at once.

Bishop Ingram Sails.

Liverpool, Aug. 31.—The Bishop of London, the Rev. Dr. A. F. W. Ingram, who will present to Old Bruton Parish Church, at Williamsburg, Virginia, the second oldest church in America, the Bible which King Edward has given it in connection with the Jamestown Exposition, sailed for Canada yesterday on the Allan Line steamer Victorian.

Stomach Troubles Of Long Standing

WHEN DOCTORS' TREATMENT FAILED THIS SEVERE CASE WAS ENTIRELY CURED BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Doctors failed to cure Mr. De Courcy because they were satisfied to treat the stomach instead of getting at the cause of trouble in the liver and bowels.

The most complicated and deep-seated digestive troubles yield to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their direct and combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. We are continually receiving such letters as the following in regard to the failure of mere stomach treatment:

Mr. Patrick De Courcy, Midgell, lot 40, P.E.I., writes: "For some time I had stomach trouble, and was scarcely able to do anything at all. I was treated by doctors, but they did not seem to do me any good. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I did so, to very great advantage, for my old trouble has disappeared, and, though past middle age, I feel young and hearty again. I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's medicine."

Another interesting case of liver derangements and stomach troubles is that described in this letter:

Mrs. James Monteith, Saarin, Simcoe County, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for liver complaint, biliousness and terrible sick headaches, and have found that they are more effective than any treatment I ever tried. They cleanse the system thoroughly, remove the cause of pains and aches, and make you feel fresh and strong again. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are also excellent for stomach troubles."

By means of their direct and specific action on the liver—causing a healthful flow of bile—they regulate and enliven the action of the bowels and ensure good digestion in the intestines. At the same time they stimulate the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THE NEW DIAMOND CALK HORSESHOE

Three Shoes in One---Description of the Unique Pate nt--Its Utility and Practical Value---On Exhibition at The Toronto Fair

One of the exhibits at the Toronto Fair, which is attracting the special attention of the many thousands of horsemen, is the unique display of The Diamond Calk Horseshoe Co., Limited. This exhibit consists of a well-arranged display of the new Diamond Calk Horseshoe, and its combinations, winter and summer Calks, Retaining Plates, Heel and Toe Calk Holders, Set Screws, etc. The exhibit is situated in the Carriage Building, under the grand stand, and is in charge of the managing director of the company, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, the well-known live stock dealer of Peterborough. Mr. Kennedy and his assistants were cheerfully explaining to visitors the practical value and utility of the new horseshoe and the different combinations thereto.

This Unique Invention

is an improvement in horseshoes, consisting chiefly in the construction and arrangement of certain parts, by which the Shoe Calks are removably secured to the shoe and rigidly held in their place. The specific objects of the invention are:

1st—To overcome the frequent difficulties incident to the wearing parts of the calks of a horseshoe.

2nd—To secure greater safety and protection to the horse, by preventing slipping, sliding and falling.

3rd—To overcome the necessity and expense of employing expert labour in sharpening and changing the shoes.

4th—To provide a calk which may be quickly and easily changed, and which furnishes perfectly new wearing surfaces, without removing the shoe, and without any extra cost.

It was the very extensive—and, to horse-owners, the very expensive—business done in horseshoes and horseshoeing which first led Mr. H. P. Kennedy to give any attention to the matter of the improvement and cheapening of the horseshoe. When it was ascertained that, in Canada alone, several millions of horseshoes are manufactured every year, the subject began to open up to him in earnest. Figuring on this fact, it became quite evident that the field for some enterprise along this line was an attractive one. Although Mr. Kennedy at the time was conducting one of the largest live-stock businesses in Canada, as well as operating a large retail meat and provision establishment, and was the owner of large farming and abbatoir properties, he found time to devote to the horseshoe problem. He soon enlisted the interest of several influential and practical men as his associates, and succeeded in acquiring the patents of the Diamond Calk Horseshoe from the Inventor. Since then, Mr. Kennedy has added several important improvements and combinations to the shoe, which have enhanced its practical utility. He also secured a patent for Canada, dated May 28th, 1907, and has filed applications for patents in foreign countries. During the past eight months a big sum of money has been spent in Peterborough on the preliminary work on the improved patent, and in making and experimenting with sample shoes, and in the construction of machinery and tools for making the shoes and combinations therefor.

The Board of Directors are as follows:—H. P. Kennedy, President and Managing Director; John A. McCoy, Madoc, Vice-President; T. M. Higgins, Toronto, Secretary-Treasurer; T. A. Crow (of Crow & Murray), Toronto, and Wm. Douglas (of Higgins & Douglas), barristers, Toronto.

Such enterprising methods have been used in bringing the merits of the Diamond Calk Horseshoe before the notice of the public as cannot fail to have the effect of largely increasing the sale of these goods, and consequently, to largely enhance their reputation.

horse knows what it is to experience the vexatious delays of the blacksmith shop, when other horses are ahead of yours and your time is valuable.

The Diamond Calk is designed to obviate these troubles, as well as to do away with a great deal of the expense, time and trouble in keeping horses well shod.

Increased safety and protection are also guaranteed by the use of the Diamond Calk Horseshoe, as they largely assist in preventing slipping and sliding on wet and icy roads.

It will be seen that the calk presents a sharp wearing surface in the form of a triangular block, which is formed of hardened steel. The triangular form of the calk renders it useful in obtaining a foothold, even when the sharp edge of the triangle is worn off, as the slopsides form a wedge, and thus three sharp edges are available—or three calks in one.

When the edge of the calk becomes worn, or if it is desired to change the calk for any reason, it is merely necessary to remove the set screws and lift off the retaining plate when the calk may be turned on a new edge and the plate secured firmly in position again.

It is quite obvious from this description that a removable calk—such as described—has many advantages over a stationary calk, as the wearing surface of the calk may be very quickly changed without having to employ the services of an expert; and in the event of the calk and the holding plate becoming loose they may be adjusted to fit tightly without any trouble.

The Calk Holders

The retaining plates for the calks have a rectangular orifice in the centre through which the upward projecting portion of the calk extends. The plates are flanged so as to fit the calk snugly, the inner wall being bevelled for a good bearing surface.

Lugs are formed at the end of the retaining plate, fitting snugly against the sides of the shoe, and flanges hug the shoe from the rear side of the plate, so as to hold it firmly in position.

The above is an illustration of the heel calk, showing calk parallel with shoe.

The calk, when inserted in the holder or late, does not fit flush with the under side of the holder, but is about 1-16 of an inch full. This allows a spring or tension on set screws, and in case of any wear between the calk and the shoe, a half turn of the screw takes up any slack, and a tight fitting calk is always ensured. This is one of the specific points claimed in this invention.

The Plain Horse Shoes

The plain horseshoes used with the Diamond Calks are made in eight sizes. They are similar in construction to ordinary horseshoes; those for heavy draught or work horses, being made of heavier steel than those for driving or road horses. Nail holes and holes for set screws are drilled in each shoe, ready for putting on.

Advantages to Farmers, Delivery Horses, etc.

The Complete Diamond Calk Horseshoe

The above is a correct view of the complete Diamond Calk Horseshoe, showing the steel heel and toe calks, the retaining plates and set screws.

Every man who owns a horse knows to his cost what a heavy item of expense is involved in horseshoes and horse-shoeing. Every man who owns a horse knows the punishment inflicted on horses' feet by the continual renewal of shoes—tearing off old ones and hammering on new ones. Every man who owns a horse knows that tender feet is one of the most serious troubles which a horse is subject to. Every man who owns a horse knows that it is necessary to remove the shoes every time you sharpen, which must be a benefit to the horses feet, and that is a very essential thing.

made a perfect fit to the horse's foot, the calks coming under the heel, and all danger of over-reaching is avoided. There is no need of having shoes put in the fire to sharpen the calks. You can buy the calks by the dozen and re-sharpen your horse at any time at your own convenience.

How often it occurs that a farmer finds, when he goes to the village, town or city, to get his team sharpened, that he has to waste a half day waiting at the shop, and frequently returns without having succeeded in getting his horses shod. Quite frequently, too, you find that driving 10 to 15 miles home, after having your horses sharpened, the calks have become dulled, and you are not able to use your horses the following day, if the roads are icy.

Liverymen and firms using from 25 50 delivery horses shod in the old way frequently find their business seriously hampered by having their drivers waiting for hours at the blacksmith shop for their turn in getting shoes sharpened. Sometimes on Saturday night a company's horses will be all dull, and in order to get ready for business at 7 o'clock on Monday morning it is necessary to work on Sunday. With this new method calks can be reversed in the stable in a few minutes.

The driver of a delivery wagon in Toronto, after examining this shoe said: "Just what we want; I frequently start out with a load on an icy morning to the suburbs of the city; before I am half through the journey the horse is so slippy he can scarcely keep his feet. With the Diamond shoe, what a comfort it would be to the horse to reverse the calks and give him a fresh foot hold, save time in the delivering, and bring my horse to the stable feeling fresh, as compared with the old shoe, completely fagged out."

From a large number of letters of commendation which have been received by the company, the following will serve to show how favourably this new shoe is spoken of by practical horsemen:

From the T. Eaton Company, Toronto

Toronto, April 9th,—To whom it may concern: This is to certify that we have thoroughly tested the Diamond Calk Horseshoe, having had it on one of our hardest horses for five weeks and we are still using it on the same horse.

It is a most economical shoe, and has several features in its favour over the ordinary shoe. The Calk comes under the horses' foot, where they are required, and we find our horse going better on this shoe every day. Besides there is no necessity of putting fresh nail holes in our horses' feet every time it needs sharpening.

We certainly will adopt this shoe for general use as soon as they are placed on the market.

We are, at the present time, having other shoes fitted by the Company, which are much lighter in weight than the ordinary shoe; as there is no necessity of having such heavy stock as the old shoe, there being no wear, practically, excepting to the Calks.

Yours truly,
THE T. EATON CO.,
Per A. Barker, Stable Superintendent

From a Leading Horse Dealer

Toronto, Apr. 16th, 1907.

The Diamond Calk Horseshoe Co., Ltd.

Gentlemen,—With reference to the Diamond Calk Horseshoe, I am pleased to say that I have never before seen a horse shoe that, to my mind, will fill the requirements equal to this shoe. A very easy shoe for the horses to travel in, the side calks being especially beneficial to horses that go a little tender.

2nd. You always have a sharp horse when required, by removing the calks, which are quite easily adjusted, the screw being separate from the calks.

3rd. It is not necessary to remove the shoes every time you sharpen, which must be a benefit to the horses feet, and that is a very essential thing.

4th. You have always the very best steel calks in both heel and toe of your shoe, which is just what is required.

I have tested these shoes, and have seen them tested on horses that are very hard on shoes, and they have proven very satisfactory indeed. I never before seen anything in the horseshoe line that pleased me like this shoe; and, after having thoroughly tested it, I feel quite safe in saying that it is all that is claimed for it, and should prove an unqualified success.

Another quality which recommends this shoe to the public is the cost. While the first cost may appear a little higher than the old style, the durability of this shoe will lessen the cost in the long run very materially. It is our intention to use the shoe ourselves and keep them in stock for general use as soon as they are put on the market.

Yours truly,
THOS. A. CROW.

Raising Babies by Chart.

We let machines in the form of nurses and governesses raise our children under printed directions tacked upon the walls. And some mothers are proud of the completeness of their thraldom to these charts—actually proud because their babies are "scheduled" youngsters.

One day I was shown such a chart—a businesslike, austere product of some pseudo scientist's brain and printers' ink.

"Isn't it complete?" said the near mother. "Read it."

I read: "Aerated milk, 9 a. m. Scraped quarter orange, 9:30 a. m. Pasteurised milk, 10 a. m. Slice of health toast, 1-16 ounce, 10:15 a. m. Modified milk, 3 ounces, 10:45 a. m. Walk eighteen steps, 11 a. m. Two teaspoonfuls distilled water, 11:15 a. m."

The rest of the chart was similar to this.

"It is complete," said I, "but I should like to edit the next one they get out."

She opened her eyes and raised her brows. (You know the way superior people, especially the recently superior kind, do it—so's you get a taste in your mouth right away as if she had handed you a grapefruit to eat without sugar.)

"By putting in a line right here," I said, refusing to be frozen by her manner. "Twelve thirty to 1 o'clock, love baby a little."

She didn't even thank me for the suggestion—actually, she didn't. Women are peculiar propositions. What? —Bohemian.

Interviewing a Chinaman.

I remember one distinguished Chinese who gave the newspaper men a big surprise. We knew that he was a high officer and that he had come to this country on a mission of importance, but not one of us dreamed of getting from him more than a perfunctory interview through one of his interpreters. Through a secretary we conveyed to the big man our desire for an interview. He talked with his secretary in Chinese for a few moments, and then the secretary in halting English invited us to accompany him and the chief to the officer's suit. We filed in, dropped into the seats to which we were bowed by the statesman and waited for somebody to begin.

H. P. KENNEDY
To whom the New Patent for the Diamond Calk Horseshoe was granted

As we hesitated a peculiar smile lit the big man's face. Lying back in his chair, he cocked one leg over the other, lighted a cigar and dropped a bomb by saying: "Fire away, boys; I'm ready. But before you begin who won the boat race?"

Are Metals Alive?

"Metals have life," said a metallurgist firmly—"not much life, but a little. And metals can be stimulated, depressed, poisoned.

"Platinum wire, immersed in water, gives off an electric current that may easily be measured. If you put bicarbonate of soda in the water, the stimulated wire gives off a stronger current. Put in bromide of potassium, and the depressed wire gives off a weaker current. Finally, put in oxalic acid, and the poisoned wire gives off no current at all. It will never again give off any current. It is dead.

"Now, I leave it to you. If you can depress a metal, exhilarate it and finally administer to it a fatal dose of poison, have you not a right to say that the metal has life?"

A Mollified Subject.

Nollekens, the sculptor, was a man of pretty wit and of neat resource in compliment. He had at one time for a sitter a woman of great beauty, but of an extremely nervous and impatient temperament. During her sittings she would constantly change her position, and with each shift of posture her expression changed. At last the sculptor's patience gave way.

"Madam," he cried, "of what avail is your beauty if you will not sit still till I have reflected it in my model?"

The sitter smiled with gratified vanity and was as motionless as a lay figure during the remainder of her sittings.

"Strong Even in Death."

There is a characteristic story of an American woman formerly well known in London that will bear repeating, says a writer in London Truth. The lady is said to have written the following letter to a royal personage:

"Sir—My medical attendants have just informed me that I am in a hopeless condition. I should die happy did I know that you would be represented at my funeral. I inclose a check for £1,000 to cover all expenses."

HUNDRED POINT MEN: AN ESTIMATE

"A Hundred Point man is one who is true to every trust; who keeps his word; who is loyal to the firm that employes him; who does not listen for insults, nor look for slights; who carries a civil tongue in his head; who is polite to strangers, without being "fresh"; who is considerate towards servants; who is moderate in his eating and drinking; who is willing to learn; who is cautious and yet courageous.

"Hundred Point men vary much in ability, but this is always true—they are safe men to deal with, whether drivers of drays, motormen, clerks, cashiers, engineers or presidents of railways."—Hubbard.

A Heavenly City.

There is a city that looks o'er the valley of death,
And its glories can never be told,
There the sun never sets,
And the leaves never fade,
In that beautiful city of gold.

To the believer the Heavenly City, or New Jerusalem, is the ideal of all that is perfect and beautiful in Divine architecture—adorned as it is with whatever seems most precious and rare in the universe of God. Even "the street of the city is of pure gold, as it were transparent glass."—Rev. 21. 21.

This gorgeous city upon which the Divine hand has lavished so much magnificence and splendor is to be the ineffable home of the glorified. It is the "House of many mansions" of which the Saviour speaks, and in which He is now preparing a place for His people.—John 14 2.

The city is a perfect cube "the length and the breadth and the height of it are equal"—Rev. 21 16—It is twelve thousand furlongs on a side, or six thousand miles in circumference, and fifteen hundred miles high. It has 12 foundations, or story above story, and this may account for its immense height.

What a stupendous city! The throne of God and the Lamb are in it. "And there shall be no night there;" "for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof."

To form anything like an adequate conception of the magnitude of this wonderful city, "whose builder and maker is God," we must take into consideration its vast area. If we accept the figures literally of its dimensions—and why should we not?—each of its twelve stories has an area of over two million square miles, or more than twenty-four millions of square miles taken altogether. Such a city may well be called "the city of God."

The Old Testament saints will be there. For we are told that Abraham "looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker was God"—Heb 11 10 R.V. It is said, moreover, that on the twelve gates are the names of the twelve tribes of the Children of Israel"—Rev. 21 12

The New Testament saints will also be there. For on the twelve foundations are written "the names of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb"—Rev. 21 14. And so we read—"Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of God, which is New Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God"—Rev. 3 12.

Without dogmatizing we would suggest that the heavenly city is to be the seat of government, or place centralized authority, for the entire universe. Here Christ and His Cabinet, composed of those specially chosen in Him before the foundation of the world" Eph. 1 4, clothed in light, and surrounded by all that is most brilliant and glorious, will, we believe, exercise rule over all worlds. In John's Gospel we are told that all things were made by Christ, and that "without Him was not anything made that was made" John 1, 3. Paul confirms this same statement "For by Him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in the earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones or dominions or principalities or powers; all things were created by Him Col. 1, 16. And we further read that God, the Father, hath appointed Christ, his Son, to be "heir of all things," Heb. 1,2. And that believers are "heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ" Rom. 8, 17; which means the exercise of rule and authority with Him over all created things

As we understand it, this is to be the inheritance of the Church of the first-born, which is the body of which Christ is the head, destined to rule from the heavenly city, in unison with the Head, over all worlds, or, in other words, over the entire created universe. And so Paul tells us in Ephesians 2,4-7, that God, who is rich in mercy, for His great love wherewith He loved us...hath quickened us together with Christ, and hath raised us up together and made us sit together in the heavenly places in Jesus Christ; that in the ages to come He might shew the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us through Christ Jesus.

In those ages to come, which include "the times of restitution of all things" Acts 3,21; there is a period called the dispensation of the fulness of times, Eph. 1, 10; in which God through Christ is going "to reconcile all things unto Himself, whether they be things in earth, or things in Heaven' Col. 1,20.

That "the church of the first-born which is identified with the heavenly city; Heb. 12; 22, 23; has a part in this work of reconciliation is evident from what Paul states in II Cor. 5. 18, 19; that "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them;" "and hath given unto us (the church) the ministry of reconciliation" Those who limit the message of the gospel to the present dispensation know but little of God's eternal purpose (Greek, purposis of the ages) which He purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord" The work of reconciling all things to God will be stupendous in its magnitude, and of surprising glory to the first-born church, or called-out-ones, who will share with Christ in the honour and glory of it, as well as of reigning with Him over the whole stellar universe in a state of ever increasing happiness and bliss.

The heavenly city is called the Bride because it is to be the eternal dwelling-place of the Bride, the Lamb's wife—Rev. 21; 9,10.

We would further suggest that the New Testament saints are not the Bride that the Bride is chosen from among the Old Testament saints, and that the New Testament saints, or those of them who have specially suffered with Christ, will constitute the Body of which He is the Head. The Body, it appears to the writer, is not a wife, but is made up of the "many sons" which Christ brings to glory, Heb. 2, 10. And which is really and truly part of Christ Himself. I Cor. 12,12—"the fulness of Him that filleth all in all," as stated in Eph. 1,23 There are an increasing number of writers, and Christain believers, who hold this view amongst them the late Rev. J. Denham Smith, who on this point remarks as follows:—"It is singular that they are nowhere in the Old Testament scriptures spoken of as the Body of Christ even as nowhere do the Epistles, written expressly for the church as now called out, speak of it as Bride."

In apparent confirmation of this view of Body and Bride we would call the reader's attention to a remarkable passage in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. Paul, in speaking of the Old Testament worthies, says, "these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise; God having provided some better thing for us, the New Testament saints, that they without us should not be made perfect." verses 39, 40.

Thus it appears that while both classes of saints are perfected at one and the same time, the New Testament saints are to have the preeminence. And what is that preeminence or "better thing" which awaits the New Testament church? Is it not that it constitutes the Body of Christ? If this be so it will be seen that the Old Testament saints, being the Bride, could not be perfected or receive their reward until the Body was completed, and the time had arrived for the marriage to be consummated. If this is the true conception of Paul's statement must it not be that the Body, being a part of Christ Himself, stands in a higher relationship to the Head than does the Bride? So it appears to us.

TO-DAY'S BIG GAME IN CORNWALL

Shamrocks and the Factory Town Team Meet This Afternoon

To-day one of the most important games in the N.A.L.U. will be played when the Shamrocks meet Cornwall in the factory town.

If Shamrocks lose to Cornwall and Tecumsehs defeat Nationals, Tecumsehs and Shamrocks will be tied for first place and the Minto Cup. The gate receipts, if they meet in a save-off will bbe large enough to pay Jim Kavanagh's salary for the year.

Jimmy Murphy, of the Torontos, wouldn't express an opinion yesterday morning when approached regarding his impressions of the probable result of the game. "Those young men on the Shamrocks have come to form in a surprising way and the Shamrocks are now playing better lacrosse than at any time this season. In 21 years the Irishmen are only one win to the good over Cornwall. Before expressing an opinion I would like to know who the officials are to be. No two men in the East referee alike. I think myself that the question of officials will go to an appointment. As for the National-Tecumseh game, if the Frenchmen get off with a lead of two or three goals they will win. They started off last year with a lead of five goals, and Tecumsehs beat them out. But this was the exception.'

"Jimmie" Hogan, of the Shamrocks, is recovering and will be in the big game at Cornwall, to-day.

"Chaucer Elliott's Chasers," of Oswego, N.Y., are only eleven points behind the leaders in the Empire League. They say they will be on top soon.

All compasses will point toward the factory-town to-day, and the chances are that a record crowd will be in attendance when the Shamrocks and Cornwall's cross sticks, as this game is attracting widespread interest throughout the province.

The Perfumes of Araby.

Sometimes a combination of two or more odors gives a much more delightful perfume than either used singly. For example, combine an ounce and a half of some really good violet extract with half an ounce each of rose, tuberose and cassia extract, and the result is a decidedly novel yet delicate and lasting perfume. If to this are added half an ounce of the tincture of orris root, five drops of oil of bitter almond and two and a quarter drams of triple rosewater, the odor is intensified, yet not too strongly.

If two and one-half ounces each of extract of rose and tuberose, with a gill of extract of cassia and two and one-half ounces of tincture of orris root, with a single grain of bitter almond oil, are well blended, a most excellent imitation of a fragrant violet perfume results.

These delicate extracts, it must be remembered, call for care and exactness in blending and most exquisite cleanliness in utensils and bottles, as the oils are so absorbent that they become spoiled, and one's time, money and work are all for naught.

London Gives Up Meat.

One of the features of the London season now closing has been the objection to long and elaborate meals among the swell set. This tendency has been particularly observable in the most fashionable restaurants, where it has often taken a vegetarian form, peas and other summer vegetables being frequently ordered as separate dishes and consumed liberally, while the meat was sent away untouched.

The manager of a west end hotel, who has been impressed by the prevailing simplicity in eating, instances, among other things, the case of a millionaire who for several weeks was a guest at the hotel. He dined regularly on a plate of clear soup, a tiny piece of fish plainly cooked, two small cutlets, a liberal quantity of peas, and one or two glasses of white wine.

Another caterer says there has undoubtedly been a craze this year for simpler meals, but food fads, like others, he says, run in cycles, and fashionable people will soon tire of frugality and return to a more substantial mode of living.

Proud of His Dog.

"He's the most pestiferous little pup in town, sir," exclaimed the angry neighbor, "and you've got to keep him at home or I'll take a club to him the next time he comes over here and tramples my flower beds and"—

"You dare to so much as shake your little finger at that dog of mine, and I'll knock your head off!" shouted the other man.

"Who said anything about your dog? I mean that youngest boy of yours."

"Oh, well, that's different. I'll give him a talking to and whip him if he bothers you any more."

YOUNG GIRL PREACHER

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD WHO STIRS GREAT CONGREGATIONS.

Gifted Child Does Wonderful Work—Makes Many Converts—Power and Pathos of Her Sermons—Thousands Flock to Hear Frances Storr Preach—Great Revival in Yorkshire as a Result.

The latest recruit to the ranks of child preachers is a little Doncaster girl, who is electrifying Yorkshire just as Evan Roberts roused Wales.

Frances Bradley Storr is the name of the new evangelist. She is the daughter of a working woman, who is at present the police court missionary, at Doncaster, for the British Women's Temperance Association. The child's step-father is a laborer employed in the town at the Great Northern Plant Works.

There can be no question about the wonderful work that this gifted child is doing. Although she was only 12 years old last September, in one month alone she has addressed more than 5,000 people, and it is said that something like 500 men and women are to-day glorying in conversion as a result of her simple, childlike preaching.

"Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings Thou has perfected praise," was the text that came to the mind of a press representative who called upon this little lady who has in ten months caused a wave of revivalism to sweep over the county and spread to neighboring counties, to the astonishment of the greybeards of the Primitive Methodist Church.

She is just a winsome girl, of somewhat full oval features, and of marked intellectualism. A little older in appearance, by reason of unusual thoughtfulness, than her years lead one to expect, but bright, eager, and sparkling, as a child should be.

"Why do you want to preach?" she was asked. There was no immediate response, but the mother supplemented the question with another.

"What do you think is the grandest sight you can see on earth?" she asked her, and the large expressive eyes

GIRL PREACHER.

"Oh, I think it is to see men and women converted. That is what I wanted mother to let me preach for. And I shall go on preaching. I never have any trouble what to say, the message seems to be given, and I deliver it."

Does a worldly career tempt her?

Listen to the answer she gave to the question, a simple straightforward reply, without affectation. "Oh, no; it is the future I think about."

She is no actor, and when asked to stand in the attitude in which she would address an audience she became self-conscious and almost awkward. But she holds her mother's Bible in a very natural way, with the finger between the leaves of the closed volume at the place where the text from which she is speaking is to be found. Sometimes she varies the pose, and the book is pressed to the side, while slight emphasis is secured to enforce a particular sentence by a little raising of the left hand.

Simple Faith.

When one hears the story of the mother's fight with the world when Frances was only four years old one sees that the message she gives gains its strength largely from the fact that she illustrates it in homely fashion by the experiences of her own childhood.

For instance, she reminds the people that when they were little and in trouble or danger their first cry was for "Mother" or "Father," and from the helplessness of the child draws the lesson of dependence on the Heavenly Father.

The lesson of faith is illustrated in similar fashion. Her father, a workman, died when she was but four years old, and left the widow with five children to provide for. "I have gone to the shop with a pair of boots to be mended," she tells, "and there was no money to pay for them. But we knew God would send the money, and it was always there when the boots were ready."

Another favorite illustration of her subject, when she is reminding people that the Gospel light is always shining, is to say: "When you go into a train you don't notice that there is a light in the carriage, but when you run into the darkness of a tunnel you see it, and feel glad it is there, because the darkness has come."

Perhaps the secret of the child's success, apart from any supernatural theory, is to be found in her mother's intense desire that one of her children would be gifted to help her in her religious work.

"I used to pray," said Mrs. Storr, "that it might be so."

As the mother speaks the little evangelist glances at her with a look of deep affection, and it is quite clear that she is glad for her mother's sake that her preaching has been so successful.

No More Pilgrimages.

Rome, Aug. 31.—The Vatican has announced that all pilgrimages to Rome scheduled for the months of September and October are to be postponed on account of the present anti-clerical agitation in Italy.

STRUCK BIG GAS WELL.

Gusher Opened In Tilbury With 10,000,000 Feet Capacity.

Chatham, Aug. 31.—The largest gas well ever struck in Tilbury East, twice the size of the well supplying Chatham, has been opened. The well is of 10,000,000 cubic feet capacity. It is on the Jackson farm and is operated by the Leamington Oil & Gas Co. of Leamington.

Gas was struck at 1,350 feet, when the tools were lost in the hole, including the whole length of rope cable. On account of this accident a most interesting phenomena is occurring. The gas flow from the hole is so strong that several hundred feet of cable flutter upright in the hole, fiercely fluttering like a flag in a windstorm.

Died In Sight of Home.

Brockville, Aug. 31.—After an absence of 36 years away from his old home, and traveling from Adair, Iowa, with his wife for the purpose of visiting with old friends at Dawson, a few miles from here, Edward McEvoy was taken suddenly ill in a hotel at Kemptville, six miles from his objective point on Thursday night, and died before morning.

When He Got Sense.

Husband—Have you still the letters I wrote you before we were married?

Wife—Yes. Why? Husband—Bring them here. I want to burn them. I am just making my will, and I am afraid that if any of my relations see those letters after I am dead they will think I was of unsound mind.—Lustige Blatter.

Easy, but Heavy.

"I suppose it was hard work to fathom my argument?" said the lawyer.

"No," answered the judge; "it was easy to follow it, but it was difficult to keep awake until the destination was reached."

Disappointed.

"Tommy, you've got a new little brother. Aren't you glad?"

Kaiser's Daughter to Wed.

London, Aug. 31.—Emperor William, it is understood, will arrange a marriage between his only daughter, Princess Victoria, and his cousin, Prince Leopold, son of the Princess Henry of Battenberg, when he visits his uncle, King Edward, this fall.

Princess Victoria is Emperor William's youngest child. She is fifteen years old. Her intended husband, Prince Leopold, is 18. He is a brother to the Queen of Spain.

VOL. XLIII NO. 53 PETERBOROUGH TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 3 1907 PRICE TWO CENTS

ROBERT FAIR & CO.

THE GOLDEN LION STORE

We have told you before of the Immense Importations on the way from the home land—the contents of case on case and bale on bale have been marked off and passed into stock the past two weeks—at first we were puzzled to find room for all, but now everything is shipshape and ready for you—and the beauty, variety and value! well, come and see for yourself.

On TUESDAY, SEPT., 3rd, we will be fully ready for the Autumn Campaign with these as samples of many very special values in DRESS GOODS and SUITINGS.

THE NEWEST DRESS TWEEDS at 50c and 75c

Most beautiful and artistic color combinations in dark checks, plaids and overchecks, all that is new in Tweeds from the mills of England and Scotland—see the values! examine the qualities! nothing better has ever been shown at the price in Peterboro.

PLAIN VENETIAN CLOTHS at 50c and 75c

The same statement as to value and quality applies here. The best to be had for the money—every wanted color and new shade will be found in this line.

SUN PLEATED NUNSVEILING at 50c and 75c

Two widths 40 and 45 inch in cream, black and colors—no trimming needed, very little cost for making— a stylish and popular material.

HOW ABOUT DRESSMAKING?

No Risk or Speculation here— your Garment will be just as wanted and just when wanted, and the cost less than you would expect for stylish and high class work.

QUIET REIGNED ON THE HOLIDAY

Labour Day Characterized as an Uneventful Rest From Labour—Many Left the City

LAST SUMMER HOLIDAY

The last public holiday until Thanksgiving Day, and the close of the summer season were characteristic features of Labour Day, which was celebrated yesterday. So far as Peterborough was concerned it was well observed—labour was suspended—and the city presented a Sunday morning appearance all day. There was nothing in the nature of a public celebration in the city, the local Trades and Labour Council deciding some time ago to dispense with any function to mark labour's holiday this year.

As a consequence, many persons left the city to spend the day elsewhere, Toronto being the mecca for the greater number. The threatening weather of the morning doubtless prevented many, who would otherwise have spent the day outside, leaving the city.

The only excursion was that conducted by Court Chemong, I.O.F., and the objective point was Idyl Wild, where the steamer Otonabee took a good crowd, and a pleasant day was spent. The only event in the city was the racing matinee held at the Driving Park by the Turf Club, and those who spent the afternoon there were repaid for their expenditure of time and money.

The day was unmarred by any untoward circumstance, so far as the public was concerned, and this morning everyone settled down to work again.

DEBENTURE INTEREST IS INCREASED

Finance Committee Held Meeting Last Night

The Finance Committee of the city council held a meeting on Friday night, at which the most important business done was the passing of a resolution to the effect that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a bylaw to increase the rate on the debenture to be issued for $9358.10, to pay the city's share of the cost of sewer from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent. The usual accounts were also passed.

The members present were Aldermen Tovey and Morrow, and the Mayor.

LITTLE POCKET PHYSICIAN

Hyomei is Guaranteed by Mr. Madill to Cure Catarrh

Thousands who have been cured by Hy-o-mei call the inhaler that comes with every outfit the "Little Pocket Physician, as it is so small that it can be carried in the pocket or purse.

There is really no excuse now for anyone having catarrh seeing that Hy-o-mei is so readily obtainable. If you have any doubt about its value Mr. Madill will let you have a complete outfit with the understanding that unless it cures catarrh it will not cost you a cent.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit consists of the "Little Pocket Physician," and a bottle of "Hy-o-mei," and costs only one dollar, making it the most economical as well as the only guaranteed treatment for the cure of catarrh. Remember that Hy-o-mei cures catarrh without stomach dosing, applying the medication and healing where the disease germs are present.

PETERBOROUGH PASSENGERS HAD SEVERE SHAKING UP: ENGINE JUMPED TRACK

At Leaside Junction Last Night C. P. R. Local Took to the Ties—The Engine Toppled Over.

PASSENGERS FRIGHTENED

Delay Was Caused by the Accident—Occurred at Leaside Junction—A Heavy Train.

The several hundred Peterborough passengers, who came down from the Toronto Exhibition last night on the C. P. R. local, had an experience which might have been fraught with serious consequences, but which, fortunately, only resulted in a slight delay. While the heavily laden train was making it way up the steep grade in the Don valley, the engine in front had to have the assistance of another one in the rear of the train. All went well until the yard at Leaside Junction was reached, when, through a misplaced swith the train took a siding, along which it ran for some distance until it came to an open switch. The engineer of the front engine is said to have seen that all was not right, and put on the emergency brakes, but this was not sufficient to overcome the push of the engine in the rear. The consequence was that the front engine took to the ties, through which it broke as if they were so many matches, and sank to the axles in the gravel, the cowcatcher turning up the ground like a plough. While the tender remained in an upright position, the engine proper lay partly on its side. The front trucks of the baggage car were also off the rails. Another engine, of course, had to be secured, and after about an hour's delay the train proceeded on its way eastward.

New Machinery In Quaker Oats Company's Mill To Revolutionize The Packing

Packages to be Filled and Sealed By Machinery in Future—Growth of Business Makes it Necessary.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The Quaker Oats Company is at present installing a set of machinery which, when it has been placed in operation will revolutionize the packing department of that Company's mills. The growth of the business has been so rapid in the package goods that it has been found impossible to secure at times, sufficient female help, and in view of this circumstance a packing machine, which will greatly facilitate the work was decided upon. It is a machine which will enable the department to turn out the goods much more rapidly and with less labour. Girls will still be required to attend the machines, but with the same number of girls a greatly increased output will be made possible.

Other improvements are in course of installation at these mills too, and when they are completed the cases of packed goods will be sent through shutes directly into the cars, obviating the necessity for trucking them from the warehouse into the cars.

It is understood that the Company had under consideration the equipment of a cooperage in connection with the operation of the mill, to supply barrels for the flour mill. At the present time it is difficult to secure sufficient barrels at times, and it has been necessary to ship them from Toronto. The installation of the cooperage equipment, however, will not be taken up at once, it is stated. Fifteen hundred barrels per day is the capacity of the flour mill, and it can readily be seen that to supply that number of barrels each day is a big contract.

The business in every department of the Company's enterprise is growing at such a rapid rate that extensive additions are a possibility of the near future.

Satisfactory Results Of Army Immigration Work

Staff-Capt. Jennings, in Charge of That Branch of the Salvation Army in Maritime Provinces, in the City.

20,000 THIS YEAR

Staff Capt. Jennings, formerly officer in charge of the local Salvation Army Corps, and at present directing the Army's immigration work at Halifax, has been in the city for a few days on a vacation. To an Examiner reporter, Adjutant Jennings, referring to the work of that department, stated that this year about 20,000 immigrants had reached Canada' shores through the agency of the Army, 10,000 of these coming to Halifax and being handled by Adjt. Jennings and his staff.

The class of new settlers brought to Canada this year is more satisfactory than that of previous years, and very few complaints have been received by the officers of that department. This is attributed to the fact that, while in other years persons were taken by the Army from distress committees in various cities, and these persons were in most cases destitute and beyond the direct control of the Army, this year none but those who were selected by the Army officials were brought out, and the result was much more satisfactory.

The plans for next year have already been decided upon, Brigadier Howell, who is in charge of that department of the work for Canada, having recently returned from England, where he had a conference with the English officers on the matter. While details have not yet been given out, Capt. Jennings stated that the work would be prosecuted with vigour again, and he anticipated that a larger number of immigrants would be brought to this country than ever before.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL OUTING

Members of Sunday School of Gospel Hall Spent Enjoyable Day at Jackson Park on the Holiday

The annual outing of the Non-denominational Sunday School of Gospel Hall, held yesterday, was the most enjoyable outing ever held. Two special cars conveyed the company around the city and then to Jackson Park, where a short time was spent in play, and lunch was served, then returning to the hall, corner of George and Brock streets, where a sumptuous supper was served by the ladies, after which addresses were given by the superintendent and Mr. H. A. Fife. The superintendent spoke of the character of the work done by the teachers, and its undenominational nature, and urged every one to assist in the work of educating the young. Mr. Fife spoke on "The Gift of All Gifts." A most enjoyable time was brought to a close by singing and thanks to God for all His gifts.—Com.

MEETS QUEER OLD INDIAN.

Spent Sixteen Days In Jail For Possessing a Bible.

"As wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove" is not translated literally in the Eskimo Bible, where it is changed to "as wise as a weasel or ermine and as harmless as a seal pup," for the Eskimos don't know much about serpents and doves. Some of the other people who are getting the Bible in their own tongues are ignorant of snow, so the word chalk is substituted when a comparison denoting whiteness is desired. Although he has not been visiting the Eskimos, Rev. W. E. Hassard, field secretary of the Upper Canada Bible Society, has been in contact with some of Canada's Indians recently, and he tells some amusing stories of a trip through Muskoka from which he has just returned.

Mr. Hassard is just home from his trip, which lasted four months, during which time he addressed thirty-five audiences. At one place he reminded his hearers that the first translation of the Bible into Mohawk was done in Toronto. At the close of the lecture a man in the audience pointed out to him that the Eromaga translation for the Hebrides also came from that city. There are now Bibles in sixty languages being distributed in Canada.

On the way down from Port Carling Mr. Hassard met an Indian, Lewis Sahanadien, a man of over 70, who was given a Testament in 1860, and who afterwards spent sixteen days in jail for having it in his possession. At this period some 53 families of Indians left the Roman Catholic Church. Finding themselves pastorless, they were puzzled what Church to join. Sahanadien was going to Montreal, so they finally decided that he should approach the first minister he met there and offer their allegiance to whatever Church he might represent. The Indian met a Methodist preacher, and the whole contingent promptly joined the Methodist Church.

The field secretary traveled about 1,000 miles on his trip, starting from Coldwater. Between Toronto and Coldwater his magic lantern generator went astray, and it was only recently he received word that the railway had succeeded in locating it. He found Muskoka very busy with tourists, but the people who live there permanently attended his meetings in good numbers. At Magnetawan he met a Sunday school worker, who goes four miles to his school every Subbath. There is an attendance of thirty.

GOLDWIN SMITH'S BIRTHDAY.

Distinguished Professor Attains 84th Year.

Dr. Goldwin Smith, the Sage of the Grange, Toronto, celebrated his 84th birthday recently. Born at Reading, Eng., on August 13th, 1823, the distinguished political scientist and author came to America in 1868, after occupying the chair of regius professor of modern history at Oxford University, and he gave lectures on English Constitutional History at Cornell University. In 1871 he removed to Toronto, where he has resided since, a period of 36 years.

The distinguished doctor received the congratulations of his numerous friends on the attainment of his 84th year and hopes are expressed that he may see many more natal days.

Seized the Opportunity.

There were bold thieves and bold methods in the earlier days in Holborn. Here is an example:

Said a stout, asthmatic old gentleman to a well dressed stranger who was passing: "A rascal has stolen my hat. I tried to overtake him, but—I'm so out of breath—I can't stir another inch." The stranger surveyed the other with critical eye. The victim was puffing and panting as for dear life. In the pleasantest tone in the world the stranger said, "Then I'll be hanged, old boy, if I don't have your wig!" So saying, he snatched that article from the sufferer's head and departed like the wind, leaving him with head as bare as a babe's.—St. James' Gazette.

Antiquity of the Census.

The idea of the census is almost as old as history itself. King Amasis of Egypt took a census of his people 500 years before Christ. The Athenian solon established a census for the purpose of facilitating taxation. We learn that about 443 B. C. Servius Julius took a census of Rome. During the chaos of the dark ages the census dropped into oblivion, but was revived again about the beginning of the eighteenth century.

AID FOR SALVATION ARMY.

Senator Cox to Advance $50,000 For Ontario Scheme.

Provided that the townships in the great clay belt in Nipissing and Algoma are found to be suitable for colonization purposes, Hon. Senator Cox is prepared to advance to the Salvation Army authorities a sum of about $50,000, for the prosecution of a scheme of colonies in Ontario, at a reasonable rate of interest on the security of the land. The report of a commission which recently surveyed the land is now being perused by Senator Cox, and upon his estimate of its contents depends the success of the present proposition.

This great colonization scheme, drawn up by the heads of the Salvation Army, has just been approved in principle by Gen. Booth and Government officials, and it awaits the sanction of a joint commission of the Army and the Government to be carried into effect. Its features are these:—

The Government is to sell to the Salvation Army ten townships, comprising 230,000 acres in North-west Ontario. The price to be 25c per acre, payment to be spread over a period of ten years without interest. The Army to locate 144 settlers on every township, each having the usual sized homestead of 160 acres. Men experienced in clearing land for agricultural purposes, also officials of the Army trained in settlement work, are to supervise the colony.

"Nothing is yet settled," said Senator Cox when asked recently about the matter. "If the land and other matters, such as climatic conditions, are satisfactory, the scheme will in all probability succeed. If the report, which I have not yet considered, is of an unsatisfactory nature, the Army will have to cast about for more suitable land."

"The plans of this scheme were submitted to Gen. Booth during his recent tour in Canada." "Of course, the ultimate idea is that the settlers may acquire the land they have cultivated. It is one of the many meritorious things about the Salvation Army, this principle of theirs, to give every man a chance of doing something for himself in the new land of his adoption. It is the essence of this colonization scheme and its main object.

"The undertaking may, moreover, be considered a sound business proposition. If the present scheme is successful no one can say how far similar efforts may go."

Senator Cox declines to give further information until a definite decision has been reached as to the suitability of the land under consideration.

Place For Strenuous Workers.

British journalists representing the leading daily papers of the motherland have been on a tour of inspection and investigation in the Northwest, with a view to making the great resources of the Dominion more generally known in the old country, and recently reached Toronto.

The party are: Ernest Beam, London Times; S. Begg, Illustrated London News; R. R. Barnes, Westminster Gazette; P. H. Cockman, Morning Post; Harold Bigbig, Daily Chronicle; A. J. Dawson, Standard; Howard Gray, Pall Mall Gazette; Frank Rinder, Glasgow Herald; T. B. Maclachlan, The Scotsman; J. R. Fisher, Belfast Northern Whig.

George Ham and W. Stitt, Montreal, representing the C. P. R., accompanied the party.

They informed the press that they had been having a right royal time, and were greatly impressed with the country. Its vastness, beauty and illimitable resources were far more extensive than they had anticipated.

The West offered inducements for those who were adapted to a hardy outdoor life that could not be surpassed in any part of the world.

The big cities won their admiration, the architecture and solidity of the public buildings coming in for warm words of praise.

Ernest Beam of The Times said: "The cities of Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria and the towns of Calgary, Regina, Portage la Prairie and Edmonton were equal to any European places."

Their optimism was contagious. It made one feel that there was room for millions more people, who could work under more favorable conditions than at home, with the certainty of good wages and all the attendant blessings of prosperity.

All members of the party, however, think that it is most desirable that only those who have been used to or can easily adapt themselves to a strenuous life should come here; also that they have some capital. Given these conditions, failure should be impossible, and Canada should quickly become one of the foremost countries in the world.

HE WRITES OF WINNIPEG.

British Journalist's Appreciation of Great Western City.

No city anywhere is growing as fast as Winnipeg at present. Within the last two years it has spent over four millions sterling upon new buildings. Its population increased from 90,000 in June, 1906, to 111,000, according to the official estimate, in April, 1907. It swallows up more and more of the prairie every month.

Need it be said that land speculation is being carried on with frenzied eagerness to reap a personal advantage from the city's growth? The talk in Winnipeg is all of real estate. Everyone buys lots, holds them for a while, and then sells at a profit. Waiters, cabmen, newsboys even, all make their bit. You can buy a hundred thousand pounds' worth or twenty pounds' worth with equal facility. Every second shop is a land shop. The windows are filled with attractive "snaps," and also with notices of labor wanted in all kinds of uncouth languages, of which Scandinavian and Icelanders are the least abstruse.

Boom Is Overdone.

If you want work, you can engage yourself off-hand as a railway laborer, a farm-hand, an agricultural engine-driver, or a camp cook. If you want an investment you can walk in, plank down five dollars, the rest to be paid by instalments, and come out a landowner. And when you hear the large and quick profits made, you feel you have got to Get-rich-quick-land and no mistake.

It is being overdone, of course. Many shrewd observers think there will be before long another severe break in prices, though not so disastrous as that of 1884. Then those who cannot afford to hold on will suffer. But the set-back will only be for a while. Town values are inflated now, but the time cannot be far distant when they will be double what they are to-day. This is a sober estimate. If one believed Winnipeggers, one might look to quadruple one's capital within the next two years. Of all optimists they are the most optimistic.

Perennial Story of Harvest.

This is partly the result of their wonderful climate. The delicious, clear, light prairie air is invigorating and stimulating beyond any I have ever breathed. After five or six hours sleep you get up in the morning freshness feeling that no task is too difficult and that it is a luxury to be alive.

They are quite certain in Winnipeg that this year's harvest will beat all records in spite of the late spring. They have no doubt whatever that in twenty-five years' time the west will supply England with all the wheat she asks for—at present our requirement is 220,000,000 bushels a year—and have enough over not only to feed Canada, but to export very largely to other countries, China and Japan, for example, as well. There are said to be some 200,000,000 acres of land suitable for wheat-growing in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. If only a fourth of this were cultivated, the yield would be at least 800,000,000 bushels.—Hamilton Fyfe in London Daily Mail.

THROUGH THE WHEAT COUNTRY

British Journalists Inspect Canadian Northern System.

The Government party of British journalists who were visiting the Dominion recently arrived at Winnipeg, having traveled over 1,100 miles through the wheat growing country served by the Canadian Northern Railway. Mr. McConkey, chairman of the party, who visited the west four years ago before the Canadian Northern Railway main line was completed one-third of the way to Edmonton, expressed gratification with the remarkable developments of the country in the interval, and mentioned as a striking, though by no means unique demonstration, the case of Vonda, which tendered the visitors a cordial reception, and presented them with an address, from which it was learned that in 1905, when the railway reached that district, one hundred thousand bushels of wheat were reported, that last year the quantity was five hundred thousand, and this year it is expected to be seven hundred and fifty thousand. Mr. McConkey pointed out that this was equivalent to one pound of grain for each man, woman and child in the British Isles, and left on hand a surplus of five million pounds.

Etiquette of Indian Tepee.

"If you should ever go into an Indian tepee," said John H. Seger, "remember they have rules of etiquette that are more rigidly adhered to than in our parlors.

"Do not think they are not sensitive, for they are more so than the Japs. If you make fun of his layout the whole family will remember the insult for a lifetime. The seat of honor is just opposite the door, across the fire pit. Wait until you are invited before you take that seat. If you go bolting into an Indian's tepee and rush over and take this vacant seat he may not take you by the nape of the neck and throw you out, but he would like to if he thought it could be done without cutting off his rations.

"In leaving the tepee never pass between anyone and the fire. An old chivalric warrior will crawl around the side of the tent and kick a hole in the wall on the north side of a blizzard before he would violate this rule of etiquette and pass between his guests and the smoking embers."

Locomotive Puffs.

The cough, or puff, of a railway engine is due to the abrupt emission of waste steam up the chimney. When moving slowly the coughs can, of course, be heard following each other quite distinctly, but when speed is put on the puffs come out one after the other much more rapidly, and when eighteen coughs a second are produced they cannot be separately distinguished by the ear. A locomotive running at the rate of nearly seventy miles an hour gives out twenty puffs of steam every second—that is, ten for each of its two cylinders.

OUR CANADA.

Oh Canada, our Canada!
We sing in praise of thee,
To Him who steers the nations
Like ships across the sea;
For so hath God thy maker
In mercy guided thee,
From narrowness and poverty
To wealth and liberty.

Oh Canada, our Canada!
We sing with pride of thee,
A land of wondrous riches,
Stretching from sea to sea;
A land of mighty forests,
Of rivers deep and wide,
Thy grandeur and thy beauty
No cloud can ever hide.

Oh Canada, our Canada!
We sing with joy of thee,
Thou land of saints and heroes,
Where thought and speech are free;
A land where truth is honored,
And right and knowledge dear,
Where children are taught to worship
And the Sabbath to revere.

Oh Canada, our Canada!
We lift our prayers for thee,
To the Shepherd of the nations,
The author of liberty,
That on thy happy children
His gracious hand may rest,
That they may live like brethren,
And with lasting peace be blest.

CANADA WINS KING'S CUP.

Result of the Artillery Competition At Halifax.

Amid a scene of great enthusiasm, in which Colonel Wishart of the British team led the cheering, the announcement was made at the banquet recently tendered to visitors of the Canadian Artillery Association at the Halifax Hotel that the team of the first Canadian artillery, under the command of Major Hensley of Halifax, had won the King's Cup in the coast artillery competition. The competition had been going on for two days from Fort Sandwich, with six-inch and twelve-pounder guns. The Canadians won by 87 points, the total figures being: Canadians 617, British 530. In the first series with six-inch gun, twenty-four rounds at four thousand yards, the Englishmen made ten hits in three minutes and 51 seconds, the Canadians eighteen hits in four minutes fifteen seconds. In the second series the Englishmen made fourteen hits in two minutes fifteen seconds. Canadians sixteen hits in two minutes fourteen seconds.

With twelve-pounders, first series, thirty rounds at fifteen hundred yards, the English team made eighteen hits in one minute thirty-three seconds, the Canadians twenty hits in one minute and thirty-one seconds.

In the second series the Britishers made thirteen hits in one minute forty-three seconds, and the Canadians thirteen hits in one minute twenty-five seconds. The Canadians excelled in accuracy and quick handling of the twelve-pounders.

When the result was announced Col. Wishart of the British team jumped to his feet and called for three cheers for the winners. Major Hensley responded with three cheers for the British team, and for several minutes cheer for cheer was given. Col. Drury presided at the banquet and Lieut.-Governor Fraser proposed the toast to the National Artillery Association. Col. the Earl of Stradbroke responded, making a very happy speech, referring enthusiastically to the hospitality tendered to the visitors throughout Canada, and the interest of the King and Prince of Wales in the competitions in Canada, as evidenced by the presentation of the cups, both of which Canadians have won. Speaking before results were known, Lord Stradbroke said both teams had acquitted themselves well, and he felt no Admiral would dare bring his ships into Halifax under that fire. He had seen but little of Canada, but it was enough to tell him that the Dominion had not only great possibilities, but great probabilities. With regard to military affairs "defence, not defiance," should be Canada's motto, and he said that the Dominion should put every ounce of her energies into developing her resources.

Care In Immigration.

Not only in our great western heritage, but in the eastern provinces as well, we offer splendid homes to the best class of settlers that any country can produce. The attention of the world has been directed to Canada through the remarkable development of the West, and through the world-wide industrial and commercial expansion of recent years. In the past it has been quantity rather than quality. The splendid opportunities which we afford and the homes which we offer entitle us to the very best class of settlers from the British Isles, from the United States, and from the chosen and selected races of continental Europe. In future our watchword should be quality rather than quantity. Let us adopt as another article of our policy:

"A more careful consideration of the sources from which immigration shall be sought, a more rigid inspection of immigrants and the abolition of the bonus system except under very special circumstances and for the purpose of obtaining particularly desirable classes of settlers."—R. L. Borden.

The Chaser.

His Wife—George, I heard you and Mr. Fullup talking about a "chaser" a little while ago. A chaser is an animal of some kind, isn't it?

Mr. Drysome—Yes. It's a kind/of—er—water animal.—Exchange.

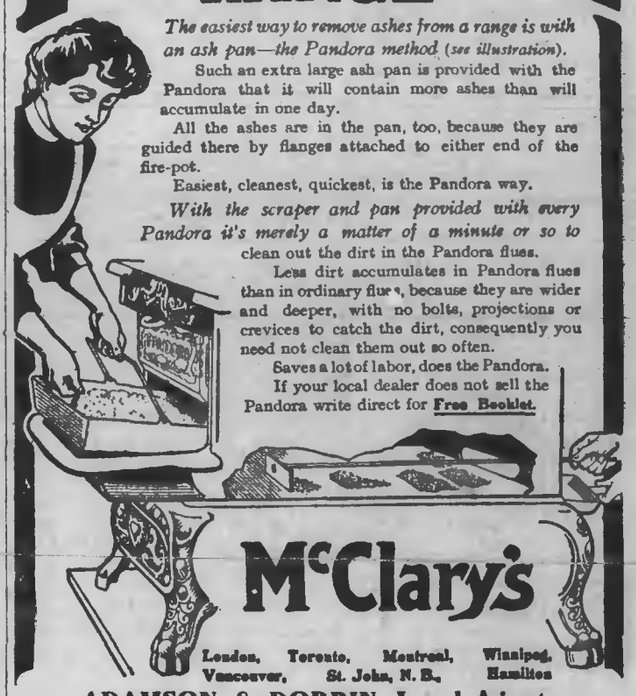
PANDORA RANGE



The easiest way to remove ashes from a range is with an ash pan—the Pandora method (see illustration).

Such an extra large ash pan is provided with the Pandora that it will contain more ashes than will accumulate in one day.

All the ashes are in the pan, too, because they are guided there by flanges attached to either end of the fire-pot.

Easiest, cleanest, quickest, is the Pandora way.

With the scraper and pan provided with every Pandora it's merely a matter of a minute or so to clean out the dirt in the Pandora flues.

Less dirt accumulates in Pandora flues than in ordinary flues, because they are wider and deeper, with no bolts, projections or crevices to catch the dirt, consequently you need not clean them out so often.

Saves a lot of labor, does the Pandora.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct for Free Booklet.

HOME-MADE MEDICINE

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary afflictions, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expels these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism.

The mixture is composed of harmless vegetable ingredients which can be purchased at any good drug store, and mixed at home.

Anyone suffering from any of these afflictions will no doubt be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended remedy.

COTTAGES IN IRELAND

FACING THE FATES ON THE CONNAUGHT BOG FARMS.

One-Room Mud Hovels—Hard-Working Peasants Reap But Little Benefit From Their Labor—Land Cannot Be Drained—Bogslides a Continual Menace—Stone Cottages Are Reckoned a Luxury.

"A drive through Connaught and Munster show how miserably most of the peasants in those sections live," says a writer in The New York Sun. "It is common to find families grouped in one room mud hovels situated in black bog, where the toiler is compelled actually to make the land for himself. A pair of goats, a wretched cow, and perhaps a donkey may make out a precarious living among the coarse grass and reeds on the outer bog, and from the miserable soil the peasant by incessant labor wins a crop of vegetables if the fates are good and draws blank if the potato blight comes along. The ordinary self-respecting human being would refuse the land as a gift and would rather go to the poorhouse than face the fates on the Irish bog farm.

"I have found people living on 'farms' that are subject to periodical floods, on land that cannot be drained, on unproductive soil, on holdings which they have actually made by clearing away rocks and stones and conveying the land up by donkey load. More, I have seen hundreds living on the brink of a horrible disaster. Those people in the bogs in hilly districts are in wet seasons ever under the shadow of the bog burst. The rain descends and sinks under the peat. An underground lake is formed; there is a tremble, a shiver, and in a moment the bog comes sliding down in a mass of black liquid mud to overwhelm everything in its course. There have been many fatal bogslides in the past. In one peat rush which the writer saw the ooze flowed down, fortunately, in the daytime, so that the people had time to escape to safety. The bog moved, it encircled the cottages, it climbed up them; it buried them.

"The most comfortable house of the ordinary peasant met in two provinces was a thatched stone structure with an opening in place of a chimney. It was but a single room, and in it lived five human beings, some fowls, and a goat. Other houses had not the live stock in them, but they were not stone houses. The man with a stone cottage is well off. The man near a town who has a cottage with tiles on the roof is a nabob; he who has a slate house and possesses a pony and cart is one to whom hats must be raised."

NEW ENOCH ARDEN.

Old Story Repeated—Comes Back to Find Wife Remarried.

An extraordinary story of a modern Enoch Arden is reported from Gravesend.

Among those who went out to the South African War was a local resident named Motley. During the conflict it was thought he was killed; in fact, his name was included in the list of those who lost their lives.

Naturally enough, his friends mourned for him, and the "widow" a short time ago remarried. To her amazement her husband recently turned up at Gravesend.

He appears, on his arrival, to have walked unconcernedly into the shop of a butcher named Outred, who had been one of his closest friends. Outred gazed at him in bewilderment. "What are you doing here?" he gasped. "Where have you come from?"

The "dead-alive" briefly explained matters, and to celebrate his return he enjoyed some refreshment with his friend. Then Motley called on some other acquaintances, and, as may be imagined, they also were dumfounded.

Very soon the strange tidings came to the knowledge of Motley's wife, and although naturally she at first refused to believe them, she yielded at length to the evidence.

It is understood that Motley has not yet seen his wife. Her second husband is a steward on an ocean liner, and is at present at sea—in ignorance of the fact that his wife's first husband has "come to life."

DO NOT BE HUMBUGGED.

More than ever, [dishonorable and disreputable pharmaceutical concerns are flooding the market with cheap and worthless preparations designed to be imitations of DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY.

"Pharisee of Finance."

The third reading of the Finance Bill was recently carried in the British House of Commons.

Sir Gilbert Parker called Mr. Asquith the "pharisee of finance" — a person who stood stolidly by the letter of the law according to Cobden, and listened to nothing in the way of change.

"If I were Chancellor of the Exchequer I would solve the old age pension problem in two years by a graduated tax on incomes over a thousand a year," declared Mr. Peter Curran (Jarrow), dinning the menace of Socialism into the ears of the House.

Mr. Asquith declared that the food taxes which he was twitted with retaining were obnoxious to him, and he declared that nothing would give him greater pleasure than to remove those that remained before the time came for him to lay down his stewardship. The budget was carried by 232 to 91.

BEHIND IN WAR BALLOONS.

England Has Been Inactive Says Major Baden-Powell.

"If a war were to occur in the near future between Britain and another power should we be found wanting, and, consequently handicapped, in the matter of airships?" Such was the question put to Major B. F. S. Baden-Powell, the well-known aeronaut, recently.

"France," said Major Baden-Powell, "has made great headway; Germany has now shot suddenly forward; but England will not be left behind. The authorities are keeping their eyes open to all new developments, and though I would not divulge any information of a technical character, I think I may state that experiments have been attended with good results."

Major Baden-Powell, however, reluctantly admitted that the English experts had gained no practical experience. In their quarters at Aldershot they have plans and models in abundance; but never once has a military airship been sailed in England. France, on the other hand, already possesses two which have proved successful, and it is stated that five more are on order. From these the French army would receive invaluable assistance in the event of war. In England the lack of funds for experiments is the great handicap.

"As to the utility of these for combative purposes, however," continued Major Baden-Powell, "I am rather dubious. For scouting purposes they should prove of inestimable service in procuring information as to the disposition of the enemy's force. But the limited amount of ammunition which they can carry will render them almost useless as war machines. Dropping a chance bomb into the middle of a fort will do little harm. It would be extremely difficult for them to hit a gun.

"In the chance of war during the next year or two the presence of airships would mean nothing very revolutionary, but before ten years are passed many new inventions will doubtless have made them an important factor."

HEROINE IN ALMSHOUSE.

Brave Crimean Nurse Now Living on Public Charity.

The most interesting personality in the workhouse at Minster, in Kent, is Miss Emma Fagg, who is in her 81st year, and who half a century ago was one of the devoted band of nurses who, under the banner of Florence Nightingale, tended our wounded soldiers in the Crimea.

The daughter of a builder at Bridge, near Canterbury, she determined to adopt nursing as a profession, and went to London to be trained. When the Crimean war broke out she and five other nurses from her hospital joined the staff at the hospital at Scutari just before the battle of Inkerman, and went through the terrible time of tending thousands of wounded soldiers until peace came and she returned home.

Miss Fagg earned her living by nursing in various parts of East Kent, but a time came when her health broke down. She had to give up nursing, and spent some years as an indefatigable seamstress. Age crept on her, however, and work became infrequent, so, 22 years ago, when she was something over 60, she gave up the struggle and sought the shelter of the Minster poorhouse.

There, to this day, she is in charge of the making of flannels for the infirmary, for vigor has not entirely left this slight woman with the snow-white hair, the undimmed blue eyes and the touch of color in her cheeks.

She talks of her terrible experiences during the war as though they were affairs of yesterday, and she has one great longing—to see Florence Nightingale again.

Lady Rose Weigall and several other women are trying to raise a little fund to enable Miss Fagg to spend the days that are left her outside the workhouse walls.

A New Idea.

A new version of the grab bag that will furnish even greater fun because of the greater difficulty in getting out the presents is a box filled with sand.

This is of course particularly suited to summer parties. Whether in a city back yard or a country lawn it will furnish no end of amusement for the small guests.

Toys of various sorts should be buried in the sand. Over each toy stick a long stemmed flower on which is a number.

Have a corresponding number of flowers in a large bowl and on each blossom a number that will correspond with one on the flowers in the sand, but have the numbers so placed that they will not show.

Each child draws a flower from the bowl, after which he proceeds to dig out of the sand the flower with the same number on it and also the toy that is buried underneath it.

DAY BY DAY AT THE DOMINION LONDON EMIGRATION OFFICE.

Would-Be Citizens Ask Many Questions—"Land of the Future" Has Great Attraction—Many Representative Types—Story of Life in Far West Raises Hope In Despondent Hearts.

One of the most interesting London processions I ever took upon says a writer in Cassell's journal is one which, curiously enough, attracts little attention. It is moving all day long. It winds through an office doorway at Charing Cross, and winds out again. Whence the processionists come, where they go, would take too long to tell. But their mission is explained by the words "Emigration Office" over the entrance, and the Canadian scenes in the windows.

They want to go away. It is not that they dislike the Mother Country, not at all; many of them love it dearly. But in order to live in Britain, as in other places, it is necessary to work, and to earn money. Now, work of certain kinds is not easy to find, and when men have searched for it till they are tired, the land of their birth loses its fascination, and they take to lengthening the long line of emigrants.

Representing Many Types.

It is a line worth studying. It includes most of the types, and most of the classes. Youth figures largely, but there is a lot of middle age as well, and here and there you come across a man older, to whom "life's prime" is but a memory. There are women, too. Some are wives, others hope to become wives across the seas. All wanting to go away, because it is idle to want to stay, and as the line winds out again, you look at the string of earnest eyes, and find out what your own are like when you are gazing into the mystery you call the future.

Winding In and Out.

When I asked Mr. Walker, the Emigration Superintendent, to elaborate the pictures, he smiled. "I am too busy," he said, "helping the subjects of them out of the country. You just come and sit down right here, and look on and listen." So I sat down and looked on, and listened, and the living line kept winding in and out.

"How much do you say the fare is?" an Irish laborer asked. "What, as much as that?"

"That's as low as possible," came the answer.

Then he asked if he might pay the money in instalments, and he was told "No." Then he turned away, surveyed his strong, healthy figure for a moment in a mirror, heaved a sigh, and passed outside.

The couple that came next were husband and wife. The husband spoke in a low tone. What particular trade he followed I was unable to catch, but, at any rate, he was told that it was not flourishing in Canada.

"Now, didn't I tell you, Tom," his wife jerked. "I knew it. And you would come. It's as I say. You'll have to keep pegging at it here. Things is sure to turn." And, as she spoke she led him away, with one of those every-cloud-has-a-silver-lining looks which help us to solve the mystery of how the poor live.

So the Line Passes.

The line moved. Some took the pamphlets, and announced their intention to buy tickets, some said they would call again, a few were undecided, and as they looked at each other and wavered, those behind pushed their way in front, and the attendants kept on telling the story of the Far West all over again. As they described it they would point to the pictures on the walls, and cite instances of hopeless failures over here having successes "out yonder."

A Young Ex-Soldier Was Waiting.

"He had heard enough about the fight for work in London," he said, "and he had been saving up while in the army. What chance was there in Canada for a fellow with a clear head and a strong arm, and fifty pounds?" In a few minutes the chances, as faithfully described by the attendant, were making his eyes twinkle like stars.

With a Mystery Behind.

Not all, however, have long speaking parts in the drama. There is a man of mystery, for instance; smart, well-groomed, a typical man about town, and apparently prosperous. "What's the fare?" he asks, nothing more. And away he goes to study the pamphlets. What charm can farming hold for such as he? Who is he? Why does he want to go away?

Just as subdued are the elderly couples you occasionally meet there. Perhaps they are going out to join a son; perhaps they are alone in the world, and want to make a fresh start, and to imagine they are young again. The husband assumes a pathetically jaunty air, and the wife requests him, in a whisper, to find out which is the best month for folk to sail who are unaccustomed to it.

Not to Be Discouraged.

But, outshadowing all the rest, always and ever, are the young men of brain and muscle and determination. I chatted with one, a splendid specimen of English manhood. "The difficulty over here," he told me, "is to close one's eyes and ears to the recruiting sergeants. They worry men like me to death, and I just don't want to enlist. To spend seven years waiting for a fight is not my ambition at all." He knew nothing about farming, he explained, but he had told the man behind the counter that he did, because he had made up his mind to plunge, and meant to invite no discouragement.

As he walked out, a puny, weak-chested youth walked in.

"I hope you do," I heard the attendant remark to him. And the youth coughed his way out again.

"I hope they all get better," the speaker added dreamily, "all of 'em. That's the third hectic cheek this morning."

And the line kept winding in, and winding out again.

John Bull's Peculiar Way.

A thoroughly British bit of political procedure is the pardoning of Col. Lynch, who after leading the Irish brigade against England in the Boer war, was elected to Parliament from an Irish constituency, was tried for high treason, sentenced to death, had his sentence commuted to a term of imprisonment, and was released under conditions after a few months of captivity. That is why Britain may resort to the mailed fist when she deems it necessary, as in Zululand, to a minor degree in India at the present time, without incurring the charge of odious tyranny, from which Germany, for instance, continues to suffer. Great Britain does not nag, does not set up foolish little hedges about royalty and government, and whip bad little boys for pitching stones over them; and, when the case warrants it, will indulge in a striking act of magnanimity, as in the Lynch affair. It may be only an appeal to the groundlings, but it is effective in maintaining an historical reputation for unexampled broad views in politics. Col. Lynch will probably enter Parliament now, which is as if Samuel Maherero, late of German Southwest Africa, were to be elected to the Reichstag. Paine used to wonder if France would ever show the traveler a scene such as he had witnessed in England—an anarchist orator denouncing Queen Victoria in the foulest terms, and two policemen by his side to protect him against the fury of the mob.—New York Sun.

Manuscripts Sold for £8,364.

The remarkable craze that exists at present for original manuscripts of famous authors was well exemplified at Sotheby's rooms recently, when the library of Mr. Stuart M. Samuel, M.P., which included manuscripts in the autograph of Burns, Byron, Pope, Tennyson, Dryden, Lamb and Shelley, came up for sale. High prices were the order of the day all through the sale, and for the 199 lots sold no less than £8,364 was obtained.

The chief lot was Pope's original manuscript of his famous "Essay on Man," which, from an opening bid of £100 was eventually secured by Mr. Sabin for £895.

The Sheep.

Why any sane person should wish to nurse any animal at mealtime it is difficult to see, and when that animal is a dog the matter fairly passes comprehension. With all his good qualities the friend of man has a most disgusting habit of cadging for food whenever he sees it, and as a table companion he is decidedly objectionable.—Country Gentleman.

Better Castles Than Caverns.

HOLY GRAIL MYSTERY

ANCIENT VESSEL DISCOVERED AT GLASTONBURY ABBEY.

All England Interested — Cup That May Have Been Used by the Saviour — Queen Story of Visions —Scientists and Antiquarians Investigate Mystic Tale—May Prove Only Hoax on Wise Men.

A small circle of eminent leaders of religious thought, antiquaries, and scientists, are at present discussing with the deepest interest the discovery in remarkable circumstances of a glass vessel of beautiful workmanship and supposed great antiquity, in a spot near Glastonbury Abbey.

The discovery was made by the sister of Wellesley Tudor Pole, of Bristol, and two other ladies, as the result of a suggestion by Tudor Pole that they should go and search in a place which he had seen either in his mind's eye or in what seems to have been a "waking dream."

Tudor Pole has submitted the vessel to various experts, who are unable to assign a date for its origin. It may be 2,500 years old. At any rate, it has been pronounced within the last few days to be pre-Venetian.

One of the strangest features concerning it is that it was placed in the spot near Glastonbury nearly nine years ago by Dr. Goodchild, of Bath, a man of much antiquarian knowledge, also as the result of what is described as a "trance," and Dr. Goodchild entertains the belief, consequent upon his strange experiences, that it is the cup which the Saviour used at the Last Supper, and which, according to the Glastonbury legend, was brought to Britain after the Crucifixion.

Examined In London.

Tudor Pole communicated his story to an eminent dignitary of the Church of England, in London, with whom he is acquainted, and at this gentleman's request attended a meeting at the house of the dignitary in London, and narrated all the circumstances concerning the discovery.

The meeting was of a notable character. It consisted of about forty persons, including ministers of various religions, scientists, antiquarians, peers and peeresses.

The Duke of Newcastle, Lord Halifax, Lord Hugh Cecil, Earl and Countess Brownlow, the American ambassador; Rev. R. J. Campbell, Sir W. Crookes, and many members of the Established Church.

To this audience Tudor Pole gave an account of the vessel, which created the greatest astonishment. While Tudor Pole holds that there is not sufficient ground for believing that the object of his discovery is of the sacred nature attributed to it by Dr. Goodchild, he is firmly convinced that it is a "holy relic," and he has now installed it in a room in his house, which has been set apart for it. The room is draped in white. The vessel reposes in a casket on a table, and lighted candles are kept in the room.

The Cup.

It will be seen that the whole treatment of the "cup" is of a mythical nature. The story which Tudor Pole told to his distinguished audience was of the most extraordinary kind, and although it cannot be said that it was accepted as a statement of hard fact, the gentlemen and ladies present found no reason to entertain the slightest suspicion of the good faith of the narrator.

Tudor Pole told the gathering that at the beginning of the year 1902 he "received an impression" that near Glastonbury Abbey a relic of a holy nature lay buried. As time passed this mental impression grew stronger. It recurred again and again, by day and by night. In September last the sensation reached a climax.

He said that while he was sitting in his office, in the midst of the most prosaic surroundings, he experienced what can only be described as a "waking dream." He saw, either in a "dream" or so clearly with his mind's eye that it seemed a "vision," a spot which he remembered well—a small rivulet and a pond on some farmland known as Bride's Hill, about half a mile from Glastonbury Abbey. In the shallow well, or spring, which is the source of a rivulet, he saw buried a small vessel—the one before the eyes of his audience.

The Discovery.

Being unable to spare time, from his business to go to Glastonbury, Tudor Pole sent his sister and two other women, one of whom is a "clairvoyante," to the spot. Turning over the mud in the well, the women found, among other things, the mysterious glass vessel.

It was covered with a broken slab of stone, which had apparently protected it from injury. It was then, as now, in a state of perfect preservation.

Mr. Pole's sister and the other women were so deeply impressed with the discovery of the glass vessel that they forebore to take it away. Having carefully washed it, they replaced it in the well and returned to Bristol with the other objects which they had unearthed, which included a small ring and gold chain and a carbuncle jewel.

A Natural Laxative

Inward cleansing is as necessary as outward bathing. To keep the bowels free and regular is of even greater importance than to keep the skin-pores from becoming clogged. The neglect of either invites disease. Everyone needs a natural laxative occasionally, to free the bowels of accumulated impurities For this purpose take the greatest boon ever offered to those who suffer from the ills that follow constipation. For over fifty years Beecham's Pills have been famous as a Stomach corrective, a Liver regulator and Bowel laxative. They never gripe nor cause pain. Powerful purgatives are dangerous. Avoid them. Use Beecham's Pills. They give relief without doing violence to any organ. Their action is in harmony with physical laws. Take them regularly and the necessity for their use becomes less frequent. They are a natural laxative and a positive cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache and Dyspepsia.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

A LITTLE LEMON.

A Few Drops Add Piquancy to Many a Dish.

A little lemon juice does wonders for a host of dishes. Creamed oysters lose the strong fishy flavor which some persons charge them with if a few drops of lemon juice are cooked with the cream sauce.

Fried sweet potatoes sprinkled with a few drops of lemon juice and then with a little sugar after they are put into the frying pan are immensely improved.

Cauliflower dressed with drawn butter sauce is more delicious if a little lemon juice goes into the sauce before it is turned over the vegetables.

An appetizing soup made of the little green flageolets found at the grocer's, but too little known to the average housekeeper, was served at a pretty luncheon the other day with thin slices of lemon floating in each plate. A tablespoonful of whipped cream went into every plate too.

Carrot fritters, a favorite in one household at least, owe something of their tastiness to the few drops of lemon which sprinkle them just before they go to the table. These boiled carrot fritters are made in the same way as other vegetable fritters. They are cut into two or three pieces, according to their size, dipped into beaten egg and then into breadcrumbs and fried in hot fat.

Cold boiled cauliflower dressed with oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper and served on lettuce leaves makes an excellent salad.

SARATOGA CHIPS.

Dainty Invented by Lately Deceased Colored Boniface.

If one owns a potato slicer, which is not an expensive utensil, Saratoga chips are easily prepared. They are always an acceptable accompaniment to fried fish, but perhaps are never more happily in evidence than when served as one of the accessories of a picnic luncheon. Wash and pare medium sized potatoes. Slice thin, using a vegetable slicer made for the purpose, into a bowl of cold water and let stand one and one-half hours, changing the water twice.

Drain, plunge into a kettle of boiling water and let boil one minute. Drain again, cover with cold water and let stand five minutes. Take from the water and dry between towels. Fry in deep fat until delicately browned, keeping in motion with a skimmer throughout the cooking. Remove with a skimmer to a pan lined with brown paper (which will absorb the superfluous fat) and sprinkle with salt. Always drain fried potatoes on brown paper, for fried food if properly cooked and properly drained seldom absorbs enough fat to be indigestible to adults.

BEAUTY HINTS.

Lemon juice has a place on the toilet table of the careful girl. It removes stains from the hands and whitens the skin. Marks on the neck made by wearing a high collar may be removed by lemon juice.

Children in Italy are not allowed to rub their eyes. When an infant bursts into tears no effort is made to repress the emotion, but the youngster is allowed to have its cry out. It is asserted that this beautifies the eyes and makes them clear, while rubbing the eyes injures them in many ways.

In many cases a wonderful improvement in the complexion may be obtained by merely washing the face several times a day with the following lotion, leaving it on until it dries: Take half an ounce of glycerin and mix with it half a pint of orange flower water. To this add a tablespoonful of powdered borax.

Women who have oily skins too quickly resign themselves to their fate. The following solution will give a clear, dry skin in three months if used regularly: Pulverized borax one ounce, pure glycerin two ounces, camphor water, not spirits of camphor, two quarts. The skin should be bathed with this lotion two or three times a day.

Present Troubles.

"Ah, pretty lady," said the fortune teller, "you wish to be told about your future husband?"

"Not much," replied Mrs. Galley. "I've come to learn where my present husband is when he's absent."

Evolution.

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is evolution?"

"Evolution, my son, is a sort of apology which man has invented for displaying so many of the traits of the lower animals."

LONDON IN KILTS.

Doctor Makes Plea for Bare Legs and Tartans for Englishmen.

"City men in kilts and tartan plaids" is the vision conjured up by an enthusiastic Scotsman in a letter to The London Express.

"No one who has once worn a kilt ever forgets the comfort and warmth which it ensures," he says, "and I cannot personally imagine why it is that Englishmen do not adopt it during the cold winter months. I believe, however, that it will soon become popular."

A leading Harley street physician said that the kilt ought to be generally adopted by Englishmen. "It is much warmer than the ordinary coat and ulster," he remarked. "The kilt is folded so often across the loins that it is as thick as a carpet, and protects the wearer from colds in the small of the back. Then, again, petticoats are much warmer than trousers, and I am personally very much averse to the breeching of small boys at an early age.

"Scotsmen are stronger and healthier than Englishmen, and I attribute this more to the warmth of the kilt than to the bracing Scotch air. Many people are under the impression that a man who wears a kilt must have cold legs. It is just the reverse. The long, warm stockings, which should be hand-knitted and of good Scotch yarn, are warmer than socks and trousers. Football players and runners leave their knees uncovered for the purpose of bracing the sinews."

"Bond street would certainly gain in gaiety and picturesqueness if Londoners began to wear kilts," stated the editor of The Tailor and Cutter. "The change would have its advantages, for the obnoxious silk hat would become an impossibility. A motor cap made of the same material as the kilt would probably be the most popular headgear. The coat would be shorter, with pointed cuffs; the waistcoat longer, and with pointed front pieces. The kilt itself could, of course, be practically of any tartan, according to the fancy of the wearer.

"A kilt is about nine yards in width, and is gathered up in pleats by means of a leather belt, the right length being estimated by the wearer kneeling down and pleating the kilt so as to touch the ground all round.

"Kilts are more expensive than an ordinary suit, because of the quantity of the material required; but, on the other hand, they wear much longer, and are not apt to look shabby or out of shape."

KING'S WORK FOR PEACE.

Great Results From Conferences With Emperors.

It is the general opinion that King Edward, the world's peacemaker, has crowned his mighty work at Wilhelmshohe and Ischl. That is the interpretation which his friends put upon his recent conference with the German and Austrian Kaisers. The general public throughout Europe seem to share this rosy optimism, and everywhere one hears that such academic discussions as The Hague Conference are superfluous and unimportant as compared with the wonderful practical diplomacy of the British sovereign.

It is unnecessary to detract in the least from the great work King Edward has accomplished in behalf of peace during the last four years if it is pointed out that the causes of international friction have not yet been entirely banished by the tact and skill of this ablest of modern monarchs. He has preserved the peace of the world through a most trying crisis, a crisis not yet finished, which involves a substantial re-grouping of the great powers and the re-adjustment of many conflicting interests.

The King's achievement, from the point of view of the preservation of the world's peace, is great, but it is still greater from the point of view of British patriotism. He has successfully piloted the British Empire from a position of splendid but dangerous isolation to one of allied or friendly companionship with all mankind.

No serious international dispute can now arise in which England will not be able to turn the scale with almost overwhelming weight to one side or the other. She can compel disputants to compromise or arbitrate, or, in the event of refusal, she can so influence the attitude of the other powers as almost to control the issue.

To do all this King Edward has sacrificed some interests in Africa, in the Near and Far East, which have been regarded heretofore as important, but he has gained for his Empire a position which, for the present at all events, is impregnable.

Time will bring out more clearly the political importance of the two meetings of three great rulers, which all Europe agrees will have an exceptional bearing upon the future history of the Old World.

A loving woman will keep her heart warm as long as she lives and her hair black as long as she dyes.—Max O'Rell.

CANADA GETS BEST TYPES.

Emigrants From Great Britain Regard It as the Best Place.

"Australia is after us now, but Canada is regarded as the best place to go to by our intending emigrants," said the Rev. J. Fairweather, of London, as, in a recent conversation reference was made to the great volume of immigration which this country was now receiving from the Mother Land.

The reverend gentleman was piloting a large party of Britishers, who were going through to the Northwest. He had been to them friend as well as spiritual guide, and from the manner in which they crowded about him, it was evident that he had gained their affections.

"You are bound to get more and more of our people," said the reverend gentleman. "We have always a surplus, of course; but, on the other hand, agriculture is ruined, and many of our mills and factories are idle.

"A very singular thing is happening," said Mr. Fairweather. "The foreign elements are coming into England, and especially into London, and actually displacing the native born. We have an Alien Act, too, as well as yourselves, but it is really not effective. The people who come in are the most undesirable elements. They are the riff-raff of Europe, and with them you have the last expression of poverty. London seems to be the Mecca of desire for thousands of the submerged creatures who work for almost nothing, and displace the native born. It is natural, then, that our robust types should seek a place like Canada where they can achieve independence."

Asked as to the social and industrial conditions in London, Mr. Fairweather said that the social problem was appalling. Poverty, drunkenness and vice—this trio had to be faced in ever-increasing severity. "We are all doing a little—all the churches, I mean.

"The Church of England, my own church, is particularly active, and this is notably the case in London, while the other churches are certainly not indifferent, and yet it seems as if the evils I mention could never be overtaken.

"Thousands who never sleep on a bed. Thousands who never get a good meal. Thousands who are without hope. Thousands who are given over to drink and vice. And then, on the other hand, abundant wealth, often recklessly and criminally spent—the two extremes in all their sharpness."

HAS CHANCE IN CANADA.

Englishman Gives His Reasons For Leaving the Old Land.

Hereunder is a passage from a prize essay published in the current issue of the British Emigrant, under the head of "Why I Want to Leave England":—

"The first and strongest reason to my mind as a married man is that if I would do my duty to my children I must look into the future; and, alas, what prospect do I see? With a Government pledged to a reduction of both army and navy, and thereby lowering our position as a power, not only in the political, but also the commercial world; and as if that was not serious enough, a party bitterly opposed to tariff reform in any shape or form (even when the testimony of our colonies favors such reform), we may well ask the question, 'What is the prospect for our sons and daughters?' I am convinced that any father or mother who has the real interest of the children at heart will have to acknowledge that it is very poor indeed. There is also the fact to face that our land is being flooded with aliens of all nations, men who are able and willing to work for much smaller wages than the average British laborer; and so year by year we are faced with the problem of a growing body of unemployed. On the other hand, see what the colonies offer.

"Taking Canada as the one most prominent at the present time, we see there a land of almost unlimited resources, governed by men who realize that the good of the country lies in the fact that the land must be cultivated, and so they, as the governing body, are willing not only to induce people to go out, but are helping them in such a way that any man, however small his capital, can have a fair chance of success."

NEW SHIPPING RULE.

Much Confusion May Result Among British Ship Owners.

An edict recently issued by the English Board of Trade bids fair to cause confusion temporarily among British shipping. The board, which speaks with authority on the subject, has decreed that hereafter no two British vessels shall be registered under the same or similar names. There are few ports in the world where the change will be more noticeable than in New York, where craft of British registry predominate, and "best guesses" as to the future names of two out of three Virginians, eleven Vestas, six Normans, four Oceanics, two Cerics, six Majestics, five Maltas, two Mallards, two Malagas, eleven Rescues, six Resolutes, three St. Lawrences, two St. Louis, and others are in order. As yet plans are not completely formulated, but vessels of the heaviest tonnage will be permitted to retain their present designation.

FRANCE'S TASK BUT BEGUN.

Claims of Rival Sultans Complicate Situation In Morocco.

Paris, Sept. 3.—The public has been reassured by the announcement that Morocco will be compelled to pay the expenses of all measures France may take for the subjection of anarchy and the protection of European interests in Casablanca and other points on the Moroccan coast. The public does not know it, but Morocco will never be able to pay a claim of such size as this one promises to amount to.

Nobody has any idea what the next development of the situation will be, but France's task has hardly yet begun. Her embarrassment over the rival claims of two Sultans is great. Mulai Hafig is the abler man. His personal sympathies with foreigners are friendly, but his followers are chiefly anti-European. France cannot enter into any agreement with him at present, for it would alienate his followers. Besides his claim to the throne is not yet established, and he is still technically a traitor. On the other hand, Abdul Aziz is hopelessly weak as a ruler, and it is regarded as practically impossible that he can succeed in any circumstances in pacifying the country and retaining the throne. The question is, how long the present condition of anarchy will be allowed to continue before foreign intervention of some sort becomes imperative.

Tangier, Sept. 3.—Reports from Safi say that a letter from Mulai Hafig has reached there, in which he advocates a holy war, and accuses Abdul Azix, the Sultan of Morocco, with being a Christian and the author of all the calamities to the country. The notables were divided over the course to pursue as a result of the letter, and finally left it to the governor to decide whether or not they should support Mulai Hafig. The reports also say that Maclinin, the fanatical priest appeared recently outside Safi, but was bought off with $500. He announced that he was going to Casablanca.

Although there is no immediate peril the general political situation continues grave. In half the Moorish Empire civil war seems imminent. Mulai Hafig is reported to be marching against Fez at the head of a large army. The nominal Sultan's Government is paralyzed, and chaos reigns.

Casablanca, Sept. 3.—The Spanish troops, who are now more active, marched some distance from the camp and fired on some prowling Moors. It is reported that the Moors need ammunition badly.

Paris, Sept. 3.—Vice-Admiral Philbert of the French military forces at Morocco cabled from Casablanca Sunday, reporting that the allies routed a large force of Moorish cavalry seven miles south of the city.

POSTMASTERS' SALARIES.

New Schedule In[illegible] Those Employed In Country Offices.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—The salaries of the country postmasters have been increased.

In the past country postmasters have been serving on a minimum sallary of $25 a year with 40 per cent. of the first $800 revenue of the office each year, 25 per cent. on all revenue from $800 to $10,000, and 15 per cent. on all revenue over $10,000.

The new scale increases the minimum allowance to $36, with 50 per cent. of the first $1,000 revenue of the office in each year, 30 per cent. on all revenue between $1,000 and $10,000, and $20 on all above $10,000.

At present an extra payment is made postmasters who have to be on duty after 10 p. m. or before 6 a. m. The minimum extra allowance has been $6 and the maximum $60, according to the time employed.

The new plan for extra payment changes the hours to 9 p. m. and 7 a. m., while the minimum allowance is increased to $10 and the maximum extra allowance to $100.

At present there is a forward allowance of 10 per cent. of the revenue of the office when forwarding is done direct and 5 per cent. when forwarding is indirect or through another office. The new scale is 12 1-2 per cent. for both.

BURGLAR SUICIDES.

Shoots Himself to Avoid Arrest After Killing Policeman.

Lindhurst, N. J., Sept. 3.—George Cassidy, a policeman, was shot and killed yesterday while endeavoring to arrest two burglars who had been caught in the act of robbing a store.

The burglars were pursued by a crowd, and rather than submit to capture in a swamp, one of them killed himself. The other burglar escaped.

Cassidy had arrested the men and started with his prisoners for the station house, when one of them whipped a revolver from his pocket and pressing it against Cassidy's coat, pulled the trigger.

RAIDERS NOW CHARGED.

Aftermath of Wiarton Shooting Tragedy—Men In Court.

Wiarton, Sept. 3.—Nine of the men who wrecked the tent of Agnes Thomas, who is now in Walkerton jail charged with manslaughter in the death of Philip Gilbert, appeared before Police Magistrate Miller at noon yesterday and were remanded until to-day at 10 o'clock, when all will be arraigned on the charge of holding a tumultuous assembly.

The criminal code provides as punishment for the above offence one year penal servitude.

All are laboring men engaged at various day jobs in this town.

The Lancasters are all members of the same family.

It will be remembered that it was to Lancasters' house that the body of Philip Gilbert was taken immediately after the shooting. Lancaster at the inquest swore that he knew none of the men who brought the body to his home.

James Corcoran carried Gilbert to the Lancaster house.

Following the appearance in court of the above, it was said last night that the following have also been served with summonses to appear today on the same charge and for being members of the gang who witnessed the tragedy: Alexander Elliott, Sidney Lee, Joseph Lee, George Lee.

Startling facts concerning the tragedy are gradually coming to light.

The most sensational of these is that the mob was organized on the night of Aug. 20 to wreck the home of John Smith, a laborer.

Philip Gilbert, the dead man, was the chief mover in the plot. For years a feud had existed between him and Smith.

It is said that Smith had been living with disreputable women for some time. He was arrested and the case was adjourned for two weeks. At the expiration of that time he was dismissed, the charges against him not being substantiated.

In the meantime Smith caused much talk about Gilbert renting a house which belonged to the latter to the Thomas woman.

Gilbert's enmity grew into hatred. On the night on which he met his death, with the above-mentioned men, plans were laid to wreck Smith's place. The crowd started out.

On the way to the Smith place, someone said:

"Let us wreck Ag. Thomas's tent, too."

The row then started, the particulars of which were made sensational by the shooting of Philip Gilbert.

Provincial Detective Reburn has been here for a week and it is as a result of his work that the summonses have been issued.

KAISER AND SOCIALISTS.

Emperor William Makes Striking Appeal for Conciliatory Spirit.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—It transpired yesterday that Emperor William on Saturday during his visit to the Muenster Monsum, made a most striking speech, which is regarded as being a direct appeal to the Socialists to work together with other classes for the good of the fatherland.

After assuring his audience of his interest in the welfare of all classes, of whatever creed or standing, his Majesty said:

"I inherited from my grandfather a mission to care for the working people, and would like to see a conciliatory spirit extend all over the empire. To whoever is ready to work with me towards this end, I am prepared to give my hand."

The Emperor continued: "During my reign of twenty years I have often had to endure humiliations, inflicted intentionally or unintentionally by others. When I have felt anger overcoming me I have asked myself what was the best means of suppressing it. The only way I have found was of saying to myself, 'They are all men, as I am, and although they humiliate me they have souls illuminated by heaven, whither we shall all some day return, and in their souls there is a portion of the creator.' Whoever thinks thus will always treat his fellow man charitably."

BOYS ELECTROCUTED.

For Three Hours Their Bodies Hung In Mid-Air.

Buffalo, Sept. 3.—Two Polish lads, Tony, Carola and Guiseppe Zeppa, both about 13 years old, were shocked to death yesterday on a steel tower, which carries high voltage from Niagara Falls power houses to the Lackawanna steel plant.

There was great delay in communicating with the power house to get the current shut off, and for nearly three hours the bodies hung in mid-air with the blue flames playing about them, in plain view of thousands of street car passengers.

Carola first essayed to climb the tower. He touched one of the cables and in a flash was dead. Zeppa bravely went to the rescue of his companion, but the moment he touched his body a flash of blue flame sent him flying across the three power lines, and in an instant he, too, was dead.

Drowning at Windsor.

Windsor, Sept. 3.—Albert Jubenville, aged 24, son of J. P. Jubenville, inland revenue officer, was drowned in the Detroit River here yesterday. The young man was engaged in helping a crew raise the G. T. R. car ferry Huron when he slipped off a raft. The body has not been recovered.

Albany Doctor Suicides.

Albany, Sept. 3.—Lying on a couch with a revolver clinched tightly in his right hand, the body of Dr. Lansing B. Winne, a well-known Albany physician, was found yesterday in the chapel adjoining the Holy Innocents Episcopal Church, of which he is a vestryman.

Friends say that for some time past he had been suffering from mental trouble.

Bridge Blown Up.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 3.—A new bridge on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, over Corry street, Darby, a suburb, was blown up Sunday by unknown persons. The false work of the bridge was completely wrecked by dynamite.

A southbound freight train was approaching at the time, and was flagged by policemen.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Quoted 5c Lower at Chicago.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—London cables are firmer at 11¾c to 12¾c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Sept. 2.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 86 car loads, composed of 1884 cattle, 370 sheep and lambs, 43 calves and 16 horses.

Exporters.

The market for exporters was a little stronger than last week. Prices ranged from $4.75 to $5.25, the bulk of the best going at about $5 per cwt.; a couple of prime quality loads were reported to have brought a little more money. There was a lot of light common unfinished cattle bought for export at $4.25 to $4.65 per cwt. Export bulls ranged from $3.50 to $4.50, with one prime quality bull at $5 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked heifers sold from $4.75 to $5 per cwts, but there would not be more than one in every hundred cattle that brought this price. Loads of good, or the best on the market, sold at $4.25 to $4.65 per cwt.; medium, $3.65 to $3.85; common mixed, $3.37½ to $3.65; cows, $3 to $4; canners, $2 to $2.50 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

There were none offered, and seemingly none wanted, as every drover and farmer the drought.

Milkers and Springers.

Milkers and springers of good to choice quality were more plentiful than for some time on this market, and sold from $35 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

The market remains steady for veal calves. Prices ranged from $4 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export ewes sold at $4.25 to $4.50 per cwt.; lambs were reported at $6 per cwt. for the best.

Hogs.

H. P. Kennedy reported selects at $6.25, with lights and fats at $6.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Aug. 31 were 3758 cattle, 2730 sheep and lambs, 4190 hogs and 580 calves. The offerings for the local trade this morning were 1200 cattle, 650 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 209 calves. A feature of the trade was the stronger feeling which developed in the market for cattle and prices show an advance of ¼c to ½c per lb. since this day week. This to some extent was due to the fact that the run was fully 350 head smaller than a week ago, but more so to the improved demand from local and outside buyers on account of the cooler weather and the better conditions of the stock coming forward. Cattle advices from Liverpool on Saturday showed no improvement in prices over last week, but they reported trade firm. Notwithstanding this fact, however, there was an increased demand from exporters and they bought a number of choice steers at 5¼c to 5¼c per lb., besides a lot of rough cattle and heavy bulls. On the whole a fairly active trade was done and the market was well cleaned at an early hour. Choice beeves sold at 5c to 5¼c; good, at 4¾c to 4¾c; fair at 4c to 4¼c, and lower grades at 2¾c to 3½c per lb. There was no important change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs. Supplies were fair for a Monday for which the demand continues good from local and export buyers, and an active trade was done in these lines at firm prices. Sheep sold at 4c to 4½c, and lambs at 6c to 6¾c per lb. Owing to weaker advices on Canadian bacon during the past week, from the leading foreign sources and the fact that our own private cables of Saturday from London and Bristol noted a decline in prices of 1s to 2s per cwt. and in Liverpool is to 4s, a weaker feeling developed in the local day-week show a decline of 15c to 25c per cwt. Supplies were fairly large this morning, but the bulk of them were contracted for last week at a fraction over $7 per cwt., in some cases therefore the number for sale on the market to-day was comparatively small and trade was quiet, with prices for selected lots quoted at $6.75 to $6.80 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

A Message for Pile Sufferers
FROM TWO LADIES WHO HAVE BEEN CURED OF EXTREMELY TORTURING CASES OF PILES BY
Dr. Chase's Ointment

Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Russels county, Ont., writes:—"Eleven years ago I began to suffer from piles, and as they caused keen distress, and became worse, I doctored for them, but with little or no avail. They were bleeding, itching and protruding, and oh! the torture suffered at times can never be described. It was with suffering that the bowels moved, and, as nothing brought relief, I could only endure the misery with an aching heart and without hope of cure.

"Finally a lady friend told me about Dr. Chase's Ointment curing piles, and to my surprise I felt relief at once on using this ointment; the little tumors soon disappeared, the ulcers healed, and the bowels became regular. This was five years ago, and I have never been troubled with this terrible ailment since, a thousand thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Mrs. Capt. Clinansmith, Salvation Army, Essex, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Two years ago I was taken with a severe attack of protruding piles, and became so bad that I had to keep my bed, and could lie in no position except on my stomach. Doctors could give me no help, and the various oils and ointments used proved of no avail.

"One Saturday night, when I was suffering untold agony, my husband went to the drug store, for a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I had heard of as a cure for piles. Although I had almost given up hope, to the wonder of those around me, I was able to be up and on my feet by Monday, and have had no difficulty from piles since. As a treatment for all kinds of sores and burns, Dr. Chase's Ointment works like magic."

To persons who have given up looking for a cure of piles or hemorrhoids, this letter should bring new hope. There is, we believe, no more effective treatment for piles than Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

"They all want St. George's Baking Powder."
"I never in my life saw an article make friends like St. George's."
"It seems as if every order I get calls for this Baking-Powder."
"And no wonder!

St. George's Baking Powder

is made of Cream of Tartar that is 99.90% pure—it keeps its full strength till the can is empty. It never disappoints—but always makes the baking light and white."
"Look at the result—everyone delighted, and ordering this genuine Cream of Tartar Baking-Powder again and again."

LABOURER PARADERS ARE SHOT

Serious Riot on Labor Day in San Francisco.

CARMEN USED REVOLNERS

Trouble Started by Car Breaking Through Line of Procession—Union Men Attacked Car—Bricks Were Freely Thrown — Police Were Mobbed When Making Arrests —Two Men Were Wounded.

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—The labor union parade yesterday resulted in the shooting of two men by employes of the United Railroads.

The carmen were attacked by the paraders and, in self-defence, opened fire. The trouble started at the ferry, where, it is stated, a Sutter street car broke through the line of parade. A mob of labor union men followed the car, and at the junction of Sutter street the members attacked a car.

The motorman, fearing that his life was in danger, opened fire and wounded one of his assailants in the leg. A block further up an inspector was attacked by the mob. He was suddenly struck in the face and ran from his assailants. They followed him to the corner of Sutter and Montgomery streets, where they overtook him. He drew a pistol and aimed at a burly laborer who carried bricks in his hands. The inspector opened fire and shot the man through the groin.

Six shots were fired. A riot call was sent in to the police, and the fire departments and a force of police and firemen were soon on the scene.

The man who did the shooting was arrested, but several rioters who were seized by the police were released.

Th labor union men who were in the parade evidently thought that they had the right of way over the streets of San Francisco, for when the cars of the United Railroads attempted to break through the procession there was trouble, and what had been an orderly parade turned into a riot.

The cars of the United Railroads had stopped while the parade was in progress, but when the marchers began to disperse the cars began running. There was a dense crowd at Perries, and the union resented the attempt to run the cars.

When the police jumped in to quiet the riot, a number of them, as soon as they made arrests, were set upon by the labor union paraders and mobbed. One policeman said afterwards: "It took twenty officers to make a single arrest."

Switchman Under Cars.

North Bay, Sept. 3.—P. Needham, 25 years of age, C. P. R. switchman in the local yards, fell beneath some cars which were being shunted on a siding Sunday night, and had one leg crushed. Amputation was necessary, and Needham died after the operation.

The unfortunate man came from the vicinity of Pembroke, and was unmarried.

John McKinnon, while seeing friends off on the Winnipeg express, attempted to jump from the train while in motion and fell beneath the wheels, losing both feet.

TROOPS WAGE A MIMIC WARFARE

Military Manoeuvres on Large Scale on Salisbury Plain.

TO RESIST INVADING FORCE

Twenty Thousand Soldiers Engaged In In Campaign— Gen. Ian Hamilton Commands the Invaders—Defending Force Led by Sir Frederick Stopford—Conditions of Real Warfare to Be Followed.

London, Sept. 3.—A state of warfare, which will continue throughout the week, commenced yesterday morning on the military area known as Salisbury Plain. The troops of one district are being pitted against those of another, 20,000 men of all ranks being engaged, this being the ultra strength of an Aldershot command.

Lieut.-Gen. Ian Hamilton, commander of the southern district, with ten thousand troops, is playing the part of an invader from "Blue Land," described as a country situated several days steaming from "Red Land," upon which shores Hamilton has effected a landing.

The defending force is under the command of Major-Gen. Sir Frederick Stopford. Marlborough is supposed to be the chief harbor on the east coast and the only other place suitable for landing troops are Figdean and Wilton Bay. "Red Land" is supposed to have as its capital "Redtown," which is laid down as situated 40 miles west of Bath.

A certain engagement is assumed to have occurred, and arrangements are understood to have been made for capturing "Red Town." All the various mobilizations, marchings, establishments of garrisons, etc., having been effected the cavalry brigades of the two forces are expected to come in touch to-day. Then the work will go without intermission, as in actual warfare, one phase of the campaign merging itself into another until the problem set for elucidation is solved.

Reminding their men that public spirit led the landholders to place their ground at the disposal of the military authorities, the officers have announced that endeavors have been made to avoid damage and annoyance, and that the game on the land owners preserves, particularly, must not be molested.

OUTRAGES ON JEWS.

Fierce Onslaught by Black Hundreds In Odessa—Many Wounded.

Odessa, Sept. 3.—The Black Hundreds began rioting here yesterday afternoon, alleging that the Jews were responsible for the explosion of the bomb in the courtyard of the central police station here Saturday morning, resulting in the deaths of an artillery officer and four policemen, although it was stated at the time that the bomb was accidentally dropped by the officer.

The rioters ran through the streets inhabited by Jews, firing promiscuously right and left. Three men were killed and from fifty to sixty were wounded. The mob indulged in other brutal excesses, and beat down victims with flexible rubber sticks. The Jewish cemetery, where thousands of Jews were praying at the gravesides of their dead, was the scene of a fierce onslaught.

CLOTHIERS AND FURNISHERS TO MEN WHO KNOW

THE KING IS GRIEVED OVER ACCIDENT

His Majesty's Sympathy at News of Quebec Disaster.

EXPERTS EXAMINE BRIDGE

Failed to Find a Single Flaw—Inspector Who Witnessed the Collapse—Saw the Mighty Structure Plunge to Ruin — Masonry Work Remained Intact — Steel Work Torn Like Paper—Funerals.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—Mr. Collingwood Schrieber, consulting Government engineer; Mr. J. M. Butler, Deputy Minister, and Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, and Mr. M. P. Davis, contractor for the masonry of the Quebec bridge, have returned from the scene of Thursday's disaster. Mr. Davis, in the course of an interview, after alluding to the magnitude of the catastrophe, observed that there was probably only one man alive who could be said to have witnessed the collapse, and that was the bridge company's inspector. He noticed the structure tremble and sway. Knowing what this meant, as the horror of the impending catastrophe flashed upon him, he instinctively turned his head. Then came the crash, and when he looked again the mighty structure was a mass of ruin.

Asked about the masonry work, Mr. Davis said it remained intact, the piers standing exactly as they were when built, notwithstanding the tremendous strain to which they were subjected. The anchor pier did not show so much as a mark. As for the precise cause of the accident, it would not be known until the termination of a long and intricate investigation by the Government commission. Mr. John Sterling Deans, chief engineer of the Phoenix Bridge Co., also the designer, to whom Mr. Davis talked, could not discern where the fault had been.

"Sixteen thousand tons of metal," continued Mr. Davis, "are lying mostly in an indescribable tangle; great steel beams being twisted like elastic bands, and yet there is not a suspension rod or any other piece of metal in the wreck that shows signs of weakness. I walked 400 feet along the wreckage without being able to discern the least flaw in a single member."

No Damage In Piers.

Mr. M. J. Butler confirmed this observation. "The masonry is absolutely intact and uninjured in any way whatever," said the Deputy Minister, "and that after undergoing the most severe strain to which any mason work was probably ever submitted to in the world. The thousands of tons of steel work looks like torn up scraps of paper, yet the piers do not show any further damage than might be wrought upon them in a few hours by a couple of men with hammers."

The commissioners, Messrs. Holgate and Kerry, were at work when Mr. Butler left the scene of the disaster. Their preliminary operations consist of making examinations of the wrecked material, and marking the parts that will be photographed for comparison with their position and place in the intact structure. "It will be one means of fixing the cause, which, of course, must remain a mere matter of conjecture until the investigation has been finished," Mr. Butler continued. "The commissioners will probably start their formal hearing today. Mr. Dean, the chief engineer of the Phoenix Bridge Co., and his computer, Mr. Splaszka, arrived at Levis just before I left. They will appear before the commission with their plans and data, and survivors of the disaster will also be examined."

Funeral of Victims.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 3.—Eight of the Indian laborers who perished in the Quebec bridge disaster were buried on Sunday at the Indian village of Canghnawaga, where they lived. His Grace, Archbishop Bruchesi, came from Montreal to officiate at the funeral service. The coffins were lowered into a large single grave. Thirty-seven families in Caughnawaga alone have been afflicted by the catastrophe. Some forty-five children have been made orphans.

SYMPATHY FROM KING.

Earl Minto Also Cables Regret at the Bridge Disaster.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—The following message of sympathy has been received by His Excellency the Governor-General:

"Marienbad, Aug. 31, 1907.

"The King grieved to hear news of disaster to Quebec bridge. Wishes you to convey his heartfelt sympathy with relatives and friends of all who have lost their lives in the sad calamity. (Signed) PONSONBY."

His Excellency also received the following from Lord Minto, the Viceroy of India, and former Governor-General of Canada:

"Simla, Aug. 31, 1907.

"Please tell Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec deeply grieved horrible bridge accident. (Signed) MINTO."

Resort to Violence.

Antwerp, Sept. 3.—The lockout of the dock laborers yesterday caused the porters and others to strike in sympathy with them and resort to violence.

The rioters broke into the grain store houses, broke up the tools, carried off the wagons, and showered stones on the English strike-breakers, threw a steam crane overboard and wrecked a lot of machinery.

LIGHTNING WORKS HAVOC.

Causes Many Fires and Destruction of Property.

Chatham, Sept. 3.—A terrific rain and lightning storm passed over Kent Sunday evening. Several fires were reported, and some horses and cattle killed. The rain was badly needed, but it came at a great cost. The following fires were reported: David Barr, concession 6, Chatham Township, loss $1,000; James Chinnich, Chatham Township, loss heavy; Morris O'Neil, Raleigh, loss barns, house, outbuildings, and the loss amounts to several thousands; Tom Marin, River road, Chatham, outbuildings, burned; Dolsen Bros., farming the Fairbanks estate, Raleigh, everything burned. At one time the lookout on the fire tower here saw seven places burning at once, but as the farmers were not in town, owing to the holiday it is impossible to find out where the burned places are.

Belleville, Sept. 3.—This district was visited by a very severe electrical storm, accompanied by torrents of rain, at an early hour yesterday morning. At 4 o'clock lightning struck the large barn on the farm of Wilbur Maybee, a prominent Prince Edward County farmer, living just across the bay from this city. The building, which contained all the season's hay and grain, as well as implements, was destroyed. The loss will be heavy, with a small amount of insurance.

Prince Leaves for Falls.

New York, Sept. 3.—Prince Welham's visit to New York came to a close Sunday with a sight-seeing dash over the city that carried him from Harlem to Staten Island and back again.

The royal guest left last night for Niagara Falls.

Fatal Collision.

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Two persons were killed, six seriously injured, three of whom may die, and a score less seriously hurt last night in a rear-end collision between two cars.

WELL-DESERVED SENTENCE.

Man to Get Twenty Lashes and Serve Four Years.

London, Ont., Sept. 3.—Thomas Tavender was on Saturday sentenced to four years in Kingston Penitentiary and twenty lashes for an assault on Emma Matthews, an eight-year-old girl. The offence on which Tavender was convicted was committed on June 30 last, at the Mount Elgin Institute, near Muncie, during the absence of the child's parents. Tavender was arrested on July 12, and acknowledged his guilt.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC FOR LABOUR DAY ESTABLISHES RECORD FOR THE CITY

The Labour Day traffic on the two railways this year is, so far as Peterborough is concerned, the heaviest on record. The exodus from the city commenced on Saturday, and every train on both railways was crowded that day. It was continued on Sunday, the early morning C. P. R. train being run in three sections. Yesterday morning again, in spite of the threatening weather, there was a very large crowd of holiday pleasure-seekers at the stations to take the trains, the majority going to Toronto. Four passenger trains passed through the city over the C. P. R line yesterday morning, and each of them took on a large number of passengers from the station here. A proportionately large crowd left the city by the G.T.R., though the greater number leaving by that line were bound for Stony Lake, where they enjoyed the last summer season holiday of the year.

HEARING RIVETS CUT LOCAL MAN LEFT BRIDGE JUST IN TIME

Mr. Wm. Faux of East City Was on the Quebec Bridge a Few Minutes Before the Awful Disaster Occured

HE WARNED THE MEN

When He Heard the Rivets Begin to Give Way He Suspected That Something Was Wrong—Terrible Scenes Followed

Hearing the rivets beginning to out on the Quebec bridge, Mr. William Faux, a Peterborough young man, hurriedly made his way to the shore, and had just reached terra firma in safety, when the immense structure collapsed, carrying over eighty men down to death in the river below.

Mr. Faux, who is a son of Mrs. Faux, Munroe avenue, East City, is a bridge builder in the employ of the Canada Foundry Company, and had been working on a bridge not far from Montreal.

On Thursday last he took advantage of a holiday to visit the famous Quebec bridge, which he had never seen. He had walked out to the middle of the structure and was talking to some of the men at work, when he thought he heard some of the rivets in the bridge giving away. "The rivets are cutting! there's danger here!" Mr. Faux exclaimed, but the men paid no heed to the warning, one of them saying, "She's safe all right."

Mr. Faux, however, thought otherwise, and it was well he did so. As quickly as possible he made his way off the structure, and, as has been stated, just reached shore before the crash came.

Mr. Faux said that the noise of the fall was terrible, and was heard for ten miles. He describes the scene that followed as frightful. The big span, carrying scores of men, had fallen, burying men and steel work in the deep waters of the St. Lawrence. He is of the opinion that there are a hundred men still under the ruins of the bridge, whose bodies will not be recovered until it is possible to raise the structure.

Mr. Faux is visiting his mother for a few days. There were no Peterborough men employed on the bridge, although Mr. Faux's brother and dMessrs. Dave and Harry Gilman are employed by the Canada Foundry Company, and it was reported around the city that they might have been involved in the accident.

BIG EARTHQUAKE SOMEWHERE; OTTAWA INSTRUMENT RECORDS IT

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—Dr. Thompson, astronomer, at the Dominion observatory, reports that the seismiograph there recorded a severe earthquake yesterday, September 2nd. The first preliminary tremours arrived at 11.12, 18. The observation of the instrument shows that the tremours were greater than for that of the Kingston, Jamaica, disaster last January.

Houston, Texas, Is a Prey To The Devouring Element

A Houston, Texas despatch transmitted to Heintz & Co., this afternoon gives the information that this morning a disastrous fire broke out there and that several of the largest buildings in the city were being consumed by the flames, which great difficulty was being met with in extinguishing.

TWELVE YEAR OLD PETERBOROUGH GIRL HOOKS A 32 POUND 'LUNGE

To Helen Metheral, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. Albert Metheral, of this city, belongs the honour of having hooked the largest' lunge of the season at Rice Lake. She was with her father, fishing off Jubilee Point a few days ago, when she noticed a tug at the line, and when she discovered that it was a fish she had hooked, her father took the line, and, after considerable hard work, landed a magnificent lunge which tipped the scales at 32 pounds and measured 49 inches. The fishing at the lake has been excellent lately, another good fish having been caught by Mr. Hugh Fuller, who succeeded in getting a 20-pounder, measuring 39 inches, a few days ago.

THE HAVELOCK CALL WAS DROPPED

Rev. F. D. Roxborough Will Not Go To Havelock Presbyterian Church

At a special meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough, held yesterday in St. Andrew's church, when the question of the call of the Havelock Presbyterian church, to Rev. F. D. Roxburgh, of Smithville, was considered.

It was understood that Mr. Roxburgh was not preaching in Havelock for a call, and that he was not anxious to move, and, in view of this fact, the call was dropped.

OBITUARY.

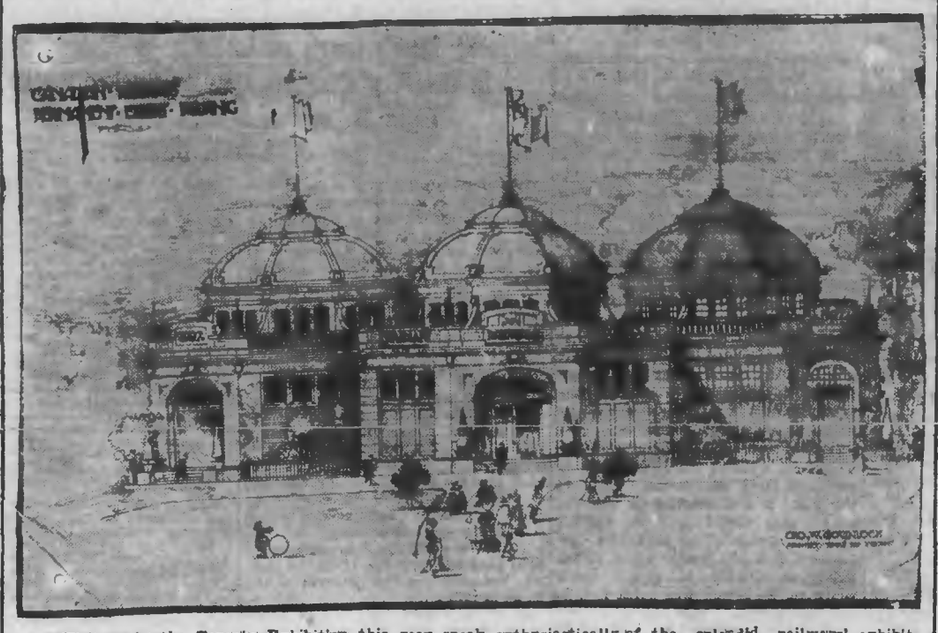
HARRY BROWN

At noon to-day the funeral of the late Harry Brown, who died a few days ago in Orillia, was held from the G.T.R. station to the Little Lake Cemetery on the arrival of the 11.45 train. The deceased was formerly of Chicago, and had distant relatives in Peterborough.

THANEY HOWARD SHORT

On Saturday last the death occurred of Thaney Howard Short, of Harvey township at the age of 22 years and 4 months. The funeral took place yesterday to St. Mark's Cemetery, Warsaw.

RAILWAYS' EXHIBIT BUILDING A FEATURE OF CANADA'S NATIONAL EXHIBITION OF 1907



Visitors to the Toronto Exhibition this year speak enthusiastically of the splendid railways' exhibit, which is contained in the new Railway Building, a cut of which is given above. The Canadian railways this year, since the erection of a building especially for their exhibits, have gone to considerable expense in providing displays in keeping with the attractiveness of the building in which they are housed, and in this they have succeeded admirably, the railways' exhibits being among the most interesting features of a Fair which has many interesting features.

A "Flag Incident" At Stony Lake Now

American Citizens Near Mount Julian Who Fly American Flags Prominently Annoy Loyal British Subjects

AN UNINTENIONAL SLIGHT

Stony Lake, Sept. 2.—The American flags are becoming increasingly prominent at Stony Lake resorts, and Canadians in some cases are complaining that some of the American citizens do not respect the British emblem as they would like to see the Stars and Stripes honoured by Canadians in the republic to the south.

It is a matter of comment that on the Burleigh shore, near the cottage of the secretary of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association, there are two cottages on which the American flag is given the place of honour, and the Union Jack relegated to a minor position.

On Mr. Carter's cottage, and on an adjacent island, occupied by Dr. Bond, these conditions exist, and, while it is not suggested that these gentlemen intentionally slight the flag of the country in which they are residing temporarily, their action in thrusting an alien flag into prominence is resented in some quarters, and it is stated that the attention of the vice-president of the Cottagers' Association has been called to the matter, and it is expected that it will be remedied in the near future.

HOW A MODEST LOCAL SYNDICATE MISSED IT

If may be remembered that a little over a year ago the advertisement of a partially local syndicate appeared in the Examiner offering a certain block of seventy lots situated in Port Arthur at $10 per lot. It appears that no one in Peterborough was sufficiently impressed with the advertisement at this distance, or had faith enough in Port Arthur real estate to invest in the land. A few months afterwards the seventy lots were disposed of to one enterprising man for $650. Now comes the rub. The $The same property was sold last week to an American company at nearly five times the former price, or $3,300. The syndicate referred to are pretty well satisfied to-day that they had a gilt-edged property, but they unfortunately missed their chance because of their "spoiling the ship for a halpen's worth of tar" policy — by crowding into one-eighth of a column what should have occupied at least a quarter of a page. In a real estate deal, especially, it is always good wisdom to infuse a little of your own faith in the advertisement that you want others to put faith into.

The same local syndicate referred to above, had another disagreeable experience recently. Last year they secured an option on forty acres of land in the suburbs of Port Arthur, at $2,000. On account of unfavourable reports received from former Peterborough friends living on the spot, they allowed the option to lapse. And now the news has just reached here that the forty acres was sold a month ago to a New York company for $20,000! Hard luck!

Insure Against Serious Colds

Of the many forms of insurance probably that which protects you against the serious results of colds is the most valuable at this time of the year, when so many are becoming victims of la grippe and pneumia. By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can keep the loose, prevent further development of the cold and cure it in a few days.

CITY SCHOOLS OPEN WITH LARGEST LIST OF PUPILS IN HISTORY

School opening this morning was characterized by an unprecedented rush of pupils to all the city's schools in which studies were resumed to-day. The closing of the George street school brough a large number of additional pupils to the Central, where the increase was the greatest, and the rooms there are filled to overflowing.

In the South Central School a similar condition prevails, but it is anticipated that when the new North Ward and South Ward Schools are ready for occupancy the over-crowding will be relieved to a certain extent. It is probable, however, that the classes generally this year will be larger than in the past.

HOLIDAY CRUISE OF THE "ATHLETA" PARTY

The "Aletha" party, (which went down the river Saturday afternoon, enjoyed a very nice outing at Rice Lake, and returned home Monday evening. The party consisted of Mr. Ed. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. W J Menzies, Mr. Cecil Williamson, Miss Curry, Miss Mildred Brightman, Mr. E. Williamson and Master Walter Harris. They went down in the speedy gasoline launch "Aletha," arriving at their camping ground, Captain's Point, Harwood, about 7 o'clock Saturday evening. The party took rooms at the Lakeview House, and in the morning took possession of their camping ground, erected their tents, and planned out a programme, of fishing, cruising and other amusements. Several good musicians being among the party, the evening's especially were spent in songs and instrumental music. A dance was also enjoyed in the Harwood village hall, at which a number of the villagers were visitors. The members of the "Aletha" party have their own boating colours, a combination of blue and white, and wear a pretty boating flag pin in the same colours, with the name "Aletha" embossed thereon.

Mrs. Percy Rowan and daughter, Dorothy, of Toronto, are the guests of Mr, and Mrs. Edward Carr, 306 Aylmer street.

DRUNKEN MAN BROKE A CHARLOTTE ST. GATE

Has Not Yet Made an Offer to Repair It

The G.T.R. gate at the crossing on Charlotte street has been the victim of another assault this time from a drunken man who smashed off a piece of one of the arms. Street cars, wagons and other vehicles have battered them and it remained for a stout redmose to again do the trick and he made a fairly good job of it. It will cost him more than several "tools" if he does not repair it before the matter is left with the court.

Peterboro' People Returning to City

Many Back After Spending the Holidays Abroad—School Opening Responsible for Presence of Many

END OF THE SUMMER HERE

With the first of September there has been a great home-gathering of Peterborough residents who have been out of the city for periods of varying length. The teachers in the city's schools, Public, Separate and High, many of whom have been away during the vacation, are back, and this morning commenced work, among them being Miss Noble, who returned on Saturday after an extended trip to Continental Europe and the British Isles. Miss Birdie Thompson, who was a member of the Toronto Worlds' trip to London party, also arrived in the city on Saturday, after spending a week in Montreal with friends. She reports having spent a delightful holiday with the ten other "Maple Blossoms" in a flying tour of the old land.

Mr. J W Bennet and Mr. R J Munro, too, have returned to the city after several weeks spent in touring the Continent. They are in apparent good health and, so far as appearances are indicative, give the impression of having benefitted by their holiday.

This week will see the return of the greater number of Peterborough's contingent of summer residents at Stony Lake. Those who have children attending school have moved to the city to allow them to commence the term, and the others will be down in a few days at the most.

TWO EXCURSIONS FOR STEAMER STONEY LAKE

North Dummer Residents to See Lift Lock—Warsaw Orangemen for Chemong

On Thursday of this week the steamer Stoney Lake will run an excursion from North Dummer to Peterborough and over the lift lock. The boat leaves Crowe's Landing and calls at the important points on the lake before coming to Peterborough.

Warsaw L.O.L., No. 284 have also engaged the Stoney Lake for their excursion on Thursday, Sept. 12th to Chemong.

QUINLAN SAYS HE'S OUT OF GAME

As Far as Peterborough is Concerned—Not Satisfied With Treatment

Mr. A. Quinlan wishes the Examiner to state that he has severed his connection with the Peterborough Baseball Club because he believes that he has not received the best of treatment at the hands of the management. This act of the local twirler means that he will not wear a Peterborough uniform again this season, which will be regretted by the fans generally. He has done great work in the box for Peterborough all season, and his services will be missed.

EXHIBITION SPECIAL WRECKED, AND 250 PERSONS INJURE

Eleven Were Killed Outright and Many Fatally Injure Running at Top Speed Engine Jumped Track

TRAIN WAS ROUNDING A CURVE WHEN ACCIDENT HAPPE

Accident Occured Near Orangeville---One of The Most D astrous Railway Wrecks of the Year

Special wire to J. R. Heintz & Co.

Orangeville, Sept. 3.—A disastrous wreck occurred this morning 9.45 a.m. on the C P R, Five coaches, crowded with men and women ery seat filled and people standing in the aisles, followed the locom that jumped the track on the Horseshoe curve, nine miles below Or ville. The train was an exhibition special, timed to leave Markdal 6.30 a.m. The locomotive was in charge of Engineer Hart. At 9.45 train pulled into Orangeville one hour late. Less than a half an later the locomotive jumped the track on the down grade of the H shoe curve of the Caledon Mountain. The five crowded cars were on to the locomotive. Not less than three hundred were in the cars left the track, and of these, at least 250 were injured, and man them fatally, and six were killed outright.

The only explanation of the disaster so far is that the engineer trying to make up time, and took the curve at a speed beyond the of safety.

A special train was sent from Toronto conveying medical assistan a dozen nurses.

(G. N. W. Special.)

Orangeville, Ont., September 3. — Word has been received here o wrecking of the special train from Owen Sound, which passed thr here at 9 a. m., containing six coaches. Five cars left the trac one containing most of the Orangeville people remaining on the Seven bodies have already been taken from the wreck and brought Orangeville. A large number were injured. Harry Halbert, son of James Halbert, night watchman here, had a leg broken; T. J. Robi of North Bay, formerly of Orangeville, was badly injured, as were Mr Mrs. Douglas, of Markdale, father and mother of A. C. Douglas, gist of Orangeville.

Later despatches show that eleven were killed and several more jured. The train, it seems, was travelling too fast for the down of the mountain, and the engine jumped the track. The engineer fireman remained with the engine and were seriously injured. Am the dead are Mr. Banks, of Markdale, Mr. Tucker of Markdale, and Thornton, of Walters' Falls.

The New Judge's Notes.

Chief Justice Falconbridge of Ontario, Mr. Justice Britton and Mr. Justice Riddell, a newly appointed judge, were sitting together as a court in Toronto. According to some legalists who were present, the presentation of argument on behalf of one of the clients was rather prolix and not very much to the point, to put it mildly. Mr. Justice Riddell, who, by the way, was not to the same extent inured against the tediousness of the proceedings as were his colleagues, was observed to pass one of them a slip of paper, on which presumably were written some notes on the case. Immediately the "notes" were read, however, by his colleagues there was a subdued suggestion of mirth apparent on their part. It turned out that the "notes" read after this fashion:

THE "NOTES."

(With apologies to Mr. Rudyard Kipling.)

"'Oo is it makes that bloomin' noise?"
Asked Files-on-Parade.
"It's counsel's openin' argument,"
The color sergeant said.
"'Oo 'as to 'ear the bally stuff"
Asked Files-on-Parade.
"The chief and his two hired men,"
The color sergeant said.

"For he doesn't know his law, he misrepresents the facts;
His logic is so rotten you can see through all the cracks,
And he's pretty sure to get it where the chicken got the ax,
When the court delivers judgment in the morning."

GOVERNMENT NEGLECT

It is a fact which will not be denied, that many persons have been fleeced by the recent so-called mining companies, in connection with Ontario's undoubtedly rich silver resources. The late leader of the Liberal party in Ontario, Hon. Mr. Graham, held the Ontario Government responsible for the over capitalization of, presumably, wild-cat mining companies. In his first public address after assuming the leadership of the Liberal party, Mr. Graham severely censured the Government for its failure to adopt measures to keep the capitalization of mining companies within reasonable bounds. No restriction were placed upon the ambition of persons who managed to secure mining claims in regard to the number and amount of wild-cat shares they threw upon the market to the beguilment of credulous investors, and the tying up of much money in questionable and losing ventures. No effort was made to protect the public. Not only have Ontario people noticed this condition but a correspondent of the New York Post deals with it. He says: "Innocent enough, perhaps, the Ontario Government simplified the operations of the dishonest, by failure to restrict the capitalization to reasonable figures. Over capitalization made it profitable to market the stock at alluring prices." The Government was doubtless too busy finding places for the spoilsman of its party to busy themselves with so prosaic a matter as the protection of the interests of the people they are assumed to represent. A policy of drift seems to be a favourite resource of the Government in connection with the administration of public business. The Globe calls attention to the neglect shown by the Government. In the matter of the Granetti Bank failure. Government was warned months in advance of the trouble which resulted in considerable loss, but the failure to take action was of a piece with the policy and practice of the Government in some other matters.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's good judgment extends to the good quality of men he selects for Cabinet positions. There are now four newspaper men in the Federal Cabinet—Messrs. Fielding, Oliver, Templeman, and Graham.

After a hundred years of mission work in China, the Protestants can ocount upon one hundred and fifty thousand native Christians. A convert and a half a year seems to be slow progress towards the Christianization of a population of 430 millions. There are now 4,000 missionaries at work, and it is estimated that the prevalence of convresion is at the rate of doubling the number of converts every seven years.

The Montreal Star in disgust says Mr. Border's wonderful platform declarations "are so well hedged about with 'ifs' and 'buts' that no one is likely to get nervous because of them." It concludes that "Mr. Border's platform was pretty well sterilized before the people were exposed to it." When the leading Conservative organ tells the truth in this blunt, disrespectful way, one must conclude that the Conservative idol is a little shaky on its pedestal.

The reports made to the Government show that diphtheria continues to be the most fatal of the contagious group of diseases in the province, with typhoid fever, influenza, scarlet fever, whooping cough, measles and small-pox following in the order named. The figures for tuberculosis are startling. They show that 79,546 have died of this disease in the thirty-four years since 1870. For some unexplained reason, the counties with the highest death rate are those contiguous to the St. Lawrence river.

The Globe calls attention to the fact that the cotton and woollen mills of western Massachusetts, are threatened with a complete shutdown on account of the scarcity of water in the rivers. The rainfall in the past four months is the smallest in a quarter of a century. That is the penalty paid for the destruction of forest growth, and the consequent destruction of the natural reservoirs, which hold the rain water and permit it to ooze out gradually, instead of having it rush off from bare hillsides and valley slopes in vernal torronts. We have the advantage in this district. To the north of us there is a great stretch of forest, and, besides, the conservation of our waters by a systems of dams holds back the water, which may be permitted to flow only as required. Thus the waste of waters in the spring months may be prevented, and, when the supply of rain is not present, this reserved water may be available, and we can have, as a rule, an equitable and sufficient flow.

Port Hope Won The First Game of The Finals

Defeated Peterborough on Saturday by Making Six Runs In the First Chapter---Quinlan Pitched the Last Eight Innings and Only Gave Three Hits---A Double Disaster

Two exciting event took place at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon over neither of which there is much rejoicing. The defeat of the Peterborough ball team by Port Hope by a score of 9-4, and the subsequent burning of the grand stand.

Despite the fact that Quinlan had been the bug-bear of the Port Hope team all season, the management decided to send Burns to do the pitching and the step did not seem to be a wise one. Before three men were put out in the first innings Port Hope had sent six counters across the plate, more than enough to win the game. Four hits, two bases on balls and five errors were responsible for the damage. The fault was not by any means all Burns', in fact the team blew up with all on board and played like a wooden legged man trying to climb a ladder. The innings was one ghastly nightmare to the local fans of which there was the largest representation ever seen at a ball game in this city.

After this interesting curtain raiser Quinlan was sent in, but the damage had been done. From that time onward the game bore a different complexion but it was too late then. The Hopers found Quinlan somewhat of a mystery, and during the remaining eight innings they only secured three hits, one in the third, another in the fourth and the last in the eighth, for a total of three runs, while Peterborough secured four. All the way along the fans looked for a batting rally that would pull the game out of the fire, but the disasterous opening had its effect and the same ginger was not there.

Surphlis, the veteran twirler, was in the box for the visitors and pitched nice ball, although he was by no means a mystery. The locals getting to him for 10 hits, including four doubles and a triple. Henry, however, for the most part kept the hits scattered and was decidedly effective with men on the bases. His support was of the best and snappy double-plays pulled him out of two bad looking holes.

Port Hope had two new men on the line up, Ross of the Wellingtons in centre and Britton of the St. Mary's at short stop, neither of which did much to earn his salary. The feature of the team's playing was the work of O'Brien at third, and O'Hearne at second, and Kolb at first. O'Brien accepted seven chances some of them very difficult, without a skip, and O'Hearne had nine without a misplay. Both men covered lots of ground, and cut off some probable hits by sharp fielding.

Peterborough made most of their errors in the first innings and after that terrible affair they steadied down and played nice ball. Cheatham's clean cut work at short stop was one of the bright features in the general gloom of the afternoon. Although handicapped with a badly bruised thumb, the local short stop accepted six chances without an error, making several splendid throws to first. Haliburton made a costly error in the first innings, but after that his work was of the gilt edge variety. He contributed some pretty fielding around the third corner. Hickey's work at first was also good after the initial innings, and he covered the bag in splendiod fashion. Burridge did grand work behind the bat, getting several foul flies and doing the receiving in faultless fashion.

After the first innings the game was a good exhibition although the fans never recovered sufficiently from the shock of the initial chapter to enjoy the proceedings that followed. Peterborough had the best of the play during the remainder of the game, but the handicap was too much to be overcome.

Burns' batting was one of the features of the matinee. He got four hits out of five times to bat, including two doubles and a triple. Murphy of the St. Mary's who played left field for the locals also did good work with the stick, getting a double and a single. O'Brien and Brown were the leading stick artists for the visitors. O'Brien contributing three pretty singles. An unusual feature was the fact that Kolb got four bases on balls during the afternoon and O'Hearne was passed twice and hit once.

Walsh of Toronto, umpired the game and gave general satisfaction. His decisions meeting with the favour of both teams.

The game by innings was as follows: First innings; O'Brien first to beat out a slow grounder to short stop. Kolb attempted to sacrifice but Hickey dropped Burridge's throw and both runners were safe. O'Neil advanced them a base with a grounder to Hickey, Ross bunted to Burns and was out at first, but O'Brien scored on Hickey's bad throw to the plate. O'Hearne was given a base on balls, Britton hit one to Haliburton but the local third baseman overlooked the trifling formality of stopping it and the ball rolled to left field. Murphy to keep up his end of the comedy of errors made a hysterical heave to the plate, the ball landing near the club house. Kolb had already scored and O'Hearne came in on the throw, while Britton went to third. Rowden singled to right and Britton scorred. Brown followed with a single and Surphlis hit to Anderson, who fumbled it on the runner and the runner was safe. O'Brien made his second single of the innings and Rowden and Brown scored. Kolb was given a pass and the cushions were all occupied. Finally O'Neil grounded out to Burns retiring the side. 6 runs.

Burns lead off for Peterborough with a pretty two bagger to left, Cheatham grounded out to O'Hearne, Burns going to third. Burridge died on a foul to the catcher and Connors grounder to third was taken care of by O'Brien. No runs.

Quinlan replaced Burns, the latter going to centre field.

Second innings; Ross was safe when Haliburton dropped his fly to third. O'Hearne was given his second base on balls. Britton hit to Quinlan and Ross was forced at third. Burridge caught O'Hearne napping at second with a perfect throw to the middle bag. Rowden flied out to third. No runs.

Peterborough scored in their half. Hickey drove out a pretty two bagger and scored on Anderson's smoking single over second. Murphy hit to O'Hearne who tried to get Anderson at second but the big fellow was safe. Haliburton and Callaghan both tore holes in the atmosphere in trying to connect with Surphlis shoots. Burns came to the rescue with his second two bagger and Anderson scored. Cheatham grounded out to second. Two runs

Third innings; Cheatham took care of Brown's fly to short stop. Surphlis grounded out to Anderson. Bill O'Brien made his third single, a nice drive to left and Kolb was walked. O'Neil tried to bunt but Burridge's perfect throw to first caught him cold.

For Peterborough Burridge lead off with a single and stole second and went to third when O'Neil dropped the last strike on Quinlan and had to throw to first. Hickey hit to Britton who tried to catch Burridge at the plate but the local catcher beat the ball by a safety slide. Anderson hit to O'Brien and a fast double play resulted. O'Brien to O'Hearne to Kolb forcing Hickey at second. One run.

Fourth innings; Ross hit to right and was safe on Callaghan's miss of his easy fly. Ross stole second, O'Hearne flew out to pitcher. Britton was given base on balls. Ross stole third and scored on a wild pitch by Quinlan. Rowden struck out but Brown scored Britton on a single over second. Two runs.

For Peterborough Murphy led off with a corking two bagger. Haliburton was safe on fielder's choice on a grounder to O'Hearne. Murphy being safe at second chances for runs looked good but Callaghan flied out to third. Burns singled, filling the bases with but one gone. Cheatham gave Surphlis an opportunity to pull out of the hole by flying out to O'Hearne, who tagged Burns, making a double play unassisted. No runs.

Fifth innings: O'Brien was out on a grounder to Haliburton. Kolb was passed for the third time. O'Neil flew out to Cheatham and Ross died on a grounder to Quinlan. No runs.

For Peterborough: Burridge was out on a hard drive to third, which O'Brien handled in splendid fashion. Quinlan was safe on Britton's fumble of his grounder. Hickey hit to Britton and Quinlan was forced. Anderson's grounder to Britton resulted in Hickey being caught off second. No runs.

Sixth innings: O'Hearne was hit by pitcher. Britton tried to bunt but his best was a fly to Haliburton. Rowden grounded out to Haliburton, and Brown's fly was easy for Anderson. No runs.

In Peterborough's half: Murphy lead off with a single to left but was forced at second on Haliburton's grounder. Callaghan went out by the Surphlis-Kolb route, but Burns hit to right field for three bases, the ball bounding away from Rowden, Haliburton scoring on the play. Cheatham struck out, One run.

Seventh innings: Surphlis grounded out to Cheatham, and O'Brien did the same. Kolb was walked for the fourth time in a row, but Cheatham took care of O'Neil's fly. No runs.

O'Hearne made a nice running catch of Burridge's fly to short right. Quinlan struck out. Hickey was given a base on balls, but Anderson's beat was a fly to centre, which Ross corralled. runs.

Eighth innings: Hickey neatly captured Ross' foul fly. O'Hearne drove out a three bagger to right centre. Britton hit a slashing grounder to Cheatham who was too late to stop the run, but got the batter at first. Rowden grounded out to Haliburton. One run.

Murphy was out on a fly to O'Hearne. Haliburton singled and Callaghan got a base on balls. With Burns at the bat and two on the bases the chances for scoring looked bright. Burns, however, hit a grounder to third, which forced Haliburton, Cheatham flew out to left. No runs.

Ninth innings: Burridge made a pretty running catch of Brown's difficult foul fly. Surphlis was given a base on balls, but O'Brien struck out and Burridge caught Surphlis sleeping at first by a neat throw.

In Peterborough's half: Burridged flew out to O'Brien, Quinlan fanned, Hickey walked and stole second but Anderson struck out and the game was over.

THE MATINEE WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Some Interesting Racing at the Driving Park Yesterday Afternoon

The matinee under the auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club yesterday afternoon at the Driving Park was fairly well attended and some good sport was seen. The 2.40 class was captured by Dr. Johnston of Lakefield with Brown Gyp, with Peggy and Claude battling hard for second honours. Harry Direst had an easy time of it in the free-for-all. Mr. Donald Fraser, the new proprietor of the Snowden House, acted as starter in a capable manner.

The results follow:

2.40 Class—
Brown Gyp, Dr. Johnston, Lakefield... 1 1
Peggy, Geo. Lipsett... 2 2
Claude, McCollum Bros... 3 3
Free-for-all—
1—Harry Direst, J J Cottingham... 1 1
2—Hazel Belle, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough... 2 2
3—Queen's Baron, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough... 3 3
4—Lady Gothard, M. Connors, Peterborough... 4 4

Pills Make Life Wretched

It is a great mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging, sensation of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for all forms of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

HOMEMADE KITE.

How the Handy Boy Can Construct an Excellent Flier.

The accompanying cut shows how a good kite may be made. Out of some straight grained, light wood—cedar preferred—make four sticks about one-eighth of an inch in thickness. Let two of them be twenty-two inches in length, one seventeen and one-half inches and the other thirteen and three-quarters inches. Place them as shown in the picture, and tack them firmly where they cross. Cut little notches at the ends of the sticks, and put a string around the whole frame, making it taut and tying it so that it will not slip.

Now cut out a piece of very thin manila paper—tissue paper would do, but thin manila is more serviceable—one inch larger all around than the frame, and paste the edge over the string. Make a small hole in the end of the sticks at A, B, C, D, E and F and put in a string loosely from A to F, from B to E and from C to D. Make a string loop from E to F, to which the tail of the kite is to be attached. The strings must come through to the paper side of the kite, not the stick side.

The cord by which you are to fly the kite should be attached where the strings cross each other; do this with a loose knot inclosing all the strings. For the tail, use a strip of muslin about one inch in width and fifteen feet in length and attach ten bobs made of paper rolled up. If the kite should dive, add more tail until it sails steadily.

Use fine, but strong, cord for the flying, and don't attempt it in a high wind. Kites always fly better in a moderate wind.

FLY ON THE CEILING.

Explanation of This Insect's Ability to Walk Upside Down.

The ability of the fly to walk along the ceiling or up and down a pane of glass is a matter that is constantly puzzling boys and girls, and older people, too, and a simple explanation of it here might be of interest.

As insignificant a creature as the fly is, this power has made it the subject of scientific study for years. The scientists at first thought its feet were furnished with suction pumps, so to speak, little valves that clung to the ceiling on the same principle as that of the wet leather disk that boys lift bricks with. When they found that this was an error they thought that the fly's feet were supplied with a kind of sticky oil that enabled it to hold on.

But a careful experimenter discovered that while the feet exude a fluid it is not sticky, and so that theory had to be given up. Finally this same experimenter hit on the truth. He found that the feet of the fly are covered with minute hairs—each fly has about 1,200 of them—and that the fluid that comes from them enables the fly to walk, head down, on even the smoothest surface, by capillary attraction—that is to say, the fluid on the fly's feet forms a sort of connection between the feet and the surface the fly walks on, and the attraction thereby established is strong enough to sustain several times the weight of the fly.

It is impossible for the fly to get along well unless its feet are perfectly clean, and when you see it apparently making its toilet by rubbing its feet together and all over its wings and back it is simply putting its feet in order.

Seven Moons In One Night.

It is said that at Sonoma, Cal., the full moon rises and sets seven times in one night. The Indians call the place Sonoma valley, which means the "valley of many moons." The explanation is that there is a certain peak east of the town toward which you have to look to see the queer phenomenon, the mountain being so formed there that the moon rises into sight and sinks out of it seven times in succession.

Celia's Duckling.

When Celia's hen hatched out her brood
One of her chickies seemed no good—
Treated his ma with disrespect,
Marked disobedience and neglect.
In spite of warning word and look
He plunged alone into the brook.
His mother kind ran up and down,
Lamenting that her child would drown.
With every feather in a flutter
She called, with many a clack and clatter,
With many an anxious, troubled cluck—
She didn't know he was a duck!
And we, it chanced, were there to see
This much afflicted family.
We did not worry, for we knew
A duckling knows a thing or two.
We wanted to explain—but, then,
How can one 'xplain things to a hen?

UNCANNY-LOOKING COSTUME.

Latest Invention In the Art of Life-Saving.

The uncanny-looking costume depicted below represents the latest invention in the art of life-saving. It is described by its exploiters, Messrs. Siebe, Gorman, and Co., as a rescue appliance, more especially designed for exploring and rescue work in mines, etc. It has no air pipe or any other communication with the outer atmosphere, and can be used by its wearer for two hours at a time; the wearer being perfectly safe in the most deadly gases, and able to walk any distance and explore the most intricate turnings of a mine with every freedom of action.

The principle of the apparatus is that the wearer breathes the same air over and over again, the carbonic acid being absorbed from it after each expiration, and at the same time the requisite amount of oxygen restored to it automatically, thus rendering it pure and fit to be again inhaled into the lungs. The members of the Royal Commission on Mines have just witnessed a practical demonstration of this appliance at the experimental department of Messrs. Siebe, Gorman & Co. (Ltd.), a man, equipped with the apparatus, working in a chamber filled with dense fumes and poisonous gases, and crawling on hands and knees over various obstacles and through a pipe measuring only 20 inches in diameter, and rescuing a dummy representing a man weighing 140 pounds.

BRITAIN IN THE LEAD.

Is Ahead of All Other Countries In Kite-Making.

"In my opinion the cigar-shaped dirigible balloon, on which the French and the German military authorities set such store, will become obsolete in a few years. It is the aeroplane that is to be the fighting machine of the air, and it is toward the perfection of the aeroplane that Great Britain is working.

"The sheds of North Camp, at Aldershot, contain a machine which, when finished, will dim the glories of La Patrie and the new German airship."

This statement was made by a war official to a press representative, who was anxious to learn how far the scheme of aerial defence had been advanced. The original plan of Britain's air fleet which was submitted to the Committee of National Defence, included sentry kites, dirigible balloons to act as depot ships, and supply stores to the naval fleet, and fighting aeroplanes.

As far as the kites are concerned, Great Britain is ahead of other countries, and that, at least, is reassuring. Every day experiments are being carried out at Aldershot, and three or four of these box-kites are frequently seen carrying a man—a black speck, two thousand feet above the earth.

Although no dirigible balloon has yet circled St. Paul's, it must not be supposed that the War Office is behindhand in this matter. But, as the informant quoted above has stated, the chief hope of the British aerial navy lies in the aeroplane — the machine which is heavier than air.

A great bulk, such as La Patrie, cannot travel at the best more than 24 miles an hour. An aeroplane of the same size could fly through the air at more than 100 miles an hour.

pard, who probably never did half the heroic things attributed to him.

In any case, the old order changeth, giving place to the new, and so the inevitable march of events has decreed the destruction of the notorious thief's house. The building is situated in Mint street, and the Southwark Guardians have decided to pull it down and build a paupers' workshop on the site.

CHINA HALL'S NEW PREMISES, 394 GEORGE ST.

AN IMPLOSION.

It Is the Opposite of an Explosion and Less Familiar.

Every one knows what an explosion is, but its opposite, an implosion, is less familiar. At great depths in the sea the conditions are favorable for its production. At 2,500 fathoms the pressure is, roughly speaking, two and a half tons to the square inch—that is to say, several times greater than the pressure exerted by the steam upon the piston of a powerful engine.

An interesting experiment to illustrate the enormous force of this deep sea pressure was made on the Albatross, a government vessel engaged in deep sea exploration.

A thick glass tube several inches in length full of air was hermetically sealed at both ends. This was wrapped in flannel and placed in one of the wide copper cylinders used to protect deep sea thermometers when they are sent down with the sounding apparatus. The copper cylinder had holes bored in it, so that the water had free access inside, round the glass. The case was then sent down to a depth of 2,000 fathoms and drawn up again.

It was found that the cylinder was bulged and bent inward, just as if it had been crumbled inward by being violently squeezed. The glass tube itself, within its flannel wrapper, was reduced to a fine powder, almost like snow. The glass tube, it would seem, as it slowly descended, held out long against the pressure, but at last suddenly gave way and was crushed by the violence of the action to a fine powder.

This process, exactly the reverse of an explosion, is termed an implosion.

MASTERY OF THE NILE.

The Method by Which the Flow of Water Is Controlled.

Every morning from a little room of a great white house on the eastern shore of the Nile at Assouan is clicked by telegraph to Cairo the question, "How much water?" The answer comes so many thousand gallons more or so many thousand gallons less. A button is pressed, the water which flows under the iron bridge at Cairo is increased or diminished some ten days later in accordance with the telegraphic answer, and the intervening valley between Assouan and Cairo has a little more or a little less water on its surface. The man at the button may bring joy or sorrow to thousands of little farms—it is all according to the message he receives.

From the great white house there extends across the river a granite wall or dam 150 feet high. Halfway up this wall and stretching its entire length a line of shutters opens or closes by a pressure of the button. In the winter months a huge lake expands to the southward, which has every appearance of being a flood, for in certain places the tops of palm trees are discernible above its surface, and the summits of inundated ruins apparently mark the sites of sunken cities. As the days go by and Cairo demands more and more water the palm trees and the ruins seem to rise from their watery beds until in June and early July the river flows freely with all its historic indolence.

Three Layers of Atmosphere.

It appears that in the atmosphere there are three distinct currents of air, the first lying at an elevation of from 900 to 1,500 meters, the second at from 2,500 to 4,000 meters and the upper one at from 6,000 to 8,000 meters above the surface of the earth. These are to an extent separate currents, flowing each with its own velocity. At the bottom of each of the layers the stratus clouds are formed, and at the top of each of the layers occur the cumulus clouds. This suggests that the stratus originate at the bottom of a moving current and the cumulus at the top. It is probable, then, that the stratus owe their origin to the difference in velocity and temperature of the two layers, while the cumulus are formed by ascending currents within the layer of air.

Effective Retorting.

"It is so sudden!" exclaimed the fair haired girl, who had just received a proposal to merge her identity in that of a would be protector. "You must give me time to reflect."

"No, no!" retorted the diplomatic young man. "One whose dazzling beauty makes a mirror ashamed of itself should never go into the reflecting business. Let this solitaire diamond do the reflecting."

And the records of the license clerk show that it was even so.

The Pessimistic Poet.

The rose that smells the sweetest is the first to fade. The boy who runs the fastest is the one to soonest jade. The brightest of the evenings has the gloomiest of dawns. The man with the biggest yard must cut the biggest lawn.

A Cabby Stung.

Foreigners often fall a prey to the unscrupulous wiles of the British cabby, who basely takes advantage of the stranger's want of familiarity with English idiom, coinage and locality. We have heard of the intelligent foreigner being driven about six statute miles in a journey from London bridge to Charing Cross. That cabby got the best of the transaction, but a recent attempt to impose upon foreign credulity was frustrated cleverly by a son of Gaul, whose taste for joking led him to try to bamboozle a cabby into attempting it with him. He demanded in exceedingly broken English to be driven to a certain place, the fare to which was exactly a shilling. It may be remarked that he really could speak English as well as he could his mother tongue. On arriving at his destination he asked, still in a struggling fashion:

"'Ow mooch 'ave I to pay?"

"Five shillings," promptly responded the cabby.

"And 'ow mooch is 5 shillings?" queried the traveler, taking out three half crowns and laying them across his palm.

"Them three's right," said the cabby, pointing to the coins.

"Oh!" said the Frenchman. Then, dropping his assumed imperfect acquaintance with the vernacular, "Well, here's a bob for you," he said and departed, leaving his erstwhile jehu standing with a perplexed expression on his face which took some time to disappear.—London Tit-Bits.

Rules For Right Eating.

The rules for eating, which ought to be a part of every child's A B C's, are few and simple, though neglected by half of the adult population.

Expressed in don'ts, they are:

Don't eat in a hurry; don't eat when tired; don't forget to chew well; don't drink much with meals—do it before—don't eat all one kind of food; don't take much cold food at one time.

Most of us live as if unconscious that there are such things as laws of health whose violation brings pain and sickness. The stomach will bear as much abuse and neglect as any organ of the body, perhaps more than most of them. But when it rebels there is usually one more cross dyspeptic inflicted on society and destined to spend the rest of his days alternating between a diet of soft eggs and toast and sundry excursions into mince pies, pork and cabbage and other things that he likes, but which make him miserable. —Charles H. Cochrane in Metropolitan Magazine.

He Hung on to the Record.

A fish story I heard while camping involves an old man who had little regard for the truth. Two young men made it up to go to the old gentleman's house and outgeneral him by telling the biggest lie to the old man, who held the record. After being at the old man's house some time one of them asked the old gentleman if he had heard about the big fire. He said he had not and asked them where it was. The young man told him a gasoline launch had exploded on the river and the whole river was on fire. The old man sat quiet for a moment, then turned to his wife and said, "Mother, I told you something terrible had happened up the river today when I caught that catfish with his fins all burned off."

How She Helped.

A servant girl who had been through the mill before was being cross examined the morning after her new engagement. Said her mistress:

"And did your last mistress assist you in cooking, Maggie?"

"Weel, aye, in a way she did," admitted Maggie.

"How did she do it, now?" asked her mistress.

"By stoppin' oot o' the kitchen, mem," was Maggie's retort, and the mistress gracefully retired.—London Answers.

A Hot Knife.

"A knife that cuts butter when it is hot" (and under no other circumstances) we sometimes meet with, and the reason of this is easily explained. Heat expands metal and in proportion to the amount of metal which is heated. There is more metal in the breadth of a blade than in its thickness, and the former therefore is expanded immensely more than the latter. In other words, the wedgelike shape is lengthened, and the tool becomes "sharp."

The Greater Ache.

"You might think you've got such a heartache," said the woman, "that you can't stand it at all. You'll never get over it, never in the world! You can't stand it another minute without dying of it, but just wait till you get the toothache good and hard, then stand by and watch the heartache go way back and sit down."

Nothing can be done at once hastily and prudently.—Publius Syrus.

HANDY TO THE THEATRE, RAILWAYS AND BOATS

Bad, but Still Good.

A judge from one of the African crown colonies, now home on leave, is telling this story: It is the custom in the local courts to administer to the natives the form of oath which they consider most binding. One day a Christian colored gentleman, of whose good faith the judge entertained some doubts, was about to give evidence. At his own request he was allowed to take the oath of a Christian. Then the judge intimated that he must also be sworn in the native fashion. The man was visibly disconcerted. "Oh, no, massa," he pleaded. "Not dat. Me very bad native, but me very good Christian."

Reversed the Process.

"Yes, sir, the major went in swimmin', an' I'm blest ef a feller didn't come along an' steal all his clothes!"

"An' what did he do then?"

"Broke the record by goin' home in a barrel, instead o' the barrel goin' home in him."

Shocks to the Ear.

A succession of noises means a succession of shocks, says Country Life. The ear, unlike the eye, has no lid under which it may go to sleep, and indeed it has been proved that the sense of hearing is at work just after sleep comes on.

An Obliging Cyclone.

People who want something bright and original may be referred to the story of a Texas cyclone that picked up a letter and delivered it to the person to whom it was addressed, twenty miles away.

Anatomy.

"How many ribs have you, Johnny?" asked the teacher.

"I don't know, ma'am," giggled Johnny, squirming around on one foot. "I'm so awful ticklish I never could count 'em."

"What's Dad A-doin'?"

"Mammy's knittin' dad a pair o' socks."

"An' what's dad a-doin' of?"

"Prayin' to the Lord for shoes!".

Making a Monkey of Him.

"I have something to tell you. I have a tale about my ancestors."

"I presume your ancestors had tails about themselves."

FUNERAL WAS HELD ON MONDAY

Remains of the Late Mrs. J. J. Turner, Sr., Buried at Port Hope Yesterday —Many Floral Offerings

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. J. Turner, Sr., took place yesterday. The service at the house was conducted by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, who also accompanied the remains to Port Hope, and officiated at the grave at the Port Hope Cemetery. Many floral expressions of sympathy were given to the bereaved family; among them were an anchor from St. Luke's Bible Class, of which Mr. J. J. Turn-Jr., is teacher; gates ajar, from the Turner employees; a wreath of the A. O. U. W.; a wreath from the Opera House Orchestra; a pillow and anchor from the family, and anchor from Mr. and Mrs. Garrow; a basket of flowers from Mrs. L. Turner; palm spray, from Mr. H. Green, and many others. The four sons acted as pall bearers.

THE ONTARIO MILLERS' SUCCESS

They Have Driven Out Western Flour From Markets in the Maritime Provinces

The average Ontario farmer does not worry very much over the problems of food chemistry, or such details as the requisite amount of hydro-carbons or proteid in bread. But he is vitally interested in those problems that affect the market for his products and the cost of living.

There seems to be little relation between the loaf on the table and the markets of the province. There is a close relationship, however—because of the fact that individuals all over Ontario insist on buying Western flour, thinking that it is the best because it has been so extensively advertised. This taken in the aggregate has caused the decline in the demand for Ontario wheat, and the building up of the West at the expense of Ontario farmers and millers.

That the market has been largely lost and that feed is dear, cannot be disputed, but what is vastly more important to the farming community of Ontario, is the signal success of Ontario millers in driving out western competition in the Maritime provinces. People in Ontario eat bread made from Western flour. People in the Maritime provinces prefer what is known as Ontario blended flour and the effect of this demand is already felt by those millers who make a specialty of the new flour.

The exploitation and discovery of the fact that just enough Western flour needs to be added to th richly-flavoured but weaker flour of Ontario, to make the best and most nourishing bread in the world, spells opportunity for Ontario farmers. They cannot afford to neglect this latest move to regain the home market and the sooner they realize that it is financial folly to encourage Western industry at the expense of their own bank accounts, and insist on buying only flour milled in Ontario. the sooner will such a demand be created for Ontario blended flours that millions of money will remain in Ontario, to benefit the wheat growers and the stockmen of this province.

Music and Drama

KERRY GOW

Bernard Daly, the famous singing Irish comedian, will appear at the Grand Opera House, Friday, Sept. 6th, in Joseph Murphy's great Irish drama, "The Kerry Gow," the beautiful Irish drama, which has lived longer and delighted more people than any other Irish drama ever written. The cast of characters comprises some of the ablest exponants of Irish drama and no expense has been spared to make the production a memorable one. Bernard Daly, who heads that company, is a magnetic, handsome and youthful comedian who has already made his histrionic mark in the companies of many leading stars. He is the possessor vot a phenomenally high and pure tenor voice and rouses his auditors to enthusiasm when he sings the many charming Irish ballads, which occur frequently throughout the play. Among the ballads which he sings may be mentioned "Killarney," "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," "The Last Rose of Summer," "Honeurah" and "Molly O." Miss Nan Hewins, who has been engaged to play Norah Drew is a clever and exceptionally pretty ingenue well known and popular throughout the length and breadth of the country. The other characters are in able hands, and a our load of scenery and effects, all combined, makes this one of the most interesting and charming entertainments that will visit our city this season.

THE CHIEF SECRETARY ARRIVES

Col. Sowten Comes to Canada to be Second in Command in Salvation Army

Col. Sowter, who has been appointed to the office of chief secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada, in succession to Col. Kyle, who has returned to England, arrived on Saturday by the steamer Southwark, which carried a party of about 275 immigrants. He will have his office in Toronto, and will be second in command of the Army in this country.

Col. Sowten has recently been stationed in Denmark, this being his first visit to Canada, though he held a commission in the United States several years ago.

Stony Lake Men Mistake Cow Bell For Fog Horn

Make Investigation to Discover the Secret---Union Jack is Disregarded by Yankee Tourists---Closing Church Service of the Season---Latest News of the Waning Summer Time

Examiner Special.

Stony Lake, Sept. 2.—Many of the Stony Lake residents are indignant over the way in which Yankee tourists flaunt the Stars and Stripes on their yachts, and expressions of disgust are frequent. One gasoline launch, whose owner is a Pittsburger, went around the lake yesterday with only a Yankee flag floating from its deck. This is an infrequent occurrence, although there have been many boats displaying the Yankee flag above the Union Jack. The latest offender is the property of another Pittsburg tourist, both of whom reside on the Burleigh shore, to the west of Mount Julian.

The Stony Lake Cottagers' Association, which has laid down rules governing these altogether too prevalent conditions, have something to do in this line, if their duty will be done.

A party of fourteen Pittsburg men, guests of Mr. Carter at his cottage on the Burleigh shore, arrived at the lake on Saturday evening. During the week thye will travel deeper into the county and visit the Kosh, Lond, and other lakes of Methuen township. Like a good many others do, they left their grips and suit cases at Lakefield, believing that their train checks were good enough to have them transferred without taking the trouble to look after them personally.

Fog Bell for the Lake

The latest addition provided for the safety of the lake population is an animated fog bell. The first intimation of its existence was observed on Sunday afternoon, when a number of the workmen at Mr. A. L. Davis' cottage noticed an object floating in the lake between two islands, with a bell attached to it. At intervals the tolling of the bell fell upon their ears, and an investigation was instituted. On approaching the object of their search, an animal's head was discovered above water, and someone excitedly called out, "a deer." Closer investigation dislosed the fact that the supposed foghorn and antlered monarch was Mr. A. L. Davis' cow with a bell around its neck, making for a neighbouring island.

The religious services at the Juniper Island pavilion were closed for the season on Sunday morning. A large congregation assembled, and although there was no sermon preached, a number of the prominent cottagers gave brief addresses, expressing their pleasure at the success of the Sunday morning services during the year.

Some Late Catches

Jack Spiedon, an 11 year old lad from Summit, N. J., who has been staying at the Victoria House during the season, was the hero of a fishing episode on Saturday afternoon. Standing on the wharf at McCracken's, he hooked on to a lunge with rod and line, and a minnow for bait, just as the steamer Stoney Lake was landing. Old fishermeen on board looked on with envious eyes as Jack, the youthful angler, hauled in a handsome 6 1-2 pound lunge, with the greatest of composure.

The steamer Stoney Lake carried a large number of excursionists from Lakefield to Bobcaygeon yesterday, under the auspices of the Young Canadians.

At the Young's Point power house yesterday Mr. Fred Young captured one of the largest bass of the season, with the rod and line. The fish was pulled in after a fifteen minutes' struggle, and weighed about 5 1-2 lbs. The catch included half a dozen others of smaller dimensions.

Mr. Jas. Connal was at his cottage, Syndicate Island, over the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Lindsay came up to their cottage, Britannia, on Saturday evening.

Miss Marion Elliott, spent Sunday at Ishpening cottage.

Mrs. Spiedon and family, of Summit, N. J., left this morning for their home, after spending the summer at Victoria House.

Miss May Donnell returned to Toronto from Kilkenny yesterday, after a two weeks' holiday at the lakes.

Mr. Ross Cameron spent the holiday at the lake.

Miss Eva Heard has returned home to Young's Point after a visit with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Gerald Rackham was a visitor at the lake.

Mr. L. M. Watson of Toronto, was a visitor to the lake on Saturday.

Mrs. E. G. Wride and Miss Evelyn M. Dewitt of Auburn, N. Y., are guests at Springside cottage, McCracken's Landing.

Mr. Frank Pope spent the holiday with friends at Young's Point.

Miss A. Donnell of Kilkenny cottage, went down to Peterborough on Friday and returned on Saturday evening.

Mr. Stratton of Napanee, formerly with the Bell Telephone Company, at Peterborough, spent Sunday and the holiday as a guest at Mr. Knapman's cottage.

Mr. W. F. Nelson came up to his cottage at Sandy Point.

Mr. Thos. Barrie came up to his cottage on Saturday evening.

Mrs. A. Brundrotte, of Toronto, was a guest at Mr. Burrie's cottage over the holiday.

Mr. Ernest Brownscombe spent the past two days at the lake.

Mr. Jas. Hamilton spent the holiday a guest at Headlands.

Mayor and Mrs. McWilliams came up to the lake on Saturday evening.

Mr. Oscar Dumble spent the holiday at the lake.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe and family moved down from their cottage this morning.

Mr. J. D. Collins, Mr. Fred and Mr A. Collins went down to the city this morning.

Mr. D. W. Dumble spent Saturday and Sunday at the lake.

Miss Erskine returned home from the lake this morning.

Mr. Graham Ferguson went down from the lake this morning after spending the holiday.

Messrs. H. Casement and R. P. Davidson, Lakefield, spent the past two days at Rayburn Cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrris, of Cleveland left for their home to-day.

Mr. Wm. R. Robertson spent the holiday at Mount Julian.

The steamer Majestic ran the last afternoon trip of the season on Saturday. She will begin towing this week and with the exception of one or two more trips when the Stoney Lake has excursions she has run her last passenger voyage of the season.

On Saturday evening the steamer "Reta" ran aground on the rocks, going high and dry just south of Mr. H. Fisk's cottage. The steamer was about twenty feet out of her course when she struck, the buoys at this portion of thee lake being out of place, and consequently misleading. This is the most frequented channel on the lake and the fact that it is so poorly buoyed is proving a great source of annoyance as well as danger to navigators. When the water, as it is at present, is three feet and a half below normal, it would be an act of wisdom on the part of the Government to have the buoys properly placed and the channels marked. Recently the steamer Empress struck one of the buoys, carrying it two miles before those in charge of the boat discovered the source of the trouble. It is suggested that the present is the proper time for the the superintendent to see that the rocks are buoyed. The water is lower to-day at Stony Lake than it has been for fifteen years, and it is still going down. In Eels Creek and Jack's Lake the water has been allowed to run off, too early in the season, and the result is that the source of supply is shut offf.

That Peterborough will be short of water for power before the winter is over is the opinion of those competent to judge.

THE ANNIVERSARY WAS CELEBRATED

Interesting Service at St. James' Church on Sunday—Rev. Dr. Langfeldt the Speaker

The seventh anniversary of the building of St. James church, Emily, was fittingly celebrated by the services at the church. The morning service took the nature of a harvest thanksgiving, at which Rev. J. H. Teney, preached. At the evening service the anniversary was duly observed, and the Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, under whom the church was built, preached. The church was crowded; seats had to be placed in the aisles, and many could not find admittance. The offertory was for Missions, and was very generous.

TWO DRUNKS THE RESULT OF HOLIDAY

Were Fined Two Dollars for the Privilege of Their Noisy Jollification

At the police court this morning, two holiday drunks appeared before Magistrate Dumble charged with committing a breach of the peace yesterday, and were fine two dollars each, or ten days in gaol. They were Newton Loft and Ed. Thompson, arrested by P. C. McGinty and P. C. McDonald.

Judging from the court the day was rather quietly spent in the city, although but few of thee inebriates found their way to the cells.

LOCAL BAND BEST AT THE FAIR

The 57th Took the Lead at Great Tatoo in Toronto—Their Music Was Superior

THE LABOUR DAY PARADE

This year the 57th Regimental Band was engaged to play for two days at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, and the testimony of those who were there and heard it is that the local organizations distinguished itself, many musicians declaring that the work of the 57th Band was superior to that of any other band on the grounds. The march music was particularly good, the march-past in the tattoo, which was participated in by six bands, being characterized by an ovation to the 57th from the assembled thousands in the grand stand.

A section of the band remained in the city yesterday and took part in the Labour Day parade.

EARNEST APPEAL FOR HONEST WORK

Rev. Canon Davidson Preached a Special Sermon on Sunday Evening on Labour Day

PAY NOT ONLY REWARD

At the evening service in St. John's church on Sunday last, Rev. Canon Davidson preached a sermon bearing on Labour Day, in which he laid stress on the importance of reason, righteousness and religion in work. The hymns sung were appropriate, and the prayers were in keeping with the occasion.

Rev. Canon Davidson spoke from the 4th verse of the 9th chapter of St. John, "I must work the work of Him who sent Me while it is day." In the course of his address he said that while the words were ordinarily applied to religious work they were applicable to the secular work of the world, which was God's appointment in which men and women were to serve Him. From this it follows that work must be good for men which, from experience, actually proves to be the case.

No one is more pitiable or unhappy, declared the speaker, than the man who is without work—whose time is unemployed. In fact one great object of work seemed to be the healthy effect on the worker. Thus even if it is ill-paid or unsuccessful, it need not be thrown away, for if faithfully and fairly done, it must bring its reward, in developing true manhood and womanhood. This result is, in itself, priceless, and far above its monetary value.

Rev. Canon Davidson continuing, said, that no doubt God's beneficent purpose in work was often distorted by men, and work intended to be a boon might be made so great, as to drag them down, under such wrong conditions, as to damage health, or so underpaid as to discourage and depress the worker. The human condition should be remembered, and work made a healthy, happy thing, to be gladly accepted, and done cheerfully. The greatest difficulties in the situation to-day came from man regarding work as a servitude, which he endures solely for certain pay, his attention being concentrated on the pay to the detriment of his working power. While it was an important matter pay was not the only thing to be made right, and not all depended on it. There was the satisfaction in true, honest work which did not depend wholly on money.

The speaker made a strong appeal for honest work, which had always been a British characteristic, and, tainly, should always be a Christian one. He also asked for good skilful work, and made an earnest appeal to Labour Unions to make this and honesty in work, a condition of membership, thereby increasing their influence.

Labour difficulties could be avoided, and solved, by the persistent application of the principles of reason, righteousness and religion. Even if difficulties could not be overcome to the satisfaction of all the application of the principles of religion should keep men thoughtful, fair and considerate towards one another.

In conclusion Rev. Canon Davidson said that amidst imperfections, it was possible to obtain the highest victory, and come closest to the Great Master Workman, Jesus Christ.

Peterborough In Line For Triennial Convention

But Ottawa Won Out in Competition For Next Gathering of the C. M. B. A. of Canada in 1910.

ALD. PHELAN RETURNS

Ald. Phelan, who had been in Montreal during the past week attending the triennial convention of the C.M.B.A., of Canada returned to the city on Sunday morning. Ald. Phelan was given a distinguished honour by his brother fraternalists, an honour which is all the more fully appreciated when it is stated that this is his first convention. He was elected to the Chairmanship of the Committee on Printing, one of the most important of all the committees.

The delegates which numbered 450, represented the best element in the communities from which the membership of this Order is drawn.

The local delegate speaks very highly of the splendid treatment accorded to visitors by the Montreal members who attended to their every want, the ladies, too, accompanying the delegates were royally entertained.

A pleasant feature was the visit of the delegates to Dominion Park, where they were the guests of the Montreal members of the Order.

Ald. Phelan made a game fight to secure the next triennial convention for Peterborough, and that he did not succeed is through no fault of his. There were four places under consideration, Ottawa, Peterborough, Quebec and Fort William. Ottawa was chosen as the place of meeting in 1910, after considerable discussion, in the course of which Ald. Phelan dwelt eloquently upon the advantages possessed by Peterborough. He proposed the newly elected Grand Secretary for his office, and also seconded the nomination of Rev. Father Burke, who was elected Grand Trustee.

OBITUARY

HERBERT DELANEY

Shortly after midnight this morning, Herbert Delaney, son of Mr. John Delaney of New Denver, Col., passed away at the early age of 22 years at the residence of his aunt, Mrs. W. Hopkins, 795 George street. The deceased, whose former home was in Peterborough, came here about a year ago for his health, having been for some time troubled with asthma, which was the cause of his demise. Surviving him are his parents in New Denver, one sister, Miss Kathleen, who is attending the convent here, and one brother, who also resides here with his aunt.

The funeral takes place on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and from there to St. Peter's Cemetery.

A ROYAL ENTERTAINER AT THE LAKEVIEW HOUSE

Mr. Richard Dawson, of San Francisco, Gives Pleasant Shore Dinner

One of the most welcome guests at the Lakeview House, Young's Point, during the tourist season, was Mr. Richard Dawson of San Francisco, who left last Thursday, after a month's visit for Seattle, Washington. He intends remaining there for a short time, after which he will return to his home. Mr. Dawson has had his gasoline yacht at the Point, and entertained the guests with it on several occasions.

One day last week he was the guest at a very enjoyable shore-dinner, at Henderson's Narrows. The invited guests were the tourists staying at the Lakeview, with a few of their friends. The dinner consisted of chicken, principally, and the appetites of the consumers bore testimony to the excellence of the fare.

Accompanying Mr. Dawson were Mr. Joshua Dawson and daughter of Groveton, N. H., Mr. and Mrs. George Dawson and Miss Lila and Mr. Hartman Dawson, of Post Madison, Ia.

HERBERT BULLER IS INJURED

Herbert Buller, an employee of the C. G .E. shops, met with a painful accident this morning. The index finger on his left hand was badly crushed in a gearing machine, and the finger had to be amputated, Dr. Young performing the operation, assisted by Dr. Bradd.

VISITED LIBRARIES IN THE WEST

Architect Blackwell and Members of the Deputation Return From Trip of Inspection

Architect William Blackwell, who, with Ald. McIntyre and Morgan, of the Property Committee, of the City Council, was on a tour of some of the public libraries in Western Ontario, has returned to the city. The deputation covered a lot of territory during the two days they were away, and visited some splendid libraries, where they were enabled to pick up much valuable information.

Among the libraries visited were those at Yorkville, Guelph, Berlin, Galt, Paris, Brantford and St. Catharines. In Guelph they not only saw the city's library, but were given an opportunity of inspecting the magnificent library of the Ontario Agricultural College.

The other members of the deputation will return to the city to-day.

MET BRITISH BOWLER IN SCOTLAND

Some Experiences of Mr. R. J. Munro in Trip Across the Atlantic Ocean

BE HOME ON SATURDAY

Mr. R J Munro, accompanied by Mr. Frank Buckland, arrived home on Saturday evening after a pleasant tour through Ireland, Scotland, England and France. In speaking to the Examiner this morning Mr. Munro stated his voyages across the Atlantic and his trip among historic spots of the Old Land had been a delightful one. While aboard ship he had never missed a meal and enjoyed the best of health.

A few of the places visited were Belfast, Dublin, the Lakes of Killarney, the Giant's Causeway, Blarney Castle, Cork—where he heard the Bells of Shandon, immortalized by Tom Moore, peal "on the pleasant waters off the River Dee." He also visited Glasgow and other important Scottish places, Liverpool, London in England and spent some time in Paris.

Mr. Munro told of meeting one of the British bowlers while in Scotland. He registered at a hotel and when at the station a gentleman called out his name. He answered the stranger and discovered he had been in Peterborough with the British Bowlers last year and had such a pleasant recollection of the place that he always liked to meet with Peterborough tourists in Scotland.

In Liverpool Mr. Munro happened to meet P O. Newhall on the street and spent a pleasant time at his father's home near there.

In referring to the Dublin Exhibition Mr. Munro stated that the Canadian exhibits were the features of the show.

A FAMILY REUNION AT SMITHVILLE

Chief Roszel and His Wife Were in Attendance

Chief Roszel and Mrs. Roszel returned last night from Smithville where a large re-union of Mrs. Roszel's relatives was held at the residence of her cousin, Mrs. John Davis. The affair was the second annual re-union and was attended by between 250 and 300 people all connected with the old Fisher family of which Mrs. Roszel is a member. There were four generations represented the eldest being Mrs. Roszel's uncle, Mr. Peter Fisher, 93 years of age and the youngest was an infant of but six weeks.

The meeting was held in the orchard at Mr. Davis' homestead and was thronged with people, nearly all being related to each other. The weather was delightful and a programme was run off but the feature of the gathering was the fact that so many relatives should be together on such an occasion.

JUDGEMENT GIVEN THE PLAINTIFF

In the Long Drawn Case of McWilliams vs. The Dickson Co.

His Honour Judge Weller has just given judgment in the long drawn out case of McWilliams vs. the Dickson Company. It will be remembered that the plaintiff, Theodore McWilliams, entered an action against the company for $3,000. Legal objections were put in against the claim by the defendants, but these were over-ruled by the late Justice Street. The defendants appealed to the Court of Appeal, which upheld the judge's decision. The matter of what should be paid was referred to Judge Weller, who was agreed upon by both parties as referee, and he has ruled that the defendants must pay the plaintiff $2,572 out of the $3,000 claimed.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION WILL MEET

First Regular Fall Meeting Will Be Held To-night

To-night the first regular meeting of the Board of Education, for the new school year will be held. A number of important matters will be under consideration at the meeting to-night. It is not probable that anything will be done definitely in reference to the appointment of an Inspector to succeed Mr. Walker, the committee in charge of the matter not having a report ready yet.

CHEMONG PARK MAN'S PAINFUL INJURES

Ernest McManus Had Hand Badly Jammed While Putting Away Boat

Ernest McManus, a summer visitor at Chemong Park, was assisting Prof. Bull to store his launch for the season yesterday, and had his head badly jammed between the boat and a beam in the boathouse. Several stitches were required to close the wound, which proved a painful one, Dr. Young being called to attend him.

THE GRANDSTAND WAS BURNED

Flames Totally Destroyed Seating Accommodation at Riverside

The grand stand at Riverside Park was totally destroyed by fire on Saturday afternoon, a few minutes after having been vacated by the big crowd which attended the ball game.

It is supposed that the blaze originated from a cigar or cigarette stub carelessly thrown down by one of the fans. At any rate the structure was found to be on fire, shortly after six o'clock, and although an alarm was sent in the flames had made too great a headway to be checked, and the entire structure was consumed. The stand was valued at $600, and was insured for half that amount. The structure was originally built by the T.A.S., on their grounds on Murray street, and was moved across the river when the Riverside grounds were opened out. It is likely that the syndicate owning the grounds will re-build.

Your fish for this week. We have a fully supply this week, and should be able to fill all orders; also good plums at prices that are right; would advise buying at once. Both phones, 18. S. A. OKE.

"Just a Little Bit Shabby"

About this time, don't you find your summer suit getting a little shabby? Just send it to "My Valet," and have it cleaned, pressed and repaired. Wesley Bros., 204 Charlotte street. Both 'phones.

Brotherhood to Meet

To-night the meeting at St. Luke's church, of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be held at eight o'clock. Steps will be taken for the formation of a Junior Chapter. All members are expected to be present.

Presents to Scholars

Every scholar buying 25 cents worth and over, of school books or school supplies at the Peterborough Bookstore, will receive a useful present. Everybody is ready for the grand occasion at Stratton's.

Sympathy Appreciated

Mr. J. J. Turner, senior, and family wish to express, through this medium, their thanks to friends whose sympathy was extended to them during their recent bereavement, and for the flowers which were sent.

Resume Choir Practice

Mr. Jas. Head, proprietor of the Peterborough House, is patriotic. He has recently had a new sign painted. It is an illuminated sign, made in the national colours of red, white, and blue, and shows up well at night.

Is Your Piano in Tune?

The change of season affects pianos, as well as everything else. Mr. Geo. Gumpricht, practical piano maker and tuner, with twenty-eight years' experience, attends to all orders left at Mr. H. S. Macdonald's drug store. dtf

Crowded out

The report of the annual excursion of Court Chemong, No. 530, I. O. O. F., to Idyl Wild yesterday, in addition to a number of other interesting local news items, has been avoidably crowded out of this evening's issue of the Examiner.

Notice

Change of service on the Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and Coboconk route, Trent Valley Navigation Company. After August 31 the Saturday connection on the above route is hereby cancelled. A bi-weekly service will be given on Mondays and Thursdays until 16th September, inclusive. 3d52

Pastor on Vacation

Rev. H. M. Manning, pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church will leave this week on a three weeks' vacation, and during his absence the pulpit will be supplied by Rev. Mr. Applegath, of the Hamilton Conference. On the last Sunday in September superannuation sermons will be preached by Rev. Dr. Griffin, of Toronto.

Card of Thanks

The parents of the late Robert Nicholls have requested the Examiner to convey to the many friends whose practical evidences of sympathy were extended in their bereavement, their deep appreciation. They wish to thank the officers and men of the 24th Battery, as well as the 57th and the Salvation Army Band, for their services in connection with the funeral.

WADDELL'S RINK WINS FROST TROPHY

In One of Finest Games Ever Played on Brookside Green

The bowlers yesterday had one of the best day's sport ever held on the Brookside lawn. Many games were played and all were very interesting. The green was in excellent shape, so that good bowling was the feature of the day. The semi-finals in the Frost trophy game were played in the morning between Skips Runnells and Waddell, and was watched with evident pleasure by a number of the friends of both. Following is the score:—

Chris Wood	T Brightman
R W Matheson	W S Robinson
A Waddell, 12	C E Frost
E A Runnells	R M Waddell, 6

In the afternoon, one of the greatest games played on the local lawn in a long time was the final game between Skips Marshal and Waddell, resulting as follows:

Roy Scott	E Will Pratt
W S Robinson	R W Matheson
T E Fitzgerald	C E Frost
Dr Marshal, 11	R M Waddell, 18

Skip Waddell therefore wins the Frost trophy for the season of 1907.

BASEBALL

Although defeated on Saturday, the Peterborough ball team is by no means out of the race for the Midland League championship. They play in Port Hope on Saturday, and feel confident of winning the contest, which will make a third game necessary. The team will be strengthened for Saturday's game, and it is probable that Flaherty will do the twirling. The nine will all be here on Thursday for a good workout before the contest.

The Buffalo Express has the following reference to a game in which "Bill" Treanor, the old T. A. S. player, distinguished himself: Yesterday at Blue Label Park the East Buffalos defeated the Blue Labels in a well-played game, it being a pitchers' battle from start to finish, in which Varley received the best support and won his game. East Buffalo played errorless ball and hit when hits meant runs. The playing of Treanor at second and Beiske at first showed them to be of professional calibre. Treanor made two hits out of four times up, one of them a three-bagger.

RUGBY

A meeting of the Crescent Rugby Club is called for Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Y M C A. All those interested are asked to be on hand.

Contractor Here

Mr. Geo. A. Proctor, Sarnia, contractor for the Armouries, was in the city to-day, looking over the work so far accomplished on the building.

A useful thing for wives to know when they are packing up their lord and master's clothes is how to fold a man's coat. There is a knack in it that it will aid domestic happiness for her to master. Lay the coat out perfectly flat, right side up. Spread the sleeves out smoothly, then fold them back to the elbow until the bottoms of the cuffs are even with the collar. Fold the revers back and double the coat over, folding it on the center seam. Smooth out all wrinkles and lay it on a level surface in the trunk.

To Prevent Riding Up of Skirt.

A common complaint is that skirts will ride up in the front. Women that have prominent abdomens have more trouble than others. There are two remedies for this—either to wear some of the many contrivances which are sold for this purpose or to make a tab of lining material about four and a half inches wide and five inches long. This must be shaped out to fit the center of the skirt in front and caught with the seam when the facing is sewed on at the waist line. Finish the edge of it by pinking.

Modish Perfumes.

The woman who aspires to smartness takes care to be au fait in the matter of perfumes. Each year sees several new scents in vogue, though a certain few of the old fashioned essences retain their popularity. Of these lavender and wood violet denote the refined, well bred woman. The scents of the present season are remarkable for their subtle yet penetrating odor. Vinaigrettes are again considered modish.

Portuguese Salad.

Slice two medium sized firm cucumbers, one small Spanish onion, two medium sized tomatoes, two sweet peppers and two sound apples from which the cores have been removed. Mix in a salad bowl with four tablespoonfuls of French dressing. Serve plain or on lettuce leaves, ice cold.

Save tea leaves for washing varnished paint. When sufficient leaves have accumulated steep them for thirty minutes in a tin vessel and then strain through a sieve. This water will give varnished paint a newer and fresher appearance than a washing with soap and water.

FLOWERS IN SICKROOMS.

Never Send All White Flowers to an Invalid.

In sending flowers to an invalid great discrimination must be practiced. In the first place, be careful not to cause any extra work to the already overburdened family.

For this reason growing plants are undesirable, and, besides, while the old idea that they harmed the sick one by remaining in the room overnight is only a superstition, it is true that the invalid may easily harm them, especially if they are much handled.

In the second place, do not send flowers having a very pronounced or sickening odor. Tuberoses are thus distinctly barred, as are other flowers of their class.

Thirdly, avoid violent color contrasts. The nervous system is always slightly deranged and the perceptions unduly sharpened in a serious illness, and the contrast of vivid reds and pinks and yellows may be really harmful and will surely be disagreeable to the patient. Choose instead delicate pinks, soft creams or light blues. On the other hand, do not, above all, send white roses unaccompanied by any other flower nor an abundance of unrelieved white flowers of any kind. You might just as well order a floral pillow marked "At Rest" for the effect it will have upon the recipient of your mistaken kindness.

The sick are often inclined to be morbid, and nothing but cheerful suggestions should be presented to their imaginations. Finally, prefer the unusual flowers. You may be pretty sure that many besides yourself will send roses and carnations and violets. The little bunch of ragged robins or the cluster of old fashioned pink peonies will be a thousand times more appreciated.

And best of all will be the buttercups or the homely black eyed Susans which tell perhaps of a faroff happy home or a dear one loved and gone.

Sharks and the Dead Whale.

The presence of any large quantity of easily obtainable food is always sufficient to secure the undivided attention of the shark tribe. When "cutting in" whales at sea, I have often been amazed at the incredible numbers of these creatures that gather in a short space of time, attracted by some mysterious means from heaven only knows what remote distances. It has often occurred to us when whaling in the neighborhood of New Zealand to get a sperm whale alongside without a sign of a shark below or a bird above. Within an hour from the time of our securing the vast mass of flesh to the ship the whole area within at least an acre has been alive with a seething multitude of sharks, while from every quarter came drifting silently an incalculable host of sea birds, converting the blue surface of the sea into the semblance of a plain of new fallen snow.

The harpooners and officers from their lofty position on the cutting stage slew scores upon scores by simply dropping their keen edged blubber spades upon the soft crowns of the struggling fish, the only place where a shark is vulnerable to instant death. The weapon sinks into the creature's brain, he gives a convulsive writhe or two, releases his hold and slowly sinks, followed in his descent by a knot of his immediate neighbors, all anxious to provide him with prompt sepulture within their own yearning maws.

Star Scintillation.

Much of the beauty of the stars depends upon their scintillation. The multitudinous flashing of their tiny rays gives a wonderful life and brilliance to a winter's night. The great star Sirius excites the most admiration when, near the horizon, it coruscates with rainbow hues. But the astronomer would be glad if he could put a stop to the scintillation of the stars. That unsteadiness of their light is one of the chief obstacles he has to overcome in studying them with the telescope. Scintillation has generally been regarded as due only to slight disturbances in the atmosphere. But as recent observations have shown that red stars scintillate less than white ones it has been suggested that the causes for some of the essential differences in the scintillations of different stars may be in the stars themselves. There is no doubt, however, that the main cause of scintillation depends upon the condition of the air.—Minneapolis Journal.

His Cheerful Invitation.

Although Johnnie's and Willie's mothers are warm friends, those boys are always fighting each other. After a recent battle the victorious Johnnie was urged by his mother to go and make friends with his fallen foe. She even offered to give him a party if he would go over and invite Willie to come to that festivity. After much urging Johnnie promised to do as his mother wished. So the party came off at the appointed time and was violently enjoyed by all present. But Willie did not come.

"Now, Johnnie, you did invite him?" asked Johnnie's mother.

"Yes, I did! Yes, ma'am, I invited him!" answered Johnnie. "I invited him," he added reflectively, "and I dared him to come."

Female Diamonds.

The jeweler held a magnifying glass to a superb white diamond.

"Do you see those little diamonds on the farther edge?" he said. "They are invisible to the naked eye, but the glass shows them quite plainly, doesn't it? Well, they are the proof that this diamond is a female; hence we say that there are male and female diamonds, the males, of course, being those that don't produce these growths.

"Female diamonds are always the finest. In fact, nearly all the diamonds of wide world fame are females."
